GENERAL NEWS.

By the arrival of the present mail, via Brindisi, we are placed in possession of advices and gazettes from Calcutta to June 16; Madras, June 17; Bombay, June 19.

Our papers were not delivered from the Post Office this morning until midday.

Major Grant, V.C., arrived at Madras by steamer from Rangoon on June 11, and left Madras for Ootacamund the next evening. “In the course of an interview I had with him,” says a correspondent, “he spoke of his appreciation of the kindness of the people of Pakoko and the members of the Rangoon Club, who had noticed him on his way through. He spoke in enthusiastic terms of the conduct of the men who fought under him. His wounds are getting well, and he hopes to be quite himself again after a few weeks on the Nilgiris.”

Major Grant’s Victoria Cross, says the Times of India, will shortly arrive in India, and it will probably be presented to that gallant officer by his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, Madras, at a brigade parade of the troops at Wellington.

Major-General Maclean, British Consul-General at Meshed for the Provinces of Khorassan and Leistan, and Agent of the Viceroy, is about to retire. He will be succeeded by Mr. Ney Elias, at present Political Agent on special duty in Beloochistan.

Brigadier-General Hammond has been left in charge of the force in occupation of the Black Mountain.

Herr Kempermann, the German Minister at Bangkok, has handed to the Crown Prince of Siam the insignia of the Order of the Red Eagle, recently conferred upon his Highness by the German Emperor.

The inaugural ceremony of the college at Indore took place under the auspices of Rao Bahadur K. C. Bedarkar, the Prime Minister of Indore, on June 10, in the new Madressa Hall. Most members of the Durbar and the principal officers of the State were present.

A telegram from the correspondent of the Standard at the Hague dated June 5 says:—The Anglo-Dutch Convention relating to Borneo, which was signed a few days ago, is understood to have settled the long-outstanding question of the delimitation of the frontier between the Dutch and British possessions in that island. According to my information, the frontier remains unaltered from its present westernmost point to the 117th degree, whence it follows parallel 4.20 until it reaches the sea, and is carried on across the Island of Sebatik, the northern portion of which is to be British, the other half remaining Dutch. The arrangement gives to Great Britain a slice of the Tidseng country.

As regards the work to be done during the present legislative session at Simla, says the Pioneer, the Bankers’ Books Evidence Bill and the Deck and Load Lines Bill are ready for disposal, and will probably be passed during July. A third Bill has reference to the validation of certain irregular marriages between native Christians.

The Financial Department, the same paper says, will shortly be busily engaged in considering the new quinquennial provincial contracts, as the present ones expire on March 31, 1892. The various local governments will tax their ingenuity to show budgets which will not admit of their contributions to Imperial funds being largely increased.

“Is it really true,” asks a correspondent of an Indian paper, “that the recent experiments of the Leprosy Commission represent any new discovery? According to the published accounts, the Simla experimentalists claim to have done what has never been done before in having isolated the bacillus and cultivated it outside the human body. But Melcher succeeded as long ago as 1885 in producing leprosy in rabbits, while Bordoni Uffreduzzi has cultivated the bacillus lepræ from the spinal cord of lepers in three different culture media. It should not go out to the scientific world at home that Indian workers are ignorant of facts such as these.”

Surgeon Patrick Hehir, of the Bengal Medical Service, who has been engaged on an inquiry into the nature of the blood parasites met with in malarial fevers for the last two years, is said to have found special forms of infusorial organisms in the blood and excreta of cholera patients, in the blood and ulcerated surfaces of cases of leprosy, and in the blood in acute dysentery.

Manockjee Aslajee, the Parsee concerned in the University Tower Tragedy, had been committed to take his trial at the next Criminal Session, Bombay, on two separate charges of murder.

We (Bombay Gazette) hear it is generally believed at Quetta that one of the early developments of our Central Asian policy will be the establishment of our rule in Western Beloochistan and of a garrison in or near Seistan, and the laying of a railway from Pasni or Gwadur towards Seistan.

It is understood, the Calcutta correspondent of the Times says, that the Government is unlikely to accept Sir Lepel Griffin’s Cashmere railway scheme, as it is considered that the 4½ per cent. guarantee and the other terms asked by the promoters are too high.

The Khojak Tunnel is now almost finished, and will be absolutely completed by the end of July.

It is notified that the Secretary of State has sanctioned the estimate, amounting to 1,02,88,965 rs. of probable cost of the section of the Mu Valley Railway, from Sagaing to Kawlin, a distance of 145 miles, with a branch from Myohaung on the Toungoo-Mandalay extension to the Ava shore, six miles long, including 4,83,187 rs. for cost of steam-ferry connection with the aforesaid branch.

Cholera still prevailed at Allahabad. Miss Seward, the well-known and popular lady doctor, was one of the victims. (See "Obituary Notices.")

According to a telegram of July 1, in the Black Mountain district everything remains quiet and the troops are engaged in road-making. There are no signs of Hashim Ali returning.

News from Chalt, dated June 10, states that Lieutenant-Colonel Durand had formally intimated to the Hunza and Nagar chiefs that no invasion on their country was intended, but that an attempt on their part to raid into the Cashmere territory would be met by force.

Both the Hunza and Nagar chiefs, later information states, have communicated by letter with Lieutenant-Colonel Durand at Chalt, and affairs seem about to take a peaceful turn.

For several weeks dacoits have been giving so much trouble on the Nowgong border that the district superintendent of police has been obliged to take up his residence at Mauranipore to direct operations against them.

The Maharaja of Bhownugger, says the Englishman, has the courage of his opinions. During the discussion on Sir Andrew Scoble's Bill, he expressed his cordial approval of the measure, and after its passage he requested the State Council to draw up a similar Bill for Bhownugger. It is announced that the Bill has now been submitted, and has received his highness's sanction.

The normal area under wheat in India is now estimated at 26½ million acres, and the outturn at 6½ million tons.

About 230 tons of paper were used for the Census throughout the Indian Empire, and if the schedules had been placed one following the other, they would have covered over 11,000 miles.

Sixty-three collieries were at work in Bengal, we are told in statistical tables published under authority of the Government of India; also one in the Punjab, two in the Central Provinces, three in Assam, one in Central India, one in the Nizam's territory, one in Beloochistan. A total of seventy-two, indicating progress from sixty-seven in the preceding year.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THE following telegrams have been received from the Calcutta correspondent of the Times :—

JUNE 30.—Rain has fallen throughout Bengal during the last three days, and the monsoon appears to have set in, although more lightly than usual. Heavy rain fell in Bombay city on Saturday and Sunday, but it does not seem to have extended to the other parts of the Presidency. Madras also complains of insufficient rain.

JULY 3.—During the last week an improvement has taken place in the weather. The Meteorological Department reports the rain-bearing winds have penetrated to the Central and North-West Provinces, but the monsoon is a fortnight later than usual. The winds have been exceptionally light, and have a marked tendency to avoid the north-western regions, from which direction the abnormally high barometrical pressure continues. Steamers arriving at Bombay report the weather to be almost calm in the Arabian Sea, an unusual circumstance at this season. More rain is wanted in all the provinces except Burma and Assam, but prices generally are stationary and are nowhere rising to any great extent.

The distress existing on the east coast of Madras is due mainly to the failure of the winter rains, but it has been aggravated by the delay of the summer rains. The regions now causing the greatest anxiety are the South-West Punjab and Rajpootana, where cattle are already beginning to suffer. It is still too early to predict any widespread failure of crops, but if the present conditions continue ten or fifteen days longer there will be grave cause for apprehension.

Extensive swarms of locusts continue to appear over the whole of Northern India, and have also appeared in Bengal, where they are seldom seen.

The Commander-in-Chief has recommended the grant of a frontier medal with clasp for the Miranzai and Manipore expeditions.

JULY 5.—The Government has issued an order respecting the publication of newspapers and other printed works in places administered by the Governor-General in Council but not forming part of British India. This order—which comes not a day too soon—directs that after August 1 no newspaper shall be published in any such territory without the written consent of the Political Agent, which consent may be withdrawn at any time. If anyone disobey the order the Political Agent may require him to leave the locality, prohibit his return, and forcibly expel him if necessary. The preamble states that the regulation is issued to remove misapprehensions as to the rules already existing. For some years past there has been a steady increase in some native States of low and scurrilous journals of the worst type, and recently several cases have directed attention to this growing evil, but the evil is not confined to native States. The tone of many papers published in British India is becoming more and more markedly seditious, and their references to Manipore and other matters are such as no Government but the British would tolerate. Lord Cross lately described these prints as safety-valets, for discontent, but to most observers in this country they appear rather as symptoms of a disease which, if it has not yet become actually dangerous, may speedily reach that stage unless effective steps are taken to check it.

The monsoon now seems fairly set in in Bengal and Madras, heavy rain being reported during the last two days in the greater part of both provinces. Its progress northward is still slow, but it may be hoped that it will become generally established in time to prevent any serious loss of crops. Relief works have been opened in Ajmere, where about 7,000 persons are employed.

Sir William Lockhart's despatches, published in yesterday's Gazette, gave an interesting account of the two recent expeditions to the Miranzai Valley. Several officers and men are honourably mentioned, and the Governor-General and the Commander-in-Chief concur in expressing their high appreciation of the vigour and ability of Sir William Lockhart and of the gallantry of the troops. The total casualties were 78 killed and 73 wounded. Of these the 29th Punjab Infantry had 15 killed and 14 wounded, the latter including two British officers.

GUP.

WRITING from Simla, the Pioneer's correspondent says :—Considering that there are now nearly 400 Cooper's Hill men in Government service, besides others who have gone to railway companies in India, it is a matter for surprise that no annual gathering, on a large scale, of old students of the College has been inaugurated. It is nineteen years ago since the first C. H. engineer came out, and during that period many a good piece of work has been done by those who received their training in the special College founded in 1871. Since 1874 small meetings of Cooper's Hill men have taken place at Agra, Calcutta, Delhi, Simla, and elsewhere, but all these have depended entirely on local action. Now, however, it has been arranged to have an annual dinner at Simla, and last week's gathering, fixed at about the time when the State Ball, the levée, and the races were attracting visitors here, was quite a success in its way. Sixteen is not a very large number out of, say, three hundred and fifty old students in this country: but Mr. Way, the chairman of the recent dinner at the New Club, doubtless looked upon it as a good beginning. A proposal to fix some day for a yearly Cooper's Hill celebration was discussed and very favourably received, though nothing definite was decided upon. It was also suggested that the college colours should be more generally worn on the cricket field, in the tennis and racquet court, and that other measures should be taken to promote esprit de corps. All this was sound and practical, and, with a little arrangement, the annual celebration should be worthy of the College, scattered though the engineers are throughout the country. Let it be noted in favour of those who dined together that they eschewed departmental topics as they would politics. The words "agitation" and "grievance" were not heard.

The Poona correspondent writes (June 4) :—Our life for the last month has been as dull as, perhaps even duller than, it usually is at this time of year. A few paper chases, in some of which the ladies led the field, and a scratch regatta and "sing song" at Rosherville have been the only breaks in the ghastly monotony of our existence. The general opinion is that the season is going to be a very dull one. I think I told you before that a very large number of our ladies had gone home for the hot weather. I should say that by this time quite one-third of the female members of our society have departed for their native land; while the large number of houses still advertised to let augurs badly for the prospects of those who make a living out of the rainy season visitors. The "classes" have not filled so well as usual. I do not think any of them are quite up to their ordinary strength, and the Veterinary class, which last year provided a very strong and most sporting contingent, consists on this occasion of but three officers. I do not know if the loss of our esteemed friend, Veterinary Surgeon S. M. Smith, has anything to say to this decrease in numbers, but his departure from this station is a source of very great regret to a large number of horse-owners, who thoroughly appreciated the advantage of his services, and the immense improvement effected under his régime in the Veterinary Hospital.

The Governor has arrived at Ganeshkhind, and the General is expected in a day or two. The headquarter staff is, I believe, coming in on Saturday, the Commander-in-Chief staying for a short time in Panchganni until Poona has been properly cooled for his reception.

The Adjutant-General landed from home by the last mail, fuller of zeal, I hear, than ever. We are losing our D.A.A.G., Captain D'Arcy Thomas, of the Worcesters, who goes to Kamptee, presumably for the reason that it is not fair to the Staff Corps that the entire district staff of the best station in the Presidency should be composed of officers of the British Service. He is succeeded by Captain Geoghagan, of the 3rd Cavalry, so that we have now the somewhat curious spectacle of a district which numbers no less than nine infantry regiments in its command being "run" by a British Cavalry General, assisted by a Gunner A.A.G. and a Native Cavalry D.A.A.G. And still they say we have no originality in the Bombay Presidency!

Pat-ball, principally supported by the officers of the Worcestershire Regiment, goes on in a feeble sort of way at the Gymkhana, and from half-a-dozen to a dozen men are to be seen every evening at the cricket net, risking life and limb on the bumpiest of matting pitches. Golf bids fair to become very popular this season. The dulness of Mahableshwar has gained many new recruits for the royal and ancient game, and a fourth Club—there are already three, at Ganeshkhind, Ghorporie, and Kirkee—is being started at Wanowrie, which place should furnish excellent links. It is an excellent game for those who are too old, or too stout, or too feeble to indulge in violent exercise, and its increase of popularity in these parts has caused a considerable rise in the profits of Messrs. Treacher and Company.

The thirty-seventh anniversary of Founder's Day at the Abu Lawrence School was celebrated on June 4, a large assemblage of visitors, non-commissioned officers and soldiers of the sanitarium, with their wives and families, being present to witness the usual ceremonies as detailed in the following programme:—(1) The Agent to the Governor-General opens the proceedings; (2) a song and round by the children; (3) distribution of prizes; (4) a song and round by the children; (5) physical drill and sports in the playground; and (6) treat to the children given by the School Committee.

Mrs. Beville kindly distributed the prizes, supported by the Agent to the Governor-General for Rajpootana, General Beville, commanding at Deesa; Brigade-Surgeon Lionel Spencer, M.D., honorary secretary to the School Committee; Captain Hibbert, commanding the Sanitarium, and many ladies and gentlemen, among whom were Maharaja Sir Pertab Singh, K.C.S.I., and aide-de-camp to the Prince of Wales, the Raja of Khetri, and other native gentlemen. The youthful Maharaja of Bikanir, a pupil at the Mayo College and a most welcome figure at all social gatherings during the Abu season, was also present.

The Agent to the Governor-General read out, amidst loud cheering, the remarks made in the Visitors' Book by the Marquis of Lansdowne on his visit to the school last November, which were as follows:—

"I visited the Abu Lawrence School to-day, and was much pleased with the admirable order in which the premises are kept, and with the appearance of the boys and girls. I have never seen a healthier or happier-looking set of children, or one of which the appearance more clearly betokened good and kindly treatment. The condition of the school reflects much credit on Mr. and Mrs. Eaglesome, and the institution is, in my opinion, a most valuable one."

Colonel Trevor said the tribute of gratitude which the school owed to Mr. and Mrs. Eaglesome, the head master and mistress who for twenty-two years had directed its destinies and made it a happy home as well as a most valuable educational agency for the children entrusted to their care, was incalculable, a statement which was received with enthusiastic cheers. He also elicited loud applause by stating that the visit of the Viceroy and the kindly interest taken by his Excellency in the school had resulted in averting a threatened reduction of the grant it receives from the Government of India, which had been pleased to fix that grant at 3,500 rs. per annum, in accordance with the prayer of the managing committee.

PERSONAL.

MR. R. E. CANDY, C.S., will hold charge of the office of Superintendent, Mahableshwar, on Surgeon H. P. Dimmock's departure for Bombay.

Mr. P. C. Lyon, officiating Under-Secretary Revenue and Agricultural Department, probably goes on three months' leave at the end of July, and on his return will be placed in charge of the settlement work at Cuttack.

The Gaekwar of Baroda has applied for the services of Mr. Bruce Foote, of the Geological Survey Department, for a year when he retires from the service of the Government of India, for the purpose of investigating the mineral treasures of the Baroda State.

Both Surgeon-Major and Miss Bateman have recovered completely from the injuries received by them in the carriage accident that took place recently in Government Park, Mount Road, Madras.

Mr. O'Callaghan, consulting engineer for railways, Government of India, goes on three months' leave at the end of July, and will be relieved by Mr. T. R. Bell. Mr. C. Vincent also goes on three months' leave at the same time, and Mr. DuCane Smith will officiate in his place as deputy secretary in the Public Works Department, Government of India.

The following resolution concerning the death of Rao Sahab Mahipatram Rupram Nilkant, C.I.E., which occurred on May 30, has been passed:—The Governor in Council has received with deep regret the intelligence of the death of Rao Sahab Mahipatram Rupram Nilkant, C.I.E., principal of the Ahmedabad Training College, and Goojerati Translator, Educational Department. He desires to place on record his high sense of the valuable services rendered to education by the deceased officer during a faithful service of more than thirty-five years.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

Col. E. T. H. Baber.—In the obituary notice of this officer in our issue of June 23, the initials were given as H. F. H. They should be as above.

General Sir Orfour Cavenagh died at Long Ditton, Surrey, on July 3, aged seventy. He was appointed ensign to the 32nd Regiment in 1837, and served through several Indian campaigns, including the Mutiny. He lost his left leg at the Battle of Maharajpore. General Cavenagh was the author of "Reminiscences of an Indian Official." He was Chairman of the Kingston Board of Guardians and the rural sanitary authority.

The death is announced of Major Whiteford, deputy consulting engineer for railways at Nagpore, from fever.

A Mussoorie correspondent writes on June 4:—I regret to have to record the death, by his own hand, of Dr. Smith, lately gazetted to the post of honorary surgeon of the local Reserves. I am not in a position to account for the sad act; Dr. Smith had a few days before broken his collar-bone by a fall at tennis (he had lost an arm in the Mutiny). Whether this was a determining cause I cannot say.

Mr. Owen, superintendent of the Dacca Gaol, died on June 15 of cholera. He was to marry the Hon. Mr. Halliday's daughter at the end of the month. The death is a sad shock to many friends.

Twenty years ago, Miss Sara C. Seward, M.D., writes the Morning Post, came to Allahabad full of high purpose and inspired with a sincere desire to benefit her sex in India. After an existence of unceasing toil in the midst of surroundings that most ladies would look upon with absolute terror this good lady has been suddenly called away, and before her many friends could realise the calamity which had befallen they were gathered round her last resting-place in the Muir Road Cemetery. The curious feature about Miss Seward's unexpected demise was that she died from cholera, in the treatment of which she was ordinarily very successful. Miss Seward was a niece of the well-known American statesman of that name, the friend of Lincoln, and a powerful champion of the popular cause in the States. She was a New Yorker by birth, and at first her inclinations did not manifestly turn to the semi-religious semi-scientific phase they afterwards assumed. Residence with her brother, who was U.S. Consul at Hong Kong, accustomed her to the East, and finally Miss Seward threw in her lot with the American Presbyterian Mission. Before coming to India Miss Seward obtained her diploma in the Philadelphia University, and of course her medical attainments gave her much power and influence among the native women of all classes whom she visited.

A Poona correspondent writes on June 4:—Death has been once more amongst us, and, as is so often the case, has selected as his victim one of those whom we can worst spare and whom we should have least expected to fall a prey to him. Mrs. Walter Ross, wife of Captain Ross, of "the Durhams," and third daughter of Sir Donald Stewart, died quite suddenly on Tuesday last. She had just given birth to a daughter, and was apparently going on wonderfully well, when she was suddenly attacked by typhoid fever, and was carried off after only a few hours' illness. Mrs. Ross was as great a favourite here as she was in Simla and Calcutta, and her loss is mourned by a very large circle of friends. The greatest sympathy is felt for Captain Ross, who is most popular with all classes of society.

The death is announced of Major-General Henry William Parke at the age of eighty-four. He obtained his first commission in the Royal Marine Artillery, in 1822, and, after spending nearly forty years in the Service, retired with the rank of major-general, on full pay, in 1859. Major-General Parke served with the British Legion in co-operation with the Spanish forces, near San Sebastian, in 1834, and under Espartero in raising the siege of Bilbao. He was a Knight (First Class) of San Fernando, and Knight of Isabella the Catholic, and received the medal given to the British troops engaged in the Carlist Wars.

THE MANIPORE DISASTER.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

A Reuter telegram of July 2 from Manipore says:—

Major Maxwell, Political Officer in Manipore, has now caused four of the leading maibas, or demon priests, to be arrested on a charge of complicity in the events of March 23 and 24 last. Their trial will probably commence next week.

Great pleasure is expressed here at the honours and rewards conferred upon the sepoy officers and men who were with Major Grant in his gallant defence of Thobal.

A later despatch (July 4) adds:—The Kuki and Nagat tribes, who were formerly subject to the Maharaja of Manipore, have begun to make raids upon each other. As yet none of the villages in British territory have been attacked, but an extension of the movement is feared.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs on July 5:—

Owing to the mass of papers which must be read through, the final orders of the Government in the cases of the Manipore Princes will not be issued before the 31st. Having regard to the course of procedure adopted from the beginning, this delay is perhaps unavoidable, but none the less it is to be regretted. The original mistake lay in constituting a regular court, and in framing the charges under the Indian Penal Code. If the Maniporis were feudatories, then they were guilty of rebellion, and were triable by martial law. If, on the other hand, they were independent belligerents, then they were chargeable with an offence against the law of nations—namely, the murder of an ambassador under a flag of truce. Therefore, no impartial critic could have blamed the Government had it declared municipal law inappropriate in the case, and directed a summary trial of the accused by court-martial. However, it is to be hoped that Lord Lansdowne will now stand firm, and will not be moved by the rabid outpourings of the disloyal section of the native Press. Any mitigation of the sentences on such prisoners as have been clearly proved to be responsible for the murders will give a serious blow to British prestige in India and will have far-reaching consequences. It is understood that the orders passed on the evidence taken by the military Court of Inquiry at Manipore will shortly be made public.

The Bombay Gazette makes the following sensible remarks on the relations of the Indian Government to the Manipore disaster:—The case which presented itself when the ex-Maharaja was deposed was one in which, unless the Government meant to reinstate Kula Chandra Singh—as their treaty engagements would have warranted them in doing—they might well have left matters to work out their own solution. No British district, we imagine, would have been the worse whatever happened. Revolutions in Manipore are as customary as in Central America, and whoever may suffer from them we at all events are none the worse for them. As a matter of fact, the policy of inactivity had had five months' trial, and it had succeeded. There was little chance of the old Maharaja coming back, and the Maniporis seem to have accepted the rule of his brother with acquiescence, if not with cordiality. What more did we want? The Senaputty may have had a bad record, though there are many bad records on the files of the Foreign Office; but he had proved to be a stronger man than the brother whom he had deposed, and the turn that had been given to events did in its rough way promise the survival of the fittest as the practical solution of a problem that after all did not concern us so very much. John Lawrence would have dealt with the Rajas of Manipore as he dealt with the rival Ameers of Cabul—that is, he would have let them prove by the hard facts of triumph and possession who was the strongest, and instead of troubling himself to arrest the Senaputty, would have looked upon him as the chief factor—repellent though he might be—in the Manipore problem. One reason for letting him alone which ought to have weighed with the Government of India was that until we made an enemy of him he had never been unfriendly to the British. Mr. Grimwood got on with him well enough, and it is very likely that if the Political Agent—who knew him better than Mr. Quinton did, or than anyone in the Foreign Office—had been left to look after him he would have been amenable to good advice, and would have been content to play the part of Mayor of the Palace to his fainant brother. What was wanted was that he should not upset the new Raja as he had upset Kula Chandra Singh. The obvious course then was to bind him over to good conduct by persuasion and tactful management rather than by coercion, and not to banish him. He was the strongest man in the country, and doubtless he would have ruled through his weaker brother. But there is absolutely nothing to justify the belief that he would have proved an enemy of the British or even an intractable ally. He was, in a word, just the man who might with advantage have been left alone, subject to the good advice of a Political Agent who is known to have had strong influence over him. No one, on this side of the frontier at all events, would have been the worse, and we are not sure that anyone on the other side would have been either.

Sir John Gorst has made out as good a defence as he could of the measures chosen for removing the Senaputty. There was nothing unusual, he said, in making an arrest at a durbar, for this had been frequently done recently. We hope he named a few cases in support of this assertion; otherwise it will be received in India with distrust. A durbar may properly be used for announcing the displeasure of Government upon an offending Chief, as Lord Mayo used at a memorable durbar at which he declared the supersessions of the profligate and unruly Maharaja of Ulwar twenty years ago. But Sir Richard Temple, who is not likely to be biased against the Government view, holds that a durbar is not the place at which an arrest is admissible, and we doubt if there were a dozen men in the House who thought otherwise. We may take it for granted at all events that the abortive durbar at Manipore will be the last which it will be sought to use for the purpose of making an arrest of a leading dignitary of a State. The strange infatuation which seems to have come over so many who were responsible for this luckless affair met with a fresh illustration in the debate. The Secretary of State was not consulted about the expedition, it seems, because it was regarded as of little importance. It was in the belief that it was of little importance that the party set out "too large for an escort, too small for an army," ill-supplied with ammunition, and leaving their guns behind them, in the easy assurance that, as Mr. Quinton said, they could borrow a gun from the Maharaja if they wanted one! To go out with rifles and bayonets against a neighbouring prince, and then look to him to lend you a gun to aid in the capture of his brother, the man to whom he owed his elevation—was this serious work, and is it worth while, in the interests of the dead or the living, to excuse it? And the blundering was so gratuitous. There was no groping in the dark through an unknown land. At any stage the Chief Commissioner had the counsel, if he had listened to it, of a man who knew more of Manipore than Mr. Quinton can have known of Assam. Mr. Grimwood's advice went for nothing, and he was obliged to spend the last hours of his life in unavailing carrying out a policy which he regarded as wrong and impolitic. It is a poor service to anyone to endeavour to gloss over all that is humiliating in the story—the absence of necessity for any intervention at all; the endeavours to make an arrest by means that were wanting in frankness; the deplorable incompleteness of the measures adopted, and the unfortunate tactics that led to a British force being defeated by an ill-armed rabble. The story had better be left as it stands, for no advocacy which consideration for men whose loss we all deplore may inspire will change the melancholy aspect of the record.

THE SENTENCE ON THE SENAPUTTY.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times of India writes on June 14:—

Judgment in the case against Tekendrajit Singh, the Senaputty, was given yesterday. The court found that the prisoner was guilty of the first count and of the second count, but not guilty of the third count.

With regard to the first count, the court found that it was the intention of the Manipori durbar to resist forcibly any order of the Government. This was proved by the evidence of the Regent's head clerk, who stated that preparations for resistance had been made by the prisoner, who was also president of the council, when it was decided to oppose the advance, which most daring attempt to oppose the Government of India's orders was abandoned. The accused's plea of sudden illness could not be accepted. Everything tended to prove it was a mere pretence to avoid the meeting with the Chief Commissioner, as he was well enough to meet Mr. Quinton on the road; also to attend the durbar at the Residency, besides attending the Regent's durbar on March 23, and to take an active part in the attack on the 24th. The accused denied being present at the Regent's durbar, but the second witness for the prosecution stated he was there. This witness's evidence appeared reliable. It is proved by witnesses, and admitted by the accused, that firing took place between Maniporis and British. The accused pleads he was fired on first; but only one of his own witnesses asserts this, and this man admits being in a position where he could not possibly tell. On the other hand, Captain Butcher, Lieutenant Chatterton, and Havildar Deepchand state that the British troops did not commence the firing. The court, therefore, is justified in assuming that the first fire came from the Manipori side. The accused is proved to have taken an active part in the attack on the Residency, as he was found superintending his men firing on the British then occupying his own house; also in the evening of the same day he was superintending the construction of an embrasure. The accused also admits being in command and ordering the "cease fire" to be sounded. The court considers it impossible to doubt it, but that had he wished he could have stopped firing at any moment and hoisted a flag of truce. Finally, the accused demanded the surrender of the British troops. The court is unanimous in opinion that the charge of waging war has been proved.

Regarding the second count, the accused admits meeting British officers at the durbar inside the fort, and that after a mutual expression of regret he required the British troops to lay down their arms, and that under this condition alone would he give safe conduct, mentioning that the Manipori troops were infuriated and beyond his control. When the durbar broke up, the accused's action in leaving the British officers to make their way out as best they could was so contrary to strict Oriental etiquette, and opposed to the usual Manipore custom, that it was expressive of his anger against, and contempt of, the British representatives. The crowd was already excited, and, encouraged by the accused's attitude, broke into demonstrations of violence; one officer being wounded and one being killed. The accused hearing the uproar returned and drove away the crowd without any difficulty, showing proof of his great control over his men. The accused ordered a guard to be placed over Mr. Quinton's party, but made no further efforts for their safety, although he had seen the dead body of Mr. Grimwood, for whom accused claims feelings of personal friendship. Therefore he must have known the imminent danger in which the lives of the remainder were. The accused made no effort to see the officers out safely. He says he did not do so owing to the heavy firing then going on, but it has been proved that the firing did not commence until midnight, the durbar having been held at nine o'clock. The accused admits no firing was going on when he was met on the wall by the men who came asking regarding the Tongal's orders as to the execution of their officers; moreover, the accused could not have doubted his power to conduct the officers out safely, as his men had just given excellent proof of their obedience and his influence over them; but, even had it been impossible to take the officers out safely, he could have easily put them into top guard or citadel, both safe refuges. By placing the officers under guard he proved that he did not then desire to kill the officers, but merely to keep them prisoners.

Regarding the evidence concerning the conversation of the accused with the Tongal General, and subsequent to the execution of the officers, the evidence of all the witnesses bears stamp of truth up to a certain point, none of them admitting having seen the actual execution. Thus Jutta Singh, who exerted himself on behalf of the officers and took great interest on their behalf, states he left as the accused and the Tongal General were arguing concerning the murders. The accused's statement that he lay down and went to sleep after conferring with the Tongal General is beyond the bounds of credence; but if it is true, his action implied consent to the murder of the officers, he having yielded to the arguments of the Tongal General. The Court has no doubt the accused acquiesced in the Tongal General's remarks, the result being an order calling for the executions. According to the accused's own account, he went to the top guard, and wrathful with the Minister for ordering the murder of the officers, he argued with him and rebuked him; yet although the Minister was more than anxious to murder the officers, and was next to himself the greatest power in the land, the accused after a little argument lay down. If the accused was interested in the fate of the officers, such callousness is incomprehensible. The accused did not warn the sentries not to give up the officers, nor did he remove them to the Citadel, fifty yards away. Another point is that Usurba refused in the first instance to carry out the Tongal General's orders without the distinct orders of the accused; yet soon afterwards he handed over the officers, although he had heard the accused express disapproval at countermarching the order and knew that he was close at hand. The inference is that Usurba must have been given to understand that the result of the accused's conference with the Tongal General was the order to put the officers to death. Moreover, the fact that the public executioners were sent for, and the officers handed over to them, gave the deed a legal aspect and made it a public ceremonial ordered by the ruling power, warranting the assumption that execution was ordered by a higher power than the Tongal General. This assumption is confirmed by the fact that none of the parties concerned in the executions were in any way punished by the accused. The Court is unanimous in opinion that the second count has been clearly proved against the accused. But with reference to the third charge, they consider there is no evidence proving that the accused was present when the murders were committed. The Court find the accused not guilty on this count.

The sentence is as follows:—"The court find that you, Tekendrajit Singh, are guilty of the first and second counts of the charge; that you, on or about March 24, waged war against the Queen-Empress, and abetted the murder of the Chief Commissioner of Assam (Mr. Quinton), Colonel Skene, 42nd Goorkhas, Lieutenant Simpson, 43rd Goorkhas, and Mr. Cossins, Assistant Secretary to the Commissioner of Assam. The court finds you not guilty on the third count of the charge. The court directs that you, Tekendrajit Singh, alias Jubraj, alias Senaputty of Manipore, be hanged by the neck until you are dead. Signed, Manipore, June 11." The above sentence is subject to the confirmation of the Governor-General in Council, to whom the records of the trial will be forwarded.

Janaki Baboo, the prisoner's advocate, translated the finding and sentence of the court to the prisoner, who, after signing a copy of his defence, was removed in irons to the Quarter Guard of the 43rd Goorkha Rifles, where special precautions have been taken to avoid any attempt at escape or rescue.

In the course of the trial of the Senaputty a witness, Angao Ningto, gave evidence regarding the holding of the durbar, at which were present the Jobraj, the Tongal General, Samnu Colonel, and witness. The Senaputty, the witness said, was not present. The Jobraj asked in durbar that the British should give up their arms, to which Mr. Quinton would not agree. The durbar then broke up. The Political Agent said to witness, "See us out." Witness, continuing, said:—"I told this to the Jobraj, who told me to do so. I took the sahibs as far as the Dragon Gate, where the crowd began to hit at the sahibs, and "long" sahib was hit on the head with the butt of a gun. I then got the sahibs back to the Durbar Hall, where three stood on the steps and two went underneath. I told Jattr Singh to look after the sahibs. The Jobraj then came up and drove the crowd away. Then, going back to the Top guard after the giving prisoners over to my charge, I ordered some sentries to be put on the sahibs, and then went away. When I returned I heard the sahibs had been killed. I then went to sleep. The Senaputty went to Thobal after he returned from going down the Cachar Road. I do not know by whose orders the prisoner went to Thobal.

As shedding still further light upon the manner in which Mr. Quinton summoned the durbar at Manipore, it may be stated, says the Pioneer, that for some time past it has been known that he sent a formal letter from Sengmai on March 21 requesting the Regent and his brothers to meet him in durbar at noon on the following day. This evidence was not, however, on the official record, though it was in possession of Mr. Quinton's family. It will be seen from the report of the trial now being held at Manipore that Bamon Charan Mukerjee, clerk to the Regent, stated:—"From Sengmai on March 21 the Chief Commissioner wrote ordering the Regent and his brothers to a durbar." This is important, as proving that the summons to the durbar was formally issued, and that the invitation was not given in a casual way, as was supposed, when Mr. Quinton met the Regent at ten o'clock on the morning of March 22.

A telegram of June 16 from Manipore says:—"The headquarters of the 44th Goorkha Rifles marched yesterday from Sengmai to Konjahut, the present sanitarium. Captain Barrett, D.S.O., and 100 men of the 43rd Goorkha Rifles, marched to day from Konjahut to Manipore. We have had a break in the rains, and the polo players have at last had a dry ground to play on. Lieutenant Thompson, 1-2nd Goorkhas, has been recommended for a year's sick leave to England, by a G.O. Medical Board. He hopes to start for Kohima to-morrow.

OUR BURMA-CHINA FRONTIERS.

THE Rangoon Gazette says:—"The weekly telegraphic summary of our London correspondent informs us that an article which appeared in our issue of May 18 on China's future policy with regard to a portion of the frontier of Burma, has apparently been made the subject of inquiry. The Local Government has "no information" on the point, we are told, and the Government of India has no "recent information." The qualification implied in the word "recent" may be of importance, but that does not concern us. We merely briefly repeat for the benefit of our readers the points brought out in the article alluded to, and which we had on the very best authority.

We said that the Chinese Government are, for many reasons then pointed out by us, very anxious to arrive at an arrangement with the British Government on the subject of the Burmo-Chinese frontier; that they are ready to set about a complete detailed delimitation of the frontier, but they do not at present press that point; that they are urging on the British Government the desirability that certain broad principles and outlines should be laid down now. The first of these general principles is that the Taiping should form the boundary between the two countries, China thus formally and absolutely abandoning Marquis Tseng's pet scheme as to the Shweli. China also asks that she should have a trade port on the Irrawaddy, near Bhamo.

In the article alluded to, however, we merely referred to the frontier near Bhamo. That is, no doubt, a very important matter; but the news we published is, as we then pointed out, mainly important as indicating a complete change in the attitude adopted by China towards the British occupation of Burma. Of much greater importance to Burma and to British trade than the delimitation of the Bhamo or north-eastern frontier is the question of the frontier south and south-east of Bhamo, that is, the frontier extending from somewhere near the town in the west, to French territory in the east. The available knowledge of that region is very small. Some information, accumulated by the parties which set out from Bhamo and Mandalay last cold season, will be forthcoming with the reports, which have not yet been published, but a great deal remains to be done. We understand that a party of officers, with a strong escort, will, during the coming cold season, set out from Bhamo and spend many months in making detailed surveys and explorations in this region. At present their plan of operations is under consideration by the Local Government. What the expedition will recommend the Government of India to do is, of course, impossible to foresee. It is, however, desirable, in view of the energy, almost amounting to aggressiveness, of France on the western borders of her colonial empire, that we should have our frontier at least as far east as Kianghung, on the upper waters of the Mekhong.

Apart altogether from the danger of having a great Power as near our frontier as France would be, if she ever succeeds in obtaining Kianghung, it is most undesirable that we should permit a rival to hold a town which is the trade centre of one of the finest tea-growing districts in the world, possessing which, moreover, France would divert all the trade down the Mekhong to her own ports. In one way the possession of Kianghung may be of the highest importance to us. If we have to rule all the wild trans-Salween tribes, it is important that we should have a railway from Mandalay to Kianghung. Without that we could only reach them from the Northern Shan railway, which would skirt this wild tract on the north, or from Mokmai on the Salween to the south of them; whereas a railway to Kianghung would run right through the centre of this tract; and the trade from the rich Puerh district would make such a railway pay. Mokmai would readily be accessible from Maulmain by comparatively trifling blasting operations on the Salween.

As we have said, the question of this frontier is of much more importance than that of the extreme north-eastern one. With China alone the arrangement as regards the latter must be made, but the delimitation of the former will bring us into contact with China and France, and, to some extent, with Siam also.

In a further article the Gazette adds:—"We spoke yesterday of the advisability of having the frontier of the Indian Empire at least as far to the east as Kianghung, on the Mekhong. An issue of Le Courrier d'Haiphong, which has just come to hand, throws some fresh light on the aims of France on her western frontiers in Indo-China. A correspondent of that journal, whose communication is thought of sufficient importance to give it the prominence of an editorial, says bluntly "the Mekhong is ours, and we must have the whole valley, because, from a historical point of view, it belongs en droit et en fait to our kingdoms of Annam and Cambodia," and the writer then goes on to warn his countrymen and Siam that the British are annexing what does not belong to them. From the tone and language of the communication, and from certain other internal evidence, we fancy the writer is the fussy, bellicose Frenchman who holds a roving commission on the Mekhong, and is half pedlar, half political agent. However that may be, it is well for our Government to know the extent of the claims seriously put forward at the present moment by the most moderate of the French journals in the East.

Of course, the claim of France to the whole valley of the Mekhong cannot for a moment be allowed by the British. As we mentioned a few weeks since in speaking of the results of the recent expedition under Messrs. Archer and Scott, the Mekhong is an untenable boundary for us, and it is probable our frontier must be moved to the furthest eastern boundary of the old Burmese possessions, that is, to east of the trans-Mekhong State of Kyaing Chaing. The safest and most straightforward course for our Government is to assert the Burmese claim, which descended to us by the annexation of Thebaw's territories. If we take up that ground, there is an end to the claims of France to that portion of the valley of the Mekhong which lies to the north of Chiengsen at least. With regard to the lower waters, France must arrange with Siam, and already some of her officials are showing a tendency to bully the Siamese in the Eastern Laos States.

THE FACTORY ACT.

PUTTING ON THE SCREW.

THE Civil and Military Gazette says:—"A number of telegrams relating to the Factory Bill laid before the House of Commons on May 4 last show clearly one or two important things. In the first place they point to the extremely peremptory way in which the Secretary of State addresses the Indian Government, and the tenacity with which Her Majesty's Ministers stick to their opinions despite any arguments that the Government of India like to bring forward, and the other is the manifest tension which exists between the authorities here and at home. The telegrams, of which there are eighteen, cover a period of one year and ten months. After a resumé of the correspondence the Civil and Military Gazette continues:—"The foregoing correspondence shows us that his Excellency has not altogether a bed of roses, and that the Home Government, stirred up, no doubt, by the fear of what may happen in Parliament, does not give the Viceroy and his advisers that free hand which they ought to have in modifying what has been accepted as right and desirable in Europe to suit the requirements of this country. It is not every Viceroy who would have been as complaisant as Lord Lansdowne has been, and we can quite imagine that tension with the Home Government, constant worries on our frontiers and within them, and a not very robust constitution may at any time combine to make his Excellency think that the delights of Woburn, to say nothing of those of London and Europe generally, exceed those of Calcutta and Simla, even though residence in the latter means the enjoyment (?) of the highest position in the British Empire to which a subject may hope to aspire.

Commenting on the above Capital says:—"We publish in another column an article from the Civil and Military Gazette intitled "Putting on the Screw," which very plainly shows the pressure put by Lord Cross on the Viceroy to pass this abominable act of injustice to our growing industries. It shows very plainly that it was not India but Lancashire that Lord Cross had in mind all the time, and that the true interests of this country are not likely to weigh much with him. As the Civil and Military Gazette truly observes, it is not every Viceroy who would have been as complaisant as Lord Lansdowne; we required at this juncture a real ruler of men, a man of the Dalhousie stamp. We fear that Lord Lansdowne's complaisance will ere long lead him into trouble. If he relied on himself, we feel sure that British honour would always be safe in his hands. Noblesse oblige.

CONFISCATING MESS FUNDS.

THE Pioneer of April 26 wrote:—

The abrupt announcement in General Orders last week of the decision that Government have taken with regard to the disposal of the mess and band funds of the four disbanded or "converted" regiments must have come upon the military world as a most unpleasant surprise. One will not be able to wonder if the result should be an unedifying action against the Secretary of State in the law courts, or at least a crop of questions in Parliament, whose intervention in the domestic affairs of the Indian Army is scarcely less desirable. Reading the order in question, it is evident that advantage is sought to be taken of the quibble that the regiments have been "converted" and not disbanded. This will strike most people as rather a pitiful attempt to gain a point by using language which does not strictly accord with the facts. Do these regiments—converted or disbanded—retain their entity? It is easy to show that they do not. The 39th Punjab Infantry, the 38th Dogras, the 39th Gurhwalis, and the 40th Beloochis have no connection whatever with the regiments that formerly bore these numerical titles. They are separate corps, raised separately, as separate units, under different officers. Of all the officers of the old regiments a very few have been gazetted to the new corps, and the manner of their appointment shows that they did not remain in the old cadres, but were transferred to the new regiments as they might have been to any other, the fact of the numerical title being the same being a mere accident. Such of the men, too, of the old corps as belonged to castes which enabled them to take service in the new did not remain on through the process of change, but were "permitted to volunteer" for the new regiments. Finally the old regiments were formally mustered out and their colours returned to arsenal, and this at a time when the new regiments were being raised. In short, the Government seem to have taken elaborate pains to make it clear that the new regiments were to be, and were to be understood to be, entirely distinct from the old; and that the total change in their constitution should be marked by a severance of any nominal or traditional connection.

Suddenly, however, it is discovered to be convenient that the two sets of regiments should be considered identical in one respect: and that the private property of the officers of the extinct regiment should be handed on to those of its successor. What right or title the latter can have in this property, or by what arguments the Government can have persuaded itself that it can, except by arbitrary dictation direct it to be handed over to anyone but the owners, it is impossible to conjecture. Let us suppose, for sake of argument, that some of these funds show balances on the wrong side of the sheet. Will the officers of the new corps be directed to undertake and settle these obligations? We may take it for certain that Government will not penalise them in that way; but the inequity of such a proceeding would not be different from that which has already been committed in the Order. The difference between compelling one person to settle debts incurred by another, or to surrender property to which another has no claim, is merely a matter of writing injustice with a plus or a minus sign.

The mess and band funds, we repeat, are the absolute property of the officers of a regiment, who support them entirely, and are wholly responsible for them, the management and responsibility being exercised through committees under the approval of the commanding officer. Officers leaving a regiment lose all claim to advantages naturally in pay or promotion, which they might have received had they remained, and in this way their lien on the mess and band funds lapses. It is the existing body of officers who, on a mess or band fund being wound up, are the owners of the property—for they are de facto and de jure owners of such amounts as they may have contributed, or the proportion thereof remaining to credit, and they succeed as heirs to the proportion contributed by officers who have left the regiment; for these are in the position, so to speak, of dead men whose legal heirs are their brother officers surviving. That the existing officers are entitled to share the balances of the funds, if such are in credit, and are liable for the debts if the funds are to the bad, was admitted by Government in 1882 and recently—after some controversy—in Madras. It would be interesting then to know what has produced this violent reversal of precedent. It may, perhaps, be argued that Government have a claim to dispose of these funds since they are partly supported by Government allowance. Such an idea is altogether erroneous and misleading. The Government allowance in the case of a mess is for rent and establishment (which it rarely if ever covers); and because it is for rent that the grant is given the military authorities can always order a court-martial, committee, or board to assemble at an officers' mess, and room has to be provided for the purpose. The credit balance of the mess fund results from the profits made on wines and stores, and the donations of officers and the judicious investment of such sums. Government might as well lay claim to officers' old uniforms when it has ordered an alteration in dress, as appropriate money accumulated in this manner. The band allowance is to meet the expenses of a bandmaster, and native regiments usually spend quite double that amount in a bandmaster's pay. The credit, if any, of the band fund results from the subscriptions and donations of the officers, and belongs in the same way as the mess fund to the existing body of officers in a regiment.

We repeat what we said when urging the case of the Madras regiments last year, that all precedent is against the present course. A reference to the orders issued in 1882 will show that each corps disbanded was called upon to furnish a scheme of disposal of their mess and band funds, which schemes were reported upon by special committees; and on the reports being submitted to army headquarters, and the distribution proposed being approved, such disposal was forthwith carried out. Why has this equitable procedure been discarded? It is possible that the present Commander-in-Chief may have had in recollection what was done when the old Bengal Artillery was broken up and absorbed into the Royal Artillery after the Mutiny. On that occasion the funds of the Bengal Artillery were given, it is believed, on the vote of the officers, to the messes of Royal Artillery in or to be established in this country; but in so doing these officers were simply retaining the funds for their own benefit; for they became part and parcel of the royal regiment, and thus benefited almost, if not quite as much, as they would have done if the funds had been distributed by shares to each officer of the old corps. In the present instance very few of the officers of the old corps, and those mostly juniors, have been transferred to the new corps. The new regiments are receiving, it is understood, an advance from Government of 10,000 rs. each to start their messes and bands, &c., and have already in some cases, it is reported, bought up the property of the mess and bands of the old regiments. The advance is payable gradually, and a regiment should have no difficulty in repaying the amount, say, within four or five years at the outside. Why, then, in addition to this advance should the new corps receive free gifts of large sums of money which belong neither to them nor to Government. The regiments that have lately been disbanded had to start in 1857, '58, and '59 precisely in the same way as their successors are doing now, but they were not presented with a free gift of property belonging to another set of officers.

The solitary justification that we have heard of the policy of Government is a plea that almost makes matters worse. It is that the senior officers in native regiments (unlike the British) who should have most stake in the corps property have often, owing to the Staff Corps system, been with it but a very little time. We look upon this as absolutely paltry and illogical. The commandant and second-in-command of a disbanded regiment may have only been a year with it, but they may have been twenty, and until Government proposes to discriminate, the argument is therefore void. And, moreover, supposing that they have acquired the property on easy terms, does that affect the status of third parties who have no claim to it whatsoever? Because we may think there is a flaw in our neighbour's title is anybody at liberty to set upon him and dispossess him forcibly? It is to be hoped sincerely that Government will yet pause and reconsider the question before they stir up a wide-spread feeling of dissatisfaction in the army. As regards the regiments selected for disbandment it was surely a time for treating them with consideration, when all ranks from colonel to sepoy have suffered by the measure. The number of officers affected is not large, and this perhaps may have counted with the opportunism at headquarters; but the feeling throughout the army will be that the Government has lent itself to an act of barefaced spoliation, and deprived its officers of the secure reliance they were able to feel in its good faith.

MILITARY CRIMES.

THE Times of India says:—In a short time we may expect to have the annual report on the number of cases of military murder, suicide, and causing hurt throughout the British and Native Armies in India, and though these crimes are happily becoming extremely rare since the ammunition was removed from the custody of our soldiers, they are yet frequent enough to render it a matter of interest to try and trace the causes that lead men to commit them. If we were to analyse the majority of cases of shooting that occur in British regiments we fancy they would be found capable of being summed up in the words used by Private Lloyd, of the 2nd Devonshire, after he had shot Colour-Sergeant Edwardes, of the same regiment, at Bernardmo in April last. It will be remembered that on the evening of April 10 Colour-Sergeant Edwardes was sitting at dinner with a few friends at Bernardmo when Private Lloyd, having loaded his rifle, came to the door of the room where the party were sitting, and fired at the unfortunate Sergeant, who died of the wound an hour or so afterwards. Private Lloyd, a hot tempered man, said to be given to drinking, gave himself up, and when asked the reason of his crime, said, "I don't know why I shot the Colour-Sergeant. I must have been mad." This is the history of most of these cases in which British soldiers are concerned. Some drink, an outbreak of temper, the rifle hastily loaded, and the deed done almost before it is fully resolved on. Thanks to the firm and decided action of Sir Frederick Roberts, who did that which his predecessor in office only talked of doing, and removed ball ammunition from the men's pouches, cases of shooting like the above can only happen when soldiers are on service, or on guard, or on the other rare occasions when they have their ball ammunition on their persons. In other words, these outrages are now restricted to an extremely narrow area, and, as previous returns have shown, are rapidly dying out entirely.

But though, where British soldiers are concerned, the motives which impel them to such crimes are, as we have said, extremely simple, it is different with sepoys, and we propose to recall one or two cases which will show that these matters, arising commonly out of the merest trifles, are usually well thought out before being put into execution. Two or three years ago, a couple of Pathan sepoys were suspected of an attempt to break into the mess godown of the regiment to which they belonged. A hole had been made in the wall of the godown almost big enough to admit a man, but the robbers had been alarmed before their task was completed, and had made off without effecting an entry. Some suspicion of a not very definite nature attached to the two Pathans, some men of the regiment declaring they had seen one or both of them near the godown late on the evening of the attempted robbery. The charge against them was accordingly gone into by their colonel, and their kit-bags searched to see if any housebreaking or other unlawful implements were to be found in them. Nothing was discovered, however, and the Commanding Officer, after a patient investigation of the whole affair, told the two Pathans that there was nothing against them, and that so far as the attempted robbery was concerned there was nothing whatever to affect their good name. The two men then asked that those who said they had seen them near the place on the evening in question might be punished, for this statement had led to their being put to shame by having their kits searched. They were told that this could not be done, because the evidence given was bona fide, and those who gave it were stating what they believed to be the truth, though it seemed pretty certain they had made a mistake. The men left the orderly room dissatisfied with this decision, which was the only possible one, and given by a most just and careful Colonel, and declaring that they had not received justice. It should be stated that one, at any rate, of these two men was a bad character, and it is quite probable that he had had a hand in the attempted robbery at the mess. However, nothing more was heard of the matter until a few days afterwards, when, directly after the midday gun had fired, the two Pathans came out of their huts and began firing indiscriminately. First they shot down a poor young recruit who was just going to his drill, then they came across a non-commissioned officer who asked them where they were going, on which they shot him dead for answer; then they shot a woman who was coming from the bazaar, and after that a man who crossed their path. Of course by this time the whole regiment was in pursuit of the murderers, who finally took up a position in an open place in the middle of the lines, generally called the "burra centre," and were then shot down in their turn by a party from the quarter guard. Now in this case, supposing that the men were so dissatisfied with their Commanding Officer's refusal to punish those whose report had been the cause of their kit-bags being searched—which, of course, he could not do—one would have thought that the murderers would have directed their bullets against someone who they fancied had wronged them, instead of shooting indiscriminately at everyone they met. But doubtless this case was one of those in which a man of worthless character persuaded a comrade that there was something daring in first taking as many lives as they could and then selling their own as dearly as possible. It is worthy of remark that in these cases of military murder the assassins do not as a rule attempt the lives of their European officers. Of course, we have not forgotten that sad affair in Burma, when Major Nixon and his subaltern recently fell victims to the young Pathan who imagined he had not had his rights in the way of promotion. But it will be remembered that when that gallant soldier and gentleman, Colonel Heyland, was shot by a man of his own regiment, it was not the murderer who sought him out, but he who, through the high-minded sense of duty that always distinguished him, threw himself in the way of the sower and was killed. In this case, too, the alleged motive for the running amuck was of the most trivial kind—some fancied injustice that had no existence save in the morbid imagination of the wretched man, but which he brooded over until it maddened him. Strange to say, he was a Mahratta, and we believe we are right in saying that it is very rare indeed that one of this race stains the good name of his tribe with the crime of military murder. And it is now almost ten years ago since Colonel Henslowe, of a well-known Bombay regiment, lost his life under circumstances somewhat resembling those which led to the death of Colonel Heyland. That is to say, Colonel Henslowe was in his bungalow, and hearing the sound of firing in the lines, and it being reported to him that a sepoy of his regiment was running amuck, he seized his gun, and rushed out like the good soldier that he was, to shoot down the man. Unfortunately, however, Colonel Henslowe missed the sepoy twice, and the latter, who was a young Sikh recruit, who had received some trifling punishment for negligence at drill, turned his rifle on his officer, and shot him dead.

We need not adduce any more cases. The subject is a painful one, but it is one that has great interest for all soldiers, and, to an almost equal extent, for the public at large. For when one of these deplorable outbursts occurs, and several lives are sacrificed, it is too often assumed that there must be something seriously wrong in the corps in which the affair happens, and that oppression and bullying are most likely at the bottom of it. As a rule, nothing can be further from the truth. These crimes, which are happily becoming so rare, commonly arise from causes so insignificant that it is difficult to trace their beginnings, or to imagine what connection there can be between the trumpery dispute or misunderstanding that started the ill-feeling and the bloody tragedy with which it closes—a tragedy the victims of which are usually those who had nothing whatever to do with the quarrel. We believe the truth of the whole matter to be that crimes of this sort are, in nine cases out of ten, the result of a morbid condition of the brain amounting almost to insanity. It is an insanity that courts-martial very properly take no notice of when they wisely sentence these murderers to be hanged forthwith; but it is a species of madness nevertheless that seizes on men whose minds have a morbid twist that predisposes them to sudden outbursts of violence and passion. When Private Lloyd of the Devonshires said he did not know what made him shoot his Colour-Sergeant at Bernardmo, but he must have been mad at the time, he only told the exact truth, whether he meant it or not, but it is a form of madness for which there is only one cure—and that is the gallows.

THE CONGRESS OF HYGIENE AND DEMOGRAPHY.

THE Bombay Gazette says:—It is not clear what place in the proceedings of the Congress will be given to the Indian delegates; but we notice that the Lancet suggests that some reports on the condition of native labour in the cotton and other factories of India "that compete with Lancashire" would be most appropriate at the present moment. Figures and leading medical paper proceeds to say, "is a question that the Industrial Hygiene Section should take in hand, for the advocates of factory legislation in India are greatly in need of the moral support such a Congress could give, and give most effectually." Whether in consequence of these remarks or not, we cannot say, but arrangements have been made with Mr. Holt-Hallett to read a paper in the division concerned with demography. It is hoped that some competent man will be found willing to challenge Mr. Hallett's arguments, and to show to the world, through the Congress of Hygiene what there is to be said on the opposite side. We do not know if Dr. Bahadurji is disposed to meet Mr. Holt-Hallett, and are reluctant to suggest any particular delegate for the task. But the whole subject of the sanitation of Indian mills was gone into by a medical committee that worked in connection with the Bombay Factory Commission in 1884, and there must be much that a medical delegate could put before the Congress that would carry weight. The millowners' case—which is really to a very large extent the case of the operatives as well—has never been put before the public at home. The Times which, despite recent amendment, is still given to the discouragement of all expression of views that it does not agree with, continues to allow Mr. Holt-Hallett to have the field all to himself, and deliberately to suppress every presentation of the true state of the case. The full effect of Mr. Hallett's writings, ill-informed, one-sided, and prejudiced though they are, is apparently not realised in India. The majority of the people who read them are not aware that Mr. Hallett's official career was spent in Burma as a Public Works engineer; that he knows more about that province than about India; and that his knowledge of Indian mills is probably confined to what he saw of them from the train on his way to the mail steamer in Bombay. The average man does not stop to inquire who and what Mr. Hallett is. It is enough that an unlimited amount of space in the columns of the Times is at his disposal whenever he chooses to make use of the privilege. Whether the other side of the story is formally told in a paper by one of the Indian delegates, or whether Mr. Holt-Hallett is confronted in a discussion on his paper, we trust that he will not go unanswered. Sir Frank Forbes Adam, Mr. Ollivant, Sir William Moore, and Dr. Bahadurjee will be among the delegates who will be able to assure the Congress, as we showed the other day in describing a typical Bombay mill, that English working-women and working-girls would give a good deal to be able to earn their living with the same freedom from irksome constraint and the same absence of conditions injurious to health and subversive of happiness as are found in the Bombay mills. The Congress, which has been almost ostentatious in its endeavours to bring India within the circles of its deliberations, may be turned to good account if it is used as an opportunity for exposing the sham philanthropy of the Lancashire agitation against our mills.

Frontier Railways.—The portion of the frontier railway between Kundian and Kalabagh is almost ready, and will probably be opened for traffic in September next. As soon as the line is opened, says Indian Engineering, the traffic in salt and alum will rapidly develop. It is not, however, on commercial grounds that the utility of this frontier line, which is being so quietly pushed to completion, strikes the eye of any one who glances at the map of India. A direct railway from Attock, on the Indus, to Kurrachee on the sea, with junctions and branch lines at Khushalgarh (from Rawul Pindi), Kundwan (from Lala Musa and Sialkot), Dera Ghazi Khan (from Lahore and the Bombay and Central Indian systems), and Ruk (from Quetta), makes the dream of our frontier railway system almost complete. To this must, however, now be added the extension, via Abbottabad, into Cashmere, and the Zhob Valley Branch, giving an alternative route to Quetta. If this should join the North-Western Railway at Dera Ghazi Khan, and if the latter system is shortened, by a chord line from Delhi, via Hissar and Sirsa, to Bhawalpore, the system will be complete enough to rest upon.

The Sunderbunds.—Mr. John Rudd Rainey, a well-known Bengal landowner, contributes an interesting article on the Sunderbunds, or Sundarban, as he prefers more correctly to call the vast principality of forest and swamp which stretches from the Hooghly on the west to the Megna on the east, to the current issue of the Royal Geographical Society's "Proceedings." Mr. Rainey's estate is at Khulna, the great distributing centre of the Sundarban waterways, so that his remarks, says the Pioneer, have the advantage of being based on long personal observation and experience. He has some words for the naturalist and the sportsman, and he recites several charming legends which cling round the temple ruins still to be seen in the jungles of the Sundarban, but our business now is with his remarks on the possibility and desirability of reclamation. Mr. Rainey mentions that this matter was brought to the attention of the Government so far back as 1874 by his brother in an article on "Famines in Bengal," in which it was contended that the Sundarban, if reclaimed, would form an excellent reserve against famine. As a matter of fact, proposals in this direction were submitted to Government long before 1874. In 1874 Mr. Henckell, the Magistrate of Jessore, made a proposal that grants of jungle land should be made on favourable terms to people undertaking to reclaim them; urging in support of the scheme that it would yield a revenue from lands utterly unproductive, and that by the cultivation a reserve fund of rice would be formed against seasons of drought, the crops in the Sundarban being very little dependent upon rainfall. The proposal was accepted, and Henckell himself was appointed "superintendent for cultivating the Sundarban," but the zemindars adjoining the reclaimed patches insisted on rights of overlordship, and the scheme collapsed. With the progress of survey and settlement, however, the boundaries of the zemindars became in process of time more strictly demarcated, and twenty years later applications for grants of jungle land began to be presented anew. A slow process of reclamation has been going on ever since, and in 1874 about a seventh of the entire area, or some 11,000 square miles, was under cultivation, and the 431 estates paid a land revenue of 41,000.

MILITARY AND NAVAL.

Sir F. Roberts and Rifle Shooting.—Sir Frederick Roberts, says the Times of India, struck a note of warning as well as a note of encouragement in his address at the Simla Rifle Meeting on June 13. The Commander-in-Chief is an enthusiast in the matter of shooting, and his remarks on the increasing value of arms of precision and the constant advance that it is necessary to make in order to keep abreast of the progress of invention may be taken to heart all over the empire. His Excellency told the Simla gathering that so defective was the old musket that it was commonly believed that if a soldier armed with it was placed at the bottom of Ludgate Hill the chances were five hundred to one against his hitting St. Paul's Cathedral, while according to General Decker not less than ten thousand cartridges were expended for every enemy killed or wounded. We have got somewhat in advance of that state of things at the present day, but, as Sir F. Roberts was keen to point out, neither the Martini-Henry, the Magazine rifle, nor anything else, smokeless powder included, will benefit us so long as it is not intelligently used. "We can only expect to win our battles," he said, "by superiority of training and discipline, for, as Marshal Marmont said, a battle was decided after all, not by the number of men killed, but by the number frightened, and if the soldier learned to use his rifle with effect he would frighten the enemy more than the enemy could frighten him." All this, however, must not be taken to indicate that in Sir Frederick Roberts's opinion the Indian standard of shooting is not a high one. Its advance has, in fact (and the Commander-in-Chief was not slow to acknowledge it), been most satisfactory during the past few years, but the constant improvements that are being made in the weapons of warfare call for still more vigorous and determined efforts in the future.

The Bangalore Command.—For some time past rumours have been current as to who will succeed to the command of the Bangalore district, which will become vacant on Nov. 8 next, when Brig.-Gen. Bengough will complete his five years of service as a brigadier commanding a second-class district in India. The appointment being one that is always reserved for a full colonel of the British service, the Madras Mail is credibly informed that, in recognition of his distinguished services in Burma, it is to be given to Brig.-Gen. G. B. Walseley, C.B., A.D.C. This gallant officer will complete his fifty-second year in July next. He served for many years with the York and Lancaster Regt., and was made a colonel on April 1, 1889. He was colonel on the staff of the Nile Force and in command at Abu Gus from March 11 to May 8, 1885, and for these services was created a C.B., and received the Egyptian medal, clasp, and bronze star, 3rd Class Medjidie, and also the clasp for Soudan. He commanded the first brigade of the Upper Burma Force in 1887, and was afterwards appointed to command the Mandalay District. He also officiated as General Officer Commanding the Burma District on the departure of Lieut.-Gen. D. L. Gordon, and pending the arrival of Major-General Stewart. During his period of service in Burma General Walseley has rendered excellent service, having been almost all the time out in command of punitive expeditions, such as those to the Kachin Hills. His last active service was in command of the Wuntho Field Force, Rewards for the Manipore Detachment.—OFFICIAL.—The Governor-General in Council, in recognition of the conspicuous bravery and devotion displayed by the native officers, soldiers, and followers of the detachment of the 43rd Goorkha (Rifle) Regt. of Bengal Inf. and the 12th Regt. (2nd Burma Battn.) of Madras Inf., under Lieut. (now Major) C. J. W. Grant—which advanced towards Manipore on March 28, 1891, to attempt the relief of the British captives, and captured Thobal on the 31st, holding it against large forces of the enemy—is pleased to confer on them the following rewards:—

1. To be admitted to the Second Class of the Order of British India, with the title of Bahadur.

Subedar Shaikh Mahtab Din, 12th Regt. (2nd Burma batt.) of Madras Infantry.

Jemadar Birbal Nagarkoti, 43rd Goorkha (Rifle) Regt. of Bengal Infantry.

2. To be granted the Third Class of the Order of Merit.

Hospital Assistant Govinda Swami Pillai and all the non-commissioned officers and soldiers of the detachment.

The nominal roll of the above will be published hereafter.

3. A step of rank to be granted to all native officers and non-commissioned officers who are eligible and fit for promotion.

4. A donation of six months' pay and allowances to be granted to all ranks, including followers.

The Imperial Service Troops.—In connection with the Imperial Service Troops and scheme for training them, it may be stated that there are now between 17,000 and 18,000 men organised and under instruction. The number of British inspecting officers is 14. The Punjab States have provided 1,700 cavalry and 6,800 infantry, including 1 squadron and 6 battalions in Cashmere. For Rajpootana there are 2,700 cavalry and 2,300 infantry. Mysore and Gwalior each furnished 1,200 cavalry, and the Kattywar Chiefs 600. The Jeypore transport train is also a most valuable contribution. Arrangements are being made under which the troops of Hyderabad, Bhopal, and Indore will come within the operation of the scheme.

The Bengal Local Service.—From to-day, says the Englishman of June 10, as far as the Bengal Infantry are concerned, the Local Service is no more. Colonel James May, who relinquishes his command of the 5th Bengal Light Infantry this morning, happens to be the last infantry local. He has a distinguished record, being the only officer now alive who was at Chinbut, the original siege of Lucknow, the taking of the Alambagh, and final capture of Lucknow. He served in the Cossiah and Jynteah campaigns, in Bhootan, and finally in Burma as commandant of the 5th Infantry. A compliment was paid to him of having his post on the Shan Hills named after him, Maymyo. He received two medals and five clasps. During the Bengal famine of 1873-74, he rendered valuable service in the Sarun district, for which he was specially thanked by Sir George Campbell and Sir Richard Temple.

Changes in Linking of Regiments.—The following changes in the linking of regiments of the Native Army, Madras, as published in clause 188, of India Army Circulars of 1886, are notified for information:—

(a) The 33rd Madras Inf., having been formed into a Burma local battalion, is removed from the group in which it was linked with the 2nd and 29th Regts. of Madras Inf.

(b) The 12th Madras Inf., having been formed into a Burma local battalion, is removed from the group in which it was linked with the 8th and 17th Madras Inf., and the 25th Madras Inf. is now transferred to that group, with its regimental centre at Bangalore.

(c) The group formed by the 10th, 25th, and 32nd Regts. of Madras Inf. now ceases to exist, the 10th and 32nd having been removed from it on formation into Burma battalions, and the 25th having been transferred, as above notified, to another group.

The Manufacture of Ammunition for the Magazine Rifle.—The necessary machinery for the manufacture of ammunition for the magazine rifle is now on its way out. Some of the existing machinery for Martini cartridges in the Dum Dum and Kirkee factories will also be converted. When this is done, the outturn will be 120,000 rounds per day.

The Re-arming of the Native Troops.—Some forty thousand Martini-Henry rifles, mark 4, have now reached India, and are being distributed among the native troops. It has been determined to order some twenty thousand more, to arrive during the current financial year. Only a few thousand of these will be mark 4, which is an expensive pattern.

Mischief by Soldiers.—It is reported from Benares that some men of the 12th Kelat-i-Ghilzai Regt. are alleged to have committed a serious offence the other day. The story goes that a man of G Company had a dispute with a villager not far from the lines, and got the worst of it in the tussle. He and some comrades are said to have subsequently attacked the villagers, inflicting severe injuries on several and setting fire to their huts. The culprits had not been discovered, but Col. Babington, commanding the regiment, had meanwhile confined the whole of the company to the lines.

A Fracas in the Fort.—The residents in Fort St. George were alarmed the other day on hearing that some privates of the Somersetshire Regt. had struck Sergeant Sullivan of the regiment a blow on his head with a foot of an iron cot, because of some misunderstanding existing between them. The blow, it appears, was so serious that he was removed to the Station hospital attached to the General Hospital. Mr. J. M. Maskell, senior magistrate of the Black Town Presidency Magistrates' Court, in company with Mr. S. D. Simpson, deputy commissioner of police, proceeded to take the dying declaration of the unfortunate man, but he was unconscious.

The Black Mountain Expedition.—A telegram of June 10 from Seri says:—Orders were received last night to break up the force, and the following moves are in consequence arranged:—No. 2 Derajat Battery and the 2-5th Goorkhas march for Abbottabad on the 11th; No. 1 Mountain Battery, Royal Art., the Seaforth Highlanders, the Guides, and the 37th Dogras move on the 12th. General Elles and staff move up to Nimal to-morrow. A despatch of June 12 adds:—All the troops that are to return to India have now left, and the following force remains in occupation of the Black Mountain under the command of Brig.-Gen. Hammond:—At Nimal, the Royal Welsh Fusiliers and No. 9 Mountain Battery, Royal Art.; at Seri, the 1-1st Goorkhas, the 4th Sikhs, and No. 4 Company Sappers and Miners; at Ogbi, Bandi, and Panji Gali, the 28th Punjab Infantry. Before leaving General Elles issued a farewell order, in which he expressed his thanks to the brigadiers, staff, and departmental officers, and his sense of the exemplary conduct of the troops both in the field and quarters.

At a rifle meeting held at Simla on June 11, Miss Roberts, a daughter of the Commander-in-Chief, carried off a prize with a score of 130 out of a possible 150.

The force for the protection of the north-west territory of Cashmere at present is one Mountain Battery of four seven-pounder guns, and the 1st and 2nd Regiments of Infantry, each numbering 600 bayonets.

It is notified, in continuation of clause 5, Army Circulars, India, 1884, that the Director-General of Ordnance in India is the adviser of the Commander-in-Chief in India in all such ordnance matters as are dealt with by his Excellency, and that in the Bombay and Madras Presidencies, the Inspectors-General of Ordnance are the advisers of the Commanders-in-Chief concerned on all matters connected with the Ordnance Department.

Col. C. E. D. Branson, of the 17th Bengal Infantry, having returned to Calcutta from the expedition to Keonjhar, has resumed the command of the Calcutta garrison.

Lieut.-Col. Watling, 1st batt. Bombay Rifle Regt., has been appointed assistant adjutant-general, vice Major R. E. D. Reilly.

Major F. H. Forjett, Indian Staff Corps, has been promoted to lieutenant-colonel.

Major A. B. Stopford, R.A., has been appointed assistant adjutant-general, vice Lieut.-Col. L. F. Heath, resigned.

Capt. Brazier-Creagh, orderly officer to General Lockhart in the Miranzai Campaign, has rejoined his appointment of aide-de-camp to the Viceroy.

Capt. Forbes, Bombay Cav., has been appointed to raise and train the four squadrons of cavalry, in all 600 men, which the chiefs of Kattywar have offered to maintain as an Imperial Service Corps. Bhowmuggur, Junagad, and Navanagar will take leading action.

Capt. R. F. Clothier, Staff Corps, has been appointed additional deputy-assistant adjutant-general, Burma District, vice Capt. J. G. Shaw, promoted.

Surg.-Major E. W. Young, Indian Medical Service, staff surgeon, Poona, has been allowed leave for one year.

BENGAL.

OUR latest dates from Calcutta are to June 19.

The Bengal Police.—The hard work done by the Bengal Police under the command of Messrs. H. Dawson and R. Guise, who relieved Keonjhar on May 29 last and dispersed the rebels surrounding it, should not, the Englishman thinks, be overlooked. Marching often over twenty miles at a stretch—by day and night, in intense heat, and occasionally drenched by heavy rain, through a hilly and difficult country—they overcame all difficulties, and were hailed with the liveliest feelings of joy and gratitude by the beleaguered people. Their prompt action, supplemented by the despatch to the frontier of a wing of the 17th Bengal Infantry, not only overcame all resistance, but is likely to have a lasting effect on the hill tribes, as showing them how easily their country can be reached by the aid of the Bengal-Nagpore Railway. If two good roads were made—from Keonjhar to Jaintpurh on the Chota Nagpore frontier, and to Anandpore on the Orissa side—any future rising could be very quickly and effectually dealt with. The former would act as a good feeder road to the Bengal-Nagpore Railway.

A Violent Storm.—A telegram from Sara states that great damage was done by a violent storm on June 17. Between thirty and forty carriages of the Darjeeling mail, which were awaiting the arrival of the steamer, were overturned. The railway locomotive sheds were wrecked, and much damage was done to the rolling stock. The craft in the river suffered severely, but no loss of life is reported. The roofs of two ferry steamers were blown bodily away. Over 200 dwelling-houses are levelled to the ground, and in many cases the inmates have sustained serious injuries. The iron roof of the station house was rolled up like paper. Trees were uprooted and telegraph posts in many places have been blown down. Telegraphic communication with Calcutta and Northern Bengal is entirely interrupted. Fortunately the extreme force of the wind lasted only a few minutes, or far more damage would have been done.

The Umballa Bank v. Tremearne.—On June 11 Mr. Shirley Tremearne, editor of Capital, who is charged by the Umballa Bank with libel, applied for an order on the plaintiff to deposit the costs. The application was supported by an affidavit which denied the various allegations in the plaint, namely, that the bank in consequence of what appeared in the paper had been injured in credit and reputation. The bank was incorporated in January, with a capital of two lacs, in shares of 25 rs. each. Mr. Tremearne inspected the plaintiff's share list, and found that on June 2 325 shares had been allotted. The working capital of the bank was therefore 8,100 rs., assuming these shares to be fully paid up. The plaint showed 3,404-2-9 rs. assets, thus showing a loss on the alleged paid-up capital of 4,940 rs. of 1,536-13-9 rs. Then there was the directors' remuneration, the salaries of the staff, advertising, circulating the prospectus all over India, which would still further reduce this sum. Inquiries made of all the local banks showed that the Umballa Bank had no account with them. The affidavit showed that it was clear the plaintiff had no assets whatever available to pay the expenses of the suit. The Court ordered the security to be fixed by the registrar, and to be deposited within fourteen days; and if the plaintiff failed to meet the amount, all proceedings to be stayed.

At Calcutta a servant in the employ of Mrs. W. M. Mason, wife of the proprietor of Mason and Company, assaulted his mistress in a brutal manner. She scolded him for not having chota hazri ready. He took up a kettle and flung the boiling contents at her, scalding her severely. Then, seizing her by the throat, he assaulted her with the kettle. He bolted outside, and with three other Mahomedans, who had armed themselves with bottles, waited till the husband appeared on the road, when they severely assaulted him.

The first widow remarriage among Kulin Brahmins here occurred on June 16. The event has, to all appearance, caused no excitement in influential orthodox circles.

MADRAS.

OUR advices from Madras are to June 17.

Lady Dufferin's Medical Students.—There are now twenty-six lady students under training in the Madras Medical College for employment in connection with Lady Dufferin's scheme. Of the above number, six are being trained for the hospital assistant's grade—this is quite a new departure—and the rest are being trained for the apothecary's grade and for the L.M.S. examination. Three of the students for the hospital assistant's grade were expected to pass out in June. Three young ladies for the apothecary's grade were also expected to pass and take up appointments.

Rescue from Drowning.—Lieutenant Lyle, of the 21st Field Battery, Royal Artillery, stationed at Bellary, has been highly recommended to the Royal Humane Society for any award it may be pleased to grant him for gallantly saving a native from drowning. On April 12 last he was out shooting duck on a tank near Ramandrug, and had shot several duck when a coolie entered the water and swam out to secure them. He was returning, when, becoming exhausted, he sank, but rising to the surface managed to get within twenty-five yards of the shore when he sank again. Lieutenant Lyle, who was wearing thick shooting boots, plunged in, and, though the coolie seized his arms, he managed to swim with him ashore, thus saving his life.

A Mining Syndicate for Madras.—A London syndicate is concerting measures to prospect for iron and other ores in the Salem district. The syndicate has applied to the Madras Government to be informed of the towns under which a license for prospecting for minerals will be granted, and the concessions that will be made to the syndicate. Prospecting would be undertaken by English miners, and should it prove a success a company would be formed and the work carried on on a commercial basis.

The Outbreak in Vizagapatam District.—Further particulars have reached the Madras Mail regarding the outbreak that occurred in the Vizagapatam District on the night of May 23, which resulted in the police station of the village of Kistnadevappett, in the taluq of Golconda, being razed to the ground. The Governor's agent, says the Mail, and the deputy inspector-general of police, proceeded to Narasapatam, which is about fifty miles distant from Vizagapatam and the nearest town of any importance to the scene of the disturbance, and at once began sending out parties of police with elephants into the neighbouring hill tracts in pursuit of the rebels, who, it was found, had not only burnt the police-station and killed three constables, but also endeavoured to carry away a quantity of arms and ammunition. It appears that three men—Madagam Chinnagadoo, who gave much trouble in the Rampa rebellion; his brother, a pensioned landholder of Golconda; and another man, mustered about 400 sauras from the hills, and without any warning proceeded to attack the police station at Kistnadevappett. Their apparent object in the first instance was to obtain possession of a quantity of arms and ammunition and to capture a neighbouring village. The parties of police in active pursuit of the rebels have not done much so far, but one of the three ringleaders has surrendered himself. No further outbreaks have been attempted, and it is reported that the insurgents have gone south and crossed into the neighbouring district of Godavery.

BOMBAY.

OUR advices from Bombay are to June 19.

The Tower Tragedy.—The proceedings in the charges against Manockjee Aslajee before Mr. Cooper, at the Esplanade police-court, were closed on June 17 by the magistrate committing the accused to take his trial at the next Criminal Sessions of the High Court. After some further evidence had been recorded, Mr. Cooper was of opinion that sufficient evidence had been led to make out a prima facie case against the accused, the only question being as to which was the last lady who had been pushed over. He would, therefore, have to frame two separate charges charging the accused with murdering each of the Parsee ladies, and committed him to the Sessions.

The Excommunication Question.—Signatures to the petition to be submitted to the Swami of the Shenvi Brahmins were being taken privately among the members of the caste in favour of excommunicating Dr. Bhandarkar, Mr. Panandikar, and those who dined on the occasion of the remarriage of Dr. Bhandarkar's daughter at Khandalla. It is probable, says a telegram of June 12, that those in favour of reform will call a meeting at an early date to pass a resolution avowing the principle of widow remarriage, and deprecating the action of the so-called orthodox party.

The Ahmedabad New Waterworks were opened by Lord Harris on June 11 with much ceremony.

BURMA.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE following telegrams have been received from the correspondent of the Times at Rangoon:—

JULY 2.—The present season is an unusually unhealthy one throughout Upper Burma. Fifty per cent. of the garrison of Mansi, near the frontier of the Shan States, were recently on the sick list, but the health of the troops there has now improved. The garrison at the jade mines is still suffering severely from sickness. Surgeon Strickland, who was lately in medical charge of the garrison, arrived in Bhamo yesterday, sick. When he left the jade mines supplies had not arrived. Lieutenant Boyd, R.A., and Lieutenant Master, of the Military Police, leave Bhamo to-day for the jade mines. Recently only one European officer, Lieutenant Baldwin, R.A., remained at the jade mines, Captain O'Donnell having proceeded to Mogoung to assist in forwarding supplies. The animals appear to suffer from the climate at the jade mines almost as severely as the men; all the transport ponies are dead, and the mules are sick. The first section of the Moo Valley railway from Sagaion to Shwebo was opened yesterday.

JULY 5.—The Government of India and the local Government have for some time been discussing the question how the newly-formed local regiments for service in Burma should be recruited. Having regard to the probability of troubles in Siam, this question is at present of special interest. The Government of India objected to these regiments being recruited from northern India, and suggested the formation of Shan, Karen, and Kachyen companies. The local regiments consist at present mainly of Sikhs, Goorkhas, Pathans, and Punjabis. The local Government declared it impracticable to raise the proposed local levies and insisted that for some years, at least, the local regiments should be recruited from the same classes as now serve in them. Sir A. Mackenzie in an interesting minute says he cannot admit that the state of Burma is yet so settled as to make it a matter of indifference how the garrison is composed. Burma is as much part of the British Empire as Beloochistan, and he entirely fails to appreciate the force of the argument that such valuable fighting material as the Punjabis or Goorkhas ought not to be thrown away on Burma. The Chins, Kachyens, Shans, and Chinese Shans, with whom we are now face to face along our western and northern frontier, are every bit as stalwart and warlike as the tribesmen of the trans-Indus hills. They have also a fine contempt for the Madrassi sepoy, whom they receive in the field with contemptuous gestures, and to whom they send derisive challenges. Even the Burmese dacoit has little or no respect for the Madrassis, and but for the leading and driving of their British officers most Madras regiments would be utterly useless in any field operations in Burma. The Madras sepoys are also unable to stand exposure and jungle work, while the Punjabis and the Goorkhas serve with impunity. The Chief Commissioner urges that instead of recruiting existing regiments with inferior material, additional local regiments of the same material as at present should be substituted for the Madras regiments now in Upper Burma. The Chief Commissioner's views have been generally approved by the Viceroy in Council, and it may be taken for granted that the local regiments will be recruited from very much the same material as at present, though probably efforts will be made to avoid trespassing on what may be regarded as the special military recruiting ground.

IN CONNECTION with the delimitation work on the Siam-Kiangtung border (says the Pioneer), the southern limits of which had to be defined. Mr. Archer is busy with his report at Bangkok, while Mr. Kennedy, of the Survey Department, is working up his map material at Bangalore. Captain Fulton, who commanded the small escort with the party, is expected at Simla shortly from Rangoon. The work done was not, of course, so important as that upon which Mr. Ney Elias was engaged the year before on the Salween frontier; but still it was valuable in its way, as tending to show how far Siamese authority extends northward. The party visited Kuenghung on the Mekong River, whence Mr. Scott, Dr. Gray, and Mr. Kennedy returned westwards to Fort Stedman; while Mr. Archer and Captain Fulton, as we know, went down stream in country boats to Bangkok.

THE WUNTHO STATE is to be garrisoned for the rains by military police and one regiment of Madras Infantry, viz., the 20th M.I. The headquarters of the regiment will be at Wuntho itself, and posts established at Manyu and Mansi. Pinlebu finds accommodation for a strong force of police under Captain Keary. Mansi, the most northern post in Wuntho, is garrisoned by 200 Madras troops and 100 Karen police under Lieutenant Sandford, 20 M.I. The dacoit Chief Bo Lee, who has for some time past been troubling the Chindwin border, has been burning villages some fifteen miles north-east of Mansi. A patrol of military police came across a portion of this gang at Nainkang, and succeeded in killing one man. A strong party has gone from Mansi to endeavour to trace them. The men of the Pyawbwe Battalion, Military Police, who have been garrisoning the post up to the present, have suffered considerably from sickness, and they are to be withdrawn to Wuntho.

THE DIVORCE SUIT brought by Mr. D. K. MacDonald, of Meiktila, against his wife on account of her adultery with the co-respondent, Mr. O'Connell, came off before His Honour the Recorder at Rangoon. There being no defence, and three witnesses having been examined on behalf of the petitioner to prove the adultery, His Honour gave judgment for the petitioner entitling him to a decree nisi for the dissolution of the marriage. The petitioner is to have the custody of the children. A claim of damages to the amount of 1,000 rs. was not pressed, as the counsel for the petitioner informed His Honour that there was no probability of obtaining it.

A WING of the 4th Pioneers and two companies of the Sappers and Miners are now engaged on the following roads:—Improving and consolidating the old mule track from Haka to Fort White, to construct a new road from Haka to Sihaung, so as to obtain a shorter route and a better source of supply (the Myittha River) via the Padokuk-Kan Road. It is also contemplated to survey a route westwards from Haka towards Bengal.

PUNJAB, N.-W. P., OUDE, &c.

MAJOR B. SCOTT, Engineer-in-Chief of the Zhob Valley Railway Survey, has arrived in Simla to report in person on the progress made during the past working season.

THE SIMLA VOLUNTEERS have at last been granted compensation of between 4,000 rs. and 5,000 rs. for the loss of uniform and accoutrements sustained in the fire of the spring of 1890.

FOR THE WEEK ended May 30, the earnings of the North-Western Railway were fully a lakh in advance of the figures for the corresponding week of last year. The increased revenue came chiefly from the goods department, and was doubtless largely derived from the abnormally heavy wheat traffic. There is an increase of three lakhs in the revenue for April and May together over the revenue for the two months of 1890.

FROM October 1, 1891, the Government of the North-West Provinces have decided that there shall in future be two rates of still-head duty, in lieu of the one uniform rate at present in force; the rates being determined according to the strength of liquor, viz., a still-head duty of 12 annas per imperial gallon on liquor which is from 58 to 62 degs. below London proof, and a still-head duty of 1-7 rs. per imperial gallon on liquor which is from 23 to 27 degs. below London proof. Liquor of the above-mentioned strengths only will be issued from Government distilleries from the date of the new system coming into force.

A REMARKABLE CASE of police oppression is reported from Allahabad. Some time ago the dead body of a child was found at Subraon, a village in the Allahabad district, and several native policemen conspired to extract from a native woman a confession that the child was hers. The charge was convincingly disproved, and the officers, charged with using threats in obtaining the confession, were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment. The conviction and sentence have both been upheld on appeal.

WHEN A GOVERNMENT prosecution in a lower court proves abortive, who is it, asks the Pioneer, that advises Government regarding the propriety of an appeal—or does nobody advise at all? The Public Prosecutor would seem to be the person on whom this duty should properly devolve, but on Friday, when the Judges of the Allahabad High Court found their time being wasted with a Government appeal which ought never to have been filed, and were driven to expostulate, Mr. Dillon, the Public Prosecutor, repudiated all responsibility, declaring that he merely acted under orders. It follows that someone must have advised the appeal who was in a far less advantageous position for judging of its propriety. We have frivolous appeals enough without Government adding to their number.

THE LAHORE paper says that some natives of that Province are leaving politics alone and turning their attention to the improvement of the material and industrial resources of India:—A provisional meeting will, we learn, be held to form an association with the above object at Lahore on June 27 and 28. The meeting will, it is stated, be strictly non-political, and the public are cordially invited to attend. We hope, for the success of the movement, that those who are organising it will be careful to make themselves completely representative. To do any good in a country like this, however far removed the subject may be from religion or politics, the different communities must be fairly represented, otherwise those that are not fairly represented will hold aloof, and the movement will degenerate into an agitation by a clique.

CENTRAL ASIAN NOTES.

A WELL-KNOWN Central Asian traveller writes to tell us, says the Times of India, that he has read Mr. C. E. Biddulph's letters in our paper—"London to Samarcand"—with great interest. He disagrees, however, with what he calls Mr. Biddulph's "Russophilism," and here it may be well to let him speak for himself:—"When Mr. Biddulph represents the Caucasians and Armenians as merged in the Russians, he is assuredly wrong. I have visited the Caucasus three times, and I noted plenty of discontent. Mr. Peacocke, for twenty years Vice-Consul and Consul at Batoum and Tiflis, thinks that the Caucasians have no love for Russian rule, and Laurence Oliphant pictures them as ripe for revolt. Mr. Biddulph's three or four days' experience does not count for much against Peacocke and Oliphant. I would not myself go so far as to say that they would revolt, but they are certainly not Russianised. Five years ago the Armenians were very indignant because their children were ordered to attend Russian schools; and at present Armenian officers in the Russian army are precluded from attaining to the grade of General."

The correspondent of the Daily News telegraphed from Tauris on June 30:—Prince Nosrat Dowlah, with a force of 800 infantry, 150 horse, and a battery of artillery, starts to-morrow for So-uj-Bolak. Two regiments, including 300 horsemen, join the Prince at Mandoab. Katy Greenfield, the abducted girl, terrified by the Kurds, objects to going to the local authorities. She is convinced that she will be shot the moment she steps out of the Consulate. On July 3 he telegraphed:—

It is reported that the Persian Government has notified the Turkish Embassy of its resolution to order the summary execution of all rioters who may be captured in connection with the recent abduction, even though they be Turkish subjects. Turkey objects to this wholesale execution, but consents to Persia's using force to disperse the insurgents. Mr. Paton has been ordered to leave So-uj-Bolak as soon as he considers his life to be in danger.

A later telegram (Sunday night) says:—Details have been received of the events in So-uj-Bolak. It is stated that the rioters, during an attack on the Turkish Consulate, shut Behjet Effendi, the Consul-General, in a room. Pointing their rifles and revolvers at him, and beating him with the flats of their swords, they compelled him to sign a paper declaring that Mr. Thomas was culpable, and the Turkish Kurds innocent, and that they had been doing a religious duty in defending Katy Greenfield, who embraced Islamism. Mr. Paton has since removed to Government House for safety. It is reported that four Turkish regiments have been advancing to the frontier district of Vazneh.

Reuter's representative on Friday (states a telegram of July 5) had a conversation with the Turkish Ambassador, who maintained that Miss Greenfield was converted to Islamism two years ago. Her captor, said his Excellency, was as a matter of fact her husband, and, when returning from the Turkish frontier, the girl went voluntarily to the Turkish Consulate at So-uj-Bolak, and would commit suicide if forced to leave it. The Ambassador did not recognise the right of the Persian authorities to intervene, averring that the criminal conduct of the Kurds consisted in an assault on the Turkish Consul-General, but that, as this took place in the Consulate, the aggressors could not be punished by the Persian, but only by the Turkish authorities. He further considered that the girl by changing her religion at fourteen years of age had ceased to be a British subject, and expressed astonishment at the interference of the British Legation. The Ambassador still persists in his refusal to let Miss Greenfield be interrogated by the British Vice-Consul on neutral ground, but has proposed to let her be questioned by a committee composed of the British authorities, Persian, and Turkish officials, and some of her captors, and expresses confidence that she will declare herself a Mohammedan. The Turkish Ambassador's statements, however, are entirely at variance with the reports which have been received in other quarters. The girl's relatives, for instance, affirm that she is a Christian, and wishes to return to her mother. The British authorities, too, are quite certain that she was carried off by force, and is still a Christian. The method of inquiry proposed by the Turkish Ambassador would, it is thought, undoubtedly result in the profession of Mohammedan faith desired by her captors, whose presence at the interrogation would probably intimidate Miss Greenfield. The Shah yesterday received in audience the British Chargé d'Affaires, and informed him of the Turkish Ambassador's fresh proposal. The question has been referred to the British Foreign Office.

Another slight reverse which has befallen Umra Khan of Jandol in the fighting now in progress, writes the Lahore paper, appears to have been the capture, loot, and burning of Sheringul by Sher Muhammad Khan, brother of the ex-Khan of Dir, who had made an excursion from Tal Patrak with a force of Kobistanis. After achieving his purpose, Sher Muhammad returned to Tal Patrak. Partly as the result, perhaps, of these reverses, the confederacy against Umra Khan is growing in strength. The Khan of Nawagi has succeeded in reconciling himself with the men of his tribe (Mohmands) who had previously been at enmity with him; and jirgas of the Utman Khels of Kui and Swat Baisais have come in to him, and have promised to assist him against Umra Khan; and the Khan of Lalpura is also now gathering a force for the same purpose. Both the tribes last mentioned, as well as the Khan of Lalpura, profess allegiance to the Ameer of Afghanistan; and, what is further significant, it is stated that, under orders from the Ameer, the Governor of Jellalabad has advanced the sinews of war to the extent of 12,000 rs. to the ex-Khan of Dir on security of his jagirs of Tangi and Tokhchi. The Ameer himself has, however, refused to take any direct part in the tribal fighting between minor Khans, unless the result necessitates interference. Although this is a final blow to the Khans of Nawarish's hopes of assistance from the Ameer, the position is sufficiently critical for Umra Khan, who has, it is said, opened negotiations alleging that it is foolish for the only two remaining independent Khans to weaken themselves by fighting, so that afterwards both will fall easy victims to a foreign power.

The Khan of Lalpura has sent a force to assist the Khan of Nawagi and his allies against Umra Khan of Jandol.

More intertribal fighting between sections of the Babuzai clans is reported from Swat. There has also been fighting between rival Malikis in Bar Swat. It was only about six months ago that Mian Gul exerted his newly-acquired authority in the country to persuade the inhabitants of the chief villages, some thirty in all, in Bar Swat, to lay aside the blood feuds that disturbed the peace of each village and induced the owners of rifle-proof defences round their houses to pull these to pieces. Six months has, however, proved the limit of the Swati's self-control, and all the old quarrels are reviving and the old fortifications are being rebuilt. As soon as these are fairly complete lively times are expected, as in the "good old days."

The Ameer's health is reported to be so bad that he has handed over the internal government to his favourite son and intended successor, the Sirdar Habiboola Khan, who is inimical to the retention of foreigners, more especially Europeans, and has resolved to get rid of them by degrees.

The Health of the Indian Army.—The Times of India says:—A short time back we thought it our duty to call attention to the terrible results of the abolition of the C. D. Act in India. The question was one that we would far rather have avoided, but we are none the less glad to see, from the discussion it has evoked and the letters we have received, that it is attracting attention in the right quarters. Elsewhere we publish a letter on this painful subject, written by a private soldier (and very well written too), which may be taken to represent the views of the rank and file of the British Army in India. Our contributor writes in rather a high key perhaps; but he is quite justified in doing so, and the evidence with which his letter is filled is as useful, if not so guardedly and discreetly written, as any leading article. There is no occasion to quote much from his letter here, but we commend it to the attention of such of our readers—and such of our contemporaries also—as are interested in the inner life of English soldiers in this country. One quotation, however, we must give, and that only by way of fixing attention on the letter itself. "When foul drains," he writes, "breathe forth contagion and death in our cantonments, no pains are spared to cleanse them; yet this filthy open sewer of contagion is allowed to flow unrestrictedly into the blood of our youth, converting our hospitals into veritable charnel-houses, taking for ever from our bodies the priceless gift of health without which life is but a barren desert of despair. How many young men have I seen, high-spirited, full of life and vigour, after a few short years sent to their homes broken in body and mind, bankrupt in all that makes life worth living!" The agitators will object, no doubt, to this sort of writing—and we only wish they would write as truthfully themselves.

The Nagar Tribesmen.—Says the Pioneer:—It is, perhaps, a fortunate circumstance that the British Agent at Gilgit has just now at his back some of the new Cashmere Imperial Service troops, for otherwise the Nagar tribesmen might temporarily work some mischief on the frontier. Hunza and Nagar are two petty States in the hills to the north of Gilgit, the approach to which lies up the valley of the Hunza River by a road which is famous for its dangers and difficulties, being in many places but a ledge along precipitous cliffs, overhanging the stream. The Cashmere Durbar have a fort at Chalt where the Hunza River after running from east to west turns due south, and they also hold Chaprote a few miles to the north-west. Chalt really commands the road leading from the Hunza-Nagar valley; and the tribesmen on previous occasions have seized the fort and occupied Chaprote in order to enable them to threaten Gilgit. The Nagar people who are now in arms declared their intention of repeating their old tactics, though what special reason they have for creating a disturbance does not appear. Lieutenant-Colonel Durand was, however, too quick for them, as with two guns and 200 sepoy he marched from Gilgit and arrived first at Chalt. He was there joined by 300 men drawn from the Punayal levies, and on the night of May 30 was holding a strong position, against which a successful attack would almost be impossible. The Nagar tribesmen, ill-armed and with but few firearms, will scarcely venture out of their valley now; if they force a collision they will for the first time learn that the Cashmere troops stationed at Gilgit are armed with breech-loaders, and have lately had the benefit of being taught by skilled instructors. The actual strength of the garrison on the north-west border of Cashmere at the present moment is one mountain battery of four 7-pounder guns and the 1st and 2nd Regiments of Infantry, each numbering 600 bayonets. All these are Imperial Service troops, Dogras and Goorkhas, well equipped and capable of giving a good account of themselves with Sniders in their hands. The Hunza people, it may be noted, have not joined the Nagar tribesmen in their latest enterprise.

NOTES FROM THE FAR EAST. THE RIOTS IN CHINA.

THE following telegrams relating to the anti-foreign riots in China have been received since our last issue:—

YOKOHAMA, June 8 (Reuter).—Admiral Belknap has received a telegram from Shanghai, dated to day, stating that on June 5 a riot broke out at Kin Kiang, but was suppressed by the British, French, and American gunboats. The European women and children were taken on board the Inconstant. Two men had been killed at Wuhu, to which place the United States gunboat Palos had been ordered. Serious apprehensions were again felt by the foreign community, and the Foreign Ministers at Peking had informed the Chinese Government that if foreigners were not protected they would take vigorous action.

SHANGHAI, June 9 (Reuter).—The United States Consul cabled to-day to Admiral Belknap that the band of Chinese who attacked Yangshow and destroyed the French mission at Woosich yesterday are now reported to be at Soochow, 70 miles from this place. There is every indication that the rioters intend to destroy the French mission 18 miles from Shanghai, and will then attack the French mission at Sieg-Wei, 4 miles from Shanghai. Russian and French gunboats have gone up the river, thus bringing the foreign naval force to a total of nine war vessels. Intelligence from Kin Kiang to June 6 reports that matters are quiet at that place and at Hankow. Three foreign war vessels are at Kin Kiang, and H.M.'s gunboat Porpoise is at Hankow.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3 (Reuter).—The mail steamship China, which arrived here last night, brings intelligence from Hong Kong giving an alarming picture of the state of things in the interior of China owing to the spread of the anti-foreign movement and the excesses committed by the Chinese populace. The outbreaks are said to be the work of secret societies, whose primary object was not to injure foreigners but to entangle the Chinese Government in foreign complications, with the design of insuring the success of a subsequent insurrectionary movement. In the outbreak which occurred at Nanking on May 25 the Methodist Girls' School was attacked, pillaged, and burned by the Chinese rabble. Several other mission buildings were similarly attacked, and would have been demolished but for the interference of the soldiers sent by the Viceroy after urgent appeals from the missionaries. On the previous Sunday the missionaries were semi-officially notified by the authorities that their premises would be burned. Accordingly all took steamer for Shanghai the day before the trouble. Further rioting was expected at Kin Kiang. The residents at Kin Kiang were sending their valuables to Shanghai, owing to fears of trouble at the annual festival on May 27, this date having been fixed by threatening placards for a hostile demonstration against foreigners, notwithstanding the issue of a proclamation prohibiting any such manifestation. At Tanyang, twenty-five miles from Chinkiang, a Chinese mob, on June 1, burnt the old French church that had stood for 200 years, and pillaged and burned the mission buildings. After overpowering a Mandarin and some soldiers, the rioters desecrated the Christian cemetery, digging up the bodies of the dead, and piling up the heads in a heap. The Mandarin himself was dragged to the spot by his queue. A telegram received on June 2 from Chinkiang reported that the Christian churches near Tanyang were in ruins. On May 15 a furious mob attacked the Catholic church at Hochow, threatening the priests with death. There, however, the rioters were dispersed by the Chinese soldiers, seventeen of them being arrested. At Chingyi in Anhui, on May 18, the natives attacked a church in service time. The building was demolished, but the missionary escaped uninjured. At Shanghai the magistrate had issued a proclamation threatening the natives with severe penalties for acts of hostility towards foreigners, particularly missionaries. Many leaders from outlying districts had come into Shanghai, fearing an outbreak; but, as four foreign warships were in port, it was thought that any anti-foreign demonstrations would be postponed. The whole of the Yangtze Valley was said to be affected by the native movement. Fung-Zee, formerly Secretary of the Chinese Legation in London, has been appointed to effect an amicable arrangement of the matters connected with the late Wuhu riots. Over twenty of the rioters were captured at Wuhu. The Viceroy had given the local magistrate permission to put the leaders to death on the spot, and notice had been issued by the authorities that they had accordingly decapitated eleven of the criminals. The heads of two of them, who were executed on May 25, were sent to Nanking and other cities.

With regard to these riots Mr. W. V. Drummond writes to the N. C. Herald (May 27):—

In the course of conversations with you (as well as with a few others) during the past three years, the most recent occasion having occurred nearly a year ago, I made (inter alia) the following statements:—

1. That the greater part of Northern and Mid-China is full of disaffection, and honeycombed with secret societies.
2. That the provinces bordering on the River Yangtze are the most disaffected.
3. That Nanking itself is the head centre.
4. That the one object in which all the secret societies agree is the desire to destroy or drive out of China the present Manchu dynasty.
5. That the method which these societies consider to be the most likely to enable them to effect their purpose is to embroil the present Government with foreign Powers, so that if a war with a foreign Power should occur a favourable opportunity for a rebellion would then arise; and that, even if war was not actually brought about, the state of friction would be such that no foreign Power would be likely to sympathise with or actively assist the Government of China.
6. That no rising would take place so long as Tseng Kuo-chuan was Viceroy of Nanking, but that his removal, or death, would lead to active preparations, and serious outbreaks, which would take the form of attacks upon foreign property in places in or near the Yangtze valley.
7. That the secret societies have grown, and are growing rapidly in numbers, and strength; and that they include not only many officials, but some of high rank, both civil and military.

I also mentioned to you, shortly after it occurred, the fact that the Viceroy Tseng having been granted leave to proceed to Peking, and having started overland, an accidental discovery was made in Nanking of a very serious conspiracy, the news of which having been immediately telegraphed to Peking, a telegram was sent ordering the Viceroy Tseng to return at once to Nanking, and that this telegram having overtaken him on his journey, he at once retraced his steps, returned to Nanking and never again left it.

The Viceroy Tseng died suddenly in November last. Liu Kun-yi was appointed Viceroy in his stead, and Shên Ping-chêng was appointed acting Viceroy until Liu Kun-yi took over charge of the post. Shên Ping-chêng handed over the seals of office to Liu Kun-yi on April 29. During the few months that Shên Ping-chêng was in charge most daring burglaries took place in the Viceroy's own yamén, very valuable and important documents having been carried off and lost. And during this time the plans of the societies have been maturing.

You mentioned to me, on more than one occasion, that you had no information from any other sources tending to confirm any of the above statements; and that replies to questions you had put to persons who had opportunities of becoming well informed did not tend to do so either, and that you naturally preferred to suspend your judgment.

The recent and rapidly thickening events induce me to ask you to allow me to place the foregoing facts upon record, and I do so for the purpose of showing that the present riots are not accidental and local momentary disturbances which could not have been foreseen, and which are likely to be merely evanescent, but that they might and ought to have been foreseen by the Foreign Ministers in China, and that preparations ought to have been made before, and ought to be vigorously made now, for the protection of foreign lives and property in this country. Foreign lives have not yet been lost in these so-called riots, but the mobs that are being worked up by the secret societies for their own purposes may at any time get beyond their control; and it is also probable that if the present outbreaks do not speedily involve the Chinese Government in serious difficulties with one or more foreign governments, that the next step will be the taking of foreign lives.

On the above the N.C. Herald writes:—Mr. Drummond has no doubt good authority for the serious statements made in his letter, and since the time of which he speaks confirmatory evidence of the truth of what he says has reached us, and we gave the result of it in our leading article on the 20th. We have heard, however, another account, which is less serious, and in which we are told there is a great deal of truth. We hope so; for in that case the recent riots are merely intended to extract blackmail, and are not intended to so embarrass the central government as to facilitate a rebellion against the present dynasty. We are told that the late Viceroy Tseng used to pay a monthly tribute of 50,000 tls. into the treasury of the Ko Lao Society. After his death, and upon the appointment of Shên as acting Viceroy, two representative members of the society, of the rank of Taotai and General respectively, waited upon the new appointee and demanded a continuance of this monthly tribute, in return for which they would guarantee order from the members of the society. After expressing his surprise and demurring for a time, he evidently agreed to adopt the policy of his predecessor and continue the tribute. Finally Viceroy Liu was appointed. He was a Hunan man and doubtless owes his appointment to the popular idea that he was especially qualified to cope with the disturbing elements of Central China. He likewise was requested to pay 50,000 tls. monthly to the society. He refused. He was forewarned of the certain result of his refusal, and what he was forewarned of has followed, all the riots so far having been at towns within the three provinces controlled by him. We give this for what it is worth; it is hardly possible to verify it.

A striking instance of bravery is reported by the Herald's Nankin correspondent. Mr. Nichols had gone with his family to the West Gate to see them safely on the house-boat, and returning met a messenger, saying the hospital was being demolished. Sending a man with a message to the yamén, he rushed home and found the hospital already in possession of the mob, but forced his way in and discovered the ringleader preparing to fire the building, and urging his followers to hasten the destruction of the place. Among other things he said: "They may take off my head, but I'm bound to destroy this building." Mr. Nichols caught him and gave him a severe drubbing with a rattan cane, and, in spite of all efforts to rescue him, dragged him out of the building, though in doing so he was plentifully assaulted with brickbats and other missiles. As soon as the fellow was released he drew a long knife and threatened dire vengeance; but Mr. Nichols pulled out a revolver, and held the crowd at bay for what seemed to him a full hour when a mandarin with soldiers appeared. He then sprang forward and caught the rascal again, and held him in spite of all attacks until the soldiers secured him. The official then gave him a most merciless beating, put him in a cage and sent him up. It is said he will lose his head. Another young fellow was arrested and beaten, but on Mr. Nichols's intercession he was released. The leader is a native of Nankin, a Mahomedan, and proprietor of a small store on one of the chief thoroughfares of the city. He is known as a most desperate character.

Considerable indignation had been caused in Hong Kong by the receipt of telegrams stating that the Manila Government had "embargoed" about three lacs of dollars belonging to the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank. The Bank has now a proper legal footing in Manila, and the action of the authorities was held to be absolutely illegal. The trouble is said to have arisen out of the old Jurado business, with which the Bank had been long annoyed. The Foreign Office was appealed to, and it was expected that Madrid would be induced to bring pressure to bear on the Manila authorities, so as to make the latter act with some regard to justice.

A later note says (China Mail):—We learn that the Hong Kong Bank difficulty in Manila is progressing towards a settlement. The Foreign Office wired to Madrid for explanations and also instructed the British Consul in Manila to do all he legally could to protect the property of the bank. Madrid has also been in communication with Manila, and it is firmly believed the embargo will be raised in two or three days.

It is said that the Chief Justice may be asked to take a holiday. This favourable view of affairs is confirmed by private telegrams that have been received in Hong Kong.

The Fiji Shimpō asserts, on what authority we do not know, says the Japan Mail, that the Government of Corea has given permission to foreigners to own real estate in the capital, and that, as land there costs only from 2 sen to 20 sen per tsubo (36 square feet), large quantities have been purchased by Russians and Frenchmen. We await some confirmation of the intelligence. The British Treaty with Corea secures to British subjects the privilege of renting or purchasing land or houses at Inchhôn, Wôsan, Fusan, and Yanghwa-chin, but it is expressly stipulated that the opening of warehouses in the capital (Sôul) must be considered a provisional arrangement. It will be surprising if the Korean Government has so far passed the limits indicated by this Treaty as to give to foreigners the privilege of owning real estate in Sôul.

A telegram to the Standard from Bangkok, dated last Tuesday, stated:—News has reached here to the effect that the French troops have occupied the province of Luang Prabang, east of the Mekong river. For some time past the movements of the French outposts on the Siamese border have given rise to uneasiness, and claims have been persistently urged in the local French press to the whole valley of the Mekong, as belonging by right to the Kingdoms of Annam and Camtodia.

The Paris papers denied the accuracy of this information, affirming that the movement referred to was into the so-called Laos territories. A Rangoon telegram to this morning's Times says:—According to the latest telegraphic reports from Bangkok, although the alleged occupation of Luang Prabang is unfounded, the French have encroached on and passed the frontier line claimed by Siam and hitherto occupied by the Siamese. The north-eastern frontier of Siam is somewhat loosely defined. The Siamese Government are sending a Commission to examine and settle the frontier. M. Pavie, the French Consul at Luang Prabang, openly favours the policy of France seizing the valley of Mekong as belonging to Cambodia, and he has been actively intriguing to secure the annexation of Luang Prabang.

The Working of the Indian Railways for the half year ending June 30, 1890, provisional returns of which are issued, seems to have been rather more satisfactory than was anticipated. The net earnings of the Great Indian Peninsula for the six months totalled 1,28,76,739 rs., or 62,18,664 rs. in excess of the interest on capital. The Bombay, Baroda, and Central India earned 49,02,033 rs. net, or 46,12,556 rs. in excess of interest, and the East Indian 1,58,65,890 rs., or 35,38,644 rs. in excess. The Bengal-Nagpore, however, shows a deficiency of 8,79,317 rs., the net earnings not reaching even that amount, and the interest on capital representing 17,09,912 rs.; while the Indian Midland earned only 4,15,702 rs. net, or a deficiency in interest on capital of 13,28,604 rs. The North-Western exhibits a deficiency of 44,22,284 rs., and the Madras a deficiency of 6,65,673 rs.; but the total excess of net earnings over interest on capital on twenty-five standard gauge railways totals 45,65,776 rs., the gain being distributed over ten railways only. The narrow-gauge railways show a similar excess of 18,60,587 rs., distributed over nine railways out of a total of five-and-twenty, but six of these furnished no information and the figures are therefore incomplete. The percentage of net earnings to capital outlay was greatest on the B.B. & C.I., namely, 5'14, the G.I.P. and the East Indian coming next with 4'67 and 4'35 per cent. respectively. The Rajpootana-Malwa earned 4'06 per cent., and the Tirhoot 4'09 per cent., but the Indian Midland returned only 0'51 per cent., and the Southern Mahratta 0'59 per cent. The Burma Railway earned 2'87, the South Indian 2'53, the North-Western 1'22, and the Eastern Bengal 2'57.

The Oriental Congress.—The Times of India of June 19 says:—The last number of the Athenæum contains a short prospectus of the arrangements already made for the Ninth International Congress of Orientalists, to be held in London in September, 1892, under the presidency of Professor Max Müller. The circumstances which have rendered it advisable to publish these arrangements at so early a stage are notorious. Of those who have ranged themselves as vice-presidents under Max Müller, it will be enough, perhaps, in Bombay to mention Sir George Birdwood and Lord Reay. The Master of Balliol College is not an Oriental scholar; but no one who knows him and who knows the interest he takes in Indian matters, will believe that he has lent his name to the 1892 Congress lightly. The President of the Aryan Section of the Congress is Professor E. B. Cowell—a name once well known in Calcutta, now equally well known and honoured in Cambridge. The secretary of that section is the Deputy Boden Professor of Sanscrit at Oxford. We quoted some days ago Professor Weber's emphatic statement that no German scholar would attend Dr. Leitner's 1891 Congress; and we note with no surprise that the two German scholars in whom Bombay is specially interested, Drs. Bühler and Kielhorn, have given in their public adhesion to the Congress of 1892. The Raja Pearl Mohan Mukharji, C.S.I., is the secretary of the Congress for the Bengal Presidency, and Dr. Peterson is the secretary for the Bombay side of India. The prospectus has reached us at a timely moment. We understand that the syndicate of our University, who were represented at the last Congress, have now under consideration Dr. Leitner's request that they would send a delegate to his Working project; and we believe that on the strength of an unfortunately too courteous reply to an earlier communication, Dr. Leitner is already parading the University of Bombay among his motley rank of supporters. It ought not to escape notice that support of Dr. Leitner in this matter means concurrence in the impudent censure he has presumed to pass on men like Weber, Max Müller, and Mr. Jowett. We trust there need be no fear of our University forsaking the leadership of these men in order to march through Coventry with Dr. Leitner.

A Strange Story.—At the Thames Police-court the other day, a respectably-dressed woman asked Mr. Mead's advice under the following circumstances. She said she had been in India as nurse, and a lady named Campbell engaged her there to accompany her to England. The lady agreed to pay her passage, and on arrival in England to pay her 10% for her services. The vessel, the Golconda, arrived in the Albert Docks a month ago. On Mrs. Campbell, together with the luggage, being put into the special train that was waiting, the applicant, who was about to enter the carriage, was sent back to the vessel for a shawl that she was told had been left behind. She failed to find the shawl, and, on returning to the platform, found the train gone. She had been unable to find any trace of Mrs. Campbell, and the applicant's box, containing valuable property, which was among the luggage, had also disappeared. She had since been in a Salvation Army shelter, and was now destitute. The applicant would like to return to India. Mr. Mead said he would have some inquiry made into the case.

*WANTED—A MEDAL.

(To the Editor of THE HOMEWARD MAIL.)

SIR,—The Times of the 4th inst. states that the issue of the Frontier Medal has been recommended for the Miranzai and Manipore Expeditions. Quite right, as nothing encourages good soldiers more than such appreciation of their services. Is it too late to ask why the usual medal was never issued for the Mahsood-Waziri Expedition of 1881? A large force of all three arms was employed thereon with signal success, a hitherto unconquered tribe was made to "cave-in," a hitherto little known borderland was fully surveyed and the important passes all mapped out; no mistakes or disasters took place, consequently the loss of life was small, although the entire success of the expedition was marked. The hardships undergone were very great, and the pluck and endurance displayed by our troops most gratifying. Yet no medal was issued, why, nobody could understand. Is it too late to remedy this omission, and include the Mahsood-Waziri warriors as well as those of Miranzai and Manipore?—Yours, &c., GHUZZEE.

ENGLISH AND INDIAN FACTORY LEGISLATION.

(To the Editor of THE HOMEWARD MAIL.)

SIR,—The following table will be interesting to your readers, as it shows clearly the deficiency of India Factory Legislation, and the great need there is for the enactment of the British Factory and Workshop Acts in India for the protection of the working-classes from the exactions of their employers. I would further draw their attention to the Report of the Bombay Factory Commission of 1884, where it is stated that:—

"We are strongly of opinion that all factories—no matter what the number of hands employed—in which steam, water, or other mechanical power is used, should be under regulation, and that other places or workshops where manual labour is exercised should be brought under the law if ten members of the protected classes are employed therein. We may add that we draw the line at ten, owing to the impossibility, without more inspectors being appointed, of enforcing the law in workshops employing less hands."

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

1 Chilworth Street, W.

EXCLUDED FROM PROTECTION.

EXCLUDED FROM PROTECTION.

NOTE.—Out of a population of 285,000,000 in India barely 100,000 persons will be afforded protection by the India Factory Act. The operative, artizan and mining population of India number some 24,000,000 souls.

NOTES.—* In the British Isles, in factories and workshops where the protected classes are employed, men are usually given the same working-hours, intervals for meals and rest and rest-days, as are granted to women and young persons.

† The actual working-hours in British non-textile factories and workshops seldom exceed 54 hours a week for men, women, and young persons; and 27 hours for children.

‡ Boys over 14 are classed as men and may work an unlimited number of hours for 6 days and nights in the week.

¶ Worked from dawn to dusk, a period of 14 hours a day in the hot season, or 84 hours a week if Sunday is a rest day, and 98 if a holiday is taken in lieu of Sunday in the previous week.

§ If artificial light is used they may be worked day and night for days consecutively. That such excessive labour is enforced in cotton-presses and ginning factories was proved before the Bombay Factory Commission of 1884. As an instance I may state that in one cotton-press at Broach, men and women had been employed "for 10 or 12 days and nights at a stretch without rest."

|| All male cotton-operatives, over the age of 14, who were examined in Bombay, before the India Factory Commission of 1890, begged that Government would fix the limit of their working-day, and declared that if the limits were fixed between 6 A.M. and 6 P.M. they would be able to work with more energy and turn out the same amount of work as in longer hours.

 The evil of loose limits like these are well-known, and are now only allowed in non-textile factories and workshops in this country, in cases where children and young persons are not employed. With reference to these exceptional cases, Mr. Matthews, the Home Secretary, in his speech on the second reading, this session, of his Factories and Workshops Bill, which is especially intended to put a stop to them, said:—"Women, as the House is aware, can at present be employed for 15 hours (between 6 A.M. and 9 P.M.), with 4½-hours for meals, and there is no process by which an Inspector can detect that a woman is being overworked, as there is nothing to show when she commenced, when she left off, and when she took her meals. The change he brought about in the Bill was to require a specified period of 12 hours to be fixed by the employer, and to give the employed 1½ for meals." Girls and women in India are allowed to work at night on the shift system. All factories wishing to work at night will of course adopt the shift system, and thus the Act affords no protection whatever from night work to women and young persons.

The Accounts Department.—The Government of India recently issued orders regarding the reorganisation and recruitment of the Accounts Department. It has now ruled that in order to afford encouragement to the best officers belonging to the enrolled list, one of the five Accountant-Generalships may be given to an officer on that list, other than an Indian Civil servant, as a reward of conspicuous merit; if there is, when a vacancy occurs, such an officer competent to fill the appointment efficiently. There are thirty-six charges to fill, for which officers of the enrolled list actually present on duty are required, and in order to provide for these, the total strength of the list is raised from forty-two to forty-five officers by the addition of one appointment in classes one, five, and six. The rates of pay attached to the appointments on the enrolled list will no longer be progressive. The rates in the six classes will be 1,500, 1,250, 1,000, 800, 600, and 400rs. respectively. The new scale will not be applied to any officers serving in the department on January 1, 1891.

"CONVERTED" REGIMENTS AND THEIR MESS FUNDS.

THERE are unhappily so many things done in the Civil and Military Services of India which it is not easy to reconcile with good-faith or common-sense, that one more Government ruling of the incongruous order hardly excites any other emotion among those affected than that of a languid resignation to the inevitable. A straw shows how the wind blows; and a recent little decision of the Simla authorities is a specimen of a kind of demoralisation which we wish that other evidences did not oblige us to say is not unique. The matter to which we refer is the action taken by the Government of India in relation to the band and mess funds of the 33rd, 38th, 39th, and 40th Regiments. Towards the close of 1890 orders were issued for the practical disbandment of these regiments, and the raising of new regiments, to be recruited chiefly from other races, to take their place. This the Government, which had had some previous trouble as to the appropriation of the funds of some disbanded Madras regiments, chose to call a "conversion," a pretty phrase to use (but evidently employed with a purpose) for the mustering out of the service of officers and men of the old regiments, the returning of their colours to the arsenal, and the raising of entirely new regiments under different officers, with the exception that a few were gazetted to the new corps and some of the men, whose caste allowed of it, were permitted to volunteer into these corps.

The old regiments had their own band and mess funds. These funds are entirely supported and managed by the officers of the corps. As the case is stated in an article in the Pioneer of April 26 which we partly reproduce in another column—there can be no doubt that "it is the existing body of officers who on a mess or band fund being wound up, are the owners of the property—for they are de facto and de jure owners of such amounts as they may have contributed, or the proportion thereof remaining to credit, and they succeed as heirs to the proportion contributed by officers who have left the regiment; for they are in the position so to speak, of dead men whose legal heirs are their brother officers surviving." If the funds are to the bad the officers are liable for the debt; if the funds are to the good it follows that they are entitled to the assets. This being so the recent order of the Government can only be regarded as an act of confiscation. The Pioneer shows that the Government allowance for mess is for rent and establishment, which it rarely if ever covers, and this is the contribution which gives the military authorities the right to order a court-martial, committee, or board to assemble at the officers' mess-room. It has never been claimed or admitted, we believe, that the allowance gave the Government any right to interfere with the disposition of the funds. Moreover, we are informed that the opinion of the highest legal and military authorities in India is contrary to the decision of the Government, and that this arbitrary and gratuitous act of spoliation is due to the Secretary of State. If that be so—which we can scarcely credit—an opportunity of explaining the grounds of the decision will be afforded by a question which is to be put in the House of Commons.

We were rather inclined to suspect, and the Rangoon correspondent of the Times now confirms our suspicion, that the telegram which a correspondent sent to London from Bangkok, announcing the occupation of Luang Phrabang by the French, had been inspired, with a purpose, by the shift Government of Siam. The policy—if it may be called a policy in which knavery combines with impudence—of the Siamese, is to push claims in every direction and try and play off the jealousies of the two powerful European States which occupy the countries on her borders against each other. Before the delimitation of our Eastern Shan frontier, she had occupied with her troops and marked with her posts territories which had clearly been under the suzerainty of Burma. On the other side towards Tonquin, beyond the line of hills which constitute the watershed between the Mekong and the Red river, Siamese maps show a strip of territory—attributed to Luang Phrabang but over which it has never exercised any effective authority. It is inhabited by hill-men, among whom the Black-flags found refuge from the French, but it is a country which must come within the influence of any Power holding Tonquin. Luang Phrabang is to the West of the watershed, and it is not likely that the French have occupied it. They may cherish the ambition of ultimately pushing their frontier to the Mekong, all the way from North to South, but they can afford to wait until events within Siam give them the opportunity of making the desired advance. If, as we believe, the French have simply asserted their right to the so-called Laos country, the Siamese need not expect us to concern ourselves much about the matter. Our Shan border line will run along the North of Luang Phrabang, above the 20th degree of latitude until it strikes the watershed, and the upper reaches of the Mekong will always remain in our possession. Of course, if the French have seized Luang Phrabang and the territory to the West of the watershed our Government may have something to say to it; but the statement is denied in the Paris journals and the Siamese will not alarm us into interference with regard to territories to which their own claims are shadowy and doubtful.

If the news telegraphed from Simla that MAJOR-GENERAL MACLEAN the British Consul-General at Meshed is about to retire and that MR. NEY ELIAS is to succeed him be true, the Indian Government is to be congratulated on its selection. Wherever MR. NEY ELIAS has had an opportunity of shewing his qualities he has proved himself a man of capacity and tact, and he has accomplished feats which long ago entitled him to far more generous recognition than has ever been accorded to him. As Consul-General at Meshed he will hold a post for which he is peculiarly fitted.

MANY of our readers at home and in India will be interested to learn that a marriage is arranged between MR. ARTHUR ASH, son of MR. GEORGE CLAUDIUS ASH, and GERTRUDE, daughter of MAJOR-GENERAL SIR OWEN BURNE, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., and niece of LORD KILMAINE. The wedding will take place next month.

SOME important views with regard to the origin and motives of the anti-foreign riots in China will be found in our "Notes from the Far East."

The conferment of a baronetcy upon Sir James Fitzjames Stephen, K.C.S.I., is gazetted.

Sir George Birdwood has undertaken to edit for Mr. Bernard Quaritch the volume of the old East India Company's records entered in the press list of "India Office Records," recently published under the title of "Miscellaneous Court Book." The volume was known to Mr. Thomas Rundall, who refers to it in his "Narratives of Voyages towards the North-West" (Hakluyt Society, 1849), under the title of "Court Miscellany Book"; and to Mr. Bolton Corney in his edition of the "Voyage of Sir Henry Middleton" (Hakluyt Society, 1855), under the name of "Court Miscellaneous Book." The true title, however, is given in the Court Minutes of March 28, 1607, as "Register of Letters"; for this exactly indicates the contents of the volume, which consist of first-hand copies of the letters and similar documents received by or issued by the East India Company between the years 1600 and 1618. These documents number altogether 149, of which at least fifty relate to the first six years of the Company's existence, a period for which the India Office Records are otherwise particularly meagre. Ten of them are published by Mr. Bolton Corney as appendices to his "Voyage of Sir Henry Middleton," a work long since out of print. The volume is, therefore, of the utmost interest in connection with the history of the East India Company.

On July 2 Mr. H. S. King, M.P., moved in the House of Commons for a return showing the capital cost of each of the four Colleges of Roorkee, Seepore, Poona, and Madras; the annual expenditure and amount of the return in the shape of fees in each case, and the number of annual Government appointments from each of these colleges. The motion was unopposed. The Engineers have been well advised in asking Mr. King to get the Government to publish the facts concerning these colleges, facts which may, possibly, be found exceptionally interesting to those who contend that what the Indian administration saves with one hand by cutting down pensions and by other economic devices it throws away with the other.

We are informed that it has been agreed between the London and Calcutta Committees of the European (non-Civilian) Services to present Mr. H. S. King with separate testimonials, one from the Indian officers, and the other from pensioners and officers at home on furlough. A large sum has been sent to the London Committee, who have selected a handsome gift, which it is intended to present to Mr. King at a reception to be given at 25 Cornwall Gardens by Mr. and Mrs. King on Saturday, July 11. We understand that the presentation will be made by Sir Guildford Molesworth, K.C.I.E.

The Maharaja of Cooh Behar, G.C.I.E., honorary aide-de-camp to the Prince of Wales, has subscribed 50*l.* to the funds of the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography. In a letter to the honorary secretary for India (Mr. S. Digby) his Highness says:—"The objects of the Congress as stated by you will, I am sure, commend themselves to all who are interested in the progress of hygiene and the improvement of public health. I am also glad to find that the Indian Empire will be well represented in the forthcoming Congress, and that the important problems of sanitation in ancient cities of India will form the subject of discussion." Coming from an Indian Prince, this testimony to the importance of the Congress of Hygiene is both interesting and encouraging. The syndicate of the Madras University have asked the following gentlemen to represent them at the Congress:—Surgeon-General W. R. Cornish, C.I.E., Surgeon-General G. Bidie, and Brigade-Surgeon H. King. Delegates have also been appointed by the Ceylon Chamber of Commerce. Sir William Wedderburn, Bart., has accepted an invitation to become the delegate of the Poona Sarvajanic Sabha. We hear that within the past few days the Secretary of State for India has cordially wished success to the Congress. In doing this his lordship has followed the example of his Excellency the Viceroy, who some time ago expressed similar sentiments.

Mrs. Grimwood, the heroine of the Manipore disaster, arrived at Windsor on July 1, and drove to the Castle for the purpose of paying a short visit to the Queen. She returned to town after luncheon.

It is stated that the negotiations between the Admiralty and the Orient Company, concerning the working of Indian troopships by the company, have been abandoned.

The Civil Service Commissioners notify that at the open competitive examination for Eastern cadetships, to be held next month, not fewer than six cadetships will be offered for competition—namely, four in Ceylon and two in the Straits Settlements.

The Queen has approved of Maricar Abdul Medjid Effendi as Ottoman Consul at Colombo, and Mr. Auguste José de Rosario as Mexican Vice-Consul at Hong Kong.

A special royal warrant has been published providing for the retention of the senior major of a regiment on full pay, after attaining the age of forty-eight, if he be specially intended, in the interests of the service, to succeed to the command of a regiment or battalion when a vacancy occurs. Majors of Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers are also included in this arrangement, which will thus prevent good officers from being turned out at the strict limit of age for compulsory retirement.

The annual Assam dinner took place at the Holborn Restaurant on July 2, when a large number of gentlemen attended, among whom were—Sir Steuart C. Bayley, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., in the chair; Sir Francis Norman, General J. J. H. Gordon, C.B., H. S. King, Esq., C.I.E., M.P., Surgeon-General A. Eteson, Alfred Lafone, Esq., M.P., William Blackhall, Esq., H. C. Williams, Esq., G. E. McLeod, Esq., Colonel A. E. Campbell, Surgeon-General A. C. C. De Renzy, C.B., Colonel Sir James Johnstone, K.C.S.I.; and Messrs. J. Berry White, Edward Wahab, H. Earnshaw, William Aitchison, Arthur Odling, Robert Hart, J. L. Shand, C. E. W. Griffiths, J. S. Fraser, Norman Grieve, &c.

Yesterday an order was issued from the War Office directing the following addition to be made to the Queen's regulations:—"Officers on full pay are not permitted to join the directorate of any public, industrial, or other company, without permission from the Commander-in-Chief."

The Athenaeum states that Sir Monier Williams has been suffering from a second and worse attack of influenza, so that the progress of the new and enlarged edition of his "Brahmanism and Hinduism," to be published by Mr. Murray, has been delayed. He is now, however, able to attend to the revision of proof-sheets. In Sanskrit lexicography he has secured the assistance of Professor Kielhorn, C.I.E., of Göttingen, and Professor Cappeller, of Jena.

"ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

COMMENTING on the absorption of Allen's Indian Mail by the Homeward Mail, the Mandaley Herald says:—

It will interest all Englishmen and English-speaking people whose lot is cast in the British possessions in the East to hear that Allen's Indian Mail, a household word with Anglo-Indians, ceased to exist after the first week of last month. Allen's Indian Mail, after a long, useful, and prosperous existence, has been absorbed by the Homeward Mail and Official Gazette. Allen's Indian Mail, which came into existence in 1843, was the only English journal of its kind published. It was born of the necessities of the time. Indian affairs were at that time very little understood by the British public, and, strange as it may sound, the British Home Government was also very much in the dark about many things which happened and were happening in our extensive Empire in the East. The proprietor of Allen's Indian Mail recognised the great disadvantages under which our countrymen in the East and the people of India generally lived from there being no reliable or independent exponent of opinion on Indian affairs. Allen's Indian Mail was thus started, which devoted its columns to a just and impartial discussion of Indian affairs, to the exposure of anything happening in the East (and it must be acknowledged that many queer things do happen) which British opinion and British justice could not tolerate, and, in short, every conceivable subject in which the Government and the people of the Indian Empire are interested has been ably treated of in its columns for upwards of half a century. Allen's Indian Mail, however, has not been the only able exponent of opinion on Indian affairs; a few years after its establishment the Homeward Mail, into which it has now been absorbed, sprang into existence. The two journals may rightly be said to have been rivals. Both were ably conducted and well informed, but in the natural order of things it must have happened that one or other of them would go to the wall. That the struggle lasted for something over forty years is an incontestable proof of the excellent and able manner in which Allen's Indian Mail was conducted, but the Homeward Mail proved too strong for it, and the entity of the former now lives in the latter journal. We believe that the close association of the Homeward Mail with the Overland Mail has had much to do with Allen's Indian Mail being absorbed by its rival, for however ably it may have been conducted it could not in the face of such odds hope to continue its long and useful career very much longer. It is better that it should be absorbed by the Homeward Mail when still a widely-circulated and influential journal than that the rivalry should be continued to the bitter end, for the objects of both will be better and more readily gained by the interests of both journals being identified.

We wish the Homeward Mail every success in its new position as the only journal published in England which takes that interest in Indian affairs which such an important part of the British Empire as her possessions in the East demand. That an able exponent of opinion on Indian affairs is a desideratum goes without saying, and that the nearer the India Office such a journal is published the better is exemplified by the indifference with which the representations of Anglo-Indian journals published out here are often treated at headquarters; so for many and cogent reasons the supporters and readers of the Homeward Mail must experience a deal of satisfaction at its prosperity and increased field of influence.

INDIA, &c., IN PARLIAMENT. HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Tuesday, June 30.

The Manipore Trials.—MR. SCHWANN asked the Under-Secretary for India whether the action of the Viceroy of India in refusing to hear the counsel appointed by the Manipore Princes (now under sentence of death) to appear before him was based on precedent, or on some Act or Ordinance; and, in the latter case, under what Act or Ordinance.

BARON H. DE WORMS.—On behalf of my right hon. friend, I have to say that the Government of India, as was explained in an answer recently given, is not tied by precedent, Ordinance, or Statute, in dealing with the Manipore Princes.

The Capture of an English Girl.—MR. PICTON asked the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs if he could give any further information as to the efforts made to secure the safety and release of Kate Greenfield, captured by the Kurds.

SIR J. FERGUSSON said that the position of affairs according to the latest advices received was, that the Persian Government had despatched troops and guns to Sonjbulak to obtain the release of the girl. As some of those who were detaining her were Ottoman subjects, the Persian Government desired to obtain the consent of the Turkish Government before using force against them. Her Majesty's Ambassador at Constantinople had earnestly supported the request of the Persian Government, for the concurrence of the Porte in the measures which it was proposed to take.

Thursday, July 2.

The Triple Alliance.—MR. LABOUCHERE asked the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether her Majesty's Government is acquainted with the stipulations contained in the treaty just signed between Germany, Austria, and France; whether the Marquis Rudini was correct in stating on June 29, in the course of a debate in the Italian Chamber upon the expediency of Italy joining the Triple Alliance, that some years ago there had been an exchange of views between Italy and Great Britain, and that the two countries had proposed to co-operate for the maintenance of peace and the status quo; in what year this exchange of views took place; against what Power or Powers this co-operation was aimed; and, whether the co-operation between this country and Italy for the maintenance of peace and the status quo was outside the general European concert for these objects.

SIR J. FERGUSSON: Her Majesty's Government have no information with respect to the stipulations contained in the treaty which is said to have been signed between Germany, Austria, and Italy. The Marquis Rudini is reported to have expressed his concurrence in the description which has been given on the part of her Majesty's Government of the exchange of views which has from time to time taken place between the Governments of Great Britain and Italy. Her Majesty's Government have no doubt that the Marquis Rudini has also correctly described it. They are not yet in possession of the text of his Excellency's speech, but, as has been repeatedly stated, any measures to be taken in case of need for the maintenance of the status quo in the Mediterranean would be a matter for consideration according to the circumstances of the case, and any employment of her Majesty's forces would, as heretofore, depend upon the estimate of those circumstances entertained by her Majesty's Government. The exchange of views has been occasional, but there has been no change of any kind in our attitude from that which I defined in my reply to the hon. gentleman in 1888. I repeat, as I then stated, that the existing understanding is not aimed against any Power or Powers. I am not aware of any general European concert for the maintenance of the status quo, other than may be deduced from treaties which are before the House.

Famine in Madras.—MR. SAMUEL SMITH asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether his attention has been drawn to the very serious account of famine in Madras, especially among the lower castes, and what course the Government propose to take.

SIR J. GORST: The official telegrams which are received fortnightly show that the Government of Madras are carefully watching the condition of the people, and taking steps for their relief from famine wherever necessary.

The Manipore Princes.—MR. SCHWANN asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether it is true, as stated in a Renter's telegram from Simla, that the Government of India will grant the Manipore Princes ample time, say until the end of July, to prepare their appeal, by professional counsel, against sentence lately passed on them; and, in the negative case, will the Secretary of State urge that such facilities should be granted to them.

SIR J. GORST said the Government of India had already extended to July 31 the time within which representations would be received with reference to the appeal of the Manipore Princes against the sentences passed upon them.

Friday, July 3.

Tampering with Letters.—MR. CURZON asked the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether he was aware that letters in course of transit from Persia to Great Britain, and vice versa, were frequently tampered with en route while passing through Russian territory, being sometimes cut open, sometimes detained, and sometimes destroyed; and whether, in view of the fact that such practice was not in accordance with the amenities ordinarily observed by civilized nations, the Secretary of State would consider the propriety of making representations to the Russian Government on the subject.

SIR J. FERGUSSON said that nothing was known of the matter in the Foreign Office, and, therefore, no representations had been made. If, however, any such instances as were referred to in the question were brought to the knowledge of the Foreign Office, and that with proper authentication, representations on the subject would be made.

Female Labour in India.—MR. PROVAND asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether women and children work underground in coal mines in British India; if there is any legislation dealing with the labour employed in these mines; and if he will obtain and lay upon the table of the House a report on the condition of those employed in the mines, with particulars of the legislation, if any, which at present affects them.

SIR J. GORST said that in British India there was no legislation which regulated labour in coal mines, and that there was, therefore, no statutory prohibition of the work of women and children in such places. According to his information women were not allowed to work underground in the State mines, but in mines belonging to private proprietors they were so employed. It would be seen from papers which had already been laid on the table that the Secretary of State a year ago called the attention of the Government of India to the resolutions of the Berlin Conference on the subject of the working of mines, and asked them to consider whether legislation was desirable. He understood that the Government of India was now in communication with the local Governments on the subject.

OPPRESSION IN INDIA.

WHO IS THE REAL OFFENDER?

THE Calcutta Englishman says:—At a bāt, or weekly market, in one of the towns of Eastern Bengal not very long ago, a head constable was seen strutting pompously between the rows of things for sale, in all the glory of silver lace and stripes, deliberately kicking over a basket here and a bundle there, while the wretched owners submitted to the loss of their property either with a deprecating wail or in sullen silence. In doing what he did the little magnate was actuated by no particular malice: he merely wished to show or to exercise his authority. He was aware that he held his office solely by keeping the inhabitants in terror, and that his power would be gone if he once allowed them to imagine that resistance was possible. Just as a lion-tamer must habitually cow his lions, so this tamer of her Majesty's Indian subjects required to make them tremble without any special occasion, but simply as a matter of habit. It need hardly be said that the magistrate dared not have taken such a liberty; else the native press would have shrieked for justice, and every pleader in the district would have joined in a hue and cry. What is the cause of the difference? The answer to this question involves a consideration of British justice, Bengali mercy, and blatant patriotism. British justice pays especial heed to the small dust in the balance. A whole cartload of evidence counts for nothing if the dust be not exactly balanced so that men who have thoroughly learned to regard the dust as the principal thing in the legal scale, can pronounce notorious criminals guiltless with the greatest satisfaction; and those who expect to get justice out of them or injustice in spite of them, have to revolutionise time-honoured notions of right and wrong, and proceed to estimate the evidence by weighing the dust. The old Romans thought, and the Ameer of Cabul probably still thinks, that what is just is legal. But according to British justice only that is just which is legal.

Bengalee mercy holds the same place in ethics that surds holds in mathematics: it cannot be expressed rationally. The sorrows of the widow and the orphan do not evoke it; the oppression of the poor and the torture of the helpless do not call it out; the disembowelling and crucifixion of a thousand Burmese villagers does not excite it. But the whipping of a schoolboy, the kicking of a coolie or the hanging of ten Burmese dacoits causes it to gush forth in rivers of tears. It, therefore, like British justice, can be counted on with certainty, but only by those who have studied its philosophy and know the porosity of the strata through which it flows. The third element of consideration in our problem, blatant patriotism, is like the pariah dogs in a Bengal village, whose noise rouses the whole country, while they have none of the excellencies of other noble and useful dogs. It is different from the patriotism of Curtius, or Horatius, or Leonidas. It sheds no blood, spends no money, and faces no hardships; but it disturbs the peace of Governments and paralyzes administration.

Such, then, are three things which make it safe for a head constable, but unsafe for a magistrate, to lord it over the poor people at a village market. The head constable is not malignantly cruel, but he realises the necessity of maintaining his position. It is a very good position, but he has to work hard to keep it. Both the magistrate and the district superintendent are dependent on him, and he cannot afford to betray them. As we have shown, the main secret of his success is terror; the population within his little jurisdiction must quake in his presence and at the sound of his name. They must have no chance to forget his power. So, cause or no cause, he must from time to time go among them and make them cower abjectly and helplessly at his feet. To be sure, this is flagrantly opposed to the British constitution. But it is not opposed to British justice, which ignores all evidence except that which is received through the proper channels and sworn in a proper court. And woe to the wretch who will dare to give evidence against the head constable! His oppressions may be borne, but not his revenge. Once his wrath is roused, the Governor-General cannot protect his victim. Here, however, might seem a chance for Bengalee mercy: but for some reason it does not work. There are pleaders at hand, idle and learned, whose blood has often boiled with indignation over the wronged ryot and the oppressed garden coolie. But for some occult reason his mercy remains latent. And so with blatant patriotism its trumpet is silent. The claims of country and religion are forgotten, and unless some European pays all costs, the child of the soil suffers for not being of the ruling race.

All this is changed when the magistrate tries to copy the head constable. The matter is then liable to come up in the House of Commons, which pays small heed to judicial formalities. The alarmed head constable himself cannot restrain the eagerness of the bazaar people to give evidence, well aware as they are that the magistrate would not take revenge on them if he could, and could not if he would. It is also the monsoon time of Bengalee mercy. Niobe comes to the earth again to weep for the poor people whose little stock has been overturned in the dust by the magistrate's unholy foot, and blatant patriotism fairly bellows in its wrath. If there be justice in England, the people shall have it. The down-trodden millions will no longer sigh in vain for deliverance. The Queen is personally invoked to annihilate the magistrate. Now we are sincerely sorry for the poor people of the hat, and would gladly help them against the head constable without waiting for the magistrate's turn. But here we touch the weakest point in the whole administration of India—the want of natural sympathy between the rulers and the ruled. The Government is perfectly well aware of the defect, and a few years ago Mr. Pedder, an able and experienced Bombay civilian, wrote a very frank account of the situation. As Municipal Commissioner he had been investigating an extensive system of dasturi which had existed all along in the Crawford Market, but which some untoward circumstance had brought to light. The evidence amazed even Mr. Pedder, but he made a special point of the case of a substantial stall-keeper, quite intelligent enough to take care of himself, who had been regularly paying the jamadar 30 rs. a month for no reason whatever, as Mr. Pedder remarked, except that he believed that the jamadar would find means to annoy him if he did not make the payment. There was no escape from the humiliating fact that the British Government was unable to protect the man against its own officer, provided only that the officer were a native. Had Mr. Pedder tried to get 30 rs. a month out of him, the issue would have been widely different. But it is just here, as a protector of the people, not against Europeans, but against his own countrymen, that the educated native has proved a failure. It was once hoped that his knowledge of the country, combined with his familiarity with both classes, would enable the educated native to promote the Government of the country on European principles without forfeiting the confidence of the people. But his want of sympathy with all mankind outside of his own caste has doomed that hope to disappointment.

COMMERCIAL.

CALCUTTA, June 15.

THE Bank of Bengal have declared a dividend for the past half-year at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, placing to pension fund 50,000 rs. and carrying forward 303,000 rs. The dividend for the corresponding period was at the rate of 10 per cent.

The Directors of the Bank of Bengal, at their meeting held on June 11, made no alteration in the rate of interest, the official minimum remaining unchanged at 3 per cent.

In the figures of the Bank's statement for the week ending June 9, the following changes were shown:—

LIABILITIES.
Treasury Balance at Head Office	Rs. 32,18,363	Increase
Do. at Branches	40,78,320	Increase
Other Deposits	32,36,047	Decrease
Post Bills	26,451	Decrease

ASSETS.
Bank's Investments	6,09,872	Increase
Loans	1,14,665	Increase
Accounts of Credits	1,40,568	Decrease
Mercantile Bills	13,12,304	Decrease
Cash at Head Office	36,16,769	Increase
Do. at Branches	10,20,418	Increase

Analysing the above figures, it will be seen that the ordinary trade demand for money on this bank had increased by nearly 19½ lacs, made up as follows:—By a decrease of over 32½ lacs in "Other Deposits" and over ½ of a lac in "Post Bills," together with an increase of over 1½ lacs in "Loans," minus a decrease of over 1½ lacs in "Accounts of Credits" and 13½ lacs in "Mercantile Bills." The treasury balance stands augmented by over 32½ lacs and 40½ lacs at the head office and branches respectively. The bank's investments were increased by over 6 lacs. The final results of these changes is an increase of over 36½ lacs at head office, and nearly 10½ lacs at the branches, making the exact total 6,11,00,115 rs., equal to 60.9 per cent. of the current liabilities of the Bank, against a proportion of 58.6 per cent. last week.

In the Exchange market the most noticeable feature has been that, whereas the rate for private discountable paper has remained absolutely uniform at 1½ for six months' documents for acceptance, there has been a steady advance in the quotations for cash telegraphic transfer and on demand; money in the open market in London having become cheaper, although the Bank of England rate has remained unaltered at 4 per cent. The market throughout the week has been exceptionally dull, the amount of bills put through having been very small, while the inquiry for wire and demand has been inconsiderable.

TEA.—At last week's auctions about 6,500 chests changed hands. All good liquoring sorts were in strong demand, while those with only medium or inferior cup were less inquired for and urgent at rather earlier rates. This week about 6,000 packages will be offered.

JUTE.—Transactions in baled jute during the week have been of a most limited nature; some sales of old crop made at 22 rs. for good first, and 21 rs. for second-rate native marks. A little business has also been done in new crop at 25 rs. for a good range, at which price there are no more sellers. The home markets are very quiet but steady.

HEAVY GOODS.—Food business was done during the week in all descriptions. Sellers met buyers freely, and are now waiting. Twills and E bags were taken for U. K. The Colonies paid 21-12 rs. for a few corn sacks, and Burma was tempted by 4 a. decline to take some heavy C bags for season.

HESSIANS are unchanged, 8 oz. 40" cloth was placed at 6-12 rs., and wheat bags for San Francisco at 10 rs.

JOINT-STOCK SHARES.—All stocks have been sadly neglected, and the week is almost bare of transactions. Jute is quiet but steady, notwithstanding the absence of any large business. Tea is stationary, and the transactions are few and far between. The market generally, with the exception of the business caused by the nervous anxiety prevailing in regard to the gold industry, has been dull and without animation.

BANK OF BENGAL.

Rate of Interest for Demand Loans 3 per cent.

BOMBAY, June 18.

Business is very quiet, excepting in wheat, which has latterly been active and advancing in view of the holding off of the south-west monsoon, and possibly unfavourable harvest prospects. Cotton has been very quiet, but with more doing for export than for local consumption. Seeds have been taken to a moderate extent in a steady market, and linseed has advanced in value. Exchange has been firm, with an upward tendency, and rates are 3-32d. higher for bank bills and 1-16d. for private paper than they ruled on June 11. Money has become still easier, and the Bank of Bombay rate stands at 3 per cent. Government paper has advanced $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. in Fours. Freight rates are dull and declining. There is little fresh business doing in imports, especially in the arrival branch, pending the burst of the monsoon, and prices generally are lower.

MONEY.—With the virtual close of the more active shipping season and the absence of demand for money in other directions, the unusual ease which has so remarkably characterised the market this year has naturally become still more apparent; and the addition of some 41½ lacs to the Presidency bank's cash balance during the week, as disclosed by the return issued on June 15, was no more than might have been looked for, although no change was made in the bank's rates of interest and discount at the board meeting last week. It was noticeable that all the items in the return which go to indicate the position of the trade demand pointed to its contraction, a decrease of over 6½ lacs in loans, and of nearly 7 lacs in bills discounted, having been added to an accession of 19 lacs to private deposits, the total falling-off having been represented by over 32½ lacs, the cash balance having been further helped by an increase in Government deposits. Under these circumstances the directors of the bank have reduced their rates by 1 per cent. this afternoon, and the minimum now stands at 3 per cent.

Imports.—PIECE-GOODS.—The absence of rain has put a complete stop to indent and forward business on grey goods; and any offers which up-country buyers now make are generally 2 to 4 annas below current rates. Stocks are increasing, and holders feel considerable anxiety as to the future. Bleached, dyed, Turkey red, and printed goods are very quiet, and with few buyers in the market; but rates are nominally unchanged. With the exception of a lot of chudders taken for Calcutta, no wholesale transactions in local goods have been reported, and rates have ruled in buyers' favour.

METALS.—A large business has been done in copper in a firm market, but with prices quite unchanged. Yellow Metal has been dealt in to a moderate extent, and prices have given way 4 a. per cwt.; but the market is steady at the decline. Iron has been in but small request, and prices have declined 4 a. to 12 a. in a quiet market.

COAL has been quiet and weak, with little or no forward inquiry even at present low quotations.

Exports.—COTTON has been a quiet market, moderate business having been passing on last mail day, but with much less doing since; and a feature of the week has been the entire abstention of the mills from buying on some days, the little business done having been for export. The purchases by local spinners have aggregated about 3,500 bales, consisting of Bhownuggur, Julgaum, and other Oomra kinds, Broach, Bengals, and Veerungaum ginned; while for export some 5,000 bales have been taken of Dharwar, Bengals, Broach, Bhownuggur, and Oomra descriptions. The market closes quiet, with prices 2 rs. to 3 rs. lower than they were.

The receipts of cotton of the present season's crops during the week have been 43,200 bales, against 47,300 bales to hand in the preceding week, and 36,600 bales arrived in the corresponding week last year; and the falling-off in receipts this season, compared with those of 1889-90, is now less than it was last week, at 232,700 bales.

WHEAT.—The holding off of the rain has latterly led to a firm market in this staple, and an advance in rates, notwithstanding the tenor of advices from the other side. A moderate business was done on last mail day in a steady market on the basis of previous prices; but on June 13 the feeling became firmer, and rates advanced one anna per cwt. There was no further change on June 15 or the following day, the tone keeping firm with a moderate business passing; but on the 18th the market became strong and active, and dealers further raised prices one anna per cwt. The arrivals of wheat have continued on a very large scale, and the excess in receipts from Jan. 1, compared with the arrivals during the same period last year, is not far short of $\frac{1}{2}$ million cwt.

SEEDS have been steady with a moderate business passing, the only movement having been in linseed, which declined half an anna per cwt., but afterwards recovered the drop, and advanced an anna with a firmer feeling apparent. The increase in arrivals of linseed this year, compared with last, is now nearly 2 million cwt.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE

COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. C. BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED A REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and, as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances defying elimination), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false.

This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR of CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See The Times, July 13th, 1884.

IS THE GREAT SPECIFIC FOR CHOLERA.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescribe and patient alike.—We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & CO., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the BEST PALLIATIVE in NEURALGIA, GOUT, CANCER, TOOTHACHE, RHEUMATISM.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a liquid medicine which assuages PAIN of EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep WITHOUT HEADACHE, and INVIGORATES the nervous system when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of

GENERAL NEWS.

By the arrival of the present mail, via Brindisi, we are placed in possession of advices and gazettes from Calcutta to June 23; Madras, June 24; Bombay, June 26.

Although the present mail was at the Post Office early yesterday afternoon, our Indian and Eastern files were not delivered until this morning.

Lord Lansdowne has had very fine weather during his Narkhanda trip, which has proved very enjoyable.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times writes on July 9:—The Viceroy, speaking at a dinner at the United Service Club in Simla last night, alluded to the rumours which have been persistently circulated to the effect that his health had broken down, and that he was meditating an early retirement, and said that he was quite unconscious of any such intention.

Referring to the fact that the club was composed of civil and military officials, he said that the Government of India recognised no obligation more readily than that of watching with jealous care over the interests of its servants while they were alive, and seeing that no unjust aspersions were cast on their reputations when they were no longer able to defend themselves. He believed that every Viceroy would say that the strain of official responsibilities would be intolerable but for the loyal support of the Services.

Already, says the Times of India of June 26, our cold weather guests are being named. Among others no less a personage than Prince George of Wales is cited as a probable visitor. Lords Ernest and Frederick Hamilton, brothers of Lady Lansdowne, and also the Ladies Fitzgerald may also come out.

Lord and Lady Harris and suite will probably make a long tour early in August. Simla will be visited among other places. Their Excellencies will probably remain at Simla one week as the guests of the Viceroy.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal was to leave Darjeeling on July 1, and arrive in Calcutta on the following day. The arrival at Sealdah would be of a private character. From the tour programme it appears that his Honour will visit, among other places, Jamalpore, Kishna-ghar, Moorshedabad, Rampore Bauleah, Goalando, and Dacca.

Major Grant, the defender of Thobal, was invested with the Victoria Cross at Ootacamund, on July 6, by Lord Wenlock, Governor of Madras. A large and distinguished party, a telegram says, attended the ceremony, and a company of the Suffolk Regiment was drawn up on the ground.

One of the chief events of the Poona season will be the cricket match between teams captained by their Excellencies the Governors of Bombay and Madras. It has been spoken of before, but was never considered a fixture. Now, however, Lord Wenlock has decided to visit Lord Harris at Poona, and the match, a three-days' one, is fixed for Aug. 11, 12, and 13.

The Japan Gazette of June 26 says, under the heading "A Graceful Act":—We desire to express, on behalf of all British residents, our recognition of the kindly courtesy displayed by the United States man-of-war in harbour in firing a salute of twenty-one guns in honour of her Majesty the Queen's birthday, when there was no English man-of-war here to do so.

The trial of the Parsee Manockjee Aslajee before the High Court at Bombay, on a charge of murdering two Parsee girls by flinging them from the summit of the University clock-tower, terminated on July 13 by the acquittal of the accused; the jury, consisting of eight Europeans and one Jew, bringing in a verdict of not guilty. The trial, a Reuter telegram states, has excited great local interest.

Bhupati, the leader of the recent riot at Vizagapatam, is reported to be dead. He seems to have been a turbulent character, and, says the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, was the son of a man who has headed similar risings.

The Secretary of State has sanctioned the commencement by the State of the Assam-Chittagong Railway, subject to its being taken on by a company should the promoters in England raise the required capital, and this has to be done before November. The question now is, says the Times of India, whether the Government of India can find funds to devote to the line, as at present all surplus revenues are hypothecated to other lines. All the available staff is also fully occupied. It is not likely in any event that the Government will do more than devote their attention at first to that section of the line south of Silchar.

It has not escaped observation, says the Englishman, that the Statesman, a Calcutta native paper, conducted by Englishmen, has out-Heroded the vilest of the vernacular organs in its comments upon the Manipore atrocities. It now states that it cannot absolve Mr. Quinton of the imputation of foul play, and suggests that the transparent candour of the arrangements for the arrest of the Senaputty may be ascribed to stupidity!

The Ameer is in good health, and intends leaving Cabul shortly for Paghman.

The new British Agent at Cabul, Sirdar Muhammad Afzal Khan, has reached that city in safety.

The latest news from Gilghit reports everything quiet on the Hunza Nagar frontier.

GUP.

THE season, writes the Times of India correspondent from Simla (June 19), may now be said to have fairly commenced, and theatricals and concerts are in full swing. To crowded houses our amateurs are giving the pieces which have been and are still delighting the play-loving London public. "In Chancery" has had an enormous success, last night the house being crowded in all parts. On July 1, 3, and 4 we are to have "Aunt Jack," and towards the end of the same month theatricals at Viceregal Lodge, under, I believe, the able management of the prince of amateur managers, Major Newnham Davis. The "Yeoman of the Guard" in August; "Lady Clancarty" in September; an open-air performance of "Midsummer Night's Dream" in aid of Lady Roberts's Homes on the Hills in the same month; a Shakesperian Fancy Dress Ball; and in October "The Ballad-Monger" and "Money-Spinner." On June 26 Herr Carl Walther, a renowned violinist, assisted by the Simla Philharmonic Society, gives his first concert under the patronage of the Viceroy and Lady Lansdowne. Herr Walther, I believe, made his début before a Simla audience at a concert recently given by the New Club, and all who had an opportunity of hearing him were unanimous in unstinted praise. It is needless to say that seats for the concert are already difficult to obtain.

His Excellency the Governor of Bombay held a levée at Poona on June 20 at the Council Hall, which was very largely attended. The guard of honour, furnished by the Poona Volunteer Rifle Corps, consisted of 100 rank and file, with band, and was drawn up in review order, under Captain Dunsterville, opposite the main entrance. His Excellency Lord Harris, G.C.I.E., accompanied by Colonel F. Rhodes, D.S.O., military secretary, and Captain J. Fowle, A.-D.-C., drove up to the hall precisely at five o'clock, and was received by the guard of honour with a royal salute, the band meanwhile playing the National Anthem. On alighting, his Excellency was received by Captain Cox, A.-D.-C., Mr. Edgerley, C.S., private secretary, and Dr. Martin, of his Staff, who had preceded him. The gentleman having the right of private entrée had, by this time, assembled in the Hall, and with each of them his Excellency shook hands. The Members of Council and others having been presented to his Excellency, the public entrée gentlemen were admitted, leaving one card with Captain Cox, aide-de-camp, at the door, and handing another card to the Military Secretary. The Lord Bishop of Bombay was accorded a place on the right of his Excellency, and next to him stood Sir Charles Pritchard. Sir Raymond West stood on the left-hand side of his Excellency, and near him were the members of his Excellency's Staff. The other arrangements were as usual. The gallery was well filled with ladies, who appeared to take much interest in the proceedings, and everything was so well managed that the whole affair was over in twenty five minutes.

The Gymkhana meeting, which came off at Kirkee on June 18, was a pleasant little affair, a large number of people being present to witness the competitions, among whom were Lord Harris, General Blundell, and others. Silver cups were awarded the best aggregate scores made in tilting at the ring, lemon-cutting, tent-pegging, and jumping—one for horses, another for ponies. Captain Hobday, R.A., won the first prize for horses, Colonel Rhodes, Military Secretary, taking the prize for ponies. The meeting concluded with a quarter-mile race for ponies, catch weights, which was won by Captain Cox's Bayard, Colonel Rhodes The Crow was second, and Captain Allason's, R.H.A., Cymba third. Seven ponies started.

The Civil Servants in Poona will this year give a fancy dress ball at the Gymkhana Club rooms. The ball is fixed for Sept. 21.

At Ooty, on June 16, Lady Dormer held her last reception for the present. Nearly everybody turned up, as it was a wonderfully fine afternoon. The hero of Thobal, Major Grant, V.C., says the correspondent of the Madras Times, was among the visitors, and we were all glad to see that though he does not yet look strong, he seems on the fair road to recovery, and we trust that a stay on these Nilgiri Hills will soon put new strength into him. Lady Dormer exhibited some Egyptian curiosities and valuables that had been ordered out to be sold at the fancy bazaar, but unfortunately the box arrived too late. Many of these things were readily sold to-day, and the funds realised are to go to the funds of St. Bartholomew's Hospital. There were lots of tennis and badminton, and considering we are well into the monsoon, the afternoon was a most fortunate one.

It is stated that the Marquess of Ailsa, who was recently travelling in India, is to marry a Miss Macmasters, whom he met on board a P. and O. steamer on his way home from Bombay. Lord Ailsa is a widower with four children, and Lord Cassilis, his eldest son, is nineteen. The affair was romantically settled amid the billows of the Bay of Biscay, where Lord Ailsa naturally paid a mariner's attention to the "Siren's whistle."

"Atlas" in the World says:—The Queen, I hear, was much pleased with Mrs. Grimwood when that heroic lady visited Windsor to receive the Red Cross of India. Her Majesty was greatly interested in hearing Mrs. Grimwood's account of her terrible experiences, and so much distressed about her lameness, that she begged her to see Dr. Wharton Hood directly she returned to London. Lady Cross escorted Mrs. Grimwood to Windsor from London, but the interview with her Majesty took place in the presence of Princess Beatrice only. Mrs. Grimwood lunched with the Queen, who expressed a desire to see her again soon.

An old story in a new shape reaches us. A Brahmin seer told a cultivator that he could tell his fortune and, in reply to inquiries, said further that the future was to him like an open book in which he could read—for a consideration—all events, great and small, that were about to occur. Greatly impressed, the cultivator invited the Brahmin into his house, and gave him a sound thrashing. In reply to expostulations, the cultivator said: "If you are an impostor you deserve it. If you are not an impostor you knew what was going to happen and came into the house to be thrashed of your own accord."

Lieutenant Lyle, of the 21st Field Battery, Royal Artillery, stationed at Bellary, has been highly recommended to the Royal Humane Society for any award it may be pleased to grant him for gallantly saving a native from drowning. On April 12 last he was out shooting duck on a tank near Ramandrug and had shot several duck when a coolie entered the water and swam out to secure them. He was returning, when, becoming exhausted, he sank, but rising to the surface managed to get within twenty-five yards of the shore, when he sank again. Lieutenant Lyle, who was wearing thick shooting boots, plunged in, and, though the coolie seized his arms, he managed to swim with him ashore, thus saving his life.

CLIPPINGS FROM TRUTH.

THE prohibition of officers on full pay from holding seats on the boards of public companies except with special permission may be a good thing or a bad thing. On the principle that no man can serve two masters, it seems to me desirable that officers on the active list should be required to give their undivided energies to their Queen and to eschew the service of Mammon. On the other hand, seeing that Satan has always mischief for idle hands, it is possible that, being excluded from company directing, our unemployed warriors may take to something worse. We may even be involved in a war in order to provide them with work. But of this I entertain no doubt—that if it is thought desirable to forbid military officers engaging in this kind of work, the same restrictions should be imposed upon all public officials. I see no argument which applies to the one which does not apply to the others.

ONE of the standing mysteries of Indian administration is the disparity between the salaries and perquisites of the Governors of Bombay and Madras on the one hand, and Calcutta on the other. In salary alone this difference is above 1,600 rs. per annum; but, in addition to salary, the sumptuary allowances drawn at Madras and Bombay are considerably in excess of those at Calcutta, while the Governors at the former places also have their establishments kept up for them by their grateful country. Bengal is far and away the most important province of the three; and the last census gives it a population nearly double that of Madras, and quadruple that of Bombay. The expense of entertaining must also be much greater at Calcutta than in the limited society of Madras or Bombay. But the Governor of Bengal is a "competition wallah," while those of Bombay and Madras are obscure limbs of the British aristocracy or place-men reaping the fruits of party services.

THE Indian Government would be wise to open their ears in time to the grievances of the Staff Corps. The subject has been more than once discussed in Truth, and I have no doubt elsewhere, and the grounds of complaint must be well known. Chief of them is the slow rate of promotion. The periods of service for the three chief steps are at present eleven years for captain, twenty for major, and twenty-six for lieutenant-colonel; that is to say, three or four years longer in each case than the corresponding periods in the British army. Obviously if there is to be any difference at all between the two, it ought to be in favour of the Indian officer, who serves in a more trying climate, dies younger, and has all round a less attractive berth. Unless the conditions of this service are improved, I prophesy that before long the Indian Government will experience great difficulty in obtaining eligible candidates for the Staff Corps.

THERE are more cases than I supposed in which service in India means to a military man a reduction of pay. Among others a surgeon on the Army Medical Staff may lose from 20% to 40% per annum by being sent to India. For instance, the pay of a surgeon who has served less than five years amounts in England, roughly, to 290% per annum, while in India he gets, according to the rate of exchange, from 250% to 270%. Although about four men out of five are ordered to India, there is no mention of this reduced rate of pay in the prospectus of terms of service which the War Office furnishes to intending candidates. What is this but another fraud on the recruit?

Mr. La Touche, Commissioner of Allahabad, has been deputed on special duty to the Rampur State.

Mr. J. C. Macdonell, deputy conservator of Forests, Jhelum division, Punjab, has gone to take charge of the forests in the Cashmere State. Mr. Rossiter succeeds Mr. Macdonell.

The Gaekwar of Baroda has obtained a promise of reversion of the services of Mr. Foote, of the Indian Geological Survey, for the direction of a Baroda Geological Department.

Mr. Hannyington, resident, Travancore, proceeds on six months' leave shortly, and then retires. He will be succeeded by Mr. Grigg, director of public instruction, who acted before, and who will be succeeded by Dr. Duncan.

The proposal made by the Government of the North-West Provinces and Oude that Mr. Gordon, late principal of the Bareilly College, should, on his transfer to Allahabad, still have the care and tuition of Pyinmana and Kawn, Burmese princes, has been sanctioned by the Government of India.

Mr. Lambert, C.I.E., the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, intends proceeding on leave shortly. It is not unlikely, says the Times of India, that during his absence Mr. Bernard will hold charge of the Calcutta police, and that a superintendent from the mofussil will be appointed to the assistant commissionership.

Mr. T. Palmer, barrister-at-law, has brought a suit against the Nawab, Sir Koorshed Jah, for a sum of nearly two lacs of rupees. Under the orders of his Highness a Special Commission, with the Chief Justice as president, has been appointed to investigate and decide upon the claim made. The Commission has begun its work.

H.E. the Governor of Bombay has appointed Captain A. L. B. Hughes, 22nd Bombay Infantry, to act as cantonment magistrate at Ahmedabad, in addition to his military duties, during the absence, on leave, of Colonel J. M. Madden. Captain Hughes is also appointed a magistrate of the first class within the limits of the military cantonment of Ahmedabad.

The Secunderabad paper says:—Reports have been prevalent that the Resident is shortly about to leave here, and rumour already states the name of his successor. From what I have been able to ascertain there is absolutely no foundation for this statement. Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick has, by his excellent work, won golden opinions from all, and it is earnestly hoped his stay in Hyderabad will be prolonged for some time to come.

Mr. O'Callaghan, Consulting Engineer for Railways, Government of India, goes on three months' leave at the end of July, and will be relieved by Mr. J. R. Bell. Mr. C. Vincent also goes on three months' leave at the same time, and Mr. Du Cane Smith will officiate in his place as Deputy Secretary in the Public Works Department, Government of India.

It is rumoured, Indian Engineering says, that Mr. Buckley, who has been employed during the past few months on special duty in Orissa, intends proceeding on furlough or special leave out of India. If Mr. Odling is booked for the irrigation secretaryship in Bengal, the Sone superintending engineership, now temporarily held by Mr. W. A. Inglis, will be available for a few months, pending Mr. Joll's return next December. Mr. Joll is next in seniority to Mr. Odling, and therefore takes precedence of all the superintending engineers now holding circles in Bengal.

There appears to be no truth, the same paper says, in the rumour that Mr. Johnstone, who is officiating as chief engineer in Bengal, is likely to be posted to Burma. It was believed that Colonel Cumming had aspirations in the direction of India, but now the expansion of public works in that province will make it a fit charge even for an R.E. chief engineer. In this connection we may mention that Mr. Johnstone will probably be confirmed in his present appointment, since Mr. E. J. Martin, the permanent incumbent, has now definitely decided on retiring.

During the run of the hounds at Ootacamund the other day, there were three or four accidents, but the only one of at all a serious nature was that to Captain Bowley, who fell with his horse and was insensible for about ten minutes. Dr. Bull and others attended to him and he was driven home. He is all right again now, but he sustained a nasty shock.

An accident of a very serious nature occurred at Meerut on June 24. Conductor Grissdale, of the Commissariat Department, was driving out his wife, child, and a lady friend, when the reins slipped between the horse's quarters and the splashboard, causing the horse to bolt. He collided with a sheeshum tree, throwing out the conductor, who fell on his head and remained senseless. The lady friend, in trying to jump out, dislocated her shoulder and hurt her ankle, and was generally shaken. The horse bolted home, and on reaching it dashed through a small wicket, leaving the cart behind. This collision threw Mrs. Grissdale and the child over the wall, but caused them no serious hurt.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

The death is announced of General Sir Charles Cureton, K.C.B., who has been staying at Eastbourne. The Times says that he entered the Army in 1843, and his first active service was in 1845-46, when he was engaged in the Sutlej campaign (medal and clasp). He also served in the Punjab campaign of 1848-49 as aide-de-camp to his father, and was present at the battle of Chillianwallah. He took part in the passage of the Chenab and the battle of Goojerat, accompanied Sir William Gilbert's column in pursuit of the Sikh and Afghan Army, and was present at the capture of Attock and occupation of Peshawur (medal and clasp). He was engaged against the mountain tribes on the North-West Frontier in 1848-49 and 1860 (medal and clasp), and served in the suppression of the Indian Mutiny, 1857-59, against the Sealkote mutineers, and in the action of Trimoo Ghat, and against the Gogaira rebels in 1857. General Cureton raised and commanded Cureton's Mooltanee Regiment, now known as the 15th Bengal Lancers. With this regiment he greatly distinguished himself as a cavalry leader, and performed many acts of great personal bravery. At Negina he defeated a body of rebels, consisting of infantry, cavalry, and artillery. He had charge of the Intelligence Department throughout the campaigns in Rohilkund and Oude in 1858-59, including the actions of Bhagwala, Negina, Bareilly, Shahjehanpore, Banaie, Shahabad, Bunkegaon, Mahodipore, Russoolpore, Mittowlee, and Biswa, being eleven times mentioned in despatches, published in general orders, and he received the medal and clasp, the brevet rank of major and lieutenant-colonel, and was made C.B. From 1879 to 1884 he commanded the Oude Division of the Bengal Army. He was a brother of General Edward Burgoyne Cureton, colonel 3rd Hussars, and he leaves three sons, the eldest of whom is a lieutenant in the 4th Hussars, and another in the East Yorkshire Regiment. Sir Charles Cureton obtained his K.C.B. in the last Birthday list of honours.

We mentioned last week the death of Major Whiteford, R.E. A Nag-pore correspondent writes on June 17:—I regret to mention the death last Thursday of Major Whiteford, R.E., Deputy Consulting Engineer to Government for the B.-N. Railway. He had been suffering for some time, and, despite the skilful treatment of Dr. Harris, the Major passed away. His remains were interred in the Takli cemetery with the usual military honours; a gun carriage with six horses came in from the military station of Kamptee, and the B.-N. Railway furnished the band and the funeral party.

The steamer Nizam arrived on June 10 at Colombo from Bombay and Tuticorin and reported the death, at sea, of Captain E. E. Burleigh, which sad event occurred on June 4 shortly after the ship left Bombay. The cause of death was fever and diarrhoea, from which Captain Burleigh had been suffering for some little time. The funeral of the deceased captain was carried out at sea on the succeeding day. The news of Captain Burleigh's death, writes the Ceylon paper, will be received by many in Colombo with regret, for he was one of the best known commanders of vessels calling here, having spent a great portion of his life in Eastern waters.

The Deccan paper reports the death at Bangalore from confluent smallpox of Lieut. W. S. Brooksbank, of the Yorkshire Regiment. He was a keen sportsman and an excellent bat, and at the time of his death was only twenty-seven. In Hyderabad his name will be remembered in connection with the unhappy sowar incident.

The Times of India, referring to the death of Mr. Pogson, already noted in our columns, says:—He was one of the most modest men in India, and one of the most distinguished. His passion for mathematics and astronomy displayed itself at an early period. With a very moderate education, he was put into his father's manufactory at Nottingham at the age of sixteen, but, unable to stand the monotony of the work, he ran away from home, and was next heard of at Cambridge, acting as a "coach" in mathematics to men greatly senior to himself. He could not afford to join the University, but his remarkable abilities soon attracted attention, and procured him an appointment in Mr. Bishop's well-known Observatory in Regent's Park, London. In 1861 he came out to India as Government Astronomer of Madras, and has remained there ever since, giving the "time" every morning to all our railway stations, and wasting his rare talents on rain-gauges and meteorological returns. There is little field in India for genius and enthusiasm of Mr. Pogson's kind, and he always looked forward to the time when he expected to be promoted to the Observatory at the Cape, at which his duties would have been purely astronomical. He discovered, we believe, more minor planets than any other astronomers of the day. He claimed, with good reason, to be the inventor of the Sun-spot theory, and he wrote much in the scientific journals of Europe. As a man he was singularly shy and retiring, always wrapped up in his work, using his nights for study and his days for sleep. It is, perhaps, for that reason that his name is far better known in Europe than even in Madras. For some years past Mr. Pogson was assisted by a daughter only less talented than himself. She owed this very unusual appointment to the kindly discrimination of the Duke of Buckingham, and we hope that her interests will be properly protected in any new arrangements that may be made.

On June 19 the Maharaja Coomarr Neel Krishna Deb, head of the Shova Bazaar, Rajbati, died of apoplexy. The deceased took a prominent part in public affairs and was much respected. His body was cremated next day, and the funeral procession was followed by a great concourse of people.

Captain Itsuki, of the Japanese Navy, who was for some years Naval Attaché to the Japanese Legation in London, died at Tokio on June 3. Captain Itsuki served in Her Majesty's ships Hercules, Audacious, and others, and was well known in the British Navy.

Capt. W. E. Kerrich, R.A., officiating ordnance officer, 4th class, has been confirmed in that class with effect from May 30, 1891, vice Capt. R. C. O. Stuart, R.A., ordnance officer, 4th class, appointed assistant to Inspector-General of Ordnance, Bombay Circle, and placed on the Seconded List.

TESTIMONIAL TO

MR. HENRY SEYMOUR KING, C.I.E., M.P.

ON Saturday, July 11, a handsome testimonial was presented to Mr. H. S. King, M.P., in recognition of his successful advocacy of the claims of the members of the European Civil Service of India resident in England. The presentation was made at Mr. King's residence, 25 Cornwall Gardens, by Sir Guilford Molesworth, K.C.S.I., M.I.C.E., and a considerable number of friends assembled on the occasion. Among those present, beside Mrs. King and several lady relatives, and Mr. Edward Jenkins, were:—Mr. A. G. Cromeline, C.E., Mr. Wm. Duff Bruce, C.E., Mr. H. Marsh, C.E., Mr. H. Lambert, C.E., Mr. E. C. Caldwell, Mr. S. Digby, Mr. J. L. Gallott, Mr. R. W. Tucker, Dr. Murray Thomson, Mr. Henry Johnson, C.E., Mr. R. H. Smith (Judicial), Mr. H. R. Cooke (Finance), Mr. H. R. Hudson (Finance), Mr. O. S. Stack (late deputy inspector-general of police), Mr. H. W. Bamber (late Police, Bengal), Mr. Wm. Williams (Telegraph Department), Sir Henry Mance (Telegraph Department), Mr. Webster Biss (Finance), Mr. S. J. Harrison (late cantonment magistrate), Mr. R. G. Hodson (Educational Bureau), Mr. J. S. Heyman, C.E., Mr. J. W. Boulton, and Mr. R. A. Sterndale. The following gentlemen had written expressing great regret at their inability to attend:—Messrs. Sam. Cooper, A. B. Sampson (late P.W.D. Secretariat), H. E. Watson (deputy commissioner, Sind), A. Dalzell (Survey, Bombay), I. W. Chisholm (late commissioner, Central Provinces), P. O'Ratigan, C.E., Maxwell Simpson, T. C. Vaughan, David McGregor, J. McCrindle, W. H. Dunn, Geo. Trigger Moberley, Sidney Lynch, I. H. Wright, Jeremiah King, Dr. V. Ball, Messrs. A. B. Wynne, L. W. Owen, Cathcart Dobbs, Dr. J. Garrow-Grant, Messrs. A. S. Buckley, H. C. Levinge, C.E. (late chief engineer, Bengal), W. A. Fenner, W. S. Fahir, C.E., M. R. Trower, E. P. Popset, W. G. Harrison, R. J. Clarke, Wm. Henderson, P. B. Duell, R. Foley, J. E. Gore, C. E. Gael, A. Tween, J. R. Burlton-Bennet (late Postmaster-General, Bengal).

The testimonial, which was supplied by the Goldsmith's Alliance, Limited, 11 and 12 Cornhill, E.C., consisted of a Massive Silver Centrepiece, 19½ inches high, with five cut-glass dishes for fruit and flowers, which can be removed and candelabrum affixed for nine candles at pleasure, or the centre dish only can be removed and candelabrum for five lights affixed, thus using it for candles, and fruit, or flowers. The base is surmounted by two beautifully modelled figures representing Music and Art, the whole chased in a most exquisite design. It was awarded the medal at the Paris Exhibition 1889. A pair of Assiettes Montées, with cut-glass dishes for fruit and trumpets for flowers, 15 inches high en suite. Pair Four-light Candelabra en suite, 18 inches high. In addition to Mr. King's crest, motto, and monogram the service bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Henry Seymour King, Esqre., C.I.E., M.P., by Members of the European Civil Service of India, resident in England, in grateful recognition of his able and successful advocacy of their claims."

SIR GUILFORD MOLESWORTH, in presenting the testimonial, said:—Mr. King,—I have been requested by the members of the European Civil Service of India resident in England to beg you to accept the accompanying service of plate, in grateful recognition of your very able and successful advocacy of their cause. They feel that it is but a very inadequate expression of their gratitude for the great services you have rendered them and the disinterested efforts you have made on their behalf, but they are confident that you will appreciate the motives which actuate the members of the Civil Service and not the intrinsic value of the gift. I regret that it has not fallen to the lot of one better fitted than myself to express the feelings of the donors on this occasion; I confess that it is quite beyond my power to do justice to them. Those only who have been in close personal communication with the members of the Service can form any idea of the benefits your exertions have secured to them. It has fallen to my lot frequently to witness the despair of parents, husbands and wives; feeling their physical powers waning, or seeing the children pining away under the influence of the trying climate of India, and yet unable, owing to the hard rules of the Service, to take furlough to recruit their failing health, to send their children home, or to retire on a pension, the amount of which was quite uncertain, and might at any time dwindle away to a point that would be tantamount to beggary. Your efforts have removed this element of uncertainty from pensions, thus obtaining for the Service an incalculable boon. Sir Andrew Clarke in his minute of 1887 stated that in eleven years only nineteen officers of the Public Works had retired under pension rules, and these, not men in the higher grades, but for the most part men of exceptional constitution and long service, who, at last, were driven by ill-health to retire; that officers of the Uncovenanted Service were compelled to remain in the Service till either they were released to enjoy for a year or two the infirmities of old age, or forced to remain till they died (most commonly the latter) after a shorter or longer period of inefficiency. The disabilities under which the Uncovenanted Service labours, when compared with the Covenanted Service, are many and serious. The more important of these may be briefly summed up as follows:—1. Service for a pension only counts from the age of twenty-two, whereas with the Covenanted officer it counts from the date of entering the Service. 2. Leave rules are most unfavourable to the Uncovenanted officer who can only obtain two years' furlough, while the Covenanted can obtain six. 3. Leave on furlough does not count for pension with the Uncovenanted, whereas the Covenanted can reckon four years of furlough for pension in twenty-five years' service. 4. Pensions of the Covenanted officer are much higher than those of the Uncovenanted. 5. The pension of the Covenanted officer is paid at the rate of 2s. to the rupee, while that of the Uncovenanted officer was paid at a fluctuating rate, which has been as low as 1s. 4d., until your disinterested efforts secured the fixed payment at 1s. 9d. I have sought in vain to discover any sound ground for the extraordinary difference that exists between the two Services, but I am unable to find any reason why the Uncovenanted officer should labour under such serious disabilities. Both Services are officered from the same classes of society; the necessary expenses of the one class are the same as those of the other; in the Uncovenanted Service the education is frequently of a special and often of a very expensive character. Many of the officers (besides Civil Engineers) have received a costly technical education. Among them are men of high literary attainments, graduates of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, geologists who have passed the School of Mines, others who have gone through a course of Continental Forestry, carefully-trained electricians, whose education requires mathematics of a very high order. In the Service may be numbered one distinguished by the highest mathematical honours that have ever been obtained by any one now in India; another is a Fellow of the Royal Society, and one who has made his mark in the scientific world; a third carried off in open competition the Whitworth Scholarship, a distinction of which any man may justly be proud. I ask, Are these the men who ought to be laid under the ban of disabilities to which I have referred, a ban which carries with it the social stigma of disqualification for admission into any United Service Club in India? Again, I would ask, Is there anything in the nature of the life or duties of the Uncovenanted officer which should involve pension and furlough rules less favourable than those enjoyed by their Covenanted brethren? On the contrary, in many departments the duties of the Uncovenanted officer entail far greater exposure and physical exertion, tending to loss of health which render rest and favourable pension rules absolutely more necessary than in the case of Covenanted officers. This principle is fully recognised by the Colonial Service in Ceylon, where the officers of the exposed Branches of the Service are entitled after ten years' service to the same pension that requires fifteen years' service in the other Branches; and there are no invidious distinctions between Covenanted and Uncovenanted. In fact, the Uncovenanted Service in India was originally designed for subordinates and men of the lower grades, and for natives, who, when they retire from the Service, are in their own country. No alteration is required in the rules of the Service, but the European officers and gentlemen should be removed from a Service which was never designed for them; and they should be amalgamated in one Civil Service from which all invidious distinctions should be swept away. The only possible reason which can be adduced for not removing these distinctions is that their removal will cost money. With reference to this I may quote Sir Andrew Clarke's forcible minute, in which he wrote, "I do not understand how in any Branch of the Public Service it should ever have been thought proper to subordinate all considerations of efficiency to the desire to save on one item of the civil estimate. . . . In fact, the whole tenour of this section of the Pension Code shows that it was never intended to be applied to an establishment like that of the Civil Engineers of the Public Works Department." That policy, which on financial grounds admits of a discontented staff of officers, is indefensible; for a feeling of discontent pervading any Department naturally has the effect of lowering the standard of its officers by acting as a deterrent to able men who would otherwise wish to enter the Service. I regret that the Civil Engineers should to some extent have separated themselves from the other Branches of the Service in this struggle for justice. United effort is necessary, and I believe that both parties, if united, would have formed a firmer phalanx in defence of their interest. I would strongly urge a return to that joint action which is so essential to the furtherance of their mutual interests. The warfare has still to be maintained in order to secure full justice; but the substantial victory which you have achieved is one which has elicited from the officers of this Service the warmest expressions of their gratitude. (Cheers.)

MR. H. S. KING, C.I.E., M.P., in acknowledging the gift said:—Sir Guilford Molesworth, and Gentlemen,—I think a more experienced speaker than I might be excused if on an occasion like the present he felt somewhat embarrassed to find words adequate and fit to thank you for the extravagant generosity that you have shown for the little I have been able to do for you, and, above all, for the kind words in which you have made this presentation. The weighty words with which Sir Guilford Molesworth has addressed us, I hope, will reach a wider area than this room; I hope they will go forth to constituted authorities, and find respectful acceptance at headquarters. To us he speaks as to the converted. We know only too well the sufferings from which Uncovenanted servants have so long laboured; and if to-day there is a note of triumph in our speech, we must not forget, as Sir Guilford says, that the victory is not yet complete, and that we look forward hopefully to those new rules which are to be framed, if the recommendations of the Select Committee are carried into effect. But, gentlemen, valuable, magnificent, and splendid as the present you have given me to-day is, you have conferred on me a greater distinction, a distinction which I shall always remember with pride and cherish with gratitude—the distinction of having won the appreciation and the friendship of a large body of honourable men. (Cheers.) For in to-day's proceedings that is to me the most precious element—the acknowledgment from you that I have been able in some degree to be of service to a large body of men who had been for many years, and somewhat helplessly and hopelessly, suffering from injustice; because I think that there can be no higher ambition for any public man than to be the medium of removing evils, redressing wrongs, or improving the condition of any class of his fellow-citizens. And to me it is peculiarly grateful that the first public effort in my Parliamentary career should be devoted to redressing grievances that not only have oppressed a valuable and distinguished body of public servants, but which, if left unredressed, I am convinced, would also have very seriously impaired one of the most distinguished branches of the Indian Administration. But, gentlemen, in acknowledging this gift, let me say that you have treated me far beyond my deserts. I feel that I have done nothing to justify such munificence; but at the same time I cannot conceal from you my pride and happiness. The gift you have made me to-day, and the handsome present which, I am told, is being prepared for me by your brethren beyond the seas, are all the more generous on your and their part because in the great battle in which we have stood shoulder to shoulder we put forward larger claims, and we asked for a greater measure of justice than was conceded to us. Happily we have won something; in fact, I think it may be said we have won a good deal, if, as I hope, the Secretary of State will finally decide to carry out fully, loyally, and generously all the recommendations of the Select Committee. (Hear, hear.) But, at the same time, there is no disguising the fact that we have not won all we desired; indeed, I think I may go so far as to say we have not won all which I believe justice demanded. (Hear, hear.) Fully and (as I desire publicly to state) admirably as the case was presented before the Select Committee, we could not convince my honourable colleagues that in all its points the grievances as stated in that case were such as they could recommend the Indian Government to deal with. The case, as you are all aware, bristled with difficulties, and when you were dealing with a mixed body of men, holding various political opinions and ideas, it is small wonder if you could not convince them as to all the points that you put before them. There is no doubt that the result created some disappointment in India, a disappointment which, I think, was genuine and therefore entitled to great respect, but, at the same time, I think that our friends in India who criticised us were not so fully acquainted as we are here with Parliamentary procedure. (Hear, hear.) They did not fully appreciate all the difficulties and the circumstances under which we laboured all along. You see, a Select Committee is not a Court of Law, and the members of it could not limit their consideration of the questions submitted to them to abstract principles of justice. The origin of the grievances dated very far back. They grew out of a voluminous series of resolutions which had been applied to various classes of men and administered under the inspiration, during very many years, of officials more or less intelligent, and sometimes I think it must be admitted that these grievances had been condoned and assented to by the sufferers themselves under the exigencies of the position in which they found themselves. So that you see the case was complicated by many and various considerations; and I think it was eminently a case in which we were bound to show a wise spirit of compromise. (Hear, hear.) When you put forward a case before a Select Committee you have to remember that you never get all the demands that you put forward; but this I am perfectly certain of, and I should like to take this, the first opportunity of stating it publicly, that no further evidence that could have been adduced would have influenced or changed in any degree the decisions of the Select Committee. In fact, I go further. I say certainly and with certain knowledge, that any continued prolongation of that Committee would have very seriously jeopardised the attainment of what we won; and your action here to-day, and the action of your brethren in India leads me to hope and believe that on reflection the Service has come to the opinion that if we did not get all that we wished, at any rate we got all that was possible. (Hear, hear.) Your words and your generous gift are all the more precious to me because I receive them as evidencing your opinion that we did, as Sir Guilford Molesworth said, win a substantial victory. One word more, gentlemen, while I am on this topic. The Secretary of State, with a promptitude which I am sure we all gratefully acknowledge, acted on the recommendations of the Select Committee in regard to the question of exchange; in fact, he more than acted on those suggestions by dating back his concession three months. The exchange question to most of those I am addressing, if not all, is a matter of first consequence, and when we contemplate what the value of the rupee is at the present moment, we recognise that we have something very substantial to be thankful for. He has further adopted the recommendation of the Select Committee with regard to the age from which service should count for pension; he has also, I believe, met the wishes of the Committee in reference to allowing a certain amount of furlough to count for that pension. These are substantial advantages. There remain still to be considered the fourth resolution, and also, what is of more consequence than all, the framing of a uniform scheme. Gentlemen, I hope and believe that the Secretary of State will meet those recommendations in a liberal spirit, and I trust that when he is considering these questions he will not lose sight of the valuable suggestions and recommendations which have been laid before him by the Calcutta Committee, because, as I have always urged upon him, and upon the Viceroy, when I had the honour to meet him, it is an essential condition of good service that it should be a contented one; and every day impresses more upon me the fact that in the present state of India it is above all things essential—nay, it is a matter of the supremest consequence to the Empire—that the Services in all their branches, civil and military, should be filled by men of ability, efficiency, and integrity. (Hear, hear.) Gentlemen, on an occasion like this there are many points which naturally would occur to one, and on which one might wish to say something; but the audience I am addressing hardly needs much exhortation on the subject, and, indeed, Sir Guilford Molesworth in his able and eloquent address has so fully dealt with the various questions which agitate the mind of the Uncovenanted European Service that I think I should only be gilding refined gold if I attempted to go over the ground again. I can assure you that your presence here to-day has given the warmest and liveliest pleasure to both Mrs. King and myself. It will always be one of the proudest recollections of my life to remember the good fight we have fought together and the friendships formed in such a warfare, for I think there is nothing that rivets men more closely than having borne together the burden and heat of a well-fought fight. If I needed any reminder of it I shall always have it before me in this magnificent memorial of your esteem. Again I thank you most heartily for all your kindness. (Cheers.)

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THE Times correspondent at Calcutta telegraphs on July 12:—

The weather and the crop prospects are for the moment the most important topics here. The season so far has been characterised by the failure of the cyclonic or circular wind movements which ordinarily form near the head of the Bay of Bengal, and sweep across India to the Punjab, carrying vapour-bearing currents with them. The Meteorological Department attributes this abnormal failure to the heavy winter snows in the regions of Western Tibet and in the highlands beyond Afghanistan, to which the influence of the severe European winter appears to have extended.

Dr. Gray, physician to the Ameer of Afghanistan, who lately arrived in India, says that last winter was the severest ever known in Cabul, and that 40 feet of snow fell, which is equivalent to 48 inches of rain. There must, therefore, have been heavy snow on the Pamir plateau, the cold from which is now exerting a pressure which prevents the usual attraction of the current from the Bay of Bengal.

The following is a summary of the latest reports from the various provinces:—

In Madras the monsoon is late in most districts. The distress is increasing in Chingleput and North Arcot, where the prices of cereals show a serious rise. Seven thousand people are on the relief works in Chingleput, and 5,250 in Wandiwash Talook.

In Bombay a fair amount of rain has fallen, but more is wanted. In Bengal the general rain has improved prospects. In the North-West Provinces and Oude, most of the districts report local showers, supplies ample, and prices fairly steady. In the Punjab there has been a slight fall of rain in some of the districts, and prices are stationary, except at Delhi, where they are rising. Rain is urgently wanted in the districts of Delhi, Hissar, Jullundur, Sealkote, and Shahpore; and in the Central Provinces there has been rain in all the districts except Saugor, Jubbulpore, Nimar, and Raipore.

In Rajpootana the difficulty of providing fodder is increasing daily, and the cattle are dying. There are 6,119 persons on the relief works in Ajmere. Scarcity also prevails in some Bikanir villages.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, speaking at the ceremony of opening the new Town Hall at Hooghly on Friday, after alluding to some local topics, said that just now there was a wave of disloyalty and distrust abroad, which took its origin from the controversy over the Age of Consent Bill. He appealed to the good sense of the community to do its best to put down such sentiments, and added that it behoved all good citizens to abstain from prolonged agitation, and to bury the hatchet as soon as possible, and also to discourage those who tried to stir up a spirit of race-hatred.

A Reuter telegram from Calcutta of July 13 says:—Flights of locusts are reported from the cantonment of Jalpaiguri, the capital of the district of the same name in Lower Bengal. The insects have also been passing over the whole of the country from Azimganj, in the district of Azimganj (North-West Provinces), and Nalhatti, in the district of Moorshedabad. Only slight damage has, however, been caused to vegetation.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs yesterday (July 14):—

An Ootacamund telegram states that there has been no rain in Madras for some days, and that the heat is very great. The authorities are becoming apprehensive of famine in North-Western India.

The Punjab Government is preparing to transfer its headquarters from Simla to Lahore in case of the continued failure of the monsoon.

Swarms of locusts have passed over several districts in Bengal, but they seem not to have done much damage.

The leaders of the recent riot in Vizagapatam have been arrested, and it is believed that the gang has dispersed.

THE MANIPORE DISASTER.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs on July 12:—

It is understood that the Manipuri Princes have applied to the Government to extend the time allowed for the submission of their appeal against the sentences passed on them, and it is not unlikely that their request will be granted. Janokinath Bysack, who conducted their defence, has succeeded, after some haggling with his clients, in getting them to agree to his terms, and he has left Manipore for Calcutta for the purpose of consulting counsel. It is believed that a leading native barrister here will be employed to prepare the memorials to be laid before the Government. The general belief that the military operations connected with Mr. Quinton's mission were gravely mismanaged will be strengthened by the fact which recently came to light that Lieutenant Chatterton recommended taking two mountain guns from Kohima, but Colonel Skene, after consulting Mr. Quinton, declined to adopt the suggestion. Waickairokpu, the only leading Manipuri who was at large, was captured on Friday.

A Reuter telegram of July 12 from Manipore says:—

Some fresh evidence of great importance has just come to light with regard to the action of the Jobraj in connection with the murder of Mr. Quinton and his companions in March last. A Manipuri havildar, who was in charge of the Myangkhang outpost at the time of Mr. Melville's murder, states that the deed was committed in consequence of a letter received from the Jobraj ordering the outposts to kill all British subjects and Sepoys. The letter bore the Jobraj's seal and signature.

A Manipore telegram of June 18 says:—Lieutenant Thompson, 2nd Goorkhas, who has been granted a year's leave to England on medical certificate, left here yesterday. Captain Butcher and Lieutenant Chatterton, 42nd Goorkhas, who have been giving evidence of an important nature on the State trials of the late ruling family, leave to-day to rejoin their regiment at Kohima.

Captain Allen, R.E., and Lieutenant Casgrain, R.E., left for India to-day, says a despatch of June 19, having completed their work of demolition, and made a defensive fort for the future garrison of Manipore. Captain Priestley and a detachment of the 44th Goorkha Rifles from Bishenpore pass through Manipore to-day en route to join the headquarters of the regiment. Lieutenant Howell, the Assistant Commissioner, has returned from his trip among the Tonguil Nagas.

A correspondent of the Times of India at Manipore writes on June 24:—

General Collett and his staff returned from Konjakul yesterday. Colonel Mitchell, A.A.G., having completed his duties as President of the Court appointed to try the Manipore princes, leaves for India to-day.

News was received to-day that the sentence of death passed on the Aya Parel and Samoo Colonel has been commuted to transportation for life. This decision has caused a good deal of surprise, as these two men played a leading part in the tragedy of March 24, and displayed great animosity and vindictiveness towards the British Raj.

Rumours are becoming rife that Manipore is to be given back to its former rulers, and in consequence the action of the Political Officer is much hampered, as the Manipuris are naturally afraid to come forward and give evidence against their leaders, when there is a chance of their being again subject to them and having to answer for their hostile conduct. If it was formally announced that Manipore was to be annexed, and the princes executed, many influential men who now hang back would come forward and give information and help to the Political Officer, for it must not be forgotten that there is still a large number of arms to be brought in, and that the loot from the Residency has not yet been given up. The swords, revolvers, &c., of the murdered officers are still missing. The stolen lacs have not been recovered, and many articles of value belonging to Mrs. Grimwood have still to be found. Many articles belonging to sepoys have been discovered in houses close to the Pat, and one Manipuri had the audacity to walk through the lines of a regiment in the coat and pyjamas of a sepoy of that regiment, and seemed rather surprised at being deprived of them.

DESPATCHES ON THE EXPEDITION.

The following notification is published in the Gazette of India, Military Department:—The Viceroy in Council directs the publication of a letter from the Adjutant-General submitting, under orders from the Commander-in-Chief, despatches from Generals Collett and Graham and Colonel Rennick. The Governor-General cordially endorses the approval expressed by the Commander-in-Chief of the indomitable energy displayed by troops in their advance on Manipore, and expresses gratification at the association with regular troops of volunteers from Calcutta and Surma Valley. The Viceroy also notices with satisfaction the services of the Assam Military Police and of Commissariat and Transport Department. The services of Major Maxwell, deputy commissioner, Cachar; of Mr. Davis, deputy commissioner, Kohima; and Mr. Soppitt, political officer, were particularly valuable, while Mr. Dalrymple Clark has done good work in connection with the transport on the Nigrating Road. The Viceroy in Council desires to convey to General Collett, the officers commanding the Tammoo and Silchar Columns, and all officers and troops engaged, the acknowledgment of the Government of India for the excellent manner in which the expedition was carried out.

The first enclosure consists of a letter from General Galbraith to General Collett giving in short detail the movements of the different columns and the actions in which they took part and the difficulties with which each had to contend. The letter concludes by saying that Sir Frederick Roberts desires to bring to the notice of the Government of India the services of General Collett, General Graham, Colonel Rennick, Major Maxwell, and Mr. Davis.

The despatches of General Collett, dated Manipore, May 2, detail the strength of the Kohima Column, and describe the advance of the various columns on Manipore. Major-General Collett concludes by bringing the services of the following officers to the notice of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief:—Deputy Surgeon-General Costello; Major Watkin, Assistant Adjutant-General; Captain Kitson, Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General; Captain Fitzgerald, chief commissariat officer; Captain Allen, field engineer; Captain Willcocks, chief transport officer; Lieutenant Eales, East Kent Regiment, signalling officer; Mr. Dalrymple Clark, Assam Police; Surgeon Bannerji, civil surgeon, Sibsagar; Surgeon-Major Beatson, and Surgeon Hudson.

The following officers commanded their respective battalions and detachments to General Collett's entire satisfaction:—Colonel Evans, 43rd Goorkhas; Major Ridgway, 44th Goorkhas; Captain Priestley, 42nd Goorkhas; Captain Birch, No. 8 Mountain Battery; Captain Macintyre, Assam Military Police; and Lieutenant Giles, 13th Bengal Infantry.

The second despatch is a letter from General Graham detailing the advance of the Tammoo Column, and of Lieutenant Grant's preliminary advance. General Graham says that the behaviour of the troops on all occasions was all that could be desired, and in conclusion General Graham mentions Colonel Terman, Assistant Adjutant-General; Lieutenant Sackville-West, King's Royal Rifles Orderly Officer; Lieutenants Ripon and Thomas, Major Kitchener, Mr. Soppitt, Major Smyth, Colonel Chalmer, Major Sir Charles Leslie, Captains Randall, Carnegie, and Drury, Major Howlett, Lieutenants Grant and Cox, and Surgeon Cusack.

The third despatch is from Colonel Rennick, commanding the Silchar Column, and details the advance of that body. The officers specially mentioned by Colonel Rennick are Major Maxwell, Captain Dun, Captain Steele, Lieutenant Gyles, Captain Cowley, Lieutenant Cole, Captain Macnaughten, and Mr. Clancey. After Colonel Rennick's despatch come the various letters and telegrams referring to the personal daring and admirable conduct of Lieutenant Grant. The despatches conclude with Lieutenant Grant's account of his advance on, retention of, and retiring from Thobal.

THE INDIAN FACTORIES ACT.

THE Indian Home Department has issued a letter to local Governments re amendments made in the Indian Factories Act, which come into force on Jan. 1, 1892, in re the definition of the word "Factory." The limit as to the number of workmen necessary to bring a factory within the scope of the Act is reduced from 100 to 50, and power is also reserved to apply the provisions of the Act where 20 are engaged. The ages of children to be employed are raised from 7 and 12 to 9 and 14. Inspectors can be appointed either by name or in virtue of their office, and the district magistrate is ex officio an inspector of every factory in his district. Each Government is to determine upon the representation of the industries concerned what industries are entitled to exemption under the powers which the Act enables it to exercise, more especially as regards the stoppage of work at midday, the water supply to be maintained for persons employed in factories, ventilation, and overcrowding. The local Governments are invited to consider the question of revising the rules now in force under section 18 of the Act of 1881, so as to include the requisite provisions on points on which the rules have not been hitherto made, and to meet the altered conditions under which labour in factories will now be carried on. A period of two months at least from the date of publication must be allowed before the draft is taken into consideration.

The Secretary of State has asked the Government of India whether it will not be necessary to appoint whole-time inspectors of factories at centres like Bombay and Calcutta, and the Governor-General in Council has arrived at the conclusion that two inspectors at these centres who should respectively be utilised in the Central Provinces and the North-West Provinces should be appointed. He is of opinion that properly qualified persons with some knowledge of the habits and language of the natives should be appointed to these posts; but before considering the matter further it would like to know whether the services of competent inspectors can be obtained locally. Their pay, it is suggested, should be charged to provincial revenues. So far as remuneration to medical officers is concerned, the Governor-General considers a reasonable scale would be 10 rs. a month for inspecting each factory of 200 hands, subject to a minimum of 30 rs. and a maximum of 100 rs. In the event of the scale being accepted by the local Governments he will recommend it for sanction to the Secretary of State. Regarding fees to certifying surgeons, the local Governments are asked whether they consider the fee of 4 a. a suitable one, or would recommend any other rate.

A Fortunate Family.—It is rumoured that a respectable family in Madras is about to inherit a fortune of twenty-one lacs of rupees, which was left them by a Marquis d'Castellas, an indigo planter in Bengal, and which has been in Chancery for some time past, but it is believed that this sum will be sent to the Administrator-General of Madras for distribution.

MILITARY AND NAVAL.

Disbandment of Regiments.—The 24th Bombay Infantry, stationed at Rajkote, was to be broken up on June 30. The wing of the 22nd Infantry, from Ahmedabad, go to Rajkote. Only four officers were with the 24th B. I., others being on leave. The officers in the regiment were Major Pearson, officiating commandant, Capt. Aplin, and Lieuts. Henderson and Fenner. The 26th Bombay Infantry will be broken in the month of September. Col. Nicholson, 30th Regt., has been for some little time past engaged in endeavouring to recruit on the frontier to make up two new regiments. Reliefs which were published formerly will probably be altered on account of the breaking up of these two regiments.

The Bombay Presidency Assault-at-Arms.—The Bombay Presidential Assault-at-Arms this year will be held later than usual, so that it might not clash with other events. The dates fixed are Nov. 19, 20, and 21. Last year it came off in August. Lord Harris gives a prize of 75 rs. for the Trotting and Galloping Competition open to Royal Horse Artillery, and a similar prize for Driving Competition open to Field batteries. Sir George Greaves presents a prize of 50 rs. each to the best man-at-arms in the Bombay Army (British and native), and the Committee gives a silver medal.

The Trooping of the Coming Season.—In explanation of the recent orders regulating the trooping of the coming season, a contemporary states that it has hitherto been the practice to send home each cold weather all short-service men who complete seven years with the colours on or before December 31. Under this ruling some 7,400 men now in India would have gone, next season, to the Reserve; but the military authorities at home, already in great straits as regards the supply of recruits, suggested that only those who would have completed seven years' colour-service by Sept. 30 should be sent. This would have reduced the total to a little over 5,000. But hereupon a legal difficulty arose. It was pointed out that men who would complete their seven years in October and the first half of November could scarcely be sent home sufficiently early in the trooping season of 1892-93 to be discharged in England before the termination of eight years' colour service, for which they enlisted. This view was accepted by the Horse Guards, and now all short-service men who have seven years to their credit on or before Nov. 15 will go home next cold weather. It cannot yet be exactly stated how this will affect the numbers, but as enlistments are generally most numerous in the winter months, there will probably not be more than 6,000 men to send home by the troopers of 1891-92.

The Black Mountain Expedition.—The following officers form General Hammond's staff with the force remaining on the Black Mountain:—Capt. Bradshaw, 35th Sikhs, brigade major; Capt. Abbott, R.E., field engineer; Lieut. Birdwood, R.E., assistant field engineer; Lieut. Peters, 7th Dragoon Guards; superintendent of signalling and provost marshal. The force is still to be known officially as the Hazara Field Force.

The Commander-in-Chief has recently issued instructions to the Commander-in-Chief in India, directing that steps shall be immediately taken to close an Orange lodge, which has lately been formed in an infantry battalion in that country; and like instructions have been given in regard to similar lodges in other regiments, some of which are quartered at home. His Royal Highness intimates his disapproval of such institutions in the Service, and directs commanding officers to at once take steps to close them.

Rumours are very current in India that the present Commander-in-Chief is strongly in favour of establishing Army Headquarters at Madras for the greater portion of the year, instead of having it permanently established at Ootacamund. We (Madras Times) give the rumour for what it is worth.

Lieutenant-General D. G. Grant, Indian Staff Corps, father of Major Grant, V.C. (of Thobal), has been placed on the retired list of the Indian army, after forty-five years' service. General Grant never had the good luck of his son, for during all the years he served his Queen and country in India he had no chance of receiving even one war-medal. Like his gallant son, he was on the "Madras side," and in his time there were but limited openings for the army of the "benighted Presidency."

The 9th Lancers have found a worthy successor to Sir Archibald Little, who died a month ago, as colonel of the regiment. Lieut.-Gen. W. Drysdale, C.B., has been transferred to the regiment from the 18th Hussars. Thus a long and honourable connection is renewed, as General Drysdale, after doing duty with the 4th Light Dragoons in Afghanistan, under Lord Keane, served with the 9th Lancers in the campaigns of Gwalior, the Sutlej, the Punjab, and the Indian Mutiny.

Col. G. Baker, C.B., has been appointed to the command of the regimental district at Bury, which is the headquarters of the Lancashire Fusiliers. Col. Baker is an old commanding officer of the Hampshire Regiment, but there was a difficulty, it is said, in finding an available officer of the Lancashire Fusiliers, and in these circumstances the authorities chose an officer who had distinguished himself in the field. Col. Baker served with the 67th Regiment in the China War of 1860, the Afghan Campaign of 1879-80, and the Burmese Expedition of 1885-87. He has been several times mentioned in official despatches, and gained his C.B. for war services.

Col. J. G. McRae, Indian Staff Corps, has been allowed to retire from the service.

Major F. H. Forjett, Indian Staff Corps, has been promoted to lieutenant-colonel.

Capt. R. Wapshare, Staff Corps, squadron officer, 3rd Lancers, Hyderabad Contingent, has been granted six months' leave on medical certificate.

Capt. A. D. Fordyce, 3rd Bombay Light Infantry, acts as cantonment magistrate at Deesa, during the absence of Capt. A. Wapshare.

BENGAL.

OUR advices from Calcutta are to June 23.

The Trade of Calcutta with the N.-W. Provinces.—There was a satisfactory increase, says the Englishman, in the trade of Calcutta with the North-West Provinces last year. The value of the imports rose from 698 to 738 lacs, the exports from 500 to 541 lacs. Alike in volume and value, the trade largely exceeds the corresponding figures for Bombay. The imports, for instance, are over twice as great, the exports at least five times as great, as those of the western port. It appears, indeed, from official returns that Calcutta receives over three-fourths of the total trade of the North-West Provinces, and Bombay the greater part of the remainder. The trade passing through Madras and Kurrachee amounts only to a few lacs.

Husband and Wife.—At the Court of the joint magistrate of Sealdah on June 23 Mrs. E. Sutherland preferred a complaint against her husband, charging him with brutal treatment and threatening to take her life. Complainant stated that her husband had been repeatedly brought up before the presidency magistrate for similar offences, and on each occasion she forgave him. For a week he had been indulging in liquor, ill-using her, and selling off the household furniture. On Sunday he assaulted her brutally with brickbats, and threatened to take her life, thereby causing her to quit the house and take shelter at her father's place in Wellesley Square. The magistrate granted a summons.

Sharp shocks of earthquake were felt throughout Bengal during June 18 and 19, and in some places much damage was done to buildings.

A female Hindoo mendicant, said to be about 105 years old, has been admitted into the Calcutta Chandney Hospital, suffering from injuries received by being run over by a horse.

One result of the recent collision between missionaries and Hindoos at Tarkeshwar near Serampore has been a petition by the zemindars who are responsible for the peace of the district to the Bengal Government, asking that the area may be settled within which missionaries are not allowed to preach during festivals. The joint-magistrate of Serampore has been deputed to perform this duty.

A fact mentioned in the report on Bengal lunatic asylums may be commended, says the Times of India, to the notice of Sir Joseph Pease and his disciples. While ganja smoking is held responsible for fifty-six, and spirit drinking for seven, cases of insanity among the admissions of last year, only two cases are ascribed to opium eating, and none to opium smoking. Concerning the number whose mental balance has been injuriously affected by opium in other ways the report is silent.

A daring outrage was committed in Hastings lately. A little girl, four years old, a grandchild of Major Miller, V.C., well known in Calcutta in connection with the swimming baths, of which till lately he was superintendent, was taken from her bed and left in the middle of the racecourse, close to the tank, where she was found terribly exhausted, and almost frightened to death. No clue had been obtained to the culprits.

MADRAS.

OUR advices from Madras are to June 24.

New Law College for Madras.—The Secretary of State having consented to the establishment of this college, the Madras Government have, on the recommendation of the Director of Public Instruction, sanctioned the construction of a building on the site to the west of the new High Court buildings. The present police-station at the corner of the Monument Esplanade, near the Broadway, will be removed to another site to be selected by the Commissioner of Police. Plans and estimates for the new Law College have been called for, and the consulting architect to Government has been specially asked to expedite their preparation.

Relief Works.—Forty-three minor irrigation works and thirty-four major irrigation works have been selected as relief works in the Wandiwash taluk, of which estimates have been prepared for nine of the former and fifteen of the latter, while the estimates for the remaining works are under rapid preparation. The estimates of works ready to be taken in hand amount to 20,540 rs., capable of giving employment to 4,000 coolies for about forty days. The cost of the remaining works will amount to about 40,000 rs., and will give work for 4,000 coolies for eighty days. Seven Local Fund Road Works have been selected as relief works in the Kalahasti Zemindary, the aggregate cost of which is estimated at 43,000 rs. Of these three works are to be commenced at once. Road works are to be chiefly taken up as relief works in Kalahasti, as the zemindary is particularly deficient in this means of communication, and the expenditure on roads, the Times of India says, will be of general public advantage, while improvements to irrigation works will only be of benefit to the zemindar, whose duty it is to keep them in repair. Government has sanctioned the postponement of the payment of the third instalment of his peishchush by the Zemindar of Kalahasti. The amount due is 4,73,812 rs. The concession has been granted on the distinct understanding that the zemindar will not press his tenants for the payment of their rents for the current fasli, but will allow them time.

The Distress in North Arcot.—Some of the Madras papers have recently been adding colour to the picture of the distress which scarcity has brought on North Arcot, by asserting that coercion is being freely resorted to by the Government officials in order to ensure the collection of rent. A contemporary has the highest authority for stating that this is a complete misrepresentation. The revenue has been collected with great ease, and coercion has been applied in an unprecedentedly small number of cases—namely, in respect of twenty-seven only out of forty thousand pullahdars. Remissions amounting to nearly half a lac of rupees, or 12 per cent. of the total demand, have been granted in the Wandiwash taluk alone. In these cases the Government cannot be too alert and can scarcely be too liberal; but we need not therefore misrepresent it, or refuse it credit where this is due.

BOMBAY.

OUR advices from Bombay are to June 26.

The Rateable Value of Buildings in Bombay.—We (Times of India) hear that Mr. F. W. Stevens, C.I.E., the arbitrator appointed under the new Municipal Act by the Government of Bombay and the Corporation for fixing the rateable value of her Majesty's buildings and lands in the island of Bombay, has submitted his award to Government, which, we believe, gives the Corporation something over a lac of rupees revenue per annum, in place of half a lac of rupees formerly paid by Government. The increase, we presume, is partly owing to the large number of new Government buildings that have been erected during the last twelve or fourteen years, and partly due to the rateable value having been fixed on a proper basis.

A Native Presidency Magistrate for Bombay.—A correspondent of the Madras Times writes on June 20:—I wired you recently that Mr. W. Webb, barrister-at-law, had been recommended by the Government of Bombay to the Government of India for appointment as third Presidency magistrate. A memorial has now been addressed by the Bombay Presidency Association to Lord Cross requesting him to veto the appointment, and urging the advisability of nominating a native, the other two magistrates being both Europeans, and pointing out that Mr. Webb is not eligible, as not belonging to the Uncovenanted Service, and further objecting to him on the ground that he wants knowledge of vernaculars, that he never did much at the Bar here, and has hardly practised for ten years. It further points out that on the several occasions when he has acted as chief Presidency magistrate during the absence of Mr. Cooper, his discharge of the duties was by no means satisfactory either to the public or to the members of the profession practising in the magistrates' courts.

The Weather.—The Bombay Gazette of June 26 says:—The widespread anxiety occasioned throughout the Mofussil by the prolonged delay in the arrival of the monsoon is intensified as day follows day, and week week, with no sign of the rain clouds. In Kattyawar, where there was a short rainfall—amounting only to 24 inches—last year, the want of water for cattle is already severely felt. The wells threaten to run dry, and the streams have practically ceased to exist; in some districts it is necessary to send the cattle for many miles to drink. This is the most pressing hardship, for if rain do not soon fall the water supply must fail altogether, and the cattle necessary for ploughing must die. So severe is the drought that even the hardy cactus known as the prickly pear is beginning to wither up. On the Ghauts, near Bombay, there were a few showers on Saturday and Sunday night, and a rather heavy thunder-shower, lasting some twenty minutes, fell between Khandalla and Lanowli on Sunday afternoon. But these indications appear to be very local; the neighbouring country being bathed in sunshine, while the rain fell as it were within a ring fence. In the Konkan the fields are quite parched, and the seeds sown a fortnight ago in anticipation of rain have not germinated. In Bombay, however, short but sharp showers accompanied by vivid lightning seem to portend that the period of suspense is drawing near the close. Up to date less than 5 inches rain has fallen in Bombay; at the same date last year upwards of 23 inches had fallen.

Captain Beauclerk, of Secunderabad, has accepted the presidency of the Western India Industrial Conference, to be held in Poona in August. The committee have added to the list of subjects for discussion the effect of the resolution of the Government of India relating to the purchase of stores in India.

The Parsee community petitioned Government in favour of the withdrawal of the charges against Manockjee Aslajee and the appointment of a commission of inquiry into the recent Clock Tower tragedy.

BURMA.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE Rangoon correspondent of the Times telegraphs on July 12:—

It has been decided to form two more local regiments from the military police.

Lieutenant-General Dormer, Commander-in-Chief in Madras, will visit Burma, which is under his command, next October. He will probably go to Bhamo.

The question of granting a special allowance to military officers serving in Burma is now under consideration. The cost of living in Burma is much greater than in Madras or Bengal. Expenses which are absolutely necessary—such as house rent, servants, and horses—exceed by fully 60 per cent. similar expenses in India; officers stationed in Burma have, therefore, certainly a strong claim to some special allowance.

A somewhat serious outrage by a band of dacoits armed with guns is reported from Taungdwingyee, in Upper Burma.

On the 8th inst. the elephants with rations for the garrison at the Jade mines arrived within two days' march of the Uru river. A small supply of rations has already reached the garrison, and forty transport mules have been despatched from Bhamo to Mogoung.

The Mandalay Herald states that the small Shan State Kyamchaing, lying on the east side of the Mekong river, will be included in the territory over which British suzerainty will be exercised. Kyamchaing really lies on both sides of the Mekong, and nothing has yet been decided as to its future state. It is practically one of the districts always claimed by the kings of Burma, but it is now overrun by irregular bands of Siamese.

Serious differences have occurred in the Andaman Islands between Colonel Cadell, the chief commissioner, and the officer commanding the troops. Colonel Cadell appears to have acted in a somewhat high-handed manner.

The Times of India says:—It is certainly matter for congratulation that the State of Wuntho in Upper Burma has been absorbed into British territory, for it was impossible to check the bands of dacoits who raided across the frontier, so long as the Tsawbwa was in power. The outbreak last February, unprovoked in any way, afforded full justification, asserts a contemporary, for the occupation of the territory, and it was perhaps fortunate that it occurred just at that time, as our troops were not engaged in any large expeditions. But, all the same, the rebellion had its evil effects, more particularly as regards the Mu Valley Railway. Work, we learn, was progressing favourably north of Shwebo, when suddenly, without the least warning, the Wuntho people attacked Kawlin and Kyungon and burnt the railway buildings, tools, and plant. There was naturally a panic among the workpeople, and, according to the official reports, the third construction division and half the second division were entirely denuded of labour, and all carts having been impressed for military transport, the works on these two divisions were brought to a standstill. The prompt suppression of the rebellion restored confidence in Kawlin and the adjacent villages, but unluckily there is no resident population on 60 miles of the line in the divisions mentioned, and it is no easy matter to re-import labour once there has been a scare. With this exception the Mu Valley line made good progress during the last working season. Colonel Sargeant states in the Railway Administration Report that up to March 31, of the 150 miles sanctioned from Myoboung on the Irrawaddy to Kawlin, forty miles of rail had actually been laid, the track had been ballasted for sixty miles, and what is technically known as "rail-head" was advancing steadily at the rate of four miles a week. The pontoons and landing stages for the steam ferry across the Irrawaddy, in the neighbourhood of Sagain and Ava, were almost ready, so it will not be long before Shwebo is in direct communication with Mandalay. A great trade is certain to spring up once the line is in full working order.

PUNJAB, N.-W. P., OUDE, &c.

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF THE NORTH-WEST PROVINCES, accompanied by Colonel Erskine, left Naini Tal on June 19 for Nalaina to proceed to Haldwani, where Sir A. Colvin performed the opening ceremony of the waterworks. The scheme for a water-supply and sewerage works at Naini Tal has been under consideration for a long time, but it has now, it seems, taken definite shape, and received the approval of the local Government. Unquestionably, says the Pioneer, if one might judge by one's perceptions in the course of a walk round the lake at certain hours and seasons, Naini Tal is scarcely less in need of some such scheme of purification than the cities of the plains.*

MR. H. A. PLAYFAIR, district superintendent of police, Central Provinces, who, some months ago, was deputed on special duty to destroy a pack of wolves in the jungles of the Nerbudda Valley, was most successful, and returned to his own district of Bhandara. He has now succeeded in killing a man-eating tigress, which for six years has been the terror of the inhabitants of Khairagarh, but has hitherto defied all the sportsmen, European and native, who have been "after" her. At various times special rewards had been offered by Government, the Khairagarh Raja, Appajee Bootee, the landholder in whose property the animal had chiefly been carrying on her depredations, and by the Bengal-Nagpore Railway Company, whose officials along the line had more than once been carried off. All these rewards have fallen to Mr. Playfair. The Forest Department have reported that new tracts of jungle, which for several years have been practically untouched from fear of this tigress, were immediately after her destruction freely resorted to, and in all the surrounding villages Mr. Playfair has been hailed as their deliverer.

THE NOMINATION of Mr. W. H. Rattigan, the well-known leader of the Lahore Bar, as an additional member of the Viceroy's Council, is, thinks the Pioneer, an excellent one in every way. The chief need of the Legislative Council just now must for obvious reasons be Indian experience, and no one can know the country so well in many respects as a successful barrister in Upper India, brought as he is into direct relations with all classes of the people, who have to give him their confidence as they never give it to an official. Mr. Rattigan, moreover, is very much more than a mere lawyer. The profession that absorbs all the energies and thoughts of so many able men has not prevented him from being a student of many subjects in many languages, or from making large sacrifices in time and trouble towards forwarding the cause of learning and letters in the Punjab.

AT THE MEETING of the Senate of the Punjab University, on June 27, no less than thirty-two proposals of the Syndicate were to be placed before the Fellows. Among these, says an Indian paper, are several very important subjects, such as the LL.B. and LL.D. examination regulations, the revised medical examination regulations, the revised financial rules, the recognition of the European Final Standard examination as equivalent to University Entrance examinations, a number of modifications in existing courses, and an application to the military authorities with a view to securing for students of the Oriental College who have passed the University examinations in Gurmukhi and Literature a preferential claim to employment as Granthis in Sikh regiments.

AT THE ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT, before the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Tyrell, Lalkanjoo, one of the Jhansi dacoits convicted some time ago, appeared on June 20 to show cause why the sentence of ten years' imprisonment passed on him by the sessions judge of Jhansi should not be enhanced. Lalkanju was convicted of offences under sections 395 and 396 of the Indian Penal Code, and was sentenced to ten years' rigorous imprisonment. He appealed, and his appeal was dismissed. Notice was given him to show cause why his sentence should not be enhanced. This was one of the Jhansi dacoity cases, and in this case, as in others of that district, brutal violence was used. The dacoits were armed with guns and swords whereby they broke into the houses in which the robbery was committed. They seized two women who were in that house, tied them to a charpoy, and then turned up the charpoy so that the women's heads rested upon the ground. Having done that they burnt the thighs and buttocks of the women, and so severely was one of the women burnt that the flesh disappeared from her bones, and she died from the results of that burning. The other woman was not so severely burnt. Unhappily, the Chief Justice said, in giving judgment, this system of burning women by dacoits was not confined to the Jhansi and Lalitpore gang or this particular dacoity. It was proved beyond doubt that Lalkanjoo was one of the dacoits who used the torch in the burning of one, at any rate, of these women. It was impossible to allow a miscreant capable of such a crime to return to his district again. It was a brutal crime, a shocking crime, inflicted without any provocation in the most barbarous manner upon a country-woman of his own. He was sixteen years of age, strong and stoutly built for his years. For a hardened ruffian such as he was, ten years' rigorous imprisonment was a ridiculously light sentence. He might consider himself fortunate that he had escaped and would escape the extreme penalty of the law. The Court sentenced him to transportation for the term of his natural life.

THE SEASON report from Rajputana (June 22) states that the cattle are dying in the Todgarh district for want of fodder, and are in poor condition at Bikanir, Kishengarh, and Kherwara. Elsewhere they are in fair condition; pasturage and fodder are scarce in four States, and at Deoli, Kherwara, and Ajmere-Merwara. Forty-four thousand five hundred and eighteen acres are affected by scarcity in Ajmere-Merwara. About 5,979 persons are on relief works.

IN SOME parts of the Punjab lately the thermometer has registered 119 degrees.

CENTRAL ASIAN NOTES.

"It is stated," says the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times, in a telegram dated July 11, "that General Komaroff, late Governor-General of the Trans-Caspian, and the hero of the Russo-Afghan fight in the Hindoo Koosh, has been nominated to the post of Commandant of the Fortress of Warsaw." As a matter-of-fact it was officially notified, some days before the date of this telegram, that Lieutenant-General Komaroff, Commandant of the fortress of Ivangorod, in Poland, had been appointed Commandant of the Fortress of Warsaw; and this officer, whose full name is Constantine Vissarionovitch Komaroff, is a brother of Alexander Vissarionovitch Komaroff, late Governor-General of the Transcaspian district.

We sometimes hear that English traders are being driven out of Asiatic markets by more active and enterprising rivals. According to the Novoe Vremya, however, the Russians might take a lesson from us. Russian merchants, it is said, are much hampered in their business relations with Turkey, Persia, Khiva, Bokhara, China, and Japan, by their ignorance of the languages spoken in those countries. It is this ignorance, we are told, that handicaps Russian merchandise in the East, in competition with English and German wares, which are energetically pushed by agents who can speak the language of their customers. With a view to removing this reproach, it is proposed to make arrangements for teaching Oriental languages in Russian commercial schools.

The Okraina, a newspaper published at Samarcand, states that a family of Tekke Turcomans at Ashkabad has been converted to the Christian faith, as held by the Greek Church. The Trans-Caspian district, it is added, affords a favourable field for the activity of missionaries.

According to a telegram from Samarcand, dated July 1, a flight of locusts has appeared in the neighbourhood of Kokand. Measures have been taken to effect their destruction.

We may call attention to an admirable paper on Indian Frontier Expeditions in the current number of the Fortnightly Review. The author, Mr. E. E. Oliver, of the Public Works Department, endeavours to make his readers understand the real object of the Miranzai Expedition, which as explained in these columns, was not directed against the Miranzais. The blunder seems hard to kill. It is made in the "Report on Moral and Material Progress in India." The Miranzais, who are our subjects, and whose behaviour has been fairly good for some time past, should bring an action for libel against the Secretary of State.

The Teheran correspondent of the Times writes on July 6:—The Porte has sent reassuring messages to Teheran concerning the So-uj-Bolak incident. The Shah leaves to-morrow for his usual summer excursion; he considers the matter to be no longer critical.

A Dalziel telegram from Constantinople, dated July 6, states:—Khalil Khalid Bey, the Turkish Ambassador at Teheran, has informed the Ottoman Consul at So-uj-Bolak that he will not involve the Persian Government in the affair of the abducted English girl, Miss Greenfield, nor will he ask its assistance in the pursuit of her Kurdish abductors, because the matter concerns England and Turkey alone, although the abduction took place on Persian territory. Mr. E. Fane, the English Chargé d'Affaires here, having heard of the attitude of the Ottoman Ambassador at Teheran, has just demanded of the Porte that immediate and peremptory instructions should be given to Khalil Khalid Bey to press the Persian Government to send troops to re-establish order on the Kurdish frontier, and to rescue the young woman from her captors.

The Tauris correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs on July 8:—Prince Nosrat Dowleh, with the troops under his command, has reached So-uj-Bolak, and formally invited the Kurds to deliver up Miss Greenfield. The rioters, however, trusting that Turkey will never allow Persia to shed blood, maintain a defiant attitude.

The Daily News published on July 10 details of the abduction of Miss Greenfield, and the subsequent efforts which have been made to obtain her liberation. The inquiry, opened at So-uj-Bolak in consequence of the action of the acting British Consul-General, the correspondent describes as an impudent farce; and it is said that the girl questioned was not Miss Greenfield, but a Mahomedan girl.

A Reuter telegram from St. Petersburg of July 9 states that the Russian agent in Bokhara, at the instance of the Ameer, lately solicited from the Russian Government permission for his Highness to make a stay in Russia. The required sanction having been given, the Ameer will arrive here in October next, attended by a numerous suite. During his absence Russian troops will maintain order in Bokhara.

The Teheran correspondent of the Times states that the Persian Government has accepted the invitation of the United States to take part in the Chicago Exhibition, and has named as honorary commissioner Mr. Spencer Pratt, who will leave for America as soon as his successor arrives.

Two fights appear to have occurred simultaneously at a place called Secunderai, in Bajaur, between Umra Khan and his opponents. In each case the fortune of war seems to have been against Umra Khan. In the first action he lost a number of rifles and some horses. In the second his nephew, Majid Khan, the Governor of Secunderai, one of his best lieutenants, was killed, and a considerable number of men on each side. Although, however, Umra Khan appears to have been worsted up to date, nothing that has yet occurred is regarded as at all decisive by our correspondents, says the Lahore paper.

Another small success is reported for Umra Khan, which is expected to result in the capture of the whole of the district of Jar from the Khan of Nawaghi. It is also stated that Nur Muhammad, the refugee from Peshawur who made a successful descent upon Khost a year or two ago, is marching to join Umra Khan with a body of troops he has somehow collected. On the other hand, Main Gul of Swat is reported to have started with a large body of men—one account says 12,000—to fight against Umra Khan. The latter is said to have vainly applied for help to the ruler of Chitral, who reminded him of broken promises which were made at the time of the capture of Dir. Indeed, Umra Khan's double dealing on that occasion appears to have cost him dearly in friends and allies.

According to Afghan correspondents, great activity is being displayed by the Russians at Merv and Panj Deh in enlisting and drilling recruits. They add that these new troops are supplied with greatcoats of such a pattern that forty of them when put together make a tent to accommodate the men at night. In the morning they take the tent to pieces, and each man wears his portion as a coat. A perfect fit can hardly be guaranteed under the circumstances.

The Ameer can afford to wish the Russians joy of many of his late Turkistani subjects who fled across the border after the suppression of Ishak Khan's revolt, says an Indian paper. Their original profession was highway robbery and slave dealing, and they find it so hard to live honestly under Russian rule, that they have memorialised the Czar, either to give them grants of land or to allow them "to carry on their original profession," otherwise they will be obliged to seek an asylum in Persia or Afghanistan.

With reference to the disturbances in Hanza and Nagar, a correspondent writes:—"Some time ago Colonel Durand and the Wazir of Gilgit were formally invited by one of the sons of Raja Jafar Khan of Nagar, named Gauritham, to pay a visit to Nagar. They both consented and went with him. The other sons of Raja Jafar Khan got jealous of their brother Gauritham when they saw him coming with Colonel Durand, and, after the Colonel returned to Gilgit, they killed Gauritham and his attendants (nineteen in number) in cold blood."

From Chalt, dated June 12, Lieutenant-Colonel Durand reports that all is quiet in the neighbourhood, and that he will probably return to Gilgit shortly, unless the Naga tribesmen become openly hostile. From Chalt, dated the 15th instant, Lieutenant-Colonel Durand telegraphs that Mr. Beach and Mr. Lennard have reached Yasin, and were expected at Gilgit on the 20th.

NOTES FROM THE FAR EAST.

A SPECIAL mission, says a Reuter despatch from St. Petersburg (July 12), with Prince Arisnonhava at its head, is expected here from Japan during the present month for the express purpose of conveying to the Czar the regrets of the Imperial Family of Japan and of the Japanese people at the attempt made upon the life of the Czarevitch on the occasion of his visit to Kioto.

A Reuter telegram from Paris (July 7) says:—Intelligence received here from Shanghai states that the anti-foreign agitation in China still continues, the recent issue of an Imperial decree for the protection of foreigners having remained without effect. It is added that the representatives of the Powers are concerting measures with a view to united action against the present movement.

The Japan Mail of May 26 says:—The Czarevitch reached Vladivostock safely on the 23rd inst., and at 2.25 P.M. telegraphed to the Emperor of Japan announcing that his voyage had been without accident and that his health was excellent, thanking both the Emperor and Empress again, and in warm terms, for the courteous hospitality shown to him in Japan, and declaring that it should always remain with him as a pleasant memory. The Emperor telegraphed an equally cordial reply, congratulating the Prince on his safe arrival in Russian dominions, expressing the greatest satisfaction at the news of his good health, and praying that the rest of his journey might be prosperous and secure. Whatever effect the Otsu incident may exercise on the mutual feelings of the Japanese and Russian nations, it has certainly brought the Governments of the two Empires into much closer and more cordial relations than was the case previously.

A Saigon paper makes the delightful suggestion that by way of reparation for the injury to which the Czarevitch has been subjected in Japan the Government of that country might undertake not to oppose the annexation of Corea by Russia.

Among the passengers who left by the Yokohama Maru to-day, says the Shanghai Mercury of May 29, was Mr. John Macgregor, the popular head of Jardine, Matheson & Co., and Chairman of the Municipal Council, who goes home, via America, on a well-earned holiday. Mr. Macgregor's departure leaves a distinct gap in our social and public life, for no man has done so much real outside work in a few years than he has managed to put through, while attending to the vast business of the "princely house." As a public man we have had no better for many years, and it was Mr. Macgregor's fortune to be connected with our affairs at a time when an unusual number of difficult and often trying questions arose. In every one of them he came out easily first, and his capacity for work is wonderful to those who know him and still more so to those who only have seen how thoroughly he can enter into the lesser tasks of life, social pleasures and so forth. He certainly deserves a rest, but he will be missed very much by every class of the community, and we therefore hope that he will have a pleasant voyage and a speedy return.

From various places the North China Herald gives some correspondent's notes on the anti-foreign movement in China. From Kinkiang (May 27) the correspondent writes:—The news of the various commotions at Wuhu, Ngankin, and Shanghai has very speedily travelled here, and everybody is talking about it. There is a very uneasy feeling prevailing in this city; there are thousands of roughs from the tea districts and the numerous boats now lying in the creek, and some six thousand students are now arriving for the triennial examinations. There is very loud commendation on the part of these of the work of their compatriots in the lower ports of the river; the only cause for disappointment on their part is that the work was not done more thoroughly. There is a great talk that they intend to do the same thing here at an early date. At this time the number of rowdies is by no means small. Should any disturbance take place a vigorous resistance will be made. There is quite a warlike spirit prevailing in the community and arms are in readiness. At the Consulate there is a magazine of rifles and the Customs have just received a stock of twenty-four sword bayonets; in other places there are also stacks of arms, and men will use them.

The Viceroy, says a Nankin letter of May 29, has been putting things through in most vigorous fashion. Several officers of high grade have already been removed. Others, including the two Hien, are threatened. No executions yet, but some of the rioters will probably lose their heads. The officials have already agreed with Mr. Ferguson as to the damages done to Methodist property and several hundred dollars have been paid down. H.M.S. Porpoise arrived yesterday at 3 P.M., and will remain a few days. The Viceroy has appointed an audience with the Commander this morning. But the atmosphere is not yet clear. There is an ill-concealed feeling of excitement and hostility. A four days' festival is now in progress, and the crowds that gather may easily be stirred up. Soldiers, however, are still guarding foreign property, and we trust there will be no more trouble.

May 29.

The Tientsin correspondent wrote:—We are having our placards as well as you in the south, but in general they appear to cause but little anxiety. The Viceroy evidently thinks that there is no danger, for he left a few days ago for Weihaiwei for purposes of inspection, laughing at the rumours that are afloat when his attention was called to them. I think I forgot to mention at the time that the (or a) map connected with the issue of threatening placards last autumn, was recently discovered, seized by the authorities, and speedily decapitated as a warning to others.

In Wuchang, writes another correspondent, there is no danger at all as far as can be seen. Chang Chih-tung is too strong. His actions are still commented on with cankered vigour by the great majority of his subordinates. His reception of the Czarevitch gave them a new opportunity for abuse. The city has been full of the remarks of this and that mandarin in scorn of the Victory who abased himself before the foreigner, prepared the way for invasion, &c., while the Fut'ai gained a temporary spurious popularity because tea-house gossip represented the fact of the Czarevitch not entering the city as due to the determined refusal of the Fut'ai to allow the streets of the capital to be polluted by the tread of a foreign prince. The easy tool for all this spleen is the favour the Viceroy is supposed to show to foreigners. Very probably the first outburst of placarding was against him as much as against us. But in the city which he governs the strong hand is too well known. The high officials are being kept informed of the continuous publication, and it is to be hoped that now the disasters of Anhui will lead them to attach sufficient importance to the matter to energetically prevent what otherwise must some time lead to disturbance, at any rate in the country districts. Yet, with all this anti-foreign venom flowing from Hunan, there are signs that the spirit of the age is killing it, even in that province. It is true that Hunanese visitors tell us that Kuo Sung-tao, the first Ambassador to England, now in retirement at his Hunan home, is still so despised for his foreign residence that he cannot venture to pay New-Year calls, and that many respectable people there will use no foreign cloth, foreign matches, or anything else that is foreign. But a traveller who has recently returned from an extensive tour in the province reports a very considerable change from former years, an increasing respect, and sense of an outer world worth knowing. Ch'angsha he found shut against him, as of old, but apart from city walls found the country much more accessible. The same Vice-regal influence is telling, mathematics and science have risen like comets of baleful omen in the Hunan literary sky, steam-tugs have even entered its sealed waters; the times are changing. The writer is constantly visited by Hunan literary men just arrived to take foundation scholarships in the Viceroy's College of the Two Lakes—and a fine race they are, well worthy of being drawn into the brotherhood of nations.

While General Fang Yao at Canton was examining a batch of prisoners charged with various crimes, says Shên Pao, a pirate of gigantic proportions and with a sinister and ferocious countenance knelt forward and said, "I confess that I have committed many robberies. In the case of the Namoa robbery we were twenty in all; only twelve of whom have been caught and executed by you. But in your fury and blind zeal you have put to death over thirty persons supposed to have been connected with the piracy on board the steamer. Nearly twenty innocent people have been sacrificed, and I hope your Excellency will be careful in future." The General nodded his approval and sentenced him to join the shades of his comrades next day with the assistance of the executioner.

The Exchange Company's Hong Kong correspondent writes:—After a period of nearly four years the first and only relic of the ill-fated gunboat Wasp has come to hand in the form of a lifebuoy picked up in the China Sea and brought on here to be handed over to the authorities. In the Autumn of 1887 the Wasp, which was attached to the English China squadron, left Singapore for Hong Kong; from the date of her departure up to the finding of this buoy nothing has ever been heard of her despite the vigorous search instituted by the other vessels of the squadron at the time among the neighbouring islands, especially those of the Paracel group. Although the search was long continued, not a single vestige of wreckage was ever discovered. Such a complete disappearance of the vessel and every soul on board, with nothing to indicate even the locality of the disaster, created a most painful impression at the time. The typhoon season that year was memorable for the disasters it wrought among shipping.

FRANCE AND SIAM IN THE MEKONG VALLEY.

THE activity of the French in the Laos States and the Mekong valley, says the Hong Kong Daily Press, is not unnaturally causing some excitement in Siam. The Bangkok papers inform us that the Government of the country are taking steps to check what our contemporary terms the hostile movements of the French by the appointment of stations along the banks of the Mekong on both sides of the stream, and the appointment of trustworthy commissioners at all the principal towns bordering the French boundary, the commissioners to have a force sufficiently imposing to assert their authority and repel trespassers over the border. The Siamese are wise in thus giving a tangible form to their sovereignty over the district in question if they really intend to dispute France's pretensions. The French contend that the Laos States are really dependencies of Annam, whose empire, they say, extends to the Mekong, and as protectors of Annam they now claim to exercise jurisdiction up to the boundary thus indicated. In the interests of peace it is to be hoped both parties will prove amenable to reason and, making mutual concessions where necessary, agree upon a clearly defined boundary, as to which there shall be no cause for dispute in the future. If Siam's claims to the disputed territory are of a somewhat nebulous character, those of France are no less so. The semi-independent tribes formerly paid tribute to Siam or Annam indifferently, whichever was able to exact it, and when they could withhold it with safety they paid it to neither. How the relative rights of Siam and Annam are to be determined by any strict rule of justice is, therefore, not easy to see. Siam has apparently resolved to support her claim by actual occupation, and this is eminently a case in which possession must be deemed nine points of the law. It is unlikely that France would attempt to dislodge the Siamese posts by force of arms, for the rebels and pirates provide sufficient occupation for the present Tonkin garrison, and the Government in Paris would be indisposed, after M. Ferry's experience in connection with the Tonkin expedition, to sanction another enterprise of a like character. The French taxpayer is not impressed with the value of the Mekong Valley and would not willingly go to any expense to acquire it. Siam, therefore, if she acts prudently, has the best of the position. She has only to substantiate her claim to suzerainty or sovereignty in the disputed territory by exercising effective control or entering on actual occupation, and the chances of her being disturbed are remote. Siam, however, if she wishes to preserve her integrity, will have to adopt a progressive policy, and endeavour, like Japan, to bring herself more into line with nineteenth century civilisation. This she is doing. Attention is being paid to education, reforms are being introduced in the administration, attention is being given to the development of the resources of the country, and the work of railway construction has been entered upon. The King is an enlightened monarch, and is assisted by able Ministers, the nobles and people appear favourably disposed to a policy of progress, and there is every reason to believe the country has before it a happy and prosperous future. It is important, however, with France pressing on her eastern and north-eastern border, that she should as far as possible remove all cause of future quarrel by taking up a clearly-defined position with regard to her boundary line. In the absence of effective occupation claims to sovereignty over any particular territory are in these days treated with scant respect, and are calculated to lead to trouble.

INDIA, &c., IN PARLIAMENT. HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Monday, July 6.

The Indian Troopship Squadron.—MR. GOURLEY asked the First Lord of the Admiralty whether there was any foundation for the statement which appeared in the Times of June 19 "that the Admiralty contemplated handing over the management of the Indian Troopship Squadron to the Orient Steam Shipping Company"; if so, would he state the terms of the arrangement; whether he was aware that these vessels occupied, on an average, thirty days on the outward passage to Bombay, being ten days longer than that of merchant passenger steamers, besides consuming more fuel per day than similar modern merchantmen; and whether it was intended that the ships should be fitted with more powerful and economical machinery.

LORD G. HAMILTON: There is no truth in the statement referred to.

Tuesday, July 7.

The Commercial Treaty with China.—MR. WOODALL asked the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs whether there had been any—and, if so, what—change in our commercial relations with China consequent upon the expiration in April last of the term of ten years specified in the Commercial Treaty with that country.

SIR J. FERGUSSON: No notice has been given on either side for the revision of the existing Commercial Treaty between this country and China, and it will therefore remain in force as it stands for another period of ten years from April 24 last.

Distress in Chingleput.—In answer to Mr. S. Smith, SIR J. GORST said: The present distress has attracted the attention of the Madras Government to the condition of the poorer classes in Chingleput. A careful statistical survey is being made of each district in Madras; the Chingleput district will be taken up soon, and inquiry will be made into the condition of all classes of the people. At the inquiry of 1887-88—the results of which are given in the "Condition of the People" return, presented in June 1889—it was stated that Chingleput, owing to its infertile soil and to certain accidents of tenure, was among the most backward parts of the Madras Presidency. The report on the inquiry of 1887-88, referred to above, says:—

"The mass of the (Chingleput) people, who are mostly agriculturists, live from hand to mouth, and in adverse seasons are seriously hampered. . . . The wages of an agricultural labourer's family are put at about ten rupees a month, all told. . . . The demand for all kinds of industrial labour, other than weavers, is increasing, while unskilled labour is, owing to the vicinity of Madras, everywhere better than it used to be."

No special measures for the general improvement of the Chingleput people have been undertaken beyond the repair of tanks and channels for irrigation. Extensive measures have been taken, and are being carried out, for the relief of distress caused by the recent failure of rain. No commission has been appointed to inquire into the distress. There is no bar either of law or of practice to low-caste people obtaining and cultivating available waste lands on the same terms as high-caste people.

Indian Finance.—MR. MONTAGU asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether the Indian Council had sold bills on India to the extent of nearly 6,000,000*l.* up to the end of June—namely, the first quarter of their financial year—whereas the proportionate amount of their year's drawings, estimated by them at 16,000,000*l.*, should have been only 4,000,000*l.*; whether he could give any reason for selling at such low rates half as much again than the amount required in the past quarter.

SIR J. GORST: Yes, 5,976,112*l.* were sold in the first quarter of the financial year. Owing to the requirements of Indian trade it is necessary to sell much the larger proportion of the bills in the first and the last quarters of the financial year. Within the last few weeks the amount offered for public tender has been reduced from 45 to 30 lacs a week.

Thursday, July 9.

Crimean and Indian Mutiny Veterans.—MR. E. ROBERTSON asked the Secretary of State for War if he could now state what steps he proposed to take this session with reference to the relief of Crimean and Indian Mutiny veterans.

MR. E. STANHOPE.—I propose to make a commencement this year, on the lines I have already indicated. No legislation will be necessary.

Officers and Commercial Companies.—MR. HANBURY asked the Secretary of State for War whether the War Office order forbidding officers on full pay to act as directors of companies without special permission applied to officers who were acting as directors before the issue of the order. And, whether it was or was not by permission that an officer, holding a high position as head of a military department of special importance at the present time, was recently advertised as the director of one gold mining company and vendor to another.

MR. STANHOPE said the order applied to officers on full pay, but before the order was issued there had been nothing to prevent an officer on full pay being director of a company. The officer to whom the hon. member alluded had at once withdrawn from the directorate of the company with which he was connected as soon as the order was issued.

Friday, July 10.

Alleged Murders in Bombay.—MR. S. SMITH asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether his attention had been called to the agitation in Bombay consequent on the alleged murder of two Parsee women; whether he was aware that serious charges were brought against the police in connection with this affair; and whether he would recommend the Bombay Government to institute an independent inquiry into the matter.

SIR J. GORST: The Secretary of State has no information on this subject, except such as may be obtained from the Bombay newspapers. It appears that a person has been committed for trial on a charge of murdering the women referred to. The Secretary of State will not recommend any interference by the Bombay Government with the due course of the law.

The Case of Bulwunt Rao.—MR. KEAY asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether he has now received information as to the case of Bulwunt Rao, formerly an official of the Indore State, for whose arrest a warrant was recently obtained from the British residency magistrate at Indore, at the instance of the Maharaja Holkar, the Ruler of Indore, on a charge of having written a letter in a local newspaper, commenting on certain proceedings of the Maharaja: Is he aware that, although Bulwunt Rao was living at the time in the Gwalior State, where the warrant could not be legally executed, the warrant was nevertheless entrusted to a body of Indore police, who seized and murdered Bulwunt Rao on May 19 last in the streets of Ujain: Whether it has been brought to his notice that the widow of the said Bulwunt Rao has written a letter to the agent to the Governor-General for Central India, charging the Maharaja Holkar with having ordered the commission of the crime, and also that Bulwunt himself, during the three weeks immediately preceding his death, wrote letters to various persons, one of whom is resident in this country, declaring that information had reached him from Indore that the Maharaja Holkar had issued orders to the police that he, Bulwunt Rao, should be made away with; that he, Bulwunt Rao, had communicated this to the District Commissioner of the Gwalior State, who had promised to do his best to protect him, but that the Maharaja Holkar's police had then been encamped at the railway station for three weeks waiting to carry out the Maharaja's orders; and whether the Government of India will institute an inquiry into the truth or otherwise of the allegations thus made in writing by the deceased a few days before his death.

SIR J. GORST said: The Secretary of State communicated with the Government of India on the subject of Bulwunt Rao, and has received the following reply:—"Agent to Governor-General in Central India reports that this man was arrested under warrant issued by the Residency Court, Indore, at the request of the Indore State, for publication of a defamatory libel in the Eastern Herald. He was arrested in Ujain by Gwalior and Indore police, one of our railway police being also present. He was apparently treated with great violence, and died of syncope. The Agent to the Governor-General reports that the durbars will use every effort to secure the punishment of the offenders. The case will be watched."

Monday, July 13.

Sandhurst and Woolwich.—The EARL OF STRAFFORD asked the Under-Secretary of State for War whether it would be possible during the present financial year to carry out the recommendations of the Board of Visitors in 1890 at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, and at the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich. He hoped that out of the many millions voted in respect of the Army Estimates for this year a small portion of this large sum would be judiciously applied in carrying out the recommendations of the Visitors. With regard to Sandhurst, the Visitors spoke most highly of the discipline and health of the gentlemen cadets, but referred to one or two points which required attention. At Woolwich the state of things was less satisfactory, and the Visitors reported that there was a great want of increased accommodation.

EARL BROWNELOW said the Secretary of State took great interest in this matter, and was anxious as far as he could to make the alterations suggested. At Sandhurst, for instance, it had been decided to build a chapel; but the Secretary of State had thought it advisable to postpone the erection of the chapel, and devote the money to providing the necessary accommodation. At both Woolwich and Sandhurst a good deal had been done, and efforts would be made to carry out the recommendations of the visitors.

LORD HARLECH also urged the advisability of carrying out the visitors' recommendations.

The Indian Troopship Squadron.—In answer to Mr. Gourley, LORD G. HAMILTON said: The average time taken by the Indian troopships on the passage to and from Bombay is twenty-seven days, but the coal consumption is less than that of a merchantman of similar tonnage running at high speed. When it is necessary to replace the machinery of these ships the question of fitting engines of an improved type will be considered. Such expense would be a charge on Indian funds.

The Indian Engineering Colleges.—MR. H. S. KING moved for a return showing the capital cost of each of the four colleges of Rurki, Seebpore, Pooni, and Madras; the annual expenditure and amount of the return in the shape of fees in each case; and the number of annual Government appointments from each of these colleges. The motion was agreed to.

Tuesday, July 14.

Mess and Band Funds of Bengal Disbanded Regiments.—MR. KING asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether his attention had been drawn to the fact that the regiments, raised in the places of the four Hindustani regiments recently disbanded, though retaining the numerical titles of the disbanded or "converted" corps, are, in fact, new, being not only composed of other races, but placed with some few exceptions as to juniors under a new cadre of officers; whether the band and mess funds of a regiment are, and have always been, considered by military authorities in England and India as its private property, and have, on disbandment, been distributed among its officers; and, if so, will he explain on what grounds the Government of India announced, in April 1891, in general orders, that the band and mess funds of the old regiments should be handed over to the new, although the officers of the new regiments were ready and willing to pay for what was handed over; and whether similar steps have been taken with regard to certain disbanded Madras regiments.

SIR JOHN GORST said there appeared to have been some irregularity, and the Secretary of State had called for a report.

Indian Railway Gauges.—SIR EDWARD WATKIN asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether the Secretary of State for India is prepared to sanction the connection on the same gauge of the 2,008 miles of metre-gauge railway now working in Rajpootana, the North-West Provinces, and Central India with the Kattliwar system, 334 miles in length, on the one hand, and the Oude and Bengal systems, about 1,420 miles in length, on the other, thereby enabling direct and uninterrupted through communication over 3,765 miles of metre-gauge railway, constructed at a cost of 20,000,000*l.* sterling (of which four-fifths were provided by the British Indian Government), but now separated into four distinct sections which can be linked up in one continuous whole by the construction of, in all, about 120 miles of new line in two short lengths, at an estimated cost of 200,000*l.*, excluding a permanent bridge over the Gogra River, or of 400,000*l.* including such a bridge; whether the Secretary of State for India has received communications from the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway Company, who work 1,672 miles of the metre-gauge State lines in Rajpootana, Central India, and the North-West, and from the Bengal and North-Western and Rohilkund and Kumaon unguaranteed Railway Companies, who work over 1,000 miles of the metre-gauge lines in Bengal and Oude, and also memorials from the Chamber of Commerce of Upper India, Cawnpore, urging the completion of the connection in question; and, whether he is in a position to state that such connection shall be carried out without further loss of time, as the railways affected are in a satisfactory financial condition, and are anxious to get the work done at once.

SIR J. GORST: The Secretary of State is fully alive to the advantages which may accrue from the connection of gauges and is in communication with the Government of India on the subject.

Mutiny Veterans.—MR. J. WILSON (Govan) asked the Secretary for War whether anything could be done for the survivors of the eighty-seven men of the 42nd Highlanders, who, under Major Lawson (who was killed), held Sisseghat against an army of rebels numbering 2,000, on Jan. 15, 1859, and repulsed them with great loss; and whether at this late date the survivors, who are now aged and unpensioned, would have speedy recognition.

MR. E. STANHOPE: I have already undertaken to do the best I can with limited funds for some of the unpensioned survivors of the Crimean and Indian Mutiny campaigns, and the cases of the men referred to in the question will be considered with others.

Mrs. Melville.—MR. MACLEAN asked the Under-Secretary for India whether the Government of India had resolved to give Mrs. Melville, widow of the superintendent of telegraphs, who was cruelly tortured and murdered by the rebels in Manipore, no other provision than a pension of 700*l.* a year for herself, and of 18*l.* a year for each of her two boys; whether he was aware that Mr. Melville had at the time of his death served the Government of India for twenty-one years, was in receipt of a salary of 800 rs. a month, or about 700*l.* a year, and could have returned home in 1892 on a pension of 400*l.* a year, and whether, in view of the fact that Mr. Melville was a civil servant employed in the execution of his duty, and was permitted by the Government he served to pass into Manipore without warning or indication of danger, inasmuch that he carried no protective arms and had only two small-shot cartridges for his fowling-piece, the Secretary of State would recommend the Government of India to make some more adequate provision for the family of a man whose life was thus sacrificed through no fault of his own.

SIR J. GORST: The Government of India has proposed to the Secretary of State in Council that such provision should be made for Mrs. Melville as would have been made for the widow of a military officer of corresponding rank—viz., a captain—if killed in action. This proposal is now under the consideration of the Secretary of State in Council.

MR. MACLEAN asked whether the same principle would be applied to military officers and officers in the Civil Service.

SIR J. GORST asked for notice of the question.

MR. MACLEAN asked whether they were to understand that the question was still under consideration. Was the Secretary of State still open to receive communications on the subject?

SIR J. GORST: Yes, sir.

Orange Lodges in the Army.—MR. RENTOUL asked the Secretary for War whether there was any foundation for the statement published in various newspapers that the Commander-in-Chief had decided to suppress Orange lodges in the army; and whether he knew of any reason for interfering with the lodges of the society.

MR. E. STANHOPE: In reply to my hon. friend, I have to say that the statement in the newspapers is substantially correct. Formerly Orange lodges were forbidden, by name, in the Regulations for the Army; but in recent years it has been held that they were sufficiently covered by the rule which prohibited among soldiers political meetings of any sort whatever. As it came to the knowledge of the Commander-in-Chief that an Orange lodge had been formed in a regiment in contravention of the intention of the Queen's regulations, his Royal Highness gave orders for its being dissolved. (Hear, hear.)

QUESTIONS, &c.

Dr. Cameron on July 17 will ask the Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, in view of the fact that the new Constitution for Malta of Dec. 12, 1887, contained a provision for the appointment of three unofficial members of the Executive Council, to be selected from the fourteen unofficial members of the Council of Government, so that the Executive Council should not consist exclusively of the seven official non-elected members of the Council, and that, in a despatch to the Governor of Malta dated March 20, 1890, the Secretary to the Colonies stated that, in the opinion of the law officers of the Crown, the Executive Council of the Government of Malta can lawfully meet and transact business, notwithstanding that for the time being there may be no unofficial members of the Council, whether he will submit to the House the despatch of General Wilkie (No. 23, of Feb. 23, 1890), to which the despatch of March 20, 1890, was a reply? Can he explain why the despatch of March 20, 1890, was only published in Malta on April 21, 1891? Whether his attention has been drawn to the fact that, at the general election held in Malta in June last, thirteen out of the fourteen members were elected either without opposition or by enormous majorities to represent the views of those who desire that the Constitution of Dec. 12, 1887, may be so amended that the Executive Council shall be unable to transact business unless it consist of the full number of official and non-official members? And, whether, taking into consideration this practically unanimous desire of the electorate of Malta, and the views of the law officers of the Crown embodied in the despatch of March 20, 1890, the Secretary of State for the Colonies will recommend that the Constitution of Dec. 12, 1887, shall be so amended as to carry out what was understood at the time of its promulgation to be one of its most important provisions?

FRONTIER RAILWAYS.

SOME interesting information is given by Colonel Sargeant in the Railway Administration Report regarding the lines projected or in course of construction along the North-West frontier. Beginning with Peshawur, as the most northern strategic point, we find a short reference to the Cabul River survey, which was carried out with a view to test the feasibility of extending the railway towards Dakka and Jellalabad. The route taken was to the north of the Khyber hills, and it is stated that the first sixteen miles from Peshawur to Ursak would be comparatively easy work. Thereafter, however, to Narai, twenty-one miles, the character of the route changes as the river runs through a narrow gorge. On this section there would be much heavy cutting, many bridges, and tunnels aggregating some 2,300 yards in length. A fairly open valley is gained beyond Narai, and the eighteen miles onward to Dakka would not present any engineering difficulties so far as can be ascertained. From calculations made by Captain Macdonald, who made the survey, the cost of the line from Peshawur to Dakka (fifty-five miles in all) would not exceed 2*½* lacs per mile, presumably on the standard gauge. The alignment, we (Pioneer) believe, is a very good one; and the cost is certainly not prohibitive, when compared with the outlay upon the Harnai and Bolan lines. The project has, however, been hung up for the present, attention being concentrated for the time being upon the Zhob Valley scheme—the most ambitious that has yet been put forward.

Going further south we come upon the Khusalgarh-Attock project, this line being necessary as a strategic work in connection with the defence of the Indus. The difficulties here are mainly in connection with the cliffs of the Sakr Darra Pass through the Kala Chitta range, but an alignment has been found practically safe from landslips. The Indus, as we know, is not bridged between Attock and Sukkur, and a careful survey of 190 miles of the banks of the stream shows that no suitable site for a bridge exists between Kalabagh and Paharpore, a town on the left bank of the stream twenty miles above Dera Ismail Khan. Colonel Sargeant states that from an engineering point of view the upper bridge site (Kalabagh) is cheaper and safer than the lower, whose merits turn mainly on strategic questions. If the Indus were bridged at Paharpore, a line could be run from Shah Alum on the Sind-Sagar railway to Murtaza on the cis-Suleiman section of the Zhob valley system. No decision has yet been pronounced as regards the site of the bridge, and it is to be hoped that in forming their conclusions the military authorities will not ignore the claims of Bannu to be connected with the main railway system of Upper India. That outpost is at the mouth of the Tochi pass on the direct road to Ghazni, and it is of the first importance that good communications should be established with it. In the great war of the future for the possession of Afghanistan, Ghazni is certain to play an important part, owing not only to its position on the Cabul-Candahar road, but to its proximity to the Hazara country with its warlike population. If the Indus were bridged at Kalabagh, a line could be built direct from that point to Bannu: if the site chosen is further to the south, then Bannu should be linked with Khusalgarh through the Khattak country. Nothing whatever, by the way, is said about the latter scheme in the Railway Report, so that it has apparently been shelved for the time being. As to the Sind-Sagar line, which runs parallel with the Indus from Kuraishi opposite Dera Ghazi Khan to Mianwali, the extension from the latter station northwards to Mari opposite to Kalabagh is nearly finished, and will be opened for traffic in July or August. Another link will then have been added to the chain of strategic lines in the basin of the Indus.

Gold in Nilgiri.—The Nilgiri paper has been favoured by Mr. Johnston, the manager of the new Devala Moyer Gold-mining Company, with a view of some specimens of gold-bearing quartz. "To say that gold is visible is not sufficient; the quartz literally sparkles with the precious metal. The specimens, above twenty in number, were taken in the 78 and 116 feet levels. The richest were from the lower level. A shaft is being sunk that will tap the reef 300 feet below where the specimens were obtained."

The Price of Polo Ponies.—An influential military committee has been formed in connection with the scheme for reducing the extravagant prices now paid for polo ponies, and to bring down the prices of ponies generally. It is proposed that at the close of every polo tournament each pony that has been played, even for a few minutes, must be put for sale by auction at a fixed price, four only per team being excepted. The owner is to receive the upset price, any surplus over that amount being apportioned as follows:—One-half to go to the various competing teams to assist in defraying their railway expenses according to the distances they have travelled; one-quarter to be divided among them for their polo funds; and the remaining quarter to be spent in prizes or otherwise. As prices now rule so high, it will be necessary to begin with a high upset price the first year, and gradually to work down until 500 rs. is reached, this being taken as the limit. Thus in 1892 the figure would be 1,000 rs.; in 1893, 800 rs.; in 1894, 650 rs.; and in 1895 and onwards, 500 rs. The Commander-in-Chief is in favour of the subject being thoroughly discussed.

THE STATUE TO LORD NAPIER.

SPEECH BY THE PRINCE OF WALES.

IN unveiling on July 8 the statue which has been erected by public subscription to the memory of the late Lord Napier of Magdala, the Prince of Wales spoke with unmistakable sincerity of the gratification with which he received the honour and the opportunity of paying a slight tribute to the memory of a good soldier and a great man.

It is barely nineteen months ago since the pomp and ceremony which attended Lord Napier's funeral brought into public remembrance the services which this distinguished soldier had rendered his country—services which he himself had always been too modest and manly to attempt to ever advertise. In these months, except for the occasional rumour of a committee meeting, the services have had a good opportunity of being again forgotten. The statue which now stands in Waterloo Place, facing towards Piccadilly, is a needed reminder, if one may judge by the rather meagre crowd which assembled to see the unveiling. That it is also a worthy one the names of its sculptors—it was begun by Sir Edgar Boehm and finished by Mr. Alfred Gilbert, A.R.A.—should be a sufficient guarantee. The statue is of bronze and represents the late field-marshal on horseback, a field-glass in his right hand.

The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Clarence arrived at about noon, and were received by Lord Chelmsford and the members of the Committee. The Dowager Lady Napier was at once presented to the Prince, who remained for some moments in conversation with her. Among others present were the Duke of Cambridge, Lord and Lady Napier, Dean Bradley, Sir R. Temple, Sir Henry Havelock-Allan, Sir R. Hanson, General Milner, Lieutenant of the Tower, Mr. Shaw-Lefevre, General Fraser, General Pritchard, Lord and Lady Wantage, Sir F. Leighton, and Miss Boehm, daughter of the late Sir Edgar Boehm.

The Prince of Wales, before the actual ceremony of unveiling the monument, said: "Lord Chelmsford and members of the Committee,—You have conferred upon me a very great privilege in asking me to unveil the statue of the departed and illustrious general and great man, for whom I had the greatest personal regard and friendship. Lord Napier of Magdala learned the rudiments of his profession as an engineer first at the Addiscombe Military College, and then with the headquarters of his corps at Delhi, and for many years during the early portion of his career in the practical school as an executive engineer on the Great Eastern Jumna Canal, where, thrown into intimate relations with the agricultural classes of India, he learned to appreciate their virtues and to sympathise with their wants. In later years, when in supreme administrative charge of the Public Works Department of the then newly acquired province of the Punjab, he showed the value of his early training by the broadness of his views and the magnitude of his works, which in a few years obtained a degree of material development in advance of our oldest territories." The Prince then gave a sketch of Lord Napier's career, concluding as follows: "Such were among his deeds as a soldier. As a man he possessed all the qualities which create affection and inspire respect. Able, persevering, and prompt in action, without fear and without reproach, he strove to be the friend of the friendless and the support of the needy, while at the same time he allowed no personal feeling to interfere with the discharge of his duty as a soldier." (Cheers.)

His Royal Highness then unveiled the statue, which bears on the front of the pedestal the inscription, "Robert Napier, Lord Napier of Magdala, G.C.B., G.C.S.I., Field Marshal and Constable of the Tower of London. Born, 6th December, 1810; died, 14th January, 1890." At the rear is another inscription, "Erected by his countrymen, MDCCCXCI. He rests in St. Paul's Cathedral." After the unveiling the royal party returned to Marlborough House.

Napier of Magdala, says the Daily Telegraph, was an illustrious instance of the "Engineer-General"—himself a scientific soldier from his youthful days at Addiscombe and Delhi. He made his marks as deep in the fields of peace as in those of war—with the theodolite as much as with the sword; for to his remarkable gifts as a surveyor and irrigator are largely due the beneficent channels of the Bari-Doab and Huzil Canals, and the Grand Trunk road between Lahore and Peshawar, with many a smaller yet most serviceable work of the same kind in India. It was his engineering skill which sapped Mooltan, and which aided Sir James Outram and Sir Colin Campbell so greatly at the relief of Lucknow. Unhorsed at Moodki, he mounted his orderly's charger, and carried off the field a wounded and forsaken officer. He himself was three times wounded before he succeeded Lord Strathnairn—then Sir Hugh Rose—in the command of the Gwalior Force, when he broke and routed 6,000 of the rebel army, possessing twenty-six guns, with but one troop of horse artillery, one British squadron, and 400 native cavalry. He, too, it was who finally scattered the large levies of Tantia Topce in Central India, at the head of what may be called a handful of English troops, and who mainly contributed to put an end to the formidable Mutiny of 1857. In 1860 he commanded a division of the British forces on the Northern China Campaign, helping to assault and carry the Taku Forts, and to take Peking. It was in 1866 that he was chosen deservedly to lead the expedition against the far from "blameless" Ethiopians; but this part of his long and magnificent career is, of course, well known. It was picturesque and costly, no doubt, rather than arduous, and perhaps Lord Beaconsfield was well advised when he dwelt chiefly on these features of the conquest, telling the Peers how they had witnessed "the standards of St. George carried by the elephants of Hindoostan over the mountains of Rasselas." But the dispositions of that march were in the highest degree skilful and full of foresight, and as truly scientific in their way as any elaborate German campaign. Personally the venerable warrior was what the Prince of Wales so faithfully painted him—"able, persevering, and prompt in action; without fear, and without reproach; the friend of the friendless and the support of the needy; while at the same time allowing no personal feeling to interfere with the discharge of his duty as a soldier."

Mrs. Grimwood.—Among the donations to the Mrs. Grimwood fund received by the Princess of Wales are the following:—The Princess of Wales, 100*l.*; Lord and Lady Rothschild, 20*l.*; per Lady Rothschild, 21*l.*; Isabella, Countess of Wilton, 5*l.*; Mrs. Leopold Rothschild, 10*l.*; Lady Emily Kingscote, 21*l.*; Miss Alice de Rothschild, 10*l.*; Lady Burton, 25*l.*; the Duchess of St. Albans, 5*l.*; Baroness de Rothschild, 5*l.*; Lady A. Butler, 10*l.*; Lady Wimborne, 5*l.*; Field-Marshal Sir Patrick Grant, 2*l.* 10*s.*; the Hon. Lady Grant, 2*l.* 10*s.*; the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, 20*l.*; Lady Aberdare, 5*l.* The Globe, commenting on this list, says:—The subscription started by the Princess of Wales for the benefit of Mrs. Grimwood has now been open for a fortnight. Numerous references in the Press must have brought the existence of the fund to the notice of all newspaper readers. It will be remembered that at first it was proposed to restrict subscriptions to women with husbands and relations in the Army, but the Princess yielded to pressure which was brought to bear on her from many quarters, and afforded any Englishwoman a chance of contributing. As to the heroic conduct of Mrs. Grimwood, there cannot be two opinions; she behaved with exceptional gallantry under the pressure of private grief and public danger. Thus, there seemed to be every possible incentive to liberality. The object was a noble one; it was promoted by the most popular woman in England; knowledge of the facts were widespread and almost universal; the women of England had asked of their own accord to be allowed to subscribe. And yet that liberality has been wanting. At present the sum of 400*l.* is all that has been collected. Of this the Princess herself has given a quarter, and four other well-known persons have subscribed another quarter. The ten million women of the United Kingdom, the general public, have given just 200*l.* It would be easy enough to give an ill-natured account of this slowness in coming forward. Women, it might be said, are ready to collect money from their male friends and relations. They will sell at bazaars, they will make articles of needlework, they will even dance at charity balls, but they dislike contributing in any more direct way. We prefer to seek an explanation elsewhere. We decline to believe that women estimate heroism in their own sex at something less than the price of a hat or the cost of a bouquet. The more probable reason is that want of success has been due to sheer excess of popularity. Women have said to themselves, "I need not take any notice of the Princess's appeal. So many will be sure to do so." If such is the case there is yet time. The fund is still open and a successful end can still compensate for an unpromising beginning.

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF HYGIENE AND DEMOGRAPHY.

INDIAN COMMITTEE.

A MEETING of the Indian Committee of the above conference was held in the theatre of the Medical and Chirurgical Society, Hanover Square, on July 1. Among those present were Sir Douglas Galton, Sir Owen Burne, Sir Steuart Bayley, Sir Charles Bernard, Sir George Birdwood, Sir Charles Crosthwaite, Sir Charles Lawson, Surgeon-General Sir William Moore, Surgeon-General Cornish, Surgeon-General Cunningham, Surgeon-Major Hendley, C.S.I., Mr. M. M. Bhowmaggree, C.I.E., Mr. Baldwin Latham, Mr. Robert Stewart, Mr. T. H. Thomson, C.S.I., Mr. C. L. Tupper, Dr. G. V. Poore, and the Honorary Secretary for India, Mr. S. Digby.

Mr. S. Digby read the following report:—

Since our last meeting the following gentlemen have accepted invitations to become members of the Indian Committee:—Sir Arthur Birch, K.C.M.G.; Sir Charles Bernard, K.C.S.I.; Brigade-Surgeon T. E. Burton Browne, C.I.E.; Sir Charles Crosthwaite, K.C.S.I.; Mr. J. A. Godley, C.B.; Mr. Patrick Macfadyen; Mr. C. E. K. Ollivant, B.O. C.S., C.I.E.; Sir Albert Sassoon, Bart.; Mr. Robert Stewart.

Further delegates have been appointed by the Vice-Chancellor and the Syndicate of Calcutta University, the Syndicate of Madras University, the Municipal Corporation of Bombay, the Kurrachee Municipality, the Ceylon Chamber of Commerce, the National Indian Association, and the East India Association. The delegates of the Calcutta University are:—Sir Henry Harrison, Dr. A. Crombie, Dr. P. K. Roy.

The Madras University have nominated Surgeon-General Cornish, Surgeon-General G. Bidie, Brigade-Surgeon H. King.

The Bombay Municipal Corporation have selected as their delegate Mr. E. C. K. Ollivant, B.O.C.S., C.I.E. The Kurrachee Municipality have chosen their engineer and secretary, Mr. James Surachan, M.Inst.C.E. The National Indian Association will be represented by Surgeon-General C. R. Francis, and the East India Association by the Chairman of their Council, General Sir Richard Meade, as well as by Dr. Leitner, and Mr. P. M. Tait, F.S.S. The Ceylon Chamber of Commerce have nominated five gentlemen, hoping that two of them will be able to attend.

The Maharaja of Bhowmaggree has announced his intention of subscribing 100l., and of nominating Mr. M. M. Bhowmaggree, C.I.E., as the delegate of the Bhowmaggree State. Dr. Burjorjee, head of the State Medical Department, will, by direction of his Highness, prepare a paper on the progress of sanitation in the Maharaja's territory. A Reuter's telegram from Bombay reports that the Nizam's Government have subscribed 100l. The mail of July 6 brought a letter from the Maharaja of Cooh Behar promising 50l. His Highness writes:—“The objects of the Congress as stated by you will, I am sure, commend themselves to all who are interested in the progress of Hygiene and the improvement of public health. I am also glad to find that the Indian Empire will be well represented in the forthcoming Congress, and that the important problems of sanitation in ancient cities of India will form the subject of discussion.”

Messrs. Henry S. King and Co., of 65 Cornhill, have consented to receive subscriptions at their Calcutta and Bombay offices. This fact has been communicated to the Indian Press by the kindness of Reuter's Telegram Company.

In a letter from the India Office, dated Saturday last, Mr. Godley, Permanent Under Secretary of State, writes:—“Viscount Cross cordially wishes success to the Congress, and he still hopes that one or more native delegates may be deputed to join it from India. From three different sources I hear privately that Dr. K. N. Bahadurji, M.D., of London, whose name was suggested to Government by this Committee, is coming to England to attend the Congress. His travelling expenses, it is understood, will be paid by the Bombay Government. Though still a young man, Dr. Bahadurji enjoys a great reputation in the capital of the Western Presidency, and the Committee will no doubt receive with much satisfaction the announcement of the compliment paid to him and them by Lord Harris's Government. I understand that Dr. Bahadurji would read a paper or two—

(1) On Water-supply and Drainage in Indian towns;

(2) An Analysis of the Statistics relating to Factories, Hospitals, and Barracks in India, and its Importance with reference to Mortality from Chest Diseases.

It is believed that no such analysis has ever been undertaken in India. The latter paper would be very brief.

It is desirable that as much hospitality as possible should be extended to native gentlemen, who, like Dr. Bahadurji, will visit England solely for the purpose of attending the Congress. Already one or two offers to entertain such visitors have been made.

The organising committee advise that the special Indian meeting be held in the theatre of London University on Thursday in Congress week. It was hoped that Viscount Cross, whose interest in the Congress has been of great assistance to us, would be able to honour the committee by presiding. Unfortunately his lordship is prevented from complying with our request, as he will be out of town in August.

It was decided to invite General Sir Charles Brownlow, K.C.B., late Commander-in-Chief of the Madras Army, to join the committee, and a hope was expressed that he might be willing to read a paper before the Congress on the spread of contagious diseases in India since the abolition of the Contagious Diseases Act.

New Season's Tea.—The P. and O. steamer Shanghai, which arrived in the Royal Albert Docks on July 13, has on board the first consignment of new season's tea, amounting to 40,000 packages. The samples arrived a few days since by the same company's steamer Massilia, consequently the tea will be offered for sale in the market as soon as it is landed.

Messrs. HENRY S. KING & CO. have opened an Office at PORT SAID, and their Representative will go on board all Steamers when they arrive, to furnish Passengers with any Information or Assistance they may require, and to receive their Instructions for transmission to the London Firm or Branches.

AGENCY AT MALTA.

LONDON: WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1891.

MESS AND BAND FUNDS.

THE Times apparently does not think it worth while to publish reports of all questions put in Parliament, and it is not very discriminating in its selection. MR. KING's question last night relating to the appropriation of the mess and band funds of four disbanded Bengal regiments was one in which all Army officers would feel an interest. The Times ignores it. We give the question and answer in our Parliamentary notes. The SECRETARY OF STATE, we are glad to see, acknowledges that there appears to have been "some irregularity," and a report has been called for. We believe the principle which is acknowledged at the India Office is, that when the same body of officers remain in a "converted" regiment, they take over the mess and band funds, but when a regiment is disbanded the funds are distributed. That is only equitable, but why should the Indian Government require to be moved to do what is right by a Parliamentary question, when the Pioneer and other leading papers in India have for months been showing up the injustice of the ruling in the case of these four regiments?

THE UNCOVENANTED SERVICE AND MR. KING.

THE pleasant reunion at MR. KING's house in Cornwall Gardens on Saturday, when a goodly number of representatives of the Uncovenanted Service at Home presented him with a very handsome and appropriate testimonial of their sense of gratitude for his active efforts on their behalf, formed a very fitting termination to a long and arduous struggle. Most of the gentlemen who then waited upon MR. KING had taken a vigorous part in the movement which culminated in the report of the Select Committee last August, and MR. KING acknowledged in cordial terms how much of the success achieved had been due to the faithful and untiring work of the London Committee. Those gentlemen are specially entitled to the gratitude of their Indian confrères. SIR GUILFORD MOLESWORTH's able speech, taking a comprehensive review of the position of the Service, and MR. KING's reply, will be read with interest in India, and may we hope exercise a useful influence on the Indian Government. MR. KING shewed in his reply how deeply he was touched by the cordiality of the feelings which had prompted the presentation of so magnificent a gift.

MRS. MELVILLE.

MR. MACLEAN last night very properly drew attention to the miserable compensation which the Government of India proposed to offer MRS. MELVILLE, widow of the Superintendent of Telegraphs who was so cruelly murdered in the Manipore disturbances. The Secretary of State appears to be willing to give a more generous consideration to her claims. The Indian Government perhaps thought that 100*l.* a year was enough for the widow of an "Uncovenanted."

MR. QUINTON.

It is proposed to place, as a memorial to the late MR. QUINTON, a stained glass window in the parish church of Enniskillen, the town in which he was born and educated, and to which his family has long belonged. The following committee has been constituted:—John Bradshaw, M.A., LL.D., Madras Educational Department (on leave) Sandown; W. R. Cooney, Lakeview, Enniskillen; Rev. W. B. Lindesay, LL.D., head master, Royal School, Enniskillen; Rev. Canon Ovenden, B.D., rector of Enniskillen; T. Plunkett, M.R.I.A., chairman, Town Commissioners, Enniskillen. We are asked to say that subscriptions will be received by MR. BRADSHAW, at Sandown, Isle of Wight, and will be acknowledged in the Homeward Mail. The following subscriptions have been received:—Lord Ripon, 5*l.*; John Bradshaw, 5*l.*; Rev. W. B. Lindesay, 5*l.*; W. R. Cooney, 5*l.*; The Bishop of Calcutta, 2*l.* 2*s.*; Sir A. C. Lyall, 2*l.* 2*s.*; Mrs. Bryden, 2*l.* 2*s.*; E. Stanley Robertson, late B.C.S., 2*l.* 2*s.*; J. Whiteside Dane, 1*l.* 1*s.*; Mrs. Le Fleming, 1*l.* 1*s.*; Mrs. Fynes Clinton, 1*l.* 1*s.*; Surgeon W. Deane, 1*l.*; H. Vernon, 1*l.*; Sir J. B. Peile, 1*l.*

The MacIver Steamship Company (Limited), whose advertisement appears in our present issue, has been formed with a share-capital of 750,000*l.* divided into 75,000 shares of 10*l.* each. There are also debentures for 250,000*l.*, of which the directors reserve the right to issue 150,000*l.*, which will bear interest at 5 per cent., and constitute floating charges over the company's undertaking, in part payment of the purchase money. Any debentures not so applied will be issued only if and when it may be deemed advantageous so to do in the interests of the company. The company has been formed to acquire and develop the established business of the City of Liverpool Steam Navigation Company (Limited), including the line of passenger and cargo steamers now engaged in the East Indian trade, and additional ships, now in course of construction, and to meet the demand of passengers and shippers for a high-class line of steamers between Glasgow, Liverpool, and the Australasian ports. An agreement has been entered into with Messrs. D. and C. MacIver, whereby they undertake the management of the company for a period of not less than fourteen years, and they, with a few personal friends, will subscribe 200,000*l.* towards the capital of the new company.

We have received the sixteenth Annual Report of the Mission to Lepers in India for the year 1890. The Marchioness of Dufferin is the Patroness, and the Committee is composed chiefly of Dublin ladies and gentlemen. The pamphlet contains the report of Mr. Bailey, Secretary and Superintendent, of his journey to India and Burma. In the latter country an asylum has been opened. On the appeal of missionaries to China an extension has been made into that field, and a grant of 200*l.* has been made for a Leper hospital at Hang-Chow. A strong appeal is made for help to this most practical mission. The Honorary Secretary is Miss C. E. Pim, Alma, Monkstown, co. Dublin, and Mr. Wellesley C. Bailey's address is 27 Glengyle Terrace, Edinburgh. There is also a Brighton auxiliary, of which Miss Hornbuckle, 3 Alexandra Villas, Brighton, is secretary.

Sir William Mackinnon, Bart., C.I.E., Mr. Lionel Ashburner, C.S.I., and Mr. Budruddin Tyabjee, the well-known Mahomedan barrister, of Bombay, have joined the Indian Committee of the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography. With the approval of the Prince of Wales as president, his Excellency the Viceroy of India, the Gaekwar of Baroda, and the Maharaja of Bhowanuggur have been appointed vice-presidents. In reply to a letter addressed to him by Mr. S. Digby, the Honorary Secretary for India, the Maharaja of Jeypore has telegraphed through his Dewan that he will subscribe 100*l.* to the funds of the Congress. The Rangoon Chamber of Commerce have just appointed as their delegate Mr. W. G. Reddie, of the firm of Messrs. J. and G. Bullock. All the Indian Chambers of Commerce have now selected representatives. We hear that the Maharaja of Mysore intends to nominate a delegate.

Prince Christian Victor has taken a passage for Bombay by the steamer Peshawur, leaving London on Sept. 10.

A special Judge has been appointed by the Gwalior Durbar to inquire into the case of Bulwant Rao, and will arrive shortly at Oojain. The Maharaja Holkar of Indore has agreed to surrender his police for trial.

Lord and Lady Napier of Magdala were prevented by their doctor's orders from attending the unveiling of the statue of Field-Marshal Lord Napier of Magdala. Lord and Lady Napier are at Folkestone, and have not yet fully recovered from their recent severe attack of influenza.

Colonel Prince Louis Esterhazy, the Austrian Military Attaché at London, who returned last April from India, Afghanistan, and Beloochistan, is, according to the Fremdenblatt, lying seriously ill at Carlsbad.

"Atlas," in the World, says he is informed that Sir Edward Malet will be raised to the peerage very shortly, and it is probable that he will choose the title of Lord Woburn.

It is officially announced that the Queen has directed Letters Patent to be passed under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom for the annexation of the Great Basses Rock and the Little Basses Rock to the Island of Ceylon.

Mr. S. Smith will raise on the Indian Budget the question of an inquiry into the general administration of Indian affairs, with particular reference to the introduction of a representative element. The operation of the Indian Factory Acts will also be discussed. The recent modification in the Standing Orders with regard to the Budget will give scope for a general discussion on Indian affairs on the motion that the Speaker leave the chair; but the Budget will not be taken until the Appropriation Bill is before the House.

Letters bearing the Yokohama post-mark of June 12, were delivered in London on July 8, the time of transmission being only twenty-six days. This mail came via Vancouver—that is, by the new Canadian Pacific Railway route, and appears to have been the quickest delivery on record. The Canadian Pacific Railway has lately established on the Pacific Ocean a fast line of steamers to Vancouver, and instead of the forty-three days, which is the approximate time occupied in the course of post from Yokohama, via Suez, according to the "Post-Office Guide," we can now communicate with that place in twenty-six days. The "Guide" assigns thirty-one days as the time of transmission between London and Yokohama via Vancouver, but the new record is much better even than this.

Young men who are looking forward to joining the Bengal Pilot Service, says the Glasgow Herald's correspondent, had better hesitate before taking any decisive step, as that service does not offer at all as good prospects as formerly, and the experience of old members would be misleading. In times past the Indian Government was able to get the smartest youths of the training-ships Conway and Worcester. After serving an apprenticeship of five years one might count upon receiving 450 rs. a month as a mate, and reaching in four years more a mastership, with a monthly pay of 850 rs. But the increase in the size of ships has on the Hooghly, just as it has done in Great Britain, revolutionised the pilot business. In proportion to the quantity they hold these large vessels pay much less than the barques and brigs in which the bulk of the over-sea trade used to be carried on, and, besides there being fewer vessels to pilot, the juniors are precluded from taking charge of vessels above a certain tonnage. A friend in the service tells me that the consequence of this is that, while a few of the elder men make very good incomes, the bulk of the sixty pilots forming the staff do not earn on an average more than 200 rs. a month, out of which a large deduction is made for a widows' fund. After thirty years a Covenanted pilot may retire on a pension, but the amount of this is small, and the number given strictly limited to, I believe, four in three years, so that the regulations tend to keep men in harness long after retirement would be desirable in the interests of a quick flow of promotion.

The first annual convention of the Theosophical Society of Europe was held on July 9 at St. John's Wood, the chair being occupied by Colonel H. S. Olcott, the president-founder of the society. Mrs. Besant, Mr. W. Q. Judge, vice-president of the society, and various delegates from Ireland, Sweden, Spain, and other countries were present, and took part in the discussions. The business of the morning included resolutions passed in honour of the late Mme. Blavatsky, and the presentation of the reports of the general secretaries and treasurers. The theosophical outlook appears to be most favourable in Scandinavia, though it was said that great exertions were being made also in Spain and Austria. Among the resolutions carried were two in which it was decided that the best manner of perpetuating Mme. Blavatsky's work would be to publish theosophical works as much as possible, and that a memorial fund should be started with this object in view. Colonel Olcott submitted to the Convention a proposal for the division of the deceased lady's ashes into three portions, to be severally entrusted to the Theosophical centres in Madras, New York, and London. It was determined to carry out the suggestion, and to accept the offer of a Swedish lady, Mme. Scholander, to provide an urn of embossed copper to contain the portion assigned to Europe.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES.

THE following changes are to take place shortly in the Financial Department:—Mr. W. H. Dobbie, deputy accountant-general, Allahabad, succeeds Mr. T. H. S. Biddulph as comptroller at Hyderabad, the latter taking up the post of deputy comptroller, Calcutta. Mr. Kiernander acts as accountant-general during Mr. O. T. Barrow's absence on leave. Mr. F. Atkinson, assistant comptroller, British Burma, takes Mr. Dobbie's place as deputy accountant-general, North-Western Provinces.

A pension of 140 rs. per month was awarded to Mr. Scharlieb on his retirement from the Service. Being dissatisfied with this amount, he petitioned the Local Government, who declined to interfere. He then represented his case to the Secretary of State and proceeded to England, where he died on Jan. 9 last. But now orders have been received allowing Mr. Scharlieb a pension of 2,500 rs. per annum.

An alteration has been made in the Indian Civil Service regulations, which should be widely made known now that officers often spend their leave travelling through the Colonies. It is to the effect that "an officer having selected the country in which he desires to draw his leave allowances is permitted to change only once during any one period of leave," hitherto officers being privileged to take payment in any of the Colonies in which they might find themselves, even to such remote spots as Falkland Islands, St. Helena, Honduras, or the Gold Coast.

We (Indian Engineering) sincerely hope there is a mistake in the rumour that the claims of the Public Works Department officials, who lost their property during the Wuntho rising, in Upper Burma, have been peremptorily rejected. It is bad enough for the unfortunate Engineers to have been posted in the home papers as wounded, dead, and missing, without receiving such scurvy treatment at the hands of Government. The authorities may be disposed, perhaps, to go on the ground that the Engineers have no legal claim to compensation. Doubtless they have not. But it is unworthy of the Government of India to deal in this niggardly way with its servants in the Public Works Department, a department by no means over liberally dealt with in the way of pay and allowances, though doing most important work.

To cope with the present extensive projects in communications, necessitated by the recent addition of Wuntho and neighbouring Shan States, application, the same paper says, has been made for an addition to the regular P.W.D. staff. The services of eleven Executive and Assistant Engineers and twelve Upper Subordinates have been applied for. This increase will then give the Province one Chief Engineer, four Superintending Engineers, seventy-two Executive and Assistant Engineers, and ninety-six Upper Subordinates for its ordinary requirements. The revised estimate debited to Public Works for the year 1890-91 is 74,24,000 rs., and that for 1891-92 shows 84,88,000 rs., comparing favourably with the results of other Indian possessions.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie, chief commissioner of Burma, says Indian Engineering, has published one of his offensive resolutions, on the relations of executive engineers to deputy commissioners, which appears to us as uncalled for as it is objectionable. As in the case of the officer who was reported for indebtedness, Sir A. Mackenzie, instead of venting his displeasure on the individual, thought fit to insult every officer of every department with a caution against indebtedness, so in the instance of a silly squabble, the chief commissioner, instead of dealing with the case on its merits, has thought proper to subject every executive engineer to indignity. Half the districts of Burma are held by deputy commissioners who are mere boys of five to eight years' service, to whom executive engineers of long standing, who are growing grey in the service of Government, are to be subordinated. As regards procedure, the circular prescribes nothing new on the existing practice; as regards the relations of the officers and the despatch of business, it has sown the seeds of discord from which a fruitful harvest of frictional correspondence may surely be expected to arise. In a word, the circular is mischievous and unnecessary.

Civil Service of India.—The following are declared by the Civil Service Commissioners to have obtained the first thirty-two places in the recent open competitive examination for the Civil Service of India, but their selection is conditional on their passing a medical examination, which will be held in London in the course of a few days:—

East India Association.—At the Westminster Town Hall, on Monday, July 20, a paper will be read by William C. Macpherson, Esq., Bengal Civil Service, on "The Development of Agriculture in India." James Bryce, Esq., M.P., will preside.

United Services Proprietary College.—Westward Ho!—The eighteenth annual general meeting of the shareholders took place in Hanover Square on June 30, General Sir H. E. B. Daubeney, G.C.B., in the chair, when the balance-sheet and report for the past year were laid before the meeting, and a dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum declared. Admiral Sir George Willels, K.C.B., moved the adoption of the report, which was carried unanimously. The retiring members of the council, Admiral R. A. Powell, C.B., and Lieutenant-General Jenkin Jones, R.E., were unanimously re-elected. The proceedings terminated with votes of thanks to the chairman, council, and head master (Mr. Carmell Price, M.A., B.C.L.), the College staff, and secretary.

Mutual Insurance for India.—Under the auspices of the East India Association a meeting of gentlemen interested in assurance, or in the public affairs of India, was held under the presidency of General Sir Richard Meade, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., at the Westminster Town Hall on July 10, the subject of the conference being a series of suggestions by Mr. P. M. Tait, F.S.S., as to the establishment of a great Mutual Provident Fund for India. Mr. Tait pointed out that in Australia, the Canadian Dominion, South Africa, and other dependencies of the Empire there are great mutual life offices or provident funds, where the savings of the subscribers are husbanded for themselves alone. In India alone, with her population of 286,000,000, there is no mutual provident fund unconnected with the Services. To Mr. Tait it always seemed a monstrous and almost ludicrous thing to charge a native Indian gentleman more for insuring in his own country than was required from the British foreigner. It might be proper to charge the Indian more in England if he elected to run the gauntlet of our variable climate, but to charge him extra for living in his own country appeared to non-experts as wholly unjustifiable. Mr. Tait also urged that it was quite feasible that the same rate should be charged for England and India, for Natives and Europeans, without regard to race, and so really all over the British Empire with reference to different nationalities. Suppose the English rate to be 75% and the Indian 100%, let the difference of 25% per annum constitute a debt on the policy carrying interest at 3 per cent. per annum, to be extinguished when the yearly premium with interest at 3 per cent. per annum amounted to the sum assured. The highest living authority on the subject concurred that a uniformity of Occidental and Oriental rates is financially justifiable, and its application would have the inestimable merit of simplicity; and India, with its vast population and vast resources, would be open to an enormous development of the practice of insurance. A discussion followed, closing with the customary votes of thanks.

COMMERCIAL.

The Bank of Madras has declared a dividend of 10 per cent. for the past half-year and carried forward 9,800l.

CALCUTTA, June 22.

At the meeting of the directors of the Bank of Bengal, held on June 18, no change was made in the rate of interest. The official minimum was maintained at 3 per cent.

The Bank's statement for the week ending June 15 shows the following changes in figures:—

LIABILITIES.
Bank's Investments	Rs. 2,01,148	Increase
Loans	5,85,575	Decrease
Accounts of Credits	5,25,626	Decrease
Mercantile Bills	10,01,877	Decrease
Cash at Head Office	2,40,769	Decrease
Do. at Branches	5,09,188	Increase

ASSETS.
Treasury Balance at Head Office ...	Rs. 4,65,830	Decrease
Do. at Branches	2,49,722	Decrease
Other Deposits	9,48,012	Decrease
Post Bills	83,970	Increase

Analysing the above figures, it will be seen that the ordinary trade demand for money on this Bank has decreased by nearly 12½ lacs, made up as follows:—By an increase of about ½ lac in "Post Bills," together with a decrease of 5½ lacs in "Loans," 5½ lacs in "Accounts of Credits," and over 10 lacs in "Mercantile Bills," minus a decrease of about 9½ lacs in "Other Deposits." The Treasury Balance at head office stands reduced by over 4½ lacs and by nearly 2½ lacs at the branches. The Bank's investments were increased by over 2 lacs. The final result of these changes is a decrease of over 2½ lacs in the cash at head office, while it stands augmented by nearly 5½ lacs at the branches, making the exact total 6,13,68,534 rs., equal to 62½ per cent. of the liabilities of the Bank, against a proportion of 60½ per cent. last week.

TEA.—At the sales held on June 18, 6,447 chests were offered and 5,920 sold. There was good demand for almost all teas, and prices were very firm, common packages being taken to some large extent for Bombay, recovered the recent fall in value. Some Kangra Valley invoices of fair quality were offered but withdrawn, limits not being obtainable.

JUTE.—Supplies of loose jute in the Bazaar have been small, and with a good demand ruling prices are firm. No sales of old crop baled jute, but there have been some few transactions in new, on the basis of 25 rs. to 25-8 rs. for decent marks. The majority of balers are not sellers, preferring to await the further development of the growing crop, reports from some districts being rather less favourable.

GUNNIES.—The tone of the market has been steady, with a moderate business doing. The country took a quantity of No. 2 twills for early, and Burma a few C.'s and E.'s. Cape buyers operated freely in No. 2 twills and packs for July. Offers from the U.K. have been considerably below sellers' ideas, and only small sales are reported of Salts and E.'s.

HESSIANS also are steady. San Francisco took a further line of wheat bags for the sailers, and New York some 8-10 lacs of 8 and 10½ oz. 40" cloth.

JOINT-STOCK SHARES.—Another almost blank week has to be recorded. Owing to the intense heat, business for all practical purposes has been suspended by mutual consent at 1.30 P.M. daily, and not only have transactions been limited among European operators, but native dealers and speculators have also withheld their hands. Almost immediately after the severe fall in Sonapets it became known that Mr. Giffard, the representative of Messrs. John Taylor and Sons, had selected a portion of the Sonapet property on behalf of the Mining and Prospecting Syndicate, and as the decline was in some measure due to the report that he would not recommend the acquisition of a block, a reaction took place, and shares rapidly recovered some 3 a., and have since been fluctuating to the extent of 1 a. to 1½ a., and close slightly weak. Bengal gold and silver, too, have been done to a moderate extent at 10 a., and 10 a. 6 p., but do not show much strength. In respect to other stocks there is little or nothing to be said. Jute mill shares do not show any animation and register a decline, except Unions. Shares can be procured readily enough, but there is a great scarcity of buying orders. India generals keep remarkably steady, and they are reported to be doing well this half-year; but not a single transaction has been reported in tea or cotton. A few shares in various miscellaneous companies have been taken up on investment account, but these also are on a smaller scale than usual.

BANK OF BENGAL.

Rate of Interest for Demand Loans 3 per cent.

BOMBAY, June 25.

Very little has been doing in cotton either for export or local consumption; while the wheat and seed markets have latterly been inactive, though not without some little fluctuation in rates. Under the influence of advices regarding silver, a strong upward movement took place in exchange at the beginning of the week, and a material advance in rates, especially for private paper, was attained in a somewhat excited market; and though a sharp reaction afterwards took place, on a drop in the governing metal being wired from New York, rates are 11-32d. to 3d. higher than they were, with a firm feeling at the close. Government paper, after advancing considerably, is ½ per cent. higher for Fours. Freight have been dull and declining, but the feeling is now a shade steadier. In the continued absence of rain in the districts, the import market remains dull, wholesale demand having almost ceased, and prices are in some cases almost nominal.

MONEY.—The increase of 4½ lacs in the Presidency Bank's cash balance disclosed by the statement issued at the beginning of last week, and the prospect of increasing ease in the Money Market in view of the close of the more active export season, led naturally to the reduction of the bank's rates on June 18; and thereafter the movement of money continued in the same direction, the further increase in the cash balance at the close of last week having been over 30½ lacs. There had again been a large accession to private deposits, while the falling-off in loans and bills discounted had been about the same as in the week preceding, the total contraction of the trade demand being represented by about 27½ lacs, against 32½ lacs the week before; the balance being again helped by some increase in public deposits, though somewhat diminished by a larger amount in Government securities. No further change in rates has been made this afternoon, and the Bank of Bombay minimum remains at 3 per cent.

Imports.—PIECE-GOODS.—The absence of rain and the fluctuations in sterling exchange have been the main hindrances to business in staple grey goods. Demand from the up-country markets has been absent, and prices have been of a nominal character; and though holders are very willing to sell, they meet with no buyers of importance.

YARNS.—Prices of imported twist may be called ¼ anna per lb. lower, the market being steady at the decline, and only a moderate business having been done.

METALS.—A small business has been done in copper, and prices have given way 8 a. to 16 a. per cwt. in a quiet market. Yellow metal also has been quiet in tone with little doing, and rates show a decline of 8 a. to 12 a. per cwt. Iron has been taken to a moderate extent only; but prices show no change, and the feeling has been quiet in this market also.

Coal is quiet, not to say dull. Sales have transpired of 1,000 tons of Davison's West Hartley on the Bunder at 14 rs.; and 600 tons of the same description, of July-August shipment, at 13½ rs. per ton. There is now no demand for any description of coal for certain than September-October shipment, and buyers are open to take Powell's Duffryn Cardiff, in that position, at 16 rs.; and Davison's West Hartley at 14 rs. per ton. The stock on the Bunder is estimated at about 75,000 tons.

Exports.—COTTON.—The week has been a very quiet one for business in this staple, hardly any demand having been experienced from exporters and still less from local spinners, under the influence, in the case of the former, of dull accounts from the governing markets, and in the latter of continued discouraging advices regarding Bombay yarn from China. Only a small business has been done daily, and prices gave way 1 r. to 3 rs. per candy in the earlier part of the week without inducing more buyers. For export, about 3,500 bales have been taken, consisting principally of Dharwar, Nugger, and other Oomra kinds, Broach, and Bengals; while the Mills have bought about 3,000 bales chiefly Julgaum and other descriptions of Oomra, Bhow-nugger, and Tinnivelly. The market closes quiet, with prices 1 r. to 3 rs. per candy lower than they were.

The receipts of cotton of this season's crop during the week have been 33,000 bales, compared with 48,200 bales to hand in the week preceding, and 24,100 bales arrived in the corresponding week last year; and the falling off in the present season crop compared with that of 1889-90 is now 223,800 bales.

WHEAT was firm, but with only a moderate business passing when last mail left, and the feeling remained steady to the close of the week without change in rates. Afterwards transactions for export were upon a small scale in a quiet market; but prices gave way one anna per cwt. on July 23, the decline, however, having been partially recovered on the following day.

SEEDS have been taken to a small extent in the aggregate by shippers in a generally quiet market.

ANNUAL BONUS POLICIES.THEIR SPECIAL ADVANTAGES.

I.—Economy of Premium at Outset of Assurance.

The Premium charged by the "UNIVERSAL," on the Policy being effected, and irrespective of reduction by Cash Bonus annually after six payments, has always been from 5 to 10 per cent. lower than the average scale of Premiums charged by such few other Life Offices that divide Bonuses every year. The rates of the "UNIVERSAL" are also more economical than those of the average of Offices declaring Bonuses only once every five years.

II.—Low Rates of Premium Reduced by Annual Cash Bonus.

The practice of an Annual Division of Profits has long been considered by leading authorities to be the most just and regular that can be adopted. Its success in the case of the "UNIVERSAL" has been shown in more than half a century's experience, by enabling returns of Premium to be made to the assured averaging upwards of 45 per cent. of the original rates charged, thus practically reducing the average outlay for the Policy to 55 per cent., or 11s. in the pound, of the contract rates stipulated to be paid.

III.—Large Reversionary Bonuses Annually Added.

The sum allotted to each Policy at the yearly Division of Profits may be applied either in reduction of the current year's Premium, or in annual augmentation of the amount assured, by the addition to the Policy of such Reversionary Bonus as each year's return of premium will assure as a Single Premium at the then age.

PROSPECTUS.

This company has been formed to acquire and develop the established business of the City of Liverpool Steam Navigation Company (Limited) (including the line of passenger and cargo steamers now engaged in the East Indian trade and additional ships now in course of construction), and to meet the demand of passengers and shippers for a high-class line of steamers between Glasgow, Liverpool, and the Australasian ports. The vessels included in the purchase are as follows:—

Name.	Tonnage.	Built in	Name.	Tonnage.
LYCIA.....	3,280.....	1888	ISAURIA.....	5,330
ETOLIA.....	3,269.....	1887	IONIA.....	5,330
NIAGARA.....	3,104.....	1883	RUTHENIA ..	5,400
EUROPA.....	2,308.....	1881	LUCANIA	5,400
CUBA.....	2,119.....	1883

The vessels now in service are classed 100 A1 at Lloyd's, and those now under construction are being built to the same classification, and represent a tonnage of 35,540 tons gross register.

The purchase price for the whole of the properties, &c., proposed to be acquired is £514,000, which was based upon a preliminary valuation of the fleet only (which is now shown by the certificate of Mr. Preston to be an under-estimate), although this Company acquires, in addition to the nine steamers, all coal, plant, gear, &c., the goodwill of the business, and the benefit of contracts, since the date of the contract for sale to which reference is hereafter made.

Mr. John Preston, the well-known shipbroker and valuer, has furnished the Directors of the Company with the following certificate:—

93 and 94 Gracechurch Street, London, E.C.,
June 24, 1891.

DEAR SIRS,—In accordance with your instructions I have carefully valued the steamers Lucia, Etolia, Niagara, Europa, and Cuba, now owned by the City of Liverpool Steam Navigation Company (Limited), and I have also examined the plans, specifications, &c., of the steamers Isauria and Ionis, now building by Messrs. Harland and Wolff, and the Ruthenia and Lucania, now building by Sir W. G. Armstrong, Mitchell, and Co. (Limited), and I am of opinion that the actual sale value of the said nine steamers is £522,000.—
Yours truly,
JOHN PRESTON.

Messrs. D. & C. Maciver, who have been the Managers of the City of Liverpool Steam Navigation Company (Limited) since its formation, and who have agreed to act as Managers of this Company, have reported to the Directors as follows:—
64 and 65 Tower Buildings, Liverpool:
June 24, 1891.

Gentlemen,—As Managers of the City of Liverpool Steam Navigation Company (Limited), we certify that it has a sound and well-established business between Liverpool, Glasgow, and the principal ports of India, including Kurrachee, Bombay, Calcutta, &c. By the addition of the new steamers now building, that line will be greatly developed, and in our opinion it will be a highly lucrative branch of the Company's operations. With respect to the Australasian trade the reliable and extensive information we have obtained satisfies us that an enormous amount of cargo is available for vessels which offer the advantage of an expeditious conveyance by steam, and that the limited number of steamers now trading between Liverpool and Australasia is a cause of great inconvenience and serious loss to the merchants and shippers. The contracts for additional high-class twin-screw steamers for the Australasian trade have been made by the City of Liverpool Steam Navigation Company (Limited), with our strong approbation, and in our judgment the valuation of £522,000, as the present value of the nine vessels proposed to be transferred, is a fair and prudent valuation of the vessels in question. Assuming the purchase will be arranged at £514,000, we have prepared and herewith submit calculations which show profits of trading sufficient to provide average annual dividends of at least 10 per cent., after allowing for all working expenses and depreciation. So strong is our confidence in the future success of this enterprise that we ratify the use of our name in association with the Company, and we, with a few personal friends, will subscribe £200,000 towards the capital of the new Company.—Yours truly,

D. & C. MACIVER.

An agreement has been entered into with Messrs. D. & C. Maciver, whereby they undertake the management of the Company for a period of not less than fourteen years.

Messrs. D. and C. Maciver's long and successful association with the management of steamships and their high reputation in the shipping and commercial world, added to the large financial stake they will have in the Company, should be a sufficient guarantee that their estimates are carefully calculated, and that the management of the Company will be vested in practical and efficient hands.

The steamers of the Maciver Line have long been most favourably known by underwriters, the rates of insurance being of an exceptional character; and with the adoption of twin-engines and twin-screws, &c., the largest ships of the Company's fleet cannot fail to still further increase the confidence now enjoyed by the Line.

The business and properties will be acquired as from Jan. 1, 1891.

The contract of sale, made June 24, 1891, between the City of Liverpool Steam Navigation Company (Limited) of the first part, Charles Maciver, Henry Maciver, and William Maciver of the second part, the Corporate Trust (Limited) of the third part, and the Maciver Steamship Company (Limited) of the fourth part, provides for the payment out of the said purchase price of all legal and other expenses attending the negotiation of the purchase, the valuation of the steamers, and the incorporation and registration of the Company, and also all brokerage, advertisements, legal, and other expenses attending the formation of the Company, down to and including allotment. In relation to these and other matters, arrangements have been entered into with various persons, also arrangements have been made for guaranteeing the subscription of capital, which may constitute contracts within the meaning of the 38th section of the Companies Act, 1867. There are also various contracts connected with the business to be taken over as a going concern which it might be inexpedient to publish. Applicants for shares must be deemed to waive the insertion of dates and names of the parties to any such contracts or arrangements, and to accept the above statements as a sufficient compliance with the Act.

The Contract of Sale gives the Directors the option of paying £150,000 of the purchase-money by Debentures of the Company, constituting part of a total issue limited to £250,000, and bearing interest at 5 per cent. per annum. If Debentures are issued, they will constitute a floating charge over the undertaking.

The Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company, the Contract of Sale, the Valuation of Mr. John Preston, and the Report of Messrs. Maciver, can be inspected by any intending subscriber at the Offices of the Solicitors of the Company.

Applications will be made for quotations on the London, Liverpool, Manchester, and Glasgow Stock Exchanges.

Prospectuses and forms of application can be obtained from the Secretary Bankers, Solicitors, Brokers, and Auditors of the Company.

Applications for shares must be made on the form accompanying the prospectus, and forwarded with a remittance for the amount of the deposit to the Company's bankers. In any case where no allotment is made, the deposit will be returned in full, and when the number of shares allotted is less than the number of shares applied for, the surplus will be credited in reduction of the amount payable on allotment.

GENERAL NEWS.

By the arrival of the present mail, via Brindisi, we are placed in possession of advices and gazettes from Calcutta to June 30; Madras, July 1; Bombay, July 3.

The Marquess of Lansdowne, who has been suffering from a severe attack of influenza, is rapidly recovering. His recent public contradiction of the rumours of his approaching retirement has been received with general satisfaction, the Times correspondent at Calcutta states, except by some rabid native papers, which have taken up a hostile attitude since the introduction of the Age of Consent Bill.

The Viceroy has expressed his intention of taking an early opportunity of accepting a cordial invitation from H.H. the Nizam to visit Hyderabad.

The Queen has approved of the appointment of Sir William Robinson, K.C.M.G., Governor of Trinidad, to be Governor of Hong Kong, in the place of Sir G. William Des Vœux, K.C.M.G., who is about to relinquish the government of that colony.

Her Majesty has also approved of the appointment of Sir Frederick Napier Broome, K.C.M.G., late Governor of Western Australia, to be Governor of Trinidad.

It is requested that those ladies to whom collecting cards for the Princess of Wales's "Mrs. Grimwood Fund" were sent, will return them as soon as possible to the Hon. Secretary, at Marlborough House. The fund now amounts to about 750*l*.

The Lisbon correspondent of the Times writes on July 20:—The delegate of the British Indian Government, Mr. Carey, and his private secretary arrived to-day by the steamer Moselle. He will be presented in a few days to the Minister for Foreign Affairs, and will await the proposals of the Portuguese Government for the new treaty with India, which he has full powers to negotiate direct with that Government.

Lieutenant-Colonel Durand telegraphs, under date Chalt, June 15, that Mr. Beach and Mr. Lennard have reached Yasin, and were expected at Gilgit on the 20th. They evidently never entered Hunza territory.

No definite news, says the Times of India, has been received of Lieutenant-Colonel Durand's arrival at Gilgit from Chalt; but he is presumably there by this time, unless fresh complications have arisen. Lieutenant Manners-Smith, commandant of the infantry at Gilgit, has rejoined his appointment from leave.

The Commander-in-Chief has recommended the grant of the frontier medal with clasp for the Samana and Manipore Expeditions. A similar recommendation, says an Allahabad correspondent, presumably will be made for the Black Mountain on receipt of the despatches.

It is suggested that a memorial be raised in Manipore itself over the last resting-place of the late Chief Commissioner and the officers murdered with them.

The Government has decided that the Indian Army Medical Services will not be represented at the Hygienic Congress to be held in London next month.

The Government has had under consideration for some time past the question of sending native experts to the Hygienic Conference, the only difficulty being the selection of fully qualified and representative men.

A spirit of indignation against the Consent Act has suddenly been revived among Bengalees in Lower Bengal after a lull of a month or so, the cause of the revival being not quite apparent. The vernacular papers are again crying for a deputation to be sent to England to appeal to the British public "to save India from the wrong and shame of the Age of Consent Act."

The following quotation from a Bengalee newspaper, the Navayn, will serve, the Calcutta correspondent of the Times remarks, to show the licence which a seditious section of the native Press allows itself in dealing with the subject of Manipore. Addressing the Indian Government, it says:—"Just think whether you were justified in entering Manipore, proclaiming war, and blowing hundreds of people from the cannon's mouth in the way you have done."

The acquittal of the man charged with throwing two Parsee girls from the clock tower in Bombay meets with general approval in the Press, the same correspondent says. It is clear that there was no evidence to connect him with the affair, and it still remains a mystery whether it was a case of murder or suicide. The excitement among the Parsee community shows no sign of abating, and they have presented a monster petition to the Government praying for further inquiry.

Two banks—the Imperial Bank of Persia and the Bank of China, Japan, and the Straits—commenced business in Bombay on June 29. Mr. J. Payn, whose offices are at the Old Secretariat, is the Bombay agent of both of them.

After Aug. 1 next no newspaper or other printed work, containing public news or comments upon public news, will be allowed to be edited, printed, or published in any Native State (i.e., in any local area administered by the Governor-General in Council, but not forming part of British India) without the written permission of the Political Agent. This permission may be withdrawn at any time. If, after Aug. 1, any person shall publish any such newspaper without permission, the Political Agent may, by order in writing—(a) require him to leave such local area within seven days from the date of such order, and (b) prohibit him from re-entering such local area without the written permission of the Political Agent. Should these orders be disobeyed, the offender is liable to forcible expulsion.

This new order, remarks the Times of India, is stringent, but it is certainly not uncalled for. Of late many so-called newspapers have sprung up like mushrooms in some of the Native States. To a certain extent the conductors of such prints manage to live on subsidies, on black-mail, and on the fear of intimidation and exposure. The new order will be generally welcomed, and we trust that it will be rigorously enforced.

Letters from Poona anticipate a dull season. There are only about half as many ladies in residence as last year, a good many people having gone to other stations.

The Government of India have practically decided to decline Sir Lepel Griffin's Cashmere Railway scheme on the ground that the promoters ask too much. A guarantee of $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. is one of their demands.

The Anglo-Chinese Commission at Darjeeling, consisting of Mr. Paul and the secretary from the Amban at Lhasa, assisted by Mr. Hart, is quietly doing its work of settling the trading conditions between Thibet and British India. It is possible that a trading convention may be the outcome.

The military station recently formed two miles from Apozai, in the Zhob Valley, is to be called Fort Sandeman.

The results of the Zhob Valley Survey, it is reported, promise well, and that if a line is to be built, it will be possible to do so with a gradient all round of 1 in 100. The eastern section, however, is likely to be expensive, owing to the numerous tunnels and high bridges which it would be necessary to construct.

THE HYGIENIC CONGRESS.

An Honorary Council of the British Empire has been formed in connection with the forthcoming International Congress of Hygiene and Demography. The Councillors appointed for India are as follows :—

Surgeon-General W. R. Rice, M.D., Sanitary Commissioner and Surgeon-General with the Government of India.

Surgeon-General W. F. de Fabeck, M.D., Surgeon-General with the Government of Madras.

Surgeon-General F. Pinkerton, M.D., Surgeon-General with the Government of Bombay.

Surgeon-General Sir Benjamin Simpson, M.D., K.C.I.E., late Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India.

Surgeon-Major D. D. Cunningham, M.B., Bengal Medical Service.

The Hon. Dr. Mohendra Lal Sircar, C.I.E., member of the Legislative Council of Bengal.

Lady Dufferin's Association for Supplying Female Aid to the Women of India has appointed as its delegate Lieutenant-Colonel Harry Cooper, who was the original honorary secretary of the fund, Sir W. W. Hunter and Dr. Leitner have been invited to represent the Mahomedan Literary Society of Calcutta. The Rao of Cutch and the Nawab of Junagarh have each sent to the Honorary Secretary for India, Mr. S. Digby, 250 rs. as a contribution to the Congress Fund. Mr. Dinshah Ardeshir, a public-spirited resident of Baroda, has subscribed 500 rs. Mr. Dinshah writes to Mr. Digby :—"The aid which I beg to send is a trifle, but it is due to a very sincere appreciation of the high public value of a body influenced by so many philanthropic and learned personages, and so worthily presided over by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. I regret that the same unavoidable reasons which precluded me from visiting Europe on the occasion of the opening of the Indian and Colonial Exhibition, in which connection I had acted as Executive Secretary to the Baroda Court, should also now deprive me from attending your Congress. I would, however, make amends for this omission by sending you shortly a memorandum entitled 'Practical Measures Suggested for Developing the State Hygienic Work in India.' I am now busy drawing up this paper, which, I trust, may afford some practical help in your deliberations." So many papers are being offered to the Indian Committee that it may be necessary to form an Indian Section. Hitherto, persons offering papers have been referred to the secretaries of the existing sections. Mr. David Carmichael, formerly member of the Madras Executive Council, and Surgeon-Major T. Duka have accepted invitations to join the Indian Committee.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Digby received a telegram from the Bombay Millowners' Association announcing that they had appointed Dr. K. N. Bahardurji as an additional delegate for that association.

Apparently therefore they had already appointed a delegate or delegates whose names will probably arrive in the mail received to-day. As Dr. Bahardurji's nomination by the Government of India fell through, the Millowners have seemingly plucked up spirit enough to spend a little money in putting their case in reply to Mr. Hallett fairly before the Congress. If the candid advice we, followed by other Anglo-Indian journals, have given them as to the necessity for active resistance to the agitation against them in this country has led to this rather tardy step, we may congratulate the Bombay millowners. Their apathy in face of the attacks to which they were being subjected in influential papers throughout Great Britain was simply suicidal. It will not, however, be safe for them to take it for granted that a discussion in the Indian section of the Congress will do much good unless it is energetically followed up.

Brigade-Surgeon T. J. McGann, Senior Surgeon and Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of Mysore, has been deputed to represent that Government at the forthcoming Congress of Hygiene and Demography.

The General Committee of the Calcutta Corporation have negatived the proposal that Dr. Simpson should be deputed to England as the Corporation's representative at the Hygienic Congress. The matter comes up again on Thursday before a full meeting of the members of the Corporation, when the Chairman proposes that the General Committee's decision be rejected, that Mr. Simpson be deputed to the Congress, and that the Corporation pay 2,000 rs. towards his expenses.

We are asked to state that Mr. S. Digby, Honorary Secretary for India, is in attendance at the offices, 20 Hanover Square, every day except Fridays and Saturdays, between four and five, and that he will be glad to see any one on business connected with the Congress.

We give the following paragraph which is extracted from the correspondence of the Glasgow Herald, on the responsibility of that journal :—

I am assured that the denial given by Lord George Hamilton the other night in the House of Commons respecting the intention to transfer to the Orient Company the management of the Indian troops, though literally accurate, does not contradict the information on the subject which I sent you some weeks ago. Negotiations to this end were carried on with the company in question, one of whose officials actually inspected the vessels; but they fell through owing, I believe, to the inconvenience managers would suffer through the non-employment of the ships for half of the year. That some change is contemplated is quite understood, and a committee is at this moment investigating the subject. Whether the ships will be retained, but under private supervision, or transport be carried out altogether by merchant vessels, is uncertain, and before a decision can be come to the India and War Offices must be consulted. So far as the Admiralty are concerned, they would be prepared to favour almost any scheme which would set free the 1,100 officers and men whom the troopers now absorb.

The same paper's correspondent writes :—

The Indian Government, I learn on good authority, is losing no time in making itself thoroughly acquainted with the hitherto unknown and unexplored regions lying on the borders of Burma. For two years past expeditions have been at work along the Siamese frontiers, and now it is proposed during the coming cold season to explore and map out the northern frontier eastward from Bhamo to the French possessions, and especially along the Meikong river around Kianghung. At any moment questions involving frontier delimitation may arise with China, France, or Siam, and the policy of the Government of India is to be thoroughly prepared with ample information for any discussion of the kind. I may mention that in official circles here the report of a French occupation of the semi-Siamese State of Luang-Prabang on the Meikong is wholly discredited. There are no French troops in that region, or within 500 miles of it, to do the work of occupation. The report is believed to owe its existence to the uneasiness which prevails in Siam, in consequence of the restless activity of French official explorers in the unsettled region between the Meikong and the French possessions in Indo-China; but this activity is understood to be due wholly to a desire to find trade routes through the Laos States, and generally from Eastern Tonquin and Annam to the Meikong, so as to turn the trade of the region down the great river to Saigon from its present route across Siam to Bangkok. No doubt, if these efforts are successful, they will injure the Siamese capital, but it is felt here that the authorities in Paris know that they have more territory than they can manage on their hands already in Indo-China, and that they have no desire to establish military posts, and arouse Siamese hostility hundreds of miles away from any base.

Sir Thomas Chambers, Q.C., the Recorder of London, has, through a City paper, given an emphatic contradiction to the prevailing rumours as to his intention to retire from that office. The names of Sir Arthur Collins, Chief Justice of Madras, and Mr. Justice Douglas Straight, of the Allahabad High Court, both of whom are approaching the term of their retirement from the Indian Judicial Service, and who formerly had large practices at the Central Criminal Court, have occurred to many as fitting successors to the Recorder.

The Admiralty has given orders for the Assaye and Plassy, two new fast gunboats just being completed for the Indian Government, to be sent to Sheerness Dockyard, when ready for delivery from the contractors, to receive their stores and be despatched to India. They will be valuable additions to the Indian marine, being of the same type and armaments as the Gossamer, which is the first of eighteen gunboats being built for the Royal Navy under the Naval Defence Act. They steam 19 knots per hour.

Efforts are being made in England, says the London correspondent of the Glasgow Herald, by persons interested in Ceylon to induce the Colonial Office to authorise the local Government to have the antiquities of the island thoroughly explored. Amongst them are a number of buried cities of former dynasties and of a lost civilisation belonging to pre-Buddhist and early Buddhist times, the existence and whereabouts of which are known, and which have been sufficiently investigated to show ruins of vast extent and of a high order of architectural merit. Small sums have been granted from time to time for these inquiries, but they have been wholly insufficient, and what is proposed now is a thorough and systematic examination by competent persons of these ruins. Sir William Gregory, a former governor, who is foremost in every work intended to benefit Ceylon, has taken the lead in this movement, and Sir Arthur Gordon has also lent his aid. The neglect of these ancient monuments on the part of the local Government is described by Sir William as a disgrace to British administration of the island. Mr. Burrows, a member of the local Civil Service, has long devoted attention to the subject, and is the author of a work scarcely known outside the colony, entitled, "The Buried Cities of Ceylon," in which he describes especially the vast city of Anuradupura, which seems to be a marvellous remnant of a remote antiquity.

The Morning Post of July 15 says:—The question of promotion in the Indian Staff Corps is, it is understood, again under consideration by the India Office, and there is some probability, or, at least, possibility, of a reduction in the length of qualifying service for promotion to the various ranks. The discrepancies between the average service of officers of different ranks on promotion in the British Army, from which hitherto all officers of the Indian Staff Corps have been drawn, and the services necessary to attain the same ranks in the Staff Corps, are undoubtedly very great. At the same time it must not be forgotten that young subalterns leave their British regiments and British prospects for the Staff Corps and other prospects with their eyes open. The terms of service are well known, and in many cases even the fathers of the young candidates for the Staff Corps have themselves served in the Indian Army, and know precisely the conditions which they urge their sons to accept. In the future, moreover, the step will be taken with even greater deliberation, for from the time of entering Sandhurst or entering for the "Militia Competitive," candidates for the Staff Corps will have made their choice, and will be marked out as irrevocably pledged to the Indian Government, and not as probationers who may possibly return to their British regiments after all. Considering these things, it would almost appear that, in spite of the unconscionably long time promotion takes to arrive in India, there must be compensating advantages in pay and other directions, or the number of candidate would not so exceed the demand, as is at present the case. However, a just grievance cannot be answered by the exclamation, "Well, you need not take it if you do not like it," and there is little doubt but that the merits of the case will be discussed in a generous spirit at the India Office.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

CALCUTTA, July 19.—The weather continues to be the most engrossing topic throughout the country, and is daily becoming more unsatisfactory, especially as regards Madras, Rajpootana, and the Punjab. The prospects in the Southern Presidency show no improvement. Lord Wenlock will soon proceed on a visit to the distressed districts. The Punjab and Rajpootana are still without rain, but, according to the latest meteorological report, the conditions are slightly more favourable for the northward extension of the monsoon. The fodder famine in Rajpootana is already causing great loss of cattle. Some rain has fallen throughout the North-West Provinces, but it is insufficient. Even in Bengal the monsoon is light and fitful to an extraordinary degree; but, as yet, there is no cause for anxiety as to that province. On the whole, although it is yet too soon to give up hope, it is impossible to deny that there is grave reason to apprehend a famine over a considerable portion of the country.

The native quarter of Calcutta narrowly escaped another religious riot on Thursday evening. Friday was the Mahomedan festival, Buckreed, or Eedulzoha, when it is customary to kill cows and goats in the mosques. Preparations for the sacrifice were being made in the mosque in Muchhoa, Bazaar Street, situate opposite a Hindoo temple and in the midst of a dense Hindoo population. News that a sacred cow was to be slain caused intense indignation among the Hindoos. Some thousands assembled to prevent the sacrilege by force, while the Mussulmans collected in numbers equally determined to resist. The attempts of the police to disperse the crowd were ineffectual, and a serious disturbance seemed imminent. At length, thanks to the efforts of the Commissioner of Police assisted by two leading Mahomedan citizens, it was arranged that no cows should be killed, while the Hindoos undertook to abstain from disturbing the Mussulman devotions by ringing bells and beating gongs in the temple. The crowd then scattered peacefully, and quiet was restored.—Times Correspondent.

BOMBAY, July 17.—Serious injury to the crops is expected to result in many parts of India from the deficient rainfall. Distress is increasing in the Puttiala and Kapurthala territories, and a famine is feared. In the Bombay Presidency the rains have been plenteous.—Reuter.

We have received the following telegram from the India Office for publication:—"From Viceroy, July 16.—Monsoon has been very late, and is not developing sufficient rain. Madras, North-West Provinces, and Oude, Central India, Rajpootana, and Punjab are all suffering, and fodder in Central and North-West India very short. Prices stationary, however, in Bengal, Punjab, Rajpootana, and Hyderabad; rise elsewhere slight. Prospects of early improvement monsoon not hopeless."

GUP.

THERE was a good attendance at Lady Harris's reception on June 25, writes the Times of India correspondent, at Government House, Ganeshkhind, 298 ladies and gentlemen in all being present, including twenty-five natives. Among those present were Sir Charles Pritchard, Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, Lady Sassoon, Miss West, the Hon. and Mrs. Moore, the Hon. Oodharam Mulchand, the Hon. Nulkar, Mr. and Mrs. Lee-Warner, Major-General Blundell, Lieutenant-General and the Misses Pottinger, Major-Generals Gatacre and Hogg, Major and the Hon. Mrs. Ramsden, Colonels Westmacott, Curteis, Willoughby, Hughes, and Hibbert, Mr. and Mrs. Pryce Weedon, their Highnesses the Thakore Saheb of Wadhwan and Aga Khan, and numerous others. Captain Cox, A.D.C., received the guests at the portico, who were presented by Captain Fowle, A.D.C., and Captain the Hon. St. Leger Jervis, A.D.C., to his Excellency the Governor and Lady Harris, who shook hands with each one in turn. Their Excellencies went through the wearisome ceremony of hand-shaking with much dignity and grace. The weather being charming, the guests strolled about in the beautifully kept grounds, and listened to the music played by the Governor's band. Rao Bahadur Kelkar, Oriental translator to Government, presented the native ladies and gentlemen. Lady Harris looked none the worse for the long ride she had last evening at the Paper-Chase, when she lost the course altogether. That there are fewer ladies in Poona this season was evidenced by the attendance at the reception, where there were not more than 100 of the fair sex.

There was a very pretty little wedding on June 22, at 4 P.M., at St. Stephen's Church, Ootacamund. The bride, Miss Mann, is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Walsh, who are living at Mount Stuart, and the bridegroom Mr. Whitmore Clarke, of Messrs. Arbuthnot & Co., of Madras. Although a little rain fell during the day, writes a correspondent of the Madras Times, the afternoon was bright and fine, the sky having cleared after a tremendous clap of thunder at about 2 P.M. The church was very prettily decorated with some of the beautiful white flowers which grow so abundantly on these hills, as well as moss and ferns. The bride arrived almost as the clock struck four, and was met in the porch by her uncle, Mr. Walsh, and by her two little bridesmaids, the little Miss Maitlands. Her dress was an extremely handsome white corded silk; the bodice was made with a Medici collar and high sleeves. She carried an exquisite bouquet of white flowers and ferns. The two little bridesmaids were in sky-blue, with broad pongee silk sashes and large blue hats, and they looked very sweet. They had little tan shoes, and stockings to match. They carried baskets of roses. Among the wedding guests were—Rev. and Mrs. Durham, Miss Lewis, Dr. and Mrs. Maitland, Colonel and Mrs. Tomkins, Mr. Tomkins, Dr. and Mrs. Ross, Mrs. F. Hamnett, Mrs. and Miss Larminie, Mrs. Lorne Campbell, Mrs. Hammick, Miss Searle, Colonel A. C. Smith, Mr. Roscoe Allan, and many others.

A correspondent writes from Abu to the Pioneer:—It might interest some of your readers to hear of a record-ride accomplished by Mr. Kershaw, the Forest Officer, and Sergeant-Instructor Morrell, of the Volunteers. They had backed themselves to ride down the hill from Mount Abu to Abu Road at the foot, a distance of seventeen miles, on one horse, in one hour and twenty minutes. Mr. Kershaw accomplished the distance in sixty-four minutes, and Sergeant Morrell in fifty-eight minutes. Has this record—all, it must be remembered, a down hill—been ever beaten?

Can no good come out of Nazareth? Within a few weeks, says the Pioneer, the Madras Army has produced the military hero of the hour, and given to England an Archbishop of York. William Dalrymple MacLagan, the new Primate, was for many years an officer in the Madras Army. He passed the old interpreter's examination—a far severer test than the present higher standard—and was for many years the interpreter of his regiment. Leaving the Army, he entered at St. Peter's College, Cambridge, and graduated when he was thirty years of age as junior optime. His low position in the mathematical tripos no doubt was due to want of previous training. The same year he was ordained deacon. Without any brilliant university degree and without any reputation for scholarship, the ex-Madras officer has raised himself to the proud position of "Primate of England," for the title of this Archbishop of Canterbury is "Primate of all England and Metropolitan." The Archbishop of York takes precedence over all subjects of the Crown not of royal blood, next to the Lord High Chancellor, who is preceded by the Archbishop of Canterbury. His military experience has no doubt been of service to the Archbishop in his clerical career, for his success has been mainly due to his great powers of organisation.

There has been haymaking in a certain province in India, the Pioneer imagines. It came to the knowledge of the Emperor of that province that great injustice had been done to an aspirant for employment through the ignorance of a non-professional examiner, who had ploughed the candidate for giving what turned out to be a correct answer to an algebraic equation. The Emperor then ran a tilt against the professional examiners, and said that certain of their papers were absurdly hard: he himself could not have answered the questions, he averred. The responsible professor regretted this very much, but said he found the native students answered them very well. Thereupon the Emperor asked to see the replies, but the astute professor now had to regret that, the examination having been completed, the answers had been destroyed!

Lord Reay, if we (Times of India) may judge from a well-authenticated story that reached us the other day, seems to have had more humour in him than was generally suspected. He was holding a durbār at Poona, to receive, among others, a Native chief who had been publicly and shamelessly drunk the day before. The chief was received coldly. The whole durbār was unusually stiff and formal. In one of the awful pauses that ensued Lord Reay asked the unhappy chief whether he liked milk. The chief muttered that he was very fond of milk indeed. "Then," said Lord Reay, "I should, if I were you, drink lots of it. It's very good for your complaint."

Some people dislike being flattered, but the Baboo who wrote the following says he is no flatterer:—Sir,—I approach to you, sir, not in the garb of a flatterer made to dance in the antechamber of mortal man, but in the mantle of an admirer of your virtues and shining talents, which have especially attracted my attention to you. I tell you the truth, sir, that your nobleness of mind and goodness of heart, which overflows with the milk of humanity, have gained our hearts. One honest man, and wise man, one peaceful man, says Landour, can command hundreds of millions without a baton and charger. What he says is quite true. It is only virtue. Justice free from prejudice, affability, humility, diffidence, and impartiality that can soften human feelings and even tyrant hearts who look upon sucking the human blood as the chief delight of their souls. In you we trace virtue which is above all price. It is as it should be. To-day was Sunday. I called on you this afternoon with a view to pay my due respects personally to you, but I was told that you had retired to bed to enjoy the golden dew of sleep.

A wild and exciting tale about a discovery of gold comes from Lo Kwong Tun, a delectable spot near Whampoa. The man who made the discovery is described as a "duck farmer," but his talents appear to be far above his avocation. He became alarmed recently by an extraordinary mortality among his flock of seven or eight hundred ducks, the death-rate having suddenly reached a figure that meant ruin. The people of Lo Kwong Tun have no scruples about eating ducks that die "from natural causes," instead of being done to death with a chopper in the usual violent way, and the unhappy farmer tried to lighten his loss by using the defunct members of his flock as food. When they came to be prepared for the pot it was found that they were all crammed with gold, in nuggets! It is not stated what the average quantity of gold per duck was, but the total yield is set down at thirty or forty catties. There is now a rush for Lo Kwong Tun, and a fierce demand for picks and shovels. The story has been current among the Chinese in this colony for four or five days, and the duck farmer has become famous, while the duck, in the capacity of a gold-finder, has risen considerably in public esteem.

PERSONAL.

THE Times of India, of July 3, says:—Lord Wolverton, at present the guest of the Viceroy at Simla, goes next week to Nahun, accompanied by Lord William Beresford and Dr. Fenn, in search of tiger. He will then visit Delhi and Agra en route for Bombay, whence he proposes to embark for England on July 17.

Mr. H. Cousins has been appointed to be superintendent, Archaeological Survey, Bombay.

Mr. H. E. M. James, Bombay Civil Service, arrived at Kurrachee on June 20, and assumed charge of the office of commissioner in Sind.

Mr. Musleh-ud-Deen Mahomed, B.A., Cambridge, on June 30, at the Bombay High Court, made the usual declaration before Mr. Justice Telang, and was admitted a member of the Bombay Bar.

Mr. Yasseen Khan, an assistant commissioner in the Berars, has been appointed a judge of the Hyderabad High Court vice Mr. Shareef-ul-Hassan, who died recently.

We (Madras Times) are sorry to learn of the serious illness of Surgeon C. M. Thompson, M.B., Secretary to the Surgeon-General, and Acting Superintendent of the Lunatic Asylum, Madras, who is suffering from dysentery and fever. Dr. Thompson is an in-patient in the General Hospital, and we hope to hear soon of his complete recovery.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

Major-General O. Hereford, colonel Retired List, late Princess of Wales's Yorkshire Regiment, died at Twickenham on July 4. He was a son of the late Mr. R. Hereford, of Sufton Court, Herefordshire. He joined the Army Aug. 17, 1855; became lieutenant, July 17, 1857; captain, Dec. 30, 1859; major, July 5, 1872; lieutenant-colonel, Jan. 12, 1881; colonel, Jan. 12, 1885; and major-general, July 8, 1895. He had seen no active service.

Surgeon-Major H. A. Fogerty, M.D., died at 61 George Street, Limerick, on June 29, aged forty-one years. He joined the Army as surgeon, Sept. 30, 1874; became surgeon-major, Sept. 30, 1886, and was lately on service in South Africa. He has had no active service.

Sir Frederick Aloysius Weld, G.O.M.C., late Governor of the Straits Settlements, died on July 21, at his residence, Chideoch Manor, near Bridport. Sir Frederick was a son of the late Mr. Humphrey Weld, by the Hon. Christina Maria, daughter of the seventh Baron Clifford of Chudleigh. He was born in 1823, and educated at Stonyhurst and Freiburg. He was appointed a member of the New Zealand Executive Council in 1854, Minister for Native Affairs in 1860, and Premier in 1864. Sir Frederick was Governor of Western Australia from 1869 to 1874, Governor of Tasmania from 1874 to 1880, in which year he received the honour of knighthood, and Governor of the Straits Settlements from 1880 to 1887. He married in 1859 Filomena Mary Anne, daughter of the late Mr. Ambrose Philipps de Lisle.

Lieutenant Haggard, R.E.A., died in the officers' hospital at Murree, on Jan. 23. He was buried on the following day, the service being conducted by the Lord Bishop of Lahore, assisted by the Revs. Armstrong and Dale. The firing party was furnished by the Seaforth Highlanders, and the coffin was carried by men of the Royal Horse Artillery from Lower Topa. A large number of officers from Murree and the surrounding stations attended.

It is with great regret, says the Madras Times, that we have to report the sudden death, on the afternoon of June 26, from heat apoplexy, of Mr. Ernauld Wyndham Lushington, the Assistant Superintendent of Police at Negapatam. He was in his usual health, and was seen out the evening before, so that his death must have been very sudden, and a great blow to his family, for whom much sympathy is felt. He was quite a young man, being only about twenty-seven years old. He was buried the following morning, the whole station mourning his loss. Mr. Lushington entered the Police as a Second-class Inspector in April 1886, and received his first Acting-Assistant-Superintendship in January 1888. He was much liked, and will be deeply regretted by a large circle of friends.

We (Times of India) deeply regret to have to announce the death of Mr. George William Fawcett, of the Madras Civil Service, on June 26, at his hotel at the Mount Road, from a severe attack of fever. Only two weeks ago Mr. Fawcett arrived at Trichinopoly, after accompanying his wife home to England. He was very shortly afterwards attacked with serious illness, and arrived in Madras only the other day for medical treatment. His remains were buried at the cathedral cemetery the same evening in the presence of a large number of friends and brother officials. Mr. Fawcett belonged to the fourth class of Covenanted Civilian, as he had over twelve years' service, having joined the service in July 1874. He served in various districts of the Presidency in different revenue and magisterial capacities. Trichinopoly was his last station, where, as Collector and Magistrate, he was much liked and respected.

The death is announced of Sirdar Ajmere Singh, a high official in Patiala State, of pneumonia, at the age of fifty-eight. He was of a charitable and kindly disposition, and a long and faithful servant of the State. All due honours, such as the closing of the shops and public offices at Patiala, were paid to the deceased by order of H.H. the Maharaja.

THE MANIPORE DISASTER.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times writes on July 19:—

Although a considerable time has elapsed since the evidence taken in the Manipore military court of inquiry reached headquarters, neither that evidence nor the Commander-in-Chief's remarks have yet been made public. It is stated that the Government feels some doubt whether the proceedings of such a court, which are generally considered of a confidential nature, should be published at all. It may be hoped some means will be found of getting over the technical difficulty.

Much mystery still hangs about the operations of March 24 and the conduct of the retreat. The Army as well as the general public have a right to demand that it should be dispelled as far as possible, if only as a lesson how to avoid similar disasters in future.

For the moment there is a lull in the interest in Manipore affairs, pending the decision of the Government as to the fate of the Princes and the future policy towards the State. The latter question attracts little attention now, as it seems a foregone conclusion that, whatever course is adopted, it will not be annexation. Even the Parliamentary debates on the subject, the full text of which has now arrived, have excited little comment.

The following telegrams and paragraphs are published in the papers received by the present mail:—

MANIPORE, June 28.—The Government of India having declined to listen to the counsel on behalf of the Jobraj, Janaki Baboo, his advocate, sent a telegram costing 751 rs. to Lord Ripon, soliciting the favour of his seeing justice done to the condemned Princes, and in reply his lordship wired that, "Your appeal should be made to the Government of India, but those concerned in the murders they cannot hope for mitigation." Janaki Baboo has now applied to the Government of India and also to Lord Cross for an extension of delay in confirming the sentences of the Court up to July 31, in order to give him time to proceed to Calcutta and obtain the assistance of efficient lawyers in drawing up a petition on behalf of the condemned men. Janaki Baboo demands a fee of 2,000 rs., before he starts on his trip to Calcutta, in the event of his petition for delay being granted. These proceedings are only on behalf of the Jobraj and Maharaja, as the Senaputty has taken no steps to obtain the assistance of any advocate to agitate on his behalf, as he hopes to be saved along with his brothers without any personal expense.

Mr. Howell, with an escort of fifty men of the 43rd Goorkhas, under Second-Lieutenant S. Clay, started to-day to collect Naga coolies for the Kohima-Manipore line.

Captain Du Moulin, who has been running the transport here, leaves for India to-day.

Major Maxwell hopes soon to be able to lay his hands on the Maibas, who were referred to in the evidence given by the Satwal and executioner at their trial, and then we may hope to get some very interesting evidence regarding the executions.

MANIPORE, June 30 :—A telegram from the Government of India was received this morning by the Chief Political Officer directing him to inform Janaki Baboo, the advocate for the defence of the Manipore princes, that no orders would be passed on their sentences before July 31, but that this must not be taken to mean that any mitigation of sentence will be granted to those convicted of murder. One priest of the Dragon Temple of the Maibas was brought in yesterday, and is now in close confinement. Major Maxwell expects to get the others in a day or two, and also the leader of the final attack on the Residency, when the treasury was looted.

It is reported from Fort White that some Maniporis have begun to build three different villages in Nwngal country. If this be true, says the Times of India, it means that a considerable number of Maniporis must have fled in that direction. Some Siyins have gone out to ascertain the truth of the report.

The trial of Prince Angao Senna of Manipore, known as the new Senaputty, was concluded on June 29. The accused was convicted on the double charge of waging war against the Queen-Empress and abetting the murder of Mr. Quinton and his party. Sentence of death was passed, subject to confirmation by the Governor-General in Council.

In the course of the trials at Manipore, says the Pioneer, it has become clearly established that there was a deliberate intention on the part of the Senaputty and the durbar to resist by force any attempt to interfere with the "settlement" which had been made after the Palace revolution of September. It has been stated in evidence that it was resolved to send troops to Mao Thana, when the news was first received that the chief commissioner of Assam was on his way to Manipore. The idea was that the ex-Raja was with Mr. Quinton, and that the Government of India intended to reinstate him. Telegraphic inquiries made in Calcutta showed that Sura Chandra Singh was still there, and the durbar accordingly abandoned their original plan. These facts are important as proving deliberation on the part of the Regent, the Senaputty, and, indeed, all concerned in the control of the State, to resist the orders of the Government of India. But, in addition, one witness—a Bengali, Bamon Charan Mukharji, clerk to the Regent—has stated that Mr. Grimwood was made acquainted with these warlike preparations, and "ordered the Regent to desist from so rash a proceeding." This was a fortnight before Mr. Quinton's arrival at Manipore; in other words, about March 7 or 8. Now at that time the Political Agent was sending his usual diary to the Chief Commissioner, who was on his way from Golaghat to Kohima. Curiously enough, he makes no mention whatever of the incident, though it is certain that he would not have omitted reference to so serious a matter as the preparation of a force to march to the frontier. This diary, as we know, did contain an account of the alleged receipt of the telegram from Calcutta announcing that a big tiger would shortly be caught in Manipore, and of the excitement caused by this mysterious message. Can it be supposed that if he made Mr. Quinton acquainted with a circumstance of this kind, he would have neglected to have told him that the Maniporis were contemplating armed resistance, and had actually advised him, as Political Agent, of their intention? There can be but one answer to this. Mr. Grimwood could never have been told that a force was being prepared to block the road at Mao Thana, and consequently could not have "ordered the Regent to desist from so rash an undertaking." How comes it then that a witness for the prosecution could give evidence of the kind we have quoted? Was Bamon Charan Mukharji speaking from hearsay, or had he something tangible on which to found his story? The point is one which should be cleared up, if possible, by Major Maxwell by further inquiries in Manipore itself.

Little that is of especial interest has transpired in Manipore since we last wrote on the subject, says the Times of India. The trial of the minor prisoners, Yenkoiba, Usurba, Kumba Singh, the Sutwal (executioner), the sentries, and the others, has been in progress during the week, but nothing new has been elicited, although from the lips of the executioner the story of the murders takes on a more ghastly tinge from the matter-of-fact way in which the orders of the Tongal General were carried out. It was stated the other day that the Baboo Janaki Bysack, who defended the Senaputty and the other princes who have since been condemned, had sent a telegraphic appeal for clemency to Lord Cross and Lord Ripon. The text of this appeal has since transpired, and a very scandalous document it is, with hardly a word of truth in it from beginning to end. Janaki says :—"The Indian Government decreed ex-parte the ex-King's complaints, ordering the banishment of the Jobraj Tekendrajit without giving him the chance for vindication. The British troops attacked the palace before dawn of March 24, killed women, children, and cows, polluted the temples and idols, and burnt houses without provocation. The Jobraj then used arms in self-defence. The British officers were killed by infuriated Maniporis on the Tongal General's instigation. The Jobraj released the captives. The Regent telegraphed to the Government soliciting amity. The princes fled on April 26. British troops occupied the palace the next day. The Government offered various sums for the capture of the accused. They all voluntarily surrendered, and Niranjan Singh was hanged. The Special Commission tried the Maharaja, the Jobraj, and the Senaputty, without allowing them the chance to defend themselves by professional lawyers"; and more to the same effect. Lord Ripon's reply was terse and to the point. "Your appeal," he cabled back, "should be made to the Government of India, but those concerned in the murders cannot hope for mitigation." No order, it seems, will be passed regarding the sentences on the chiefs before July 31, a vast mass of papers having to be examined by the Government. In making this statement the Government is careful to point out that "this must not be taken to mean that any mitigation of sentence will be granted to those convicted of murder."

WOMEN IN INDIAN FACTORIES.

THE following letter appeared in the Times of July 17 :—

SIR,—I have read from time to time the letters of your correspondent, Mr. Holt S. Hallett, upon the Indian Factory Act, and have been struck more than once with the small acquaintance with the conditions of Indian factory life displayed in them. But my astonishment reaches a climax on seeing words of mine quoted as an argument against the employment of Indian women in factories. If, as it seems to me, they are slow in reaching physical development, there is all the more reason why they should adopt the comparatively light and easy work of a millhand, instead of the hard labour of a coolie or of an agricultural labourer.

Yet it is to this that Government, under pressure, as the natives think, from Manchester, is about to relegate women. The recent Factory Act, by making a difference between the hours of work for men and women, will compel the manufacturers to oust women from the mills wherever they are employed on moving machinery with men.

Although the Act has not yet come into force its effects in this direction are already apparent. Mr. Runchorelal Chotilall, C.I.E., an Ahmedabad gentleman, who takes great interest in the welfare of women and has built them a hospital, and who is himself an employer of female labour, writes me word :—

"The effect of the recent Factory Act upon the employment of women in the Ahmedabad mills will be, I am afraid, very bad upon the poor women. Some of the mill managers are shaping their way to substitute male labour as opportunity occurs. It is certain that the millowners will not reduce the general working hours to eleven, and will try to get rid of female labour. As the supply of male labour is so abundant in this part of the country, and as there is not much difference between the scale of wages, the millowners would not suffer by the change; but the poor females who now earn a respectable livelihood by honest labour will be deprived of it."

Contrast now the two sides of the picture. Mr. Chotilall says :—

"The work taken from these women is very light here. While in England one female hand works two roving frames, and while in Bombay one hand is engaged for one frame, in Ahmedabad two hands are employed to look after one frame. Thus it will be seen that one of them can take as much rest as she may like. These female operatives have never complained about long hours, and they consider themselves happier than their fellow-labourers who work as out-door labourers or follow other professions."

On the other hand, this field work, to which Englishmen would relegate these women, what is it? Only those who have had to pursue their daily avocation in the midday heat of India can form any idea of it. A tropical sun which scorches the eyes, turns the brain giddy, and seems to burn the very marrow of one's back—in this the women have to toil early and late, stooping for hours, carrying heavy weights on their heads, oftener than not with a child on the hip at the same time; quenching their hunger and thirst with a handful of parched corn and a drink of tepid water. I have seen them in the paddy fields, "their heads in the fire and their feet in the water," wading, stooping, planting all day long, their poor faces seamed by work and scorched by heat until the human face divine was scarce recognisable in them.

This life some of them were fortunate enough to exchange for the quiet, easy, well-paid work of an airy, shady mill. Only those who have learnt what "the shadow of a great rock in a weary land" means can appreciate the change. The hours were long, it is true, but not so long as in the fields, and the holidays were many. They could always get a day off, and they left their work for a few minutes whenever they liked in charge of their companion and went out for a chat or a drink or to take their food. Children were born to them who have grown up to mill work and have never known the hard labour of the fields. Now, all those who are engaged upon moving machinery will have this bitter experience forced upon them.

Thus is a cruel wrong about to be inflicted under the guise of English philanthropy.—I am, sir, your most obedient servant,
Bombay, June 26.

CHINA AND BRITISH TRADE.

THE Blackburn Chamber of Commerce on July 1 addressed the following letter to Lord Salisbury, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs :—

MY LORD,—My Chamber desires me to draw your lordship's attention to the general infringement of Article 28 of our Treaty with China which was signed at Tientsin, June 26, 1858, and ratified at Peking, Oct. 24, 1860, which runs as follows :—

But it shall be at the option of any British subject desiring to convey produce purchased inland to a port, or to convey imports from a port to an inland market, to clear his goods of all transit duties, by payment of a single charge. The amount of the charge shall be leviable on exports at the first barrier they may have to pass; on imports, at the port at which they are landed; and on payment thereof a certificate shall be issued, which shall exempt the goods from all further inland charges whatsoever. It is further agreed that the amount of this charge shall be calculated, as nearly as possible, at the rate of 2½ per cent., ad valorem, and that it shall be fixed for each article at the conference to be held at Shanghai for the revision of the tariff.

This Article 28 was further strengthened by paragraph 4 of section 3 of our Agreement with China which was signed at Chefoo, on Sept. 13, 1876, wherein it is stated that :—

The Chinese Government agrees that transit duty certificates shall be framed under one rule at all ports, no difference being made in the conditions set forth therein; and that so far as imports are concerned, the nationality of the person carrying these is immaterial.

In the agreement made in pursuance of Article 26 of the Tientsin Treaty, signed Nov. 8, 1858, under Rule 7, it is agreed that :—

Merchandise shall be cleared of its transit dues under the following conditions :—In the case of imports, notice being given at the port of entry from which the imports are to be forwarded inland, of the nature and quality of the goods, the ship from which they have been landed, and the place inland to which they are bound, with all other necessary particulars, the Collector of Customs will, on due inspection made and on receipt of the transit duty due, issue a transit duty certificate. This must be produced at every barrier station and vised. No further duty will be leviable upon imports so certificated, no matter how distant the place of destination.

In the address of Mr. Holt S. Hallett to this Chamber last February he called our attention to this subject. His address is printed in the Annual Report of the Council of this Chamber, enclosed herewith, and he clearly proved (see pp. 21, 22) from the report of our Consul at Canton for the year 1888, and of our Consul at Pakhoi for the years 1885 and 1889, that taxes in contravention of Clause 28 of the Treaty of Tientsin are being levied throughout Southern China which have the effect of crippling and in many cases stifling our trade with the southern provinces of China. In the Consular Report on the "Trade of Pakhoi" for the year 1890, published last month, my Chamber notes that a new tax—known as the "Battery Tax"—was imposed last September in Pakhoi, and collected on cotton and woollen piece-goods. In referring to this tax our Consul at Pakhoi remarks that :—

Apart from all other questions the tax, which, roughly speaking, amounts to an extra import duty of 5 per cent. in addition to the treaty import duty collected by the foreign customs and the likin, is more than the trade can probably stand, and the list of duties on the various kinds of piece-goods was drawn up with so much carelessness or ignorance as to make it almost prohibitive on many of the coarser and cheaper classes of goods. The incidence of this "Battery Tax" was extended to the whole province of Kuangtung. In Pakhoi it forms an admirable object lesson. The provincial government receives no "Battery Tax," the Imperial Government loses the import tariff duty, and the business of the piece-goods merchant is stopped. Comment is quite needless.

Such infringements of our Treaties and Agreements with China as rule throughout the Southern provinces having been allowed to continue for several years without action on the part of the British Foreign Office, similar infringements are about to be accomplished by the Governors of other provinces. In the Homeward Mail of June 9, 1891, a letter to the North China Herald from a correspondent at Chungking, in Szechuen, is quoted, which shows that a tax called "Lo-ti," similar to "Tso-Ku" in Southern China, is collected on British goods from the purchaser, notwithstanding Article 28 of the "Tientsin Treaty." Referring to this tax the correspondent writes :—

They call it "Lo-ti" likin, which was originally supposed to be collected at the final destination of the goods only, but now it appears that if the goods are shifted from water to a land route they are required to pay a "Lo-ti-shui" tax, and again a further charge has to be paid by the shop-keeper who retails them at their final destination. Imports under the new regulations have not yet arrived; but collecting the "Lo-ti" likin on them when landed has been decided on by the T'ao-tai. I am informed, which has not been done heretofore. Thus it appears that it is a definitely arranged plan on the part of the Chinese to grant foreigners the right to ship goods direct to Chungking, suspending the half-transit duty until the goods are out of the foreigners' control, and then collect it from the native merchant under the name of likin or war-tax, over which there is no treaty control. It only remains to be seen if the British Minister will allow the Chinese to carry these matters through according to their programme.

Unless our treaty rights with China are firmly and continuously enforced, my Chamber considers that British trade with that country must inevitably languish and contract and eventually die away, instead of rapidly expanding, as it might naturally be expected to do if it was duly safeguarded and fostered by the protecting care of her Majesty's Government.—I have, &c., H. HARRISON, President of the Blackburn and District Chamber of Commerce.

BRITISH WEAKNESS IN CHINA.

The North China Herald says :—A very interesting correspondence on "The Liability of Vessels for Smuggled Goods" appears in the Daily Press of June 2. On May 10, 1887—four years ago—the Customs' searchers at Amoy, with the assistance of the master of the ship, discovered ninety-seven packages of opium on the steamer Esmeralda, intended to be smuggled. The Customs proposed to prohibit the vessel from further trading, to which the agents, Messrs. Tait and Co., demurred, pointing out that it is practically impossible for the master and crew of a vessel to entirely prevent smuggling. The Commissioner of Customs decided to inflict a fine of H.K. 100 taels, which sum Messrs. Tait and Co. deposited, pending reference to Peking. On May 16, 1887, they placed the case before Sir John Walsham, and so far, they say, "although nearly four years have elapsed, we are unable to obtain even an acknowledgment of our petition;" nor can any information be obtained by them through H.M.'s Consul at Amoy, and meantime the Commissioner of Customs has confiscated their deposit. The Amoy Chamber of Commerce has now written direct on the subject to Lord Salisbury, and at its request the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce has also written to Lord Salisbury on the subject. The matter is so important that we reproduce the letter of the Hong Kong Chamber in full :—

Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce,
Hong Kong, April 23, 1891.

MY LORD MARQUIS,—The Amoy General Chamber of Commerce has forwarded to this Chamber copy of their despatch to your lordship of Feb. 20 having reference to the reading of Clause 48 of the Treaty of Tientsin between her Britannic Majesty the Queen and the Emperor of China as applied in the case of the steamer Esmeralda, and also commenting on the treatment the attempts at redress by the agents of the steamer received at the hands of her Britannic Majesty's Minister at Peking.

In support of the opinions expressed by the Amoy Chamber the Committee of this Chamber beg most respectfully to bring to the notice of your lordship that they entirely agree with the views set forth in the Amoy correspondence, and, as both matters referred to directly affect commercial interests in China, trust your lordship will be pleased to give our joint opinions favourable consideration.

If the interpretation which the Imperial Chinese Customs seek to place upon clause 48 of the Treaty is admitted, it throws, in the opinion of this Chamber, much heavier responsibilities upon the captains and owners of vessels on board which cases of smuggling have occurred (often by persons entirely unconnected with the vessel) than was contemplated when the Treaty was framed. According to their reading the vessel is liable to heavy fining and to the still more serious penalty of being interdicted from trading for a breach of Customs laws, with which neither the captain nor the crew may have in any way been connected, and which the utmost vigilance on their part might have failed to disclose. So ingeniously expert are the Chinese in the evasion of duties that they even constantly baffle the professional searchers attached to the Customs, particularly with a commodity so easily handled as opium. In the particular case of smuggling which has given rise to this correspondence, it should be specially noted the seizure was made through the assistance of the master of the steamer.

The position of indifference assumed by her Britannic Majesty's Minister in Peking towards those over whose interests he is supposed to watch is a point which this Chamber considers ought not to be passed over in silence. The apparent want of any interest in the complaints of British subjects displayed by her Britannic Majesty's Minister in this case seems inexplicable, and, if persisted in, may lead to most serious consequences to British interests in China.

In conclusion, this Chamber ventures to express a hope that your lordship will not allow this matter, which closely affects not only those engaged in trade, but all other British residents in China, to pass unnoticed.—I have the honour to be, my lord, your lordship's most obedient servant, (Sd.) E. MACKINTOSH, Chairman.

"ANGLO-INDIANS."

THE Times of India says :—A private correspondent writes to us from London that Englishmen in India give themselves away to critics at home by accepting instead of protesting against the appellation Anglo-Indian. We have lately been accustomed to hear of "the reptile Anglo-Indian press," and know that in more places than the House of Commons an Anglo-Indian is held to typify prejudice, selfishness and narrow views. An Englishman who spends the greater part of his life in France, Italy, or even Africa, is not dubbed Anglo-Frenchman, Anglo-Italian, Anglo-African : why then submit to be called Anglo-Indian, and so to be looked down upon in your own country? This is the question propounded for our consideration, and it may interest some of our readers to examine it. We should feel inclined to reply to it somewhat as follows :—First, it is rather too late to object. Could we by any effort shake off the appellation and its fancied reproach? Secondly, her Majesty's Indian Empire is a very big achievement, and having been accomplished and being maintained by the race in question, between whom and Englishmen in France and Italy there is no comparison in respect to valour and self-sacrifice, the notion that Anglo-Indian is a term of reproach seems rather strained, especially in these days when it serves to distinguish most honourably those who know India from "globe-trotters," who do not, and yet air their ignorance on every possible occasion. The epithet, be it remembered, is rarely if ever applied to an Englishman who has not resided in India for some time, and acquired some knowledge of one or more of its different languages. Mr. Caine and Mr. Schwann, for instance, have no claim to it, which redeems it still more from the charge of being a reproach, while exceptions to the rule prove nothing, though they may have excited our correspondent's repugnance to the term we are considering, which, speaking generally, is always bought with a price. Particulars as to that price may be found in the well-known verses on "Paget, M.P." by Mr. Rudyard Kipling, and may be summed up in the two words "tropical exile." To those who pride themselves on inherited wealth, and regard as "poor devils" men like Sir Frederick Roberts and Major Grant, V.C., of Thobal fame, because they were driven to seek a career in India; or even to the cultured dilettante or prig who thinks India a dreadful place because its pervading atmosphere is not what he apprehends by the word Art, we can well understand Anglo-Indian signifying pauper and Philistine. But if outside such circles, among men of knowledge, sense, and decent feeling, the term is associated with anything lowering to the name of Englishman, we can only quote, as our London correspondent recently did, from Sir James Stephen's article in the last Nineteenth Century :—"The fact is that between Englishmen in India and Englishmen in England the greatest of all gulfs is fixed, all their fundamental assumptions are different, all their temptations are different. Each is continually learning the lesson 'Adora quod incendisti, et incende quod adoraste.' The Englishman at home is bred up in the most self-contented and peaceable society in the world; he is surrounded by every sort of conventional standard, prescribing what he is to do, what he is to believe and think, and like and dislike, what are to be his standards of morals and religion, but in India this state of things is gradually reversed. The Englishman finds by degrees that he is a numerically small minority, and that he has to make out for himself what is the Indian estimate of English ways of thinking." If, then, the untravelled Briton should sneer at the so-called Anglo-Indian, the latter can retaliate by allusions to the parochial mind, parish politics, and so on. While making these remarks, by way of answer to our correspondent, we desire to be fair to our kith and kin all over the globe, and not to indulge in invidious comparisons. Undoubtedly the man, and still more the woman, who by long residence in the East shakes off parochial trammels and gains in breadth of view loses much in being separated from that home life which is the glory of England, and to which all of us here look back with regretful longing. Again, we in this country are cut off from intellectual and other pleasures which brighten and elevate English life, while as regards climate and health which influence mind and liver we must perforce admit that the comparison is to our disadvantage. Nevertheless, the Englishmen who have won and kept untarnished the brightest jewel in their Queen's Imperial crown need not, we think, chafe at the designation "Anglo-Indian," applied to them, as we believe, by most sensible persons for purposes of convenience and in a spirit as free from disdain as that in which we speak of an inhabitant of India as a "native." But if any who have never lived in India look down on those who have, we must put down the infirmity to that insular mind which used to rate one Englishman as equal to three Frenchmen, pity the rosbif islander, and leave him to share in the enjoyment of the complacent Scot, who, on his return from Paris, pronounced in favour of "Peebles for pleasure."

PROGRESS IN BELOOCHISTAN.

THE Bombay Gazette says:—An administration report from Beloochistan always has this claim upon our interest—that it shows an ordered civilisation in the early stages of development, and gives opportunities for contrast with the state of the country before the coming of the British which are not afforded where our rule is of longer standing. It diminishes somewhat from the value of the report which the Government have just distributed that it relates to a period as far back as 1888-89, and at some points in the record—as, for instance, in Sir Robert Sandeman's reference to a petition from the leading chiefs of Zhob, asking for a British protectorate—we are reminded that a good deal has happened in the interval. The disadvantages under which an administration suffers in Beloochistan are illustrated here and there by a suggestive reference. Thus we read of a detachment of cavalry being removed from Quetta to Bostan through scarcity of forage, and of another being sent to Mustang for the same reason. But the barrenness of the land is not accepted as inevitable and incurable. Captain H. M. Temple, the political agent of Khelat, who has the Bolan Pass in his charge, has come to the conclusion that by a judicious system of arboriculture the aspect of the Pass can be changed, that trees can be got to grow upon the mountain sides, and that lands now waste can be made cultivable. Something like eighty thousand cuttings were planted during the year under report, and Captain Temple promises that in ten years his efforts will bear fruit. The progress of the trees in the Bolan is a subject upon which no future administration report should be silent. The country is receiving the benefit of British irrigation as well as of British forest conservancy. For some years past a large tract of the Khan of Khelat's territory has been watered by Sind canals, and it has profited as greatly as Sind itself has from canal irrigation. In five years the realisations from the irrigated land had increased by a lac, and large additions were made to the area under cultivation. The revenue history of the Beloochistan districts under British administration, is not less encouraging. Here the primitive system of payment in kind is still, to a very large extent, adhered to, though proposals for abolishing it have been under consideration. In both the Quetta-Pishin and the Thall-Chotiali districts, there was an increase in the land revenue. In the latter district the Government began by levying small cash revenue when it was annexed during the Afghan war of 1878-79. Three years later they reverted to the system of levying in kind, and by the year now reported on, the total collection was equivalent to nearly three lacs of rupees. Peace and good government are evidently telling upon the prosperity of the district. The trade, too, is growing, but it is not growing as it would do if our neighbour, the Ameer, were to look at commercial matters with a more neighbourly eye. There was an increase of nearly three lacs of maunds in the outward trade, and of nearly three and three-quarter lacs in the inward, but the latter was just double the export. This brings into prominence a long-standing complaint, for, as Sir Robert Sandeman remarks, "trade with Afghanistan is still much hampered by the vexatious restrictions and high tolls imposed by the Ameer." The subject cannot be a matter of indifference to Government. They have brought to a successful completion their efforts to remove hindrances on through trade in the Native States of India, and we can scarcely suppose that they have neglected to remind the Ameer that he is not giving them a good return for the 12 lacs of subsidy which they pay him every year when he levies blackmail on Indian trade. It is fair to the Ameer, however, to say that he is not the only obstructive of trans-frontier trade. The rates on the Sind-Peshin Railway are higher than they ought to be, and if they were reduced the trans-frontier trade would show a greater increase. This is a matter entirely within the control of the Government, who are the owners of the railway, and Sir Robert Sandeman's representation on the subject ought not to be without result. The general progress which is being made in that part of the Empire is nowhere better illustrated than in Quetta. A place of which no one had a good word to say a few years ago, with a sanitary record almost worse than any in India, it is rapidly acquiring a reputation as a desirable station to live in. It has no municipality, but, for all that, its sanitation is being rapidly improved, and once more the general health of the place is reported upon as good. The continued absence of epidemics stands in strong contrast with the earlier records of Quetta. The general improvement of the country is shown also in the police reports from the various districts. There has been a great decrease in crime, with no decrease in the detective capacity of the police. The tribal levies and the police seem to work well side by side, and we must suppose that the conduct of the police was good, if in one district the only complaint recorded against them is that they improperly handcuffed a certain sirdar on arrest. The crime in these frontier districts has a special character, and it has to be dealt with in a special way. The Indian Penal Code is in abeyance, and Frontier Regulations take its place, jirgahs or panchayets doing the work of the courts, and perhaps doing it better than they would do. The serious crime consists chiefly of wife-murder through jealousy, or of murders originating in blood-feuds. A wife and a lover are killed for a cause which a French jury would hold to be a justification of homicide. One jirgah, indeed, took quite the Parisian view of a case of this kind, releasing a Pathan who had killed his wife and her paramour. A blood-feud leads to murder, and, the jirgah, untroubled by the Code, impose a moderate sentence of imprisonment, or order the offender to pay a heavy fine. Other cases on the frontier are traced to religious fanaticism, and a year never passes without instances of Ghazis seeking a short route to Paradise, and finding that it really leads to the Andamans or to the gallows. The police records, considering the comparatively short period, during which the country has been subjected to settled rule, are singularly light, and, read in connection with the growth in trade and in the yield of the public revenues, they point to a success which is in the highest degree creditable to Sir Robert Sandeman and the administration in general. The political work of the year was not eventful, but it was accompanied by new proofs of the influence which British officers are able to exercise in their relations with the chiefs of Beloochistan and the parts adjacent. The troubles in Lus Beyla were brought to a happy termination, and a Punjabi official, who was detailed for that purpose, seems to have brought about many improvements in the administration of that out-of-the-way State. There is much, however, in this part of the report, which it is exceedingly difficult to bring within range of Indian interest, except so far as it shows what a real influence the Beloochistan Agency is exerting over the turbulent and discordant elements which surround our frontier.

AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT IN INDIA.

UNDER the auspices of the East India Association a meeting of officers and gentlemen interested in the affairs of the British Empire in the East was held at the Westminster Town Hall on July 20—Professor James Bryce, M.P., in the chair—for the purpose of considering the development of agriculture in India.

The principal address was delivered by Mr. W. C. Macpherson, of the Bengal Civil Service, who elaborately urged that agriculture is in India the direct concern of the Government, and that representations should be made to the India Office in favour of the policy of advance which was advocated by the Famine Commissioners ten years ago, and which has been allowed to wait so long while the Indian Agricultural Departments have existed on probation. Much has been done in the last ten years, Mr. Macpherson admitted, by development of communications and means of food transport, and by increased irrigation, to prevent famine, and much care and forethought have been given in every Province to the preparation of codes for famine relief administration and programmes of relief works to be taken up when necessary. It is certain, however, that many parts of India remain liable to famine, and that if failure of the rains in any season, or at least in any succession of seasons, should be widespread as in 1877, there will be much suffering and loss of life. It may be claimed for every province that by the administrative measures taken, it is better prepared than it was ten years ago to deal with famine; but, on the other hand, the population has been increased during the last decade by 29,000,000. And if increasing trade has added to the total wealth of the country, and given it larger resources wherefrom to eke out years of scarcity, on the other hand, large exports have made the local reserve stocks of food much smaller than they used to be. It is a serious thought that a demand for Indian food grains in Europe may make the struggle for existence more severe to thousands of agricultural labourers in Behar whose wages are less than 2d. a day, and who often support life on one daily meal. The shadow of famine is indeed in no way removed from Indian agriculture, but looms always. India is almost purely an agricultural country. Of its population of nearly 220,000,000 (in British India) at least 80 per cent. are agriculturists. The land revenue makes up nearly one-third of the total revenue. There are no poor laws. To a Government which depends upon the harvest for one-third of its revenues, and which must take upon itself the burden of maintaining the people alive in years of famine, how close should be the connection with the agriculture of the country! If in Great Britain a Board of Agriculture is a proper and useful part of the machinery of Government, how much more is such an organised department required in India, where the connection of Government with the land is so much closer, where skilled knowledge of agricultural facts is rare, and where combined effort in application of better methods is hardly to be obtained except with Government initiative or Government aid! And if in England agricultural progress has been helped by what has been called "the use of brains as well as hands," is it not to be hoped that like results will be obtained in India? It may be that it is in the transfer of the best indigenous methods of agriculture which are already known in India, to districts where practice is less perfect, in better selection and treatment, and in more careful attention to details, that the work of the Agricultural Department in India will be most successful. This, Mr. Macpherson pointed out, is no humble task, and it is one that requires thorough study of native methods under skilled direction before it can be undertaken.

At the close of the subsequent discussion a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Macpherson, and a similar compliment was extended to the chairman.

MAIL STEAMERS AND THEIR CARGOES.

THE following has been sent to us by Commander Dawson for publication:—

The question of Mr. S. Smith, M.P., in the House of Commons is one of much importance to shipowners, their officers, and crews, who suffer from a practice of recent origin in some foreign and colonial ports, of shipping hundreds of tons of bunker coals and transhipping cargoes unnecessarily on Sundays. Mr. S. Smith referred to the part which mail steamers took in originating and encouraging this unloading and loading on Sundays, which steps all divine worship for the crews of cargo vessels, for the precedent set by the mail ships is too apt to be followed for private gain by the owners of many cargo boats.

The consul at Lisbon describes, in a recent Blue Book on Sunday working of cargoes in foreign ports, how the granting of "packet privileges" of this sort to mail ships on the Tagus has grown into an entire setting aside of the Portuguese laws against such practices. The frequent arrivals of mail steamers in Hong Kong Harbour on the day of rest was recently used as a strong argument against the passing of the Sunday cargo-working ordinance in that colony; and the same ill-timed management of the post office at Singapore is even now quoted, in the Blue Book on this subject for the colonies, against any restrictions on this pernicious practise in that harbour.

At Malta thousands of tons of coal are commonly taken on board steamers on Sundays, the mail ships being the leaders in this unnecessary labour. From Brindisi and Marseilles similar complaints are received, as well as from the Cape of Good Hope, Sierra Leone, Brisbane, &c. But the Postmaster-General says these calls are rare, so that the ill reputation the mail steamers have long had among sailors for robbing them of their day of rest would appear to be undeserved. The Postmaster-General might easily clear the reputation of the Post Office by preparing a return to Parliament of the names of the foreign and colonial ports at which mail steamers called or remained last year on Sundays, so as to give occasion for the working of bunker-coals or of cargo, and the dates on which such Sunday work was necessitated during the year. A plea of public advantage may be put in for the mail steamers in this matter; but no such excuse can be made for other shipowners, who stop all divine worship in their ships and bring their own religious consistency into question among their officers and crews, by working thousands of tons of coal and cargoes unnecessarily on the Lord's Day, merely for private gain, in a foreign or colonial port. Acts of this kind do much to account for the very unfortunate and lamentable lack of sympathy and fellow-feeling and kindness which so often obtains between employers and employed in the British mercantile marine.

MILITARY AND NAVAL.

The Order of Merit.—The Governor-General in Council has been pleased to sanction the admission to the Third Class Order of Merit of the undermentioned sepoy of the 29th (Punjab) Regiment of Bengal Infantry:—No. 2,899, Sepoy Diwan Singh, for conspicuous gallantry in action near Gulistan, on the Samana hills, Miranzai, on April 4, 1891, when his guard was attacked by the enemy, on which occasion he defended a wounded comrade and kept the enemy at bay until succour arrived. No. 2,319, Sepoy Jaimal Singh, for conspicuous gallantry on the same occasion, when, under a heavy fire, he carried off the body of Sepoy Rur Singh, who had been killed.

The Shooting of the Various Batteries of Artillery in the Bengal Presidency during the past year is not altogether satisfactory, writes a contemporary. The shooting of thirty-four batteries and the average of all shows an improvement in the figure of merit, but seventeen batteries show a decrease, and the seven batteries of Horse Artillery come out badly. The best of these is only twenty-eighth on the list, the next thirty-first, the next thirty-fifth and fortieth at the bottom. Two of these latter and the last on the list, a field battery, are armed with the new 12-pounder, and it is evident that the "handling of this accurate gun is not yet mastered." It would be a pity if efficient shooting should be in any way sacrificed to the "smartness" for which our Royal Horse Artillery is so justly famed. This is not likely to be the case, however, under our present Commander-in-Chief, himself an old gunner, and an intensely practical man, where anything connected with the efficiency of our Army is concerned.

Major Grant's Promotion.—One gets a glimpse of the curious ideas that regulate military affairs in this country through the fate that has befallen Major Grant since his return from Manipore, says a Bombay paper. He showed at Thobal that he was a born soldier, resourceful as well as brave. For this reason the Government has taken him away from the men who so gallantly responded to his leadership. True, he is now an aide-de-camp on the staff of the Madras Commander-in-Chief; if things came to the worst, he might have been "promoted" to a soft appointment in the Ghee and Gram Branch of the Commissariat Department. But, taking matters as they stand, it is surely not advantageous to the Army—that is, the men who fight, who go long and wearisome marches, who keep watch over desert tracts—to take from it in hot haste a soldier who has shown his pre-eminent fitness for it, and turn him into a glorified "red chuprassie." It would be of interest to know what Major Grant's Goorkha and Sikh comrades of Thobal think of such "promotion."

During his visit to Kangpokol recently General Collett strained the leg in which he was wounded in the Bhootan Expedition, and for several days he was much indisposed, but was better when the mail left.

General Collett will probably return to his headquarters at Shillong in August, his presence being no longer required in Manipore, where a comparatively small military force will be located. A general disarmament of the Manipuris and Kakis has been steadily carried out during the past few weeks, rendering any outbreak impossible.

Col. J. G. McRae, Indian Staff Corps, has been allowed to retire from the Service.

Lieut.-Col. J. M. Hunter, President of the Rajasthanik Court, Kattywar, has been granted privilege leave for three months.

Brig.-Surg. H. Cook, M.D., I.M.S., has been promoted to Deputy Surgeon-General.

Mr. Howell, Assistant Political Officer, accompanied by Lieut. Clay and a party of the 43rd Goorkhas, is making a trip to the Chassad country.

The services of Capt. E. A. F. Carter, Royal Lancaster Regt., have been replaced at the disposal of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

It is understood that Lieut. H. A. Jennings succeeds Col. Brereton as Assistant Inspector-General of Ordnance and Magazines, Madras, the latter officer's services in that department being about to expire.

General Collett has directed that all claims for compensation for losses arising out of the revolt of March last in Manipore be submitted before the end of July. This is to include losses of soldiers' kits.

Sanction has been accorded for the payment of the sum of 2,462 rs. as a military charge to the municipality of the civil and military station of Bangalore, on account of the Profession-tax payable by the military officers of the garrison for 1890.

The Military Account officers have since the 15th instant been located in the new Account Office building at Rawul Pindi, the construction of which has cost the State two lacs of rupees. It was designed by Major Peacock, R.E., and is an ornament to Rawul Pindi.

Certain alterations are made in the regimental centres of Bengal Native Infantry Corps. The regimental centre of the 37th and 38th (Dogra) Regiments is to be at Sealkote; the centre of the 29th, 30th, and 31st Punjab Regiments is to be transferred from Sealkote to Jhelum; and the centre of the 18th Bengal Infantry is to be at Agra, with the 13th, 16th, and 17th Regiments.

BENGAL.

OUR advices from Calcutta are to June 30.

Calcutta and the Hygienic Congress.—A proposal having been made that the Health Officer of Calcutta should attend the forthcoming Hygienic Congress at London, Mr. Lee, the Chairman, has addressed a note to Dr. Simpson, asking if in his deliberate opinion the gain to Calcutta from his presence in London would be commensurate with the expense to be incurred. Dr. Simpson in a long note has expressed his opinion that the gain to the Corporation would be very great, and has given a list of the subjects bearing on the sanitation of Calcutta that will be dealt with at the Congress.

Alleged Wrongful Restraint and Extortion.—In April last a tea planter, Mr. F. W. Gibbons, of the Sibesar district, was charged with wrongful restraint and extortion, before the Deputy Commissioner. The planters were assisting the transport operations in connection with the Manipore expedition, by lending carts and coolies. Mr. Gibbons received a requisition, and supplied two carts, and sent one of his syces, who was given the alternative of entering into an agreement to serve another three years, or to go with the cart on transport duty. He refused to do so, and is alleged to have been made over then and there to the police, as a cartman. On this Mr. Gibbons was charged, tried, and acquitted by the jury. The judge, differing from the jury, referred the case to the High Court. It came before Justices O'Kinealy and Trevelyan on June 25. Their lordships delivered a lengthy judgment, commenting severely on the nature of the evidence tendered. They found the facts to be grossly exaggerated, and without calling on counsel for Mr. Gibbons to reply, they acquitted the accused.

During the year 1892 not more than 54,000 chests of Bengal opium will be offered for sale: not more than 4,500 chests in each month.

Perhaps, says the Times of India of July 3, one of the strongest proofs that the weather really is hot in Calcutta may be found in the fact that the baboos of a certain Government department—the Geological Department—petitioned for the close of the office, as "they were suffering from perspiration and a want of enthusiasm for their work."

The estate of the late Mr. Macdonald, superintendent of the Terai, at Naini Tal, has at last found a purchaser. The Diocesan Board, subject to the approval of the Bishop of Calcutta, intend buying it and removing the Girls' School thither from its present situation. The Government of the North-West Provinces will purchase the present Girls' School premises for public offices.

MADRAS.

OUR advices from Madras are to July 1.

The Countess of Dufferin's Fund.—Lady Wenlock presided at a meeting of the Madras branch of the Countess of Dufferin Fund, held at Government House, Ootacamund, on June 22. It was resolved at the meeting to ask the Commander-in-Chief to assist the committee by establishing military scholarships to meet the expenses of supplying one midwife to each native regiment of the Madras Army. A donation of 2,000 rs. from the Raja Gajapati Row was announced. It was resolved to devote this to the establishment of apothecary and hospital assistant scholarships named after the Raja.

The Bishop-Elect of Vizagapatam.—The Right Rev. J. M. Clerc, Bishop-elect of Vizagapatam, will be consecrated on July 26 by his Grace the Most Rev. Doctor Colgan, assisted by his Grace the Co-Adjutor Archbishop of Pondicherry and the Right Rev. Doctor Riuz, Bishop of Nagpore. The Very Rev. Father Theophilus Mayer, Vicar-General of the Archdiocese of Madras, will preach the sermon at the evening service. The prelates and priests were to leave Madras for Vizagapatam on July 19 by one of the B. I. S. N. Company's steamers.

The Civil Judgeship of Bangalore.—The Madras Mail is informed that the Government of India has appointed Mr. J. C. S. Lawrence an advocate, and the Public Prosecutor of the civil and military station of Bangalore, as the Civil Judge of Bangalore, to succeed Colonel Hill on his retirement in August next. The reconstitution of the Civil Court next August is the result of a scheme drawn up and submitted to Government by the late Sir Oliver St. John, when he was the Resident of Mysore. The Civil Judge will not in future be a sessions judge also; he will exercise only civil jurisdiction, while a new political officer, called the First Assistant Resident, will try all sessions cases. The status of the Civil Court will thus be lowered to that of a subordinate court. Mr. Lawrence is a B.A. and a B.L.; he is also a vakil of the High Court of Madras, and served the Mysore Government as a first-class munsiff and magistrate for many years. He retired in 1882, at the time of the rendition of Mysore, on a pension, and then apprenticed himself to Mr. Willie Grant, of Madras. He has since been practising in Bangalore, where he is universally respected. He is also a municipal commissioner, and the Government, having finally decided to reconstitute the Courts, could not have made a better selection for the appointment. However, the memorial of the Bangalore ratepayers, praying that the status of the Court should not be lowered, has not yet been answered, and the Government of India would do well to pause and consider again the step that it is taking.

A Serious Religious Riot.—A serious riot between Hindoos and Mahomedans occurred on June 21 at Karur town, in the Coimbatore district, where the Mariamman festival was being celebrated. On the 20th several Hindoos obtained permission from the Tahsildar to dress up as tigers. The Mahomedans objected to this. As soon as the Tahsildar learned there was likely to be a disturbance he cancelled his permission to the Hindoos to dress up, and publicly notified it. Some young Hindoos objected to the cancellation, and made preparations to avoid the order. On the 21st the Tahsildar, with a few peons, went to the Tope, where several tigers were preparing their toilet, and persuaded them, as he thought, to desist from their purpose. He then went to the temple where the feast was being celebrated, and, while there, a procession headed by tigers came along. The Tahsildar went to meet it to expostulate, and was received by a shower of stones. He was struck twice, and was obliged to take refuge in a house. About this time the Mahomedans attacked the procession, shouting "Deen," "Deen." The Hindoos drove them back, and then entered the mosque, and, it is reported, smashed everything breakable and desecrated some graves, subsequently attacking the houses of the Mahomedans and wrecking some. It is also alleged that they beat some women, tore up the Koran in the mosque, and committed other serious damage to houses. The police were unable, owing to paucity of numbers, to quell the disturbance. No lives were lost, but serious wounds and much damage to property was caused.

Female Vaccinators.—In this land of the Caste Woman, the Gosha, and the Zenana, says the Times of India, there is ample scope for the employment of women in the Vaccination Department. We are not, therefore, surprised to learn that a demand has already arisen for the services of a female vaccinator. The Residency Surgeon of Bangalore is prepared to appoint, on a salary of 15 rs. per mensem, a first-class female vaccinator for the Vaccination Department of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore, if one can be found.

CEYLON.

A Falmation.—The Roman Catholic Archbishop at Colombo, says a Ceylon paper, has addressed all whom it may concern, through his official organ, on the "sin of those who marry Protestants," with reference to "the approaching marriage of certain Catholics of Colombo with Protestants." All good Catholics are commanded to show "their hearty reprobation of such conduct" by absenting themselves from the festivities on the pain of being dealt with "in the way sanctioned by usage," while the parties who contemplate the "sin" are informed that the Sacraments will be refused them, pending archiepiscopal absolution.

BOMBAY.

OUR advices from Bombay are to July 3.

The Case of Mr. Shroff.—Mr. D. D. Shroff, who is accused of one of the biggest frauds recently heard of in Bombay, has had his case traversed to the next Sessions, and in the meantime, says the Times of India, after having been in gaol for two months, is to be let loose on bail. In two letters attached to the information Mr. Shroff confessed his guilt, and the charge, as it was framed by the magistrate, seemed clear enough. However, before the case was concluded before Mr. Cooper, Mr. Slater, the manager of the Oriental Life Assurance Company, of which Mr. Shroff was assistant manager, was called to Europe through the serious illness of his wife. He left suddenly, and before being cross-examined on the evidence he had already tendered. Mr. Mehta, who appeared for Mr. Shroff, contended that Mr. Slater ought to have given the accused notice of his departure on the receipt of his wife's telegram, as ample time would then have been afforded for his cross-examination. The sessions judge, Mr. Justice Farran, took much the same view. "There is no doubt," said his lordship—and here it will be better to give his exact words—"Mr. Slater in leaving Bombay without giving notice to the prisoner, or giving him an opportunity to have had him cross-examined, had acted improperly. If the case was only between Mr. Slater and the prisoner, I should be much impressed by the arguments of the accused; but it must be borne in mind that the Company are the real prosecutors, and therefore I have to consider the ends of justice that are involved. Mr. Slater, I think, must be considered to be a material witness, though I cannot quite say whether the evidence of that gentleman will alter or tend to the elucidation of the facts of the case. Under these circumstances, and after reading the letters and other documents, I do not think it would be advisable to proceed with the case in the absence of Mr. Slater. Therefore, I make the order for the case to be traversed." Consequently, the case has been traversed to the sessions three months hence, before which time the directors of the company expect Mr. Slater to return. The bail for Mr. Shroff has been fixed at 50,000 rs., a large amount, but certainly not too large, considering the serious nature and large total of the defalcations—some three lacs of rupees. The number of sureties who may contribute to the bail has been limited to five. It should be understood that the application to traverse the case came from the Oriental Life Assurance Company, on the distinct plea that Mr. Slater's attendance was desirable. "We could," said Mr. Inverarity on their behalf, "prove the case without Mr. Slater; but there is no knowing whether the accused might not make suggestions against the manager, which only that gentleman could answer." Under the circumstances, there seems to have been nothing for it but to traverse the case. But the circumstances themselves were very unusual.

Kurrachee, as well as Bombay, has profited by the boom in wheat. A contemporary says every day adds to the pile of wheat at Kiamari, which the trains bring in much faster than it can be loaded into the ships. Every berth along the wharves has its steamer, and as fast as one goes out another takes its place.

Mr. Justice Fane, presiding at the Bombay High Court, has given an important ruling, in which he has decided that the directors of the Coorla Spinning Company had no right to refuse to transfer some 200 shares in the company to the plaintiff in the case, because he declined to pledge himself to a particular line of action as to the mode of managing the company, and the directors feared his adverse vote.

BURMA.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE Rangoon correspondent of the Times telegraphs on July 18:—Supplies have reached the garrison at the jade mines. Fort O'Donnell is now rationed until the first week in August. These supplies, which arrived barely in time, were conveyed with great difficulty. On the last day's march before reaching the Uru River fourteen transport ponies died.

The health of the Madras sepoy in Upper Burma continues very bad. When General Wolsley recently visited Wuntho between 60 and 70 per cent. of the troops were sick. This, however, is an improvement, as from earlier returns it seems that at one period nearly 90 per cent. of the sepoy at Wuntho were sick. Since General Wolsley's visit to Wuntho both the troops and the hospital have been removed to a higher situation. The health of the sepoy at Mansi is but little better than that of the Wuntho garrison.

If the Government of India continue sending Madras sepoy to Upper Burma, notwithstanding the representations made by the local authorities as to their uselessness, something ought to be immediately done to improve their diet and give them some chance of resisting the effect of the climate. The reports made by the military and medical authorities urging the necessity of improving the sepoy's diet have been disregarded. In their present condition the Madras sepoy in Upper Burma are not only useless, but a source of danger.

The younger Wuntho Tsawbwa has not yet replied to the recent letter from the Chief Commissioner offering him pardon and a suitable residence in Lower Burma.

No date is yet fixed for the Viceroy's visit to Burma.

The goods traffic by railway between Rangoon and Mandalay is temporarily interrupted, owing to a bridge having given way.

The rains have been unusually heavy during the last week.

SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE left Rangoon for Bassein on June 25, returning on the 29th. On July 6 he was to leave Rangoon on tour. He goes up the Chindwin to Kindat, and up the Irrawaddy as far as Bhamo.

THE Pioneer says:—With reference to our recent announcement that Sir Alexander Mackenzie has applied for sanction to form an irrigation circle in Upper Burma, Mr. Joscelyne, who has been engaged on inquiries for some time past into irrigation in Burma, has been deputed to India to spend two months inspecting the canal system of Bengal and Upper India. The Superintending Engineer of the First Circle, Burma, goes on three months' privilege leave soon, Mr. R. E. Nelson, Under-Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, officiating for him.

THE CHIEFS of the Kanhow tribe came into Fort White on June 27, and on the 28th took an oath to abstain from raiding, cutting telegraph wires, molesting convoys, &c., and further agreed to recognise all British Government officers as their superiors, and to pay an annual tribute in acknowledgment of their fealty.

THE Mandalay Herald of June 23 says:—The section of the Mandalay Railway between Sagaing and Shwebo, it is announced in an advertisement which appears in another part of to-day's issue, will be opened to general traffic on and after July 1 next. The section is fifty-three miles long, and the first sod was turned eighteen months ago. This will not present itself as very sharp railway construction, but those engaged on it have had several unusual difficulties to contend with, so, on the whole, in congratulating all who have helped to complete the section, we do not think we are too lavish of our praise.

HYDERABAD.

HYDERABAD, says the Deccan Times, is noted for the versatility of some of its public men. For instance, a man may be a Chief Justice to-day and a Home Secretary to-morrow; but an advertisement in a local contemporary that has been brought to our notice shows that they are willing to turn their hands to anything. It was an advertisement of a Patent Medicine of sorts (which only appeared this week), and at the bottom of the advertisement appears the name of "MEHDI HUSSAN, FUTTEH NAWAZ JUNG, Home Secretary." Truly this particular medicine ought to sell rapidly.

PUNJAB, N.-W. P., OUDE, &c.

THE first step in the Kurrachee-Delhi Railway is now well in hand—that is the Hyderabad-Umarkote line. It is expected to be completed within the year.

WE (Pioneer) understand that the capacity in which Major Vincent goes to Rampur is as President of the State Council, in the place of Nawab Safdar Ali Khan, who retires. It hardly needs to be said that if so exceptionally strong a man as the late General Azim-ud-din could not maintain his ground against the violence and hostility of the disorderly parties in the State, no native Minister from outside would have a chance of success. The Government of these provinces, therefore, has wisely judged that the Council requires at its head the support and strength of a British officer.

CENTRAL ASIAN NOTES.

The Daily News correspondent at Tauris telegraphs on July 15:—Prince Nosrat Dowleh is waiting at Teheran for orders to commence operations against the rioters at So-uj-Bolak. Persia hesitates to shed blood. The Turkish Kurds declare if they are attacked they will kill Miss Greenfield, and, in their own language, "protect themselves by her dead body." Mr. Paton suggests that it would be best to surround them and cut off their supplies of water and provisions.

A Reuter telegram from Teheran of same date says:—The British Legation, in view of the fact that the Turkish Consulate at So-uj-Bolak is still occupied and surrounded by armed Kurds, has not accepted the proposal of the Turkish Ambassador that the English girl who is kept a prisoner in the Consulate should be questioned there as to whether she has become a convert to Islamism or not. The Porte has fully recognised the right of Persia to maintain order in her own territory by an armed force if necessary. Persian troops are at So-uj-Bolak ready to take action, and the Turkish Ambassador, who has been throwing some obstacles in the way of the intervention of Persian authorities, now seems inclined to withdraw his opposition. About a thousand Turkish Kurds crossed the Persian frontier to assist the rioters at So-uj-Bolak, but retired when a force of Persian cavalry was sent against them.

According to a Reuter's telegram from Allahabad, dated July 20, the Pioneer learns that a Russian exploring party, numbering 500 men, is about to visit the Pamir, with a view to the extension of Russian influence in that region. This probably refers to Captain Bartchevsky's expedition, which left Samarkand on May 17 for the Pamir and Kafiristan. The St. Petersburg papers stated, at the time, that the expedition would be away four months.

The Ameer of Bokhara has founded a hospital at his capital for Russians, who will be received and treated gratuitously. A Dr. Penjikof has been appointed physician-in-chief.

Special technical schools have been opened at Bokhara and Kizil Arvat for soldiers belonging to the Trans-Caspian Railway Battalion.

According to the St. Petersburg Gazette, a turquoise mine has been discovered at the village of Ibrahim-Ogla, twenty-five versts from Samarkand. It is sometimes stated that Nishapur, in Northern Persia, the birthplace of Omar Khayyam, is the only place in the world where turquoises are found; but, besides the newly-discovered mine, there is also another in the neighbourhood of Khojend.

I have just seen, writes the London correspondent of the Glasgow Herald, a copy of the official report of the results of the expedition of the Brothers Groum-Grishmailo in Central Asia, which has been the subject of much interest in geographical circles during the past three years. They left Russian territory at Semiretchinck in May 1889, and travelled straight to Kuldja, whence they went to the Thianshan Mountains, where they spent some months exploring the defiles and in making an attempt, which proved unsuccessful, to ascend one of the highest peaks. They crossed and re-crossed the range twice, and then turned to Turfan. One of their objects in the Thianshan was to secure specimens of a horse found wild there, known as the Prjevalsky horse, which they have now proved to be a new species, and not, as was at first supposed, a cross like the mule. The first summer and autumn were spent in the Thianshan region, and then they turned eastward into Chinese territory, where, at Soochow, serious difficulties arose with the authorities owing to their passports. Finally they crossed the desert of Gobi from the great lake Kokonor, having explored large tracts of territory in which European has never been before. This is only one of three expeditions sent out by the Russian authorities after Prjevalsky's death to continue his explorations, and as it is intended to continue this work, Central Asia will soon have little to offer to the explorer.

A telegram from St. Petersburg (July 17) states:—Intelligence has been received from Kashgar that considerable consignments of Russian textile fabrics and earthenware have lately reached that place, and that Russian wares are, to an increasing extent, supplanting Anglo-Indian products in the bazaars of that town and the neighbouring district.

According to telegraphic intelligence received by Pesther Lloyd by way of St. Petersburg the Shah of Persia has fallen seriously ill.

The following telegrams relating to the Katy Greenfield abduction have been received since our last issue:—

TAURIS, July 17 (Daily News).—The Kurdish abductors of Miss Katy Greenfield have refused to comply with the Ottoman Embassy's last telegram enjoining them to deliver up the young girl. It appears that they are resolved to hold out to the last.

Prince Nosrat Dowleh, the commander of the Persian troops, is preparing to attack the Turkish Kurds. The friendly Persian Kurds have been invited to join the Government troops. Great disorder prevails at So-uj-Bolak.

TAURIS, July 19 (Daily News).—An agreement has been arrived at between the Persian and Turkish authorities on the subject of Miss Greenfield. Turkey has promised to send troops under Mufti and Nakib Sheriff to deliver the prisoner, inquire into the matter, and punish the culprits. The troops will stay only a day at So-uj-Bolak.

TEHERAN, July 21 (Reuter).—The Ottoman Ambassador here having at length fully conceded Persia's right to maintain order, if necessary by force, among the Turkish Kurds in Persian territory, the Shah issued an ultimatum to the rebels on the 17th inst., demanding Miss Greenfield's surrender. In consequence of difficulties having, however, been raised by the Ameer Nizan, Governor of Azerbaijan, the Persian troops at So-uj-Bolak have not yet taken any action to effect the girl's release.

We take the following notes from the papers received by the present mail:—

The Ameer has, it is said, applied to the Government of India for machine-guns or—as a correspondent puts it—"five or six cannons of the new sort which gives about 18 firings and only filled once."

Under his new system of excise at Cabul the Ameer makes, it is stated, an income of 200rs. per diem from the sale of liquor to Hindoos, Parsees, and Christians in Cabul. The sale of liquor to Mahomedans is prohibited.

Colonel Wulloo Khan, the commander of the Ameer's forces at Kunoor, died, after two days' illness, about June 20. It is thought, states a contemporary, that he was poisoned, possibly by the general of that alaska. The deceased had the confidence of the Ameer, who is much concerned at his death.

A transfrontier correspondent gives an instance of the fate which Russian spies may expect in Cabul. He says that one Malik Hashim Ali Khan, a native of Kohistan, who had joined in Ishak Khan's revolt and fled with him across the frontier, has since returned to Cabul, and was there employed sending secret news to the Russians. About twelve days ago, however, the Ameer was informed of this, and promptly seized the man and hanged him.

The promise of Mian Gul of Swat to go in person with 12,000 men to assist the ex-Khan of Dir against Umra Khan of Jandol appears to have dwindled down to sending only about 1,000 men, Mian Gul himself remaining at home. The Khan of Lalpura, also, who had actually gone to Nawaghi to assist against Umra Khan with a large force of Mohmands, appears to have returned after three days' stay only. This, says the Times of India, is the usual end of alliances and confederations in that part of the world. They stand the test of about a week, until commissariat difficulties begin to be felt. Then the respective contingents go to their houses, promising to return "some other day."

The new British Agent, Sirdar Mohammad Afzal Khan, arrived at Cabul on June 12, and correspondents in that city state that his arrival was strictly private and unceremonious. This, they say, indicates an unusual attitude on the part of the Afghan ruler towards the British envoy, and requires explanation by those who hold the Ameer a faithful ally of the British Crown. The Agent is also stated to have suffered considerable inconvenience in his long and tedious journey, which might have been avoided if better arrangements had been made by the Ameer for him. If it is true that such a cold reception has been given to the representative of the Government of India, we have only to take no notice of it, and we shall, says the Civil and Military Gazette, in no distant future hear of some plainer insult.

There has been some fighting in Boner over the right to a saltpetre deposit, which is highly valued for the purpose of making gunpowder, between the Maliks Muhammad Amin and Said Akbar Khan. In Bar Swat also the Maliks of the Gowalarabai and Pushtunabai villages have been settling their differences by fighting. About half a dozen casualties appear to have occurred on each side in each contest.

Information has been received from Teheran to the effect that owing to ravages of locusts the exportation of grain from Faro and its ports is officially prohibited.

The Keunjar Rising.—Our readers, says the Times of India, will remember that in the middle of May last there was what promised to be a very serious rising in Keunjar, one of the principal tributary States of Orissa, some 200 miles to the south-west of Calcutta. The story of the suppression of the disturbance, which has just been told in the official papers, is a very instructive one. The measures taken were strong, prompt, and effective, and the outbreak was nipped in the bud before it had had a chance to develop, as it threatened to, into a wholesale rising. Immediately news came of the outbreak Mr. Dawson, District Superintendent of Police, marched with 150 armed police to the Singbhum frontier, and Mr. Guise, District Superintendent of Balasore, was ordered to advance with 100 men on the Cuttack side. As the first rumours of the rising were much exaggerated, and the official mind was a good deal exercised about the tragic events in Manipore, the military also were put in motion; but, as the event proved, their assistance was not needed. The insurgents were at first said to number from four to six thousand strong, but by the time Mr. Dawson and his force, after a most difficult and arduous march through a flooded country, had reached the vicinity of Keunjar the numbers had increased, according to popular rumour, to over ten thousand. As Mr. Dawson, however, had sent on a sub-inspector and a sirdar to the rebel camp, and they had been detained as prisoners, he pluckily determined to march on, no matter what the odds were, and rescue them. After a twenty-two mile march, Superintendent Dawson succeeded in doing this, and then advanced to meet the rebel leader, who very obligingly handed Mr. Dawson his sword, and asked him to cut his rebellious head off. He and the other leaders were taken prisoners, and Mr. Dawson then took possession of the capital, where he was joined soon after by the force under Mr. Guise, who, like Mr. Dawson, had had a very trying time of it. The rebels are now awaiting trial, and Keunjar is quite peaceful again.

NOTES FROM THE FAR EAST.

A TELEGRAM from San Francisco (July 18) says:—The Shanghai Mercury of June 8, which has been received here by the steamer Belgie, gives particulars of the murder of Mr. A. W. Green, the English Custom House officer, and M. Argent, the member of the French Mission, who were killed by Chinese rioters at Woosieh at the same time as a number of the Europeans' houses were burnt. The ladies of the mission sought refuge on board the steamer Tepsing, while the bodies of the murdered men were taken on board the United States steamer Palos. It appears that M. Argent was knocked down in the street by a stone thrown by a boy, and that he was brutally attacked by the mob, who shattered his head. Mr. Green's throat was cut by the rioters. It is stated that a Canton woman, who was one of Mr. Green's household, was also murdered after she had killed three of her assailants with a sword. The threatened outbreak at Kin Kiang had not assumed great proportions, owing to the presence of three gunboats, which had landed forces and thus held the rioters in check. Reports from other quarters, however, show that destruction to property continued.

The following Dalziel telegram is from Marseilles (July 19):—The steamer which arrived to-day from India and China brings news from Tonquin of the sudden death at Vinh, on May 29, of M. Ernest Millot, the explorer who assisted Jean Dupuis in 1873. The Tonquin papers announce that Captains Capet and Haylaire and M. Pavie will return to France on the next steamer. M. Pavie has just made an important exploration in the country of Long Pana and South Yunnan. The map of the territories explored, which the members of the mission will soon have completed, is expected to be of great use in relation to the frontier questions long pending between France and Siam. M. Pavie will return to Bangkok after a short stay in France, and will endeavour to settle the frontier controversy with the King of Siam.

A long correspondence between three unofficial members of Council (Messrs. Ryrie, Ho Kai, and Whitehead), the Hong Kong Government and the Secretary of State, has been published in the Colony. The correspondence deals with the military contribution and the increase of official salaries. It concludes with a despatch from the Secretary of State authorising the payment of the increased salaries, as he considers the Colony is well able to pay both the military contribution and the higher salaries.

Liu Taotai, of the Foreign Office, has returned from Wuhu (writes a Nankin correspondent), where he has been conducting the negotiations regarding the riot at that place. It has been impossible as yet to come to an agreement with the French authorities. He reports their claim on account of the Wuhu outrage at eight million taels. The Viceroy, it is said, is very much incensed, and declares that he is ready for war, but not to pay such a bill.

Placards have been posted up, says the N. C. Herald, in the vicinity of Chinkiang informing the people that a number of kerosene-oil tins have recently been dug up on the premises of the Roman Catholic Mission at Tanyang, and that on the tins being opened it was found they contained the bodies of Chinese children with their eyes and hearts missing. The people were invited to go and see for themselves. The Chinkiang authorities despatched a deputy to the scene, and removed the district magistrate. In consequence of the unsettled state of affairs at Chinkiang extra troops have been stationed outside the concession, and a number of sailors from a gunboat, armed with swords, patrol the streets at intervals.

There was a disturbance at Soochow on June 9, and an attack made on some mission premises, but the rioters were dispersed, and recent telegrams state that all was quite there.

We understand, says the N. C. Herald, that Liu Taotai, the Commissioner for Foreign Affairs at Nankin, who was sent up to Wuhu to arrange about the indemnity to be paid to the French priests, has come to the conclusion that the priests should be compensated, but that the two Chinese Catholic nuns, whom the people charge with being the cause of the riot, should be handed over to the Chinese authorities that the charge may be properly investigated. This decision he telegraphed to the Tsungli Yamén, by whom it was approved. It is needless to say that the nuns will not be given up. They have already been examined by the magistrate at Wuhu, and the charge against them dismissed, and it would be a weakness of which the French are not likely to be capable to give these two poor women up on a charge which virtually amounts to witchcraft; for there is no other charge against them. The condition that they shall be given up is not likely, we are informed, to be insisted on, for men in the position of Liu Taotai and the Nankin Viceroy know perfectly well how absurd a charge of witchcraft is, and the Wuhu Taotai will have to make good the loss suffered by the French priests there; but the incident shows an unpleasant disposition on the part of the authorities at Nanking to take the side of the Taotai at Wuhu, and to evade, more Sinico, their obligations. The French Chargé d'Affaires and the Ministers at Peking will have to assume a firmness which they have not displayed for some time, in dealing with the Tsungli Yamén.

A correspondent writes to us (N. C. Herald) from Nankin under date June 4:—All is quiet here at present, but there are constant rumours of further trouble. The people say: "The Catholics must go." Perhaps to others they say: "The Protestants must go." So long as affairs are unsettled at Wuhu, there will be disquiet here. As to the question touching a desire for rebellion on the part of the Ko-lao Hui I can only report the opinions of others. This is the view of nearly every Chinaman with whom I have talked, whether of officials or the people. But the Chinese delight in rumours, and they lose nothing as they travel. I have been gravely told that there are between 20 and 30 millions of members in this society, and that the Governor-General is one of them. Some time before your leader upon this subject appeared, I heard several Chinamen advance the theory that the attack on foreigners was a mere pretence, the desire being to involve China in a foreign war and thus make the way easy for the overthrow of the dynasty. Of course the matter is not talked about very openly, but when the question comes up men speak their opinions freely. Two of our number were warned the other day, however, by a company of soldiers that if they didn't stop talking about the Ko-lao Hui they would "eat bitterness." The matter has evidently been brewing for some time. Several months ago a personal teacher employed by one of our number living north of the river gave up his situation because he understood there was an attack soon to be made upon foreigners, and he did not wish to be associated with them. Another teacher not long ago told the missionary employing him that there would be a rebellion soon. All these are mere straws, but they indicate the feeling of the people.

A recent traveller in Hunan, a foreigner, mentions an incident which is characteristic of the ways of Chinese officialism. On landing at a certain town he and his companion, both first-rate Chinese scholars, found some men busily engaged in posting up placards inciting the people to "Kill the foreign devils!" They went to the magistrate's yamen and complained. The magistrate received them most politely, and said that their story was impossible, and then, at their request, sent for the police of the quarter in which the placards were being posted. When they arrived they turned out to be the very men who were posting the placards.

A despatch from Saigon announces that M. de Lanessan, Governor of Indo-China, has left that place for Hué.

A Reuter telegram from Bangkok (July 16) says:—The King of Siam has turned the first sod of the Bangkok-Pankam Railway. The ceremony was witnessed by a large crowd of natives, who displayed great enthusiasm on the occasion. His Majesty has been invested with the insignia of the Russian Order of St. Andrew.

The Amoy Times says:—No one who studies passing events can fail to notice the rapidity with which the Dutch are developing their interests in this part of the world. They are now a close rival to Great Britain, and at the present rate of progress of the two countries will head John Bull before another decade has passed. Their coolie traffic is close on to a half-million per annum, while that of England is under fifty thousand, or Portugal a few hundred, of Germany, Haiwaia, and the South American republics hardly as much. What is more, they have secured the good will of the Chinese authorities and the Chinese people. They take the best care of their coolie wards. Of ten who leave the Celestial Empire, five return in ten years with a competence and three with more money than they would have had if they had remained at home. In steam-transportation, Holland is showing equal industry and success. Deli now has six steamship companies, and is a stopping-place for no less than twenty-eight lines of steamers. It heads Amoy and is almost equal with Hong Kong and Shanghai. Only this year, Jacob Van Nie, one of its leading merchant princes, started two new companies and obtained all the necessary capital in his own city. The exports of Sumatra, Java, and the other Dutch possessions, have now passed the hundred million marks, and are growing five times as fast as the population. No other community in the East can show such wonderful progress. On the contrary many of them are on the decline. Holland has gained its success by hard work and indomitable pluck.

We understand, says the Straits Times, that the opinion of the Home Government is that fresh legislation is needed on the subject of the legalisation of marriages in the Straits. The points, of course, are those which have already been discussed in the Straits Times at some length, and which are associated with the question of whether Bishop Hose is "the Anglican Bishop of the diocese" within the meaning of the Indian Marriage Act, 1865. The Home Government are not sure whether he is, and they have instructed the Straits Government to prepare and pass in the Legislative Council an Ordinance that will set at rest the doubt whether certain people are or are not married. The Ordinance will declare that Bishop Hose is to be deemed "the Anglican Bishop of the diocese" within the meaning of the Indian Marriage Act, and that people who have been married under his authority are to be deemed to be married, as if he had held a proper authority.

The Bengal-Nagpore Railway.—Capital publishes the following, which ought, if untrue, to be denied forthwith:—We hear that there is great discontent among the subordinates of this line, who, we are told, are underpaid and overworked. The higher officials, on the other hand, are, we understand, underworked and overpaid, and we hear that some of them have time to devote themselves to developing the resources of the country with more gain to themselves than to the railway. We hear of special trains kept waiting for hours and hours to suit the private convenience of some of these gentry; indeed, were we to publish all we have heard, we fear that the shareholders would be up in arms. The delay on this line is something wonderful, owing, we hear, to the inadequate and miserable staff, some of whom have been known to be on duty twenty-four hours at a stretch. Will not the tender-hearted Mr. Holt Hallett look into this? What are the Lancashire philanthropists about? Where is Mr. S. Smith, M.P.?

INDIA, &c., IN PARLIAMENT. HOUSE OF LORDS.

Friday, July 17.

France and Siam.—LORD LAMINGTON rose to ask her Majesty's Government whether they could give any information as to the correctness of a telegram appearing in the Standard of July 1, stating that the French had occupied the province of Luang Prabang, belonging to the kingdom of Siam. He observed that the French were claiming a district which belonged to the kingdom of Siam, and, generally speaking, the recognised frontier between Annam and Siam was the watershed to the east of the Mekong. That old traditional claims could be made for a wider extension of the old kingdom of Cambodia was certain, but if claims in that part of the world were to be based purely on tradition they would become rather involved. But, as a matter of fact, there was no doubt that the French intended to take possession of the Mekong. He had seen in a French paper that they claimed the valley, and the new Governor, M. de Lanessan, was known to be bent on a policy of aggression. Within the last two days he had heard that the Siamese had taken alarm at the appointment of this gentleman, and had sent their princes along the eastern frontier. This country had before now taken upon itself to look after the interests of small and weak nationalities, but if in this case no interest could be aroused on the score of justice, our self-interest alone should be sufficient. With the advance of the French to the Mekong, or by the acquisition of Prabang, they would be nearly approaching our Burmese possessions, and awkward questions of delimitation would be sure to arise. Or, again, if, further south, they advanced beyond the Mekong, difficulties with our numerous Burmese, Shan, Chinese, and Malay subjects recognised by the Siamese Government as under our protection, would occur. He would, therefore, ask whether the chief European Powers could not be invited to act in concert to examine carefully into the claims of the Siamese as to their territories, and then, having marked out their frontiers, to secure the integrity of their dominions by international agreement in the same way as the independence of Belgium was secured.

The MARQUESS OF SALISBURY: My noble friend has given us the interesting results of his travelling in those districts of which he has just been speaking. He has acquired a facility in the pronunciation of Siamese names which I shall not attempt to imitate. (Laughter.) I believe the province of Luang Prabang is a very important place. I have inquired into the matter, and I believe there is no foundation for the rumour and that the French are not within 100 miles of the place. My noble friend speaks very confidently of what the intentions of the French are in the future. I should be very sorry to hazard any opinion on the subject founded on statements in a newspaper—even a French newspaper—and it would hardly be fair to do so. My noble friend mentioned, without distinguishing them, two separate and distinct questions. One is as to maintaining the independence of the kingdom of Siam, and the other is a question of boundary. We have great interest, I quite agree, in the independence of Siam. I have not the slightest ground for believing that it is threatened, and I hope it never will be. The question of boundary must be dealt with not by general statements, but by an examination of the points in issue. Any general statement on my part would be most unjustifiable and could not possibly lead to any good. I do not anticipate that the remedy my noble friend suggests is a practical one. I do not think we should ever induce the Powers of Europe to guarantee the independence of Siam in the way in which they have guaranteed that of Belgium. The independence of Belgium is exceedingly important to the Powers of Europe, and they have entered into engagements highly favourable to the independence of that country. The independence of Siam is of great importance to us; I hope it is of great importance to France; but I hardly know any other Power which has any strong interest in Siam. Therefore, I do not think there is any possibility of that valuable instrument, the European concert, being utilised for the purpose of securing the independence of Siam. I believe that the rumours to which my noble friend has referred do not rest on a sound foundation. I agree that the independence of Siam is of great commercial importance to us, and I hope we shall never live to see the day when we shall have to ask ourselves whether that independence is in any way threatened. (Hear hear.)

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Thursday, July 16.

Indian Mutiny Veterans.—MR. E. ROBERTSON presented a petition, signed by 5,000 of his constituents, having reference to the destitute condition of many of the veterans who had passed through the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny, and praying the Government to take such measures as might meet the requirements of the case, and also a similar petition from the citizens of Aberdeen having the same prayer.

Compulsory Vaccination in India.—In answer to Mr. Summers, SIR J. GORST said: Compulsory vaccination exists in four districts of Bengal and 183 municipal cities and towns in different provinces. The extension of the compulsory law is effected by the local government, but generally on the initiative of the municipal or other local authority. The provisions vary slightly in different provinces. Provisions exist in the Indian law analogous to those enhancing punishments under the English law. The Secretary of State cannot state the number of prosecutions; but, so far as he is aware, there have been no imprisonments.

Ganja Smokers.—MR. M. STEWART asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether his attention had been called to the statement in the Allahabad Pioneer of May 10 last that ganja, "which is grown, sold, and excited under much the same conditions as opium," is far more harmful than opium, and that "the lunatic asylums of India are filled with ganja smokers"; whether he was aware that the possession and sale of ganja had been prohibited for many years past in Lower Burma, and that the exclusion of the drug was stated in the Excise Report of that province for 1881-82 to have been "of immense benefit to the people"; and whether he would call the attention of the Government of India to the desirability of extending the same prohibition to the other provinces of British India.

SIR J. GORST: The Secretary of State has seen the statement about ganja referred to. The facts are as stated as to the exclusion of ganja from Burma. In Bengal, the province where ganja is principally consumed, the price of duty-paid ganja has been greatly increased during recent years, making its consumption more expensive. The Secretary of State will inquire whether the Government of India propose to take further steps to limit the consumption.

Opium Vendors.—In answer to Sir J. Kennaway, SIR J. GORST said: The Secretary of State is aware that licensed opium vendors in Bombay engage to sell a specified quantity of licit opium. A table showing the minimum for each district is given at page 10 of the Bombay Opium Report. The revenue officers of the Bombay Government believe that the existence of this minimum tends to prevent licensed vendors from dealing in opium illegally smuggled from the adjoining Native States. The Bombay Government will be invited to consider whether the existence of the minimum tends to encourage an increased consumption in British districts, and if it does so tend they will doubtless alter the system.

MR. S. SMITH asked the Under-Secretary whether his attention had been drawn to the statement that the license for the sale of opium in the district of Broach required that the licensee shall sell not less than 5½ tons of the drug per annum, and that he was liable to a fine of 10,195 rs. for selling one ton short of his guaranteed quantity, and whether the fine had been exacted; whether his attention had been drawn to the statement that the quantity of opium compelled to be sold to the population of Broach (326,930 people) equals 20 million 4-grain poisonous doses, and whether that statement was correct; whether it was the case that the opium licensee may open many shops under his one license, and also that the Government took power to compel him to open new shops; whether his attention had been drawn to the statement that in sixteen districts of the Bombay Presidency the consumption of the drug had increased 30 per cent. in five years; and whether that statement was correct; whether his attention had been drawn to the statement in the "Moral and Material Progress of India" that it was proposed to close the Cheendoo shops where prepared opium was smoked upon the premises, as the existence of those houses tended to spread the vice of opium smoking, which was of recent origin in most parts of the Punjab, and whether the Government would urge upon the Government of India the expediency of giving prompt effect to that proposal; whether the India Office had yet received a reply from the Government of Burma to the inquiry promised Feb. 26 into the allegation that in the town of Akyab there are several hundreds of opium dens, though but one opium license was reported as given out; and whether he would ask the Indian Government to withdraw provisions calculated to stimulate the consumption of opium in India in accordance with the decision of the House of Commons.

SIR J. GORST: The facts are as stated in the first two paragraphs of the question. The license holder cannot open more shops than are named in the license unless required to do so by the collector. The increase during the last four years has been about 7 per cent. The increase of about 17 per cent. in 1886-87 was attributed mainly to the repression of smuggling. It appears from page 94 of the Report for 1889-90, presented in May last, that all the Cheendoo shops in the Punjab have been closed with satisfactory results. The inquiry was sent to India in March, but no reply has yet been received. It is not the policy of the Government of India to stimulate the consumption of opium or any other intoxicant.

Friday, July 17.

The Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act.—MR. S. SMITH asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether, with reference to the proceedings of the fourth provincial conference of the Bombay Presidency, which sat at Poona on May 11 last, the attention of the Secretary of State for India had been drawn to resolution No. 6 on the subject of the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act, which states that the conference viewed with alarm the proposal to abolish the conciliation system under the Act; and whether, as desired by the conference, the Secretary of State would direct that the most recent reports of the special officers connected with the working of the Act should be published, with a view to enable the public to submit their representations to Government in the matter.

SIR J. GORST: The subject of the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act, 1879, is now under the consideration of the Government of India, and until an expected despatch is received from them no action will be taken by the Secretary of State in Council.

Monday, July 20.

Port of Spain.—MR. KING asked the Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies whether he is aware that the existing waterworks at Port of Spain were constructed for a population not exceeding 15,000, and that the population is now between 40,000 and 50,000; that the water is polluted, in the first instance, by the open drainage of the native village of Maraval, and is subsequently conveyed to the inhabitants of Port of Spain without the intervention of any filter-beds; whether anything has been done to carry out the recommendations for an improved water-supply of Mr. Unsworth, who was sent out to report on this question to her Majesty's Government fifteen years ago, or those of Mr. Tanner, the director of Public Works; whether he is aware that, after the disastrous fires of February last, the coroner, at an inquest on twelve bodies, found that "the present water supply of Port of Spain is inadequate to cope with any fire of great magnitude"; and, whether, as Mr. Tanner is in England, steps will be immediately taken, in concert with him, to move the local authorities to action in this matter.

BARON H. DE WORMS: When the existing waterworks at Port of Spain were constructed, the population of the town was probably between 15,000 and 20,000, and it is now over 40,000; but the Assistant Director of Public Works reports that even during the recent severe drought the daily water-supply has been about 62 gallons per head. The Maraval river, which is the principal source of the supply, passes through the village of Maraval, and the water is not filtered. Mr. Unsworth's recommendations were not carried out except to a small extent. Those of Mr. Tanner were submitted in December last, and are now under the consideration of the local government. No steps have yet been taken to carry them out. The coroner's verdict, at the inquest on the bodies of the persons who lost their lives in the fires of February last referred to, did contain the words that "the present water supply of Port of Spain is inadequate to cope with any fire of great magnitude." The Secretary of State does not think it necessary to put any special pressure on the local authorities. They have shown their sense of the importance of the matter by requiring Mr. Tanner to report, and they will doubtless not fail to give full consideration to his proposals.

Tuesday, July 21.

Extra-Indian Occupation.—SIR J. GORST, in reply to Mr. Cremer, said neither a political officer nor Indian troops were stationed at Chitral. Gilgit was a valley of Cashmere, and a political officer and Indian troops were stationed there. An agent was first stationed at Gilgit in 1877, was withdrawn in 1881, and re-established two years ago. There were no papers which, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, could be laid before Parliament without injury to the public service.

QUESTIONS, &c.

Mr. Henniker Heaton has given notice to ask the Under-Secretary of State for India whether the Government of Bombay has refused to allow native applicants for certificates as engineers on board of local coasting steamers to be examined in their own language? whether the coasting vessels referred to are commanded and manned wholly by natives? whether in other countries candidates for such certificates are examined in their mother tongue? and whether he will cause inquiries to be addressed to the Government of Bombay on the subject?

On an early day Sir Henry Havelock-Allan will call attention to the manner in which the patronage of the Secretary of State for India is administered as regards the granting and withholding of commissions to the sons of meritorious Indian officers of junior rank and to the abuses of the existing system, and to move a resolution.

Irrigation in Sind.—There appears to be no room, says the Englishman, for doubt concerning the benefits derived from irrigation in Sind. The area under cultivation increased last year by nearly a quarter of a million acres, while the total canal revenue rose from about 44 to nearly 48 lacs. The heavy floods which occurred during the year seem, on the whole, to have done more good than harm. Kharif cultivation was severely affected in some districts, but most of the submerged land was resown with rabi, and yielded a very satisfactory return, while a considerable area which under ordinary circumstances is uncultivable was brought under the plough.

Government Purchase of Iron.—A resolution has just been passed by the Government of India relaxing, as a tentative measure, existing orders prohibiting the local purchase of articles of iron and steel manufacture made up from imported raw materials. The Governor-General in Council desires it to be clearly understood that this relaxation is sanctioned solely in the hope of thereby effecting an economy in public administration, both by an actual saving in cost of the articles purchased locally, and by avoiding the delays that are sometimes inevitable when articles have to be procured by indent on England. It is not intended to sanction thereby a procedure in any degree of a protective nature, and firms that may obtain orders under the resolution are to be distinctly warned that no claim for compensation of any sort will be admitted in the event of its being found necessary to discontinue the practice of inviting tenders in India. A number of restrictions are to be rigidly enforced in order to ensure that the articles locally supplied are not imported into India in a finished or partly finished state; that the price is not in excess of that at which similar articles could be obtained by indent on the Secretary of State, and that the quality is not inferior to that of the English supplies.

The Kolkar College at Indore.—The Pioneer says:—The State of Indore has just begun what is perhaps the most notable experiment yet made in education in India, certainly the boldest in design yet attempted by a Native State. This is nothing less than the opening of a college which shall teach up to the B.A. standard; which shall be entirely supported by the State, no fees whatever being charged; and which shall be open to all classes, of all creeds and castes, from everywhere. The College is to be presided over by an English gentleman, who is being brought from England for the purpose; and chairs have been founded in English literature, history and political economy, logic and moral philosophy, Sanskrit, Persian, mathematics, and natural science. Not only so, but the College will have a technical side also, in which drawing, surveying, carpentry, carving in metal, and printing will be taught, under the superintendence of a gentleman who has had long practical experience in technical instruction. The abolition of fees in collegiate education is not an example which could be generally imitated in India at the present time, or which perhaps it would be desirable to imitate; but the bold attempt to unite a technical course, suited to the present wants of the country, with the traditional curriculum deemed proper in a college, will be watched with the keenest interest, and may supply a much needed object lesson. Whether we regard the breadth and catholicity of its aims, or the liberality with which its benefits are to be thrown open to all who may choose to avail themselves of the privilege, the new institution is certainly in the highest degree creditable to its promoters and to the Indore State.

LONDON: WEDNESDAY, JULY 22, 1891.

FRANCE AND NORTHERN SIAM.

THE comedy which has been enacted for some years between the French officials in Tonquin and the rabble troops of the KING OF SIAM in that no-man's land, the Alsatia lying between the Black River of Tonquin and the crest of the Annam main range of hills, has probably been brought to a close by the statement of LORD SALISBURY in answer to LORD LAMINGTON'S question in the House of Lords last Friday. This Alsatia is the home of Shan tribes known to themselves as Pai and Thai, and to the French as Muongs, because their country is split up into Muongs, or petty Principalities, each State being practically independent and ruled by hereditary chiefs, who at various times have paid tribute to each and every one of their more powerful neighbours. These tribes occupy the whole of the hills and plateau regions which lie like a great amphitheatre round the deltaic plain of Tonquin, and it is in their country that various hordes of rebel Chinese have taken refuge after various rebellions in Southern China. At the close of the Taiping rebellion, which raged from 1849 to 1865, great numbers of Chinese from Kwangsi and Kwangtung, some of whom were known to the French as Black Flags and Yellow Flags, fled into this hilly forest-clad region, where they were joined by Hors, or Chinese Mahomedans, from Yunnan, who are known to Europeans as Panthays, to Chinese as Houei-Houei, and to the Shans as Hors. These Mahomedans swarmed across the southern frontier of Yunnan towards the close of the rebellion which desolated that province of China from 1855 to 1873, and settled themselves in communities in various parts of the Shan States which lie to the south of Yunnan. The greater number of them built villages among the independent Muongs, in the country drained by rivers emptying into the Gulf of Tonquin. In 1878, owing to serious outbreaks of rebellion in Kwangsi and Kwangtung, a fresh horde of Chinese rebels were driven over the frontier into Tonquin, who were shortly afterwards joined by the Chinese General LI-YANG-TSAI, the pretended heir to the Li dynasty of Tonquin, at the head of large bodies of disbanded soldiery, who, when followed by the troops of Kwangsi and Kwangtung, retreated into the country of the Muongs and added to the disorderly population. Here, then, was a pretty nest of hornets for the Siamese to disturb with their pretensions. The practical independence of the Muongs in 1874, the time when the French assumed protection over Tonquin under treaty with Annam, can be judged from M. DUPUIS'S account of his descent of the Red River to Kouence, the Annamite post at the head of the delta, where he relates that: "During the Tonquin dynasty the people between Laokai and Kouence recognised themselves as tributaries of Tonquin, but since the Annamites took possession of it in 1802, the tribes have freed themselves from the yoke of Annam." This must have happened later than 1837, when McLEOD, on his visit to Kiang Tung and Kiang Hung, noted in his journal that "Kiang Hung is bounded to the eastward by Tonquin and the Cochin Chinese territories; to the southward by Laos, or the territories of Muang Luang Phrabang and Muang Nan." The old boundaries of political influence between Tonquin and Burma had not been forgotten, however, for we find KING THEEBAW sending an Embassy to France in 1883 with a letter from his Minister of War, in which he states that:—"Once Burma and France were a long way off from one another, and relations between them were difficult. Now, through the occupation by France of the province of Tonquin, the two countries have a common boundary—that is to say, they are in contact on the eastern frontier of Burma, where lie the provinces of Kiang Tung and Kiang Hung. The province of Tonquin and the two provinces of Kiang Tung and Kiang Hung have a common boundary with the Chinese province of Yunnan." Muang U (M. Oo of the map) on the upper waters of the Nam Oo is one of the nine panas, or sub-chieftainships, of the British Shan State of Kiang Hung, which lie to the east of the Mé Kong River.

We fancy the French officials in Tonquin must have chuckled when they found Siam gloating over the thought of possible encroachments on the territory of the Muongs. It gave them the chance of making her a willing and eager catspaw. They accordingly smiled upon Siam's pretensions, and egged her on to push armed forces into the country, and plant police posts in every direction. The natural results followed. The Hors, irritated by her proceedings, retorted by raiding time after time into Luang Phrabang. They sacked and burnt its chief town, and, pushing southwards, carried war and rapine through the Siamese dominions as far south as Vieng Chang. France has thus been able to strengthen her position in Tonquin at the expense of Siam. It was in the debatable land between the Black River and the Nam Ma that the remnant of the Black Flags, after their abandonment by their old leader LIU JUNG-FU, maintained their position until they finally submitted to the French in 1888. After being the willing instrument of France in the disputed territory for several years, after issuing a map by Mr. J. MCCARTHY, its surveyor-general, in 1887, in which the whole of the debatable land is shown as Siamese territory, Siam wakes up at length to find herself laughed at by the French officials and hustled out of the disputed territory as soon as the French were in a position to occupy it and were ready for demarcating their frontier with Siam. The upshot of this adventure is all the more galling to the Siamese as they are at length awake to the intense amusement their proceedings have afforded to Europeans who have watched the play in which Orientals noted for their cunning and treacherous craft were being outwitted by foes who had never even taken the trouble to assume the guise of friends. It is well known that every official past and present who has resided in French Indo-China, has openly and frequently urged that the whole of the provinces of Siam which lie in the basin of the Mé Kong should be incorporated in the French dominions. It is to be hoped that the declaration of LORD SALISBURY will put a stop to such designs of France upon Siam, and that the India Office will interest itself in the late explorations of M. PAVIE, which are believed to have been carried out chiefly in the nine divisions of the British Shan State of Kiang Hung which lie between the Mé Kong River and the crest of the Annam main range of hills. The sequel of these explorations will probably be a proposal by French officials to annex this portion of the British Shan States to the French protectorate in Tonquin, on the plea that the Indian Government has not as yet exercised practical control over the portion of the Burmese dominions which lie to the east of the Mé Kong. If the Government of India through ignorance or neglect allows such annexation to take place, our area for trade in Indo-China will be seriously restricted, and the important connection of Burma with China by railway will become an impossibility.

In this morning's Times appears as an advertisement (!) a second list of subscriptions to the PRINCESS OF WALES'S fund for MRS. GRIMWOOD. We should have thought that any newspaper in England would have been glad to print the list without charge. The fund has apparently been opened to male subscribers, for we find the names of LORD IVEAGH for 20*l.* and SIR JOHN PENDER and SIR THOMAS LUCAS for 10*l.* each. An interesting subscription is that of "Ninety-four Sisters and Nurses"—6*l.* 13*s.* If gentlemen's subscriptions are received the fund should be swelled to a handsome amount. In every club in London there must be scores of men who would be only too glad to join in this public recognition of MRS. GRIMWOOD'S pluck and devotion. A paragraph in the Standard states that the total of subscriptions amounts to about 750*l.*, and a request is made that ladies to whom collecting cards were sent will return them as soon as possible to the Hon. Secretary at Marlborough House. We hope this does not imply that the subscription list is to be prematurely closed.

SIR JOHN GORST in answering MR. KEAY'S question about the death of BULWUNT RAO stated that the man was seized at Oojain, in Gwalior territory, by the police of Gwalior and Hyderabad, in the presence of a Government policeman, and subjected to great violence from which he died. This information has probably been elicited by telegraph, and is, so far, a correction of the statement of facts which we published a week or two ago. It appears however that the Indian Government had promptly moved the durbars to take action in the matter and that it is being investigated. While this inquiry is pending, judgment as to the truth of BULWUNT RAO'S accusations against HOLKAR will be postponed.

In the debate on the Factory Bill, in the Lords the other day, LORD SALISBURY reminded the House that Factory legislation in England has hitherto succeeded because "it has been moderate and sensible, and has avoided hasty, unnecessary, and mischievous interference." Hence even this country has postponed the full adoption of the Berlin Conference programme. It would be well were Parliament to apply to India the principle which the PRIME MINISTER vindicates at Home. "Hasty, unnecessary, and mischievous interference" may injure a great and valuable industry. What is wanted is a "moderate and sensible" improvement of conditions governed by the circumstances of India and her population, and a due consideration for the interests of the Indian capitalist.

WOMEN IN INDIAN FACTORIES.

MRS. DR. PECHEY PHIPSON'S letter to the Times of last Friday on the results of Indian Factory legislation as regards the condition of the native women for whose supposed well-being the movement for further restrictions on the terms of their employment has been carried on in this country ought to carry weight with people who are not prejudiced by interest or sentiment. She entirely repudiates any sympathy with Mr. Holt Hallett's attempt to use her opinions in favour of his contentions, and not in the least offensively, but quite emphatically suggests that he is but imperfectly acquainted with the conditions of Indian factory life. Mrs. Phipson has studied them on the spot, with the rare advantage of bringing to the subject a large medical experience and the natural sympathy of a humane woman with those of her own sex. Her opinion is explicit. It amounts to this, that Mr. Hallett and his friends, with the best intentions, have been doing the native women a very cruel kindness. As we feared, the effect of recent legislation will be, not to protect the women but to shut them out altogether from employment when men can take their places. Mrs. Phipson quotes the words of a native gentleman, Mr. Runchorelal Chotilal, C.I.E., "who takes great interest in the welfare of women and has built them a hospital," which prove that her warning is based on sound reasons. Compared with the field-work to which these women must be relegated, if they are to work at all, the labour of the mills is happiness; to use Mrs. Phipson's picturesque phrase, the mill is to them like "the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." It is on the face of things absurd to endeavour to apply abstract principles of humanity and regulations adapted to the conditions of highly civilised European States to such a population as that of India. It is only by slow stages that we have been able in England to introduce improvements into the terms of labour for women and children, and it is utter folly to rush through reforms in India regardless of the interests alike of employers and employed. Mrs. Phipson's eloquent appeal ought to have some influence on English opinion.

We cut the following from the North China Herald of June 12:—

A meeting of the Consular body was held here yesterday, at which the measures to be taken for the preservation of order in the Settlements were fully discussed. We understand that the meeting was attended by the Chairmen of the Municipal Councils. It was mentioned that another French man-of-war, two Russian men-of-war, and a Spanish man-of-war are on their way here, but the British fleet appears to be otherwise engaged.

At the time when this was written the anti-foreign riots had been proceeding for some weeks, and our columns have reflected from the Anglo-Chinese Press the alarm and anxiety which prevailed among the British communities in China. Some time previously the journals had inquired why the British fleet, instead of attending to its duties on the China coast, was philandering in Japanese waters. In the same copy of the Herald we find this paragraph:—

At Kiukiang on Sunday night the foreign residents were armed and prepared, and there were three gunboats in port. The mob was accordingly checked, no damage was done, and there will be no bill for the Chinese to pay! Is not this better, both for Chinese and foreigners, than keeping the men-of-war in Japan, allowing the Chinese to burn and loot, and then demanding compensation?

If not cruising where it was not wanted, it might be asked in Parliament what more important duties have kept the fleet away, and whether the British Minister is so apathetic or so incapable of utilising the "resources of civilisation" as not to have thought of telegraphing for its return wherever it may have been. The feebleness of our representative at Pekin is making us the laughing stock of the Far East, besides doing us a serious injury.

The centre of interest in the East for the British public has shifted for the present to the Far East, and that will account for the amount of space which we have devoted to-day to news from those quarters. Another strong complaint of the supineness of our representative at Pekin will be found in an article we reproduce from the N. C. Herald on the Esmeralda smuggling case. For four years the owners of that vessel have been vainly endeavouring to get the British Minister to move in a matter which seriously affects British trade in China, and they say "we are unable to obtain even an acknowledgment of our petition." The Amoy and Hong Kong Chambers of Commerce have appealed directly to Lord Salisbury. Rarely has any Minister been subjected to such rude censure by the most reputable classes of the people whose interests he is set to watch and guard as that which is contained in the memorial of the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce. They say: "The position of indifference assumed by H.B.M.'s Minister in Pekin towards those over whose interests he is supposed to watch is a point which this Chamber considers ought not to be passed over in silence. The apparent want of any interest in the complaints of British subjects displayed by H.B.M.'s Minister in this case seems inexplicable, and if persisted in may lead to most serious consequences to British interests in China." Such a charge cannot be passed over unnoticed. It comes from men who are responsible, and as our columns have repeatedly shown, it expresses an opinion which is almost universal among our countrymen in China.

I hear, the London correspondent of the Glasgow Herald says, that Mr. Rudyard Kipling is expected in India in October or early in November. It is said that after a short stay in Lahore he will take up his residence permanently in Simla. The society of this renowned sanatorium is very good-natured, although, according to Mr. Kipling, sometimes a little wicked; but Simla just now, as Mr. Kipling's home, must, if all one hears from India be true, be much like the United States as a home for Dickens after the publication of "Martin Chuzzlewit," or Hayti for Mr. Froude since his "Bow of Ulysses."

The Factory Act.—In addition to the points noted in the Government letter upon the Factory Act, it may be stated that the Supreme Government have resolved to appoint two special inspectors in the first instance—one for the Bombay Presidency, who may be utilised in the Central Provinces; and one for Bengal, whose services will be available for the more important centres in the North-West Provinces and Oude. Their jurisdiction will be limited to the Provinces above-mentioned for the present; but it can be extended hereafter, should this be found feasible and expedient. Government is of opinion that it would be preferable to appoint properly qualified persons with some knowledge of the habits and languages of the native population, rather than to procure competent officers from the United Kingdom. The Governor of Bombay and the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal are, therefore, asked to state whether they will be able to secure locally the services of competent inspectors, and what terms they would propose for the appointment. It is suggested that their pay be charged to the provincial revenues. As regards the inspection by medical officers already in the service of Government, it is suggested that a reasonable scale of remuneration would be 10 rs. monthly for each factory inspected, subject to a minimum of 100 rs. In the event of this scale being accepted by the local Governments, it will be recommended for sanction by the Secretary of State.

COMMERCIAL.

CALCUTTA, June 29.

At the meeting of the directors of the Bank of Bengal, held on June 25, no change was made in the rate of interest, the official minimum thus remaining at 3 per cent.

The figures of the Bank's statement for the week ending June 23 are as follows:—

LIABILITIES.
Treasury Balance at Head Office ...	Rs. 5,93,821	Increase
Do. at Branches	3,39,376	Increase
Other Deposits	16,23,928	Increase
Post Bills	25,209	Increase
ASSETS.
Bank's Investments	Rs. 7,86,161	Increase
Loans	4,89,546	Increase
Accounts of Credits	52,320	Increase
Mercantile Bills	7,32,792	Increase
Cash at Head Office	8,39,575	Decrease
Do. at Branches	18,35,591	Increase

The analysis of the above figures shows a further decrease of about 3½ lacs in the public demand, made up as follows:—By an increase of nearly 16½ lacs in "Other Deposits" and ½ of a lac in "Post Bills," minus an increase of 4½ lacs in "Loans," over ½ a lac in "Accounts of Credits," and nearly 7½ lacs in "Mercantile Bills." The Treasury balance stands augmented by nearly 6 lacs, and over 3½ lacs at head office and at the branches respectively. The Bank's investments were increased by nearly 7½ lacs. The final result of these changes is a decrease of over 8½ lacs in the cash at head office, while at the branches it is augmented by 18½ lacs, making the exact total 6,23,64,550 rs., equal to 61½ per cent. of the current liabilities of the Bank, against a proportion of 62½ per cent. of last week.

TEA.—On June 25 9,000 chests were sold. Really desirable teas, of which a few invoices were offered, were well competed for, and in some cases showed some rise in values. Common Souchong kinds were a shade easier, while all other grades were very firm.

JUTE.—The transactions are again of the most limited nature. Old crop sold at 22 to 22-8 rs. for good 1st native marks, and there are sellers of new crop, good range, at 25 rs. August-September. The home market, however, remains very inactive, and is not at present inclined to pay the equivalent of this rate. The late hot weather has benefited the growing crops, while the supply of jute in the up-country markets is increasing, causing a reaction from the recent advance. A good line of cutting has been sold, price not reported.

GUNNIES.—Business has been on a small scale. Exchange has interfered with anything for western markets, and there is practically nothing doing in that direction. The Cape continue to buy for July-August, and has booked a further 1,000 to 1,200 bales of No. 2 Twills and 8 lb. packs. Bombay and other country markets are quiet.

HESSIANS unchanged. Buying orders which were in the market have been withdrawn for the present.

JOINT STOCK SHARES.—Business has again been restricted, owing to the short time arrangement. Apart from this, however, the market has been without animation, and it is very doubtful if much more could have been put through if work had been carried on full time as usual. In gold scrip the Patkoom Indigo and Trading Company registered a considerable advance, prices having risen from 250 rs. to 400 rs., and were in strong demand. They did not, however, maintain their position, and shares were offering as low as 350 rs. An occasional transaction has been reported in the other companies, but nothing of importance, and the market is decidedly depressed. Pat Pats are unusually low. During the first part of the week all Jute stock was down in the absence of buyers, and the market was dull and stagnant, but towards the close there are not wanting signs of a renewed demand, and prices are gradually improving. They are considered good value at present rates, and ought to induce purchasers with the cheap money now prevailing. There is again an entire absence of transactions in tea and cotton mill stock, for which there is no enquiry. Less than the usual number of transactions has to be recorded in miscellaneous shares. Fairly good lines of landing and shipping have been taken up for investment at quotations, but it is generally considered that these shares have reached a very high figure, though the return on outlay, should things continue as they are, is very good.

BANK OF BENGAL.

Rate of Interest for Demand Loans 3 per cent.

BOMBAY, July 2.

There has been little of interest passing. Purchasers of cotton for export have been nil on some days, and the mills have been in the market to only a small extent; while business in wheat and seeds has been upon a small, or at most a moderate, scale. After some fluctuations exchange again took a strong upward turn; and though rates have receded over 1-16d. from the highest point touched, they are still 9-32d. higher for bank bills and 7-32d. for private paper than last closing quotations. Government paper, after advancing materially in Fours, is on a level with the former rate again. Freights are weak, demand for tonnage being very slack, and re-lets have been offering freely at declining rates. The fall of rain has improved the tone of the import market, and checked the downward movement in prices of staple goods which had previously set in.

MONEY.—Although the statement of affairs of the Bank of Bombay issued on June 29 showed that there had been a falling off of some 9½ lacs in the cash balance since the date of the previous return, there was virtually no material change in the position of money, which was as easy as ever in the open market; and any tendency to a stiffer feeling which might have been induced by unfavourable harvest prospects should have been checked by the rainfall which had at length, though so tardily, set in. The principal noticeable points in the Presidency Bank's weekly return were a diminution of nearly 12 lacs in private deposits and an increase of 9½ lacs in loans; but these items were counterbalanced to a considerable extent by a falling-off in bills discounted, so that the net increase in the trade demand was represented by some 11 lacs. The state of Government deposits was about the same as at the close of the previous week, a decrease at the head office going against an increase to about the same extent at the branches. No further change in the Bank's rates was made at the board meeting, and 3 per cent. is still the minimum rate.

Imports.—PICKE-GOODS.—The fall of rain has done much to facilitate indent business in staple grey goods, which the holding off of the monsoon was restricting, and the downward tendency of rates has been entirely arrested. Holders now see no objection to keeping their stocks over for some weeks to come, and consequently are firmer in their pretensions; but rates, on the whole, are much about the same as they were, and the up-country demand is still very small. In bleached, dyed, Turkey red, printed, and local goods little has been done, and prices may be taken as unchanged all round. The off-take of imported goods from the bazaar during the week may be called 2,200 packages; that of local goods as 900 bales.

YARNS.—There has been no further change in the price of imported twist, the market for which has been quiet in tone, with only a small business passing.

Exports.—Cotton has been neglected both by exporters and local consumers; the former having made no purchases at all on several days, while the mills have bought very sparingly in presence of the dull state of the trade in Bombay yarns. The tone of the market has been very quiet, but such business as has been done has been generally on the basis of previous rates. The purchases for export do not sum up more than 1,000 bales, consisting of Julgaum and other Oomra sorts; while local spinners have taken some 3,000 bales, mainly of Oomra descriptions, Broach, and Camptee. The market closed dull, with prices 1 r. to 3 rs. lower than they were.

The receipts of cotton of this season's crop during the week have been 18,500 bales compared with 33,000 bales to hand during the week preceding and 15,400 bales arrived in the corresponding week last year; and the decrease in this season's receipts compared with those for 1889-90 has contracted to 220,700 bales.

METALS.—A moderate business has been done in copper, which has declined 4 a. to 8 a. per cwt. in a quiet market. Yellow metal has been in small request, and has also given way in value to the extent of 8 a. per cwt. Iron has been steady at former quotations, at which a moderate business has been done.

COAL is quiet. Sales have been made of Davison's West Hartley per Hesper (s.), June sailing, at 13½ rs.; and some Powell's Duffryn per Mary Beys (s.), shortly due, at 14½ per ton.

WHEAT has not been in much demand for export, and on some days a small, and on others a moderate, business only has transpired. Prices gave way half to an anna per cwt. all round at one time, but the market has otherwise remained steady throughout.

SEEDS also have not attracted much attention; but the market, though quiet on some days, has been steady on the whole, and, with the exception of a decline of half an anna per cwt. in the price of linseed, making it 6 rs. 7 a. to 6 rs. 10 a. per cwt., there has been no change in rates of any description.

GENERAL NEWS.

By the arrival of the present mail, via Brindisi, we are placed in possession of advices and gazettes from Calcutta to July 7; Madras, July 8; Bombay, July 10.

The Mysore Durbar has cancelled its arrangements for the Viceroy's expected visit, it having received intimation that his Excellency is not going.

At the meeting of the Legislative Council, the date of which will shortly be fixed, besides the Deck and Load Line and Bankruptcy Books Evidence Bills, for which Select Committees will be appointed, two new Bills will be introduced—one amending the Indian Christian Marriage Act, and the other amending the Punjab Municipal Act.

In the Legislative Council on July 23, Mr. Hutchins introduced a Bill for the purpose of raising the pecuniary limit of jurisdiction in the Madras Small Cause Court to 5,000 rs., and empowering the Government further to increase it to 10,000 rs. by Executive order. The announcement, says the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, made a year ago that such a measure was in contemplation roused much local excitement and opposition. It remains to be seen whether the feeling against it in Madras is still equally strong. Judging from experience in Calcutta, the experiment of altering the Small Cause Court from its original character of a tribunal for the speedy recovery of petty debts has been a decided failure, and has given rise to much dissatisfaction among the mercantile and trading communities.

Major Grant was invested with the V.C., at Ootacamund on July 6. There was a large attendance of all classes present. The weather was beautiful. Major Grant was introduced by the Adjutant-General. Then General Kenny-Herbert read the Queen's despatch, and afterwards the Governor of Madras pinned the Cross on Major Grant and made a speech, eulogising his gallant services. Loud cheers followed. The Governor's band, and a company of the Suffolk Regiment, Major Grant's old regiment, were present.

Herr Ehlers, the Russian explorer, passed through

Mandalay on July 5 on his way from Bhamo and the Ruby Mines to Rangoon.

The Maharaja of Bhownugger, who is raising a force of Lancers for Imperial defence, has, a Bombay telegram says, issued a notice to his subjects, in which he refers to the life of indolence led by the younger members of the Rajpoot families, who, owing to their pride of race, have rejected the advantages of Western education. He invites the descendants of the old fighting clans to enlist in his regiment, and reminds his subjects that by rendering help to the Empire they are defending their own homes and ensuring the continuance of the peace and security which they have so long enjoyed.

The Anglo-Chinese Commission at Darjeeling, says the Pioneer, consisting of Mr. Paul and a secretary from the Amban at Lhasa, assisted by Mr. Hart, is quietly doing its work of settling trading conditions between Thibet and British India. It is possible that a trading connection may be the outcome.

The Government has appointed a committee for the purpose of revising the factory rules to meet the provisions of the recent Act of amendment.

Several stories have been published in Calcutta, both in English and Bengali, illustrating the consequences likely to follow from the operation of the Age of Consent Act. One of them is named the Scoble Act Tragedy, and is the only one displaying any art or ingenuity.

A waterspout has been reported from Bullia, in the North-West Provinces. The column formed over the Ganges opposite the Collector's Kutcherri, and soon attracted a large crowd. After remaining in the air about an hour it broke, and was immediately followed by a heavy shower of rain, with which came down a number of fish and even turtles, which had been sucked up from their own element.

The survey of an extension of the Bhownugger-Gondal-Junagadh-Porebunder Railway to Rajkot via Gondal has been completed. The line will be an easy one to construct, and it is intended to build it cheaply.

Surveys of an alternative route for the Bolan Railway are nearly completed. The line would follow the Mashkaf Valley, east of the present alignment, taking off from near Mach and joining on to the present Sibi-Rindli section. From Quetta to Darwaza nothing would be required to be done to the railway, while on the high-level section from Darwaza, through Hirok, the changes would not be very expensive. The section from Khandalani to Mach, which has been repeatedly damaged by floods, will be abandoned as a permanent line. A grant is to be made by the Government of India for the work.

Orders have been issued, a Times telegram says, to relay the Bolan Railway as a temporary line, to be used till a new railway by way of the Zhob Valley or some alternative route has been constructed. Probably some extension of the Punjab strategic lines will also be undertaken as famine relief works.

Latest news from Gilgit reports everything quiet on the Hunza-Nagar frontier.

In connection with the second Miranzai Expedition, it may be noted that extraordinary success was achieved by surgeons in the treatment of seventy-six officers and soldiers hit. All recovered with the exception of three men.

The Meingoon Prince is said to be at Luang Phrabang.

The Rangoon Times tells a story of a card scandal in Upper Burma, which is now public property, and of which more will probably be heard soon. A young officer of a native regiment stopped at a club in Mandalay for a few days, while on his way to Secunderabad, for a musketry course there. It is said he was detected in cheating at poker, and, it is added, he admitted his guilt. A court of inquiry was held, the officer meantime departing for Secunderabad. He is now at Rangoon, the Times says, on his way back from Secunderabad, under arrest. The accused comes from a family of soldiers, and has more than one brother in the service.

Miran Bakhsh, the favourite of the Maharaja of Cashmere, whom the late Prime Minister, Lachman Das, put in prison for his intrigues, and who was lately taken again into his Highness's private service, was, by order of the Council, exiled from Cashmere, on June 23, once more for intriguing.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THE following telegrams have been received since our last issue :—

CALCUTTA, July 26.—The abnormal weather which has marked this year still prevails throughout a large part of the country. From Madras it is reported that the distress is increasing and that prices are rising, especially in the Chingleput District. In Bombay there is a slight rise in prices, and more rain is wanted in portions of the Presidency. A somewhat similar report comes from the North-West Provinces. The Punjab, with the exception of some few districts, has had slight rain, but much more is wanted. This is also the case throughout Rajpootana, and especially in Bikanir, where the cattle are dying, and 5,300 persons are on the relief works. On the whole, the prospects, although not yet absolutely hopeless, look very serious in parts of Madras and in a large portion of North-Western India. It is understood that the Governments of the Punjab and the North-West Provinces are holding themselves ready to return to Lahore and Allahabad respectively if a famine becomes imminent. The rainfall in Bengal is still very deficient, but no danger is apprehended in that province at present, its most critical period being about the end of August and the beginning of September.—Times Correspondent.

BOMBAY, July 27.—Beneficial rains have commenced to fall in the North-West Provinces, and a famine is thus averted. The distress among the ryots is, however, very great, and the Government has voted a grant of 10,000*l.* for their relief.—Reuter.

We have received the following telegrams from the India Office for publication :—

“From Viceroy, July 21.—Monsoon prospects. Rainfall since Friday better, except in Punjab and Rajpootana. Fodder famine in latter continues, but agent does not apprehend scarcity of food if later rain sufficient for winter crops. Rain insufficient still in North-West Provinces and in parts of Bombay and Madras. Madras reports, July 17, that grain stocks are probably sufficient, and, even in case of failure of rain, need for extended relief unlikely for two or three months. Land revenue due on last harvest freely suspended, and liberal loans given. Prospects greatly improved in Cuddapah by recent rain. Monsoon fairly strong on west coast, with heavy falls there and in Central Provinces, but Bengal current weak, and not pushing up Gangetic valley. Prices believed not to be considerably affected; will be reported on Friday, when telegrams received.”

“From Viceroy, July 24.—Rainfall continues slight and partial in North-West Provinces, Punjab, Rajpootana, Central India, Bombay, Deccan, and Guzerat. Sowings retarded and young crops withering in several districts. Fodder very scarce in parts of Central India and Rajpootana, and heavy mortality among cattle. Prices tending upwards. Prospects of monsoon setting in in Northern India slightly more favourable. No improvement in affected districts of Madras; prices risen in several districts. Number of persons engaged on relief works slightly increased. Bengal, Central Provinces, and Berar prospects favourable generally. Want of rain reported in several districts Upper Burma.”

“From Governor of Madras, July 24.—Monsoon current continues weak, and rainfall deficient in all east coast districts; but there has been some improvement elsewhere (?). There has been fair rain in Malabar, South Canara, Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Godavari, Kistna, Kurnool, and showers in parts of Nellore, Cuddapah, Anantapore, Bellary, North Arcot, and Chingleput. This will enable ryots to plough and sow, and will improve standing crops, pasturage, and water supply. Ganjam collector wires that situation is much improved. Condition of Cuddapah also improved. Not much change in North Arcot, Chingleput, and Coimbatore; 7,500 employed on special work in Chingleput, 6,299 in North Arcot, 1,776 in Coimbatore. Number on gratuitous relief, 1,805 in North Arcot, 632 in Chingleput. Prices continue to rise slowly.”

Typhoid Outbreak among the Troops.—Deputy Surgeon-General Bradshaw, who was about to proceed home after the Hazara Expedition, has cancelled his leave in order to investigate the cause of typhoid outbreak among the troops at Rawul Pindi. It is believed that the typhoid is chiefly due to bad water at the camping grounds, the majority of cases having occurred among the troops returning from Miranzai to Rawul Pindi. Typhoid is also very prevalent among the Lucknow garrison.

G U P.

THE second match at Ganeshkhind this season, writes the correspondent of the Bombay Gazette on July 6, took place this afternoon in splendid weather. The match took place between scratch teams captained by Lord Harris and Major Von Donop. The game was a one-innings match, and was played on a mat wicket, and was an exhibition of excellent cricketing. Major Von Donop's team won the toss, and his side retired for 136. Captain Allason played a brilliant game, putting up the magnificent score of 82 himself. Lord Harris bowled very well, his analysis showing that he bowled 152 balls, gave 48 runs, delivered 7 maidens, and took 6 wickets. Other scores were—Dr. Croly 7, Dr. Task 1, Captain Page 7, Lieutenant Stuart 2, Major Von Donop 11, Captain Vidal 1, Captain Wallington 0, Lieutenant Osborne 12, Lieutenant Geoghegan (not out) 3, Dr. Sutton 2, extras 8. The most effective score for the Ganeshkhind team was made by Captain Jarvis, who was run out after putting up the excellent score of 48. Colonel Rhodes made the next best score, going out for 27; while Lord Harris, who appeared to be set for making a big score, was caught out neatly by Major Von Donop after making 13. Dr. Martin scored 15, Corporal Sharp 14, Captain Cox 2, Mr. McQueen (not out) 6, Private Phillips 8, Private Plumb 5, Private Langton 0, Mr. Edgerley 0; total 146. Lieutenant Geoghegan, Dr. Sutton, and Captain Wallington bowled very well for Major Von Donop's team, and ought to prove useful in forthcoming matches which the Poona Gymkhana will play against the various teams during the season. Captain Fowler, who is always a tower of strength both at batting and bowling, was not sufficiently recovered from his attack of fever to take part in the game, thus weakening his Excellency's eleven to some extent. Major Von Donop's team was as complete as it possibly could be, and among his eleven were some of the best-known cricketers in the station. It was thought that Lord Harris's team would have suffered a heavy defeat. The result, however, proved different; and the Ganeshkhind team is to be complimented on the excellent stand they made against Major Von Donop's formidable eleven. The match throughout was an exhibition of first-class bowling, batting, and fielding, and the victory of Major Von Donop's team was well earned. Lady Harris received a large number of guests during the afternoon, and the Governor's band considerably enlivened the proceedings by playing a capital selection of music.

A Darjeeling correspondent writes to the Englishman on June 30 :—We have been having an unusual amount of gaiety lately. On the 24th Major-General Lord Frankfort gave a poudre dance. About 200 invitations were sent out, and there were very few of the ladies who did not jump at the opportunity of displaying their best frocks and jewellery. Powder patches and a few artistic touches to the eyes and eyebrows must certainly enhance female charms. Even those whom one would pronounce on ordinary occasions well, not quite pretty, become so, when properly got up for a poudre ball. The floor was in excellent condition, the supper good, and all seemed to enjoy themselves extremely. The only fault I heard of was that there were so few dances. Only twelve! The light might have been brighter with advantage. On Thursday, the 25th, the Maharani of Kuch Behar got up an afternoon performance of the children in tableaux vivants. The theatre was absolutely crowded, many of those invited being unable to procure seats. The children went through their performance admirably. It is astonishing how well they take to that sort of thing, and how remarkably steady they remain, and how well they bear the limelight.

A little while ago Manipore was the scene of one of the most dreadful tragedies that have been enacted in modern times, and the horrors of it are still fresh in our minds; but on the 3rd inst., says an Indian paper, Manipore was the scene of a brilliant little Gymkhana meeting at which General Collett and all the officers of the garrison were present. Such are Englishmen. There was a capital programme, we are told, arranged by Messrs. Robinson Norie and Williams; and Mr. Webber, the transport officer, made up a steeplechase course. There was a pony steeplechase, open to men of the native garrison, followed by a sack race, both of which fell to the smart little Ghoorkhas. The third event was for the Battery only, and competitors, who were in native clothes, had to run fifty yards, get into uniform, run another fifty yards, bridle and blanket a mule, and return riding to the winning-post. There was a Lloyd-Lindsay, a 600 yards race for Ghoorkhas, a 100 yards race for the Battery, a pick-a-back race, and, to wind up with, a steeplechase for Manipore ponies, officers up. And a large crowd of Maniporeis looked on and no doubt wondered. That's the way we do it. In a little while Manipore, I suppose, will boast its native colleges, its Bee Yays, its Yem Yays, its cricket and tennis, and its blatant windbags talking of the evils of British rule. We are a curious people.

An incident strangely characteristic of epidemics in India occurred during the recent outbreak of cholera in Rungpore. The measures adopted by the medical authorities were already bearing fruit in a sensible diminution of mortality, and the people were beginning to appreciate the value of the rules which had been issued for their guidance, when a number of quacks, termed "ojhas," alarmed probably at the falling off in their profits, made a concerted attempt to defeat the efforts of Government. Under the pretext of exorcising the cholera demon, they levied a fee of one rupee in every household, while they personated the "demon" at night, prowling with torches on the outskirts of the villages and terrifying the simple natives by the utterance of the most hideous yells. They succeeded, further, in spreading a report that the recent census had proved the country to be overpopulated, and that the Government doctors had consequently been sent down to poison a certain number of the inhabitants. The result of these rumours was so disastrous that in many districts the people deserted their villages and fled to the jungle, and the local authorities experienced the utmost difficulty in persuading them to return.

"Zemindar" contributes the following tall story to the Englishman: The letter of your Madras correspondent about the enmity of the cobra, printed in your paper of the 1st inst., brings to my mind some recollections of my own. My father used to tell me of a tradition that a certain sower, when going on some errand, met a cobra on the road and cut it down with his sword, but forgot to batter its head. The sower marched on, and the trunkless head of the cobra followed him at a distance. At nightfall the sower stopped at a serai, and the cobra, which had also arrived there by leaps and bounds, lodged itself unnoticed in one of the sower's shoes. The next morning, as he was encasing his feet in the shoes, he was bitten in the toe, and, turning the shoe, found his victim of the previous day. He then battered its head, but too late. He died from the effects of the poison. It is thus we don't cut a snake when we want to kill it, but batter its head.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

Lieutenant-Colonel Lindsell, of Fairfield, Biggleswade, died on July 15. He was educated at Rugby under Dr. Arnold, and obtained his first commission in the 25th King's Own Borderers in 1838. He served with that regiment at the Cape and in India. In 1849 he exchanged into the 28th, with which he served as major during the Crimean War, and was present at the battles of Alma and Inkerman (brevet lieutenant-colonel, medal with three clasps, 4th Class Medjidie, and Turkish medal). At the conclusion of the war Colonel Lindsell retired from the Army, and devoted himself to county business. He was justice of the peace and deputy-lieutenant for Bedfordshire (high sheriff, 1864), and also a county councillor. He was for many years chairman of the visiting justices of the Three Counties Lunatic Asylum (Beds, Herts, and Hunts), and subsequently of the joint committee of the County Councils. He was also for a long period chairman of the Bedfordshire Association, and was Deputy Grand Master of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Freemasons.

We (Times of India) regret to record the death of Mr. Hayes at his residence in Umpherson Street, Black Town, on July 3, at the age of forty-one years and eight months. The deceased had been for some months past suffering from fever and disease of the lungs, to which he eventually succumbed. He has been in the service of the Municipality for nearly twenty years, during which time he was employed in the Public Works and the Revenue Department. But last year he was made the Manager of the General Department, which appointment he held till his death. He took privilege leave for three months on account of ill-health, and was unfortunately destined never to return to his work. The deceased was well known for his uninterfering and quiet-going disposition, and those who had occasion to be acquainted with him had always respected him.

On July 7 Mr. Taylor, a brother of Mr. Taylor of the firm of Mackenzie, Lyall and Co., Calcutta, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head with a pistol. The police are inquiring into the affair, but, says the Bombay Gazette, the friends of the deceased are strangely reticent on the matter. His brother is away at Madras. Further particulars show that he had only two wounds in his head. One bullet lodged in the wall. The third bullet must have been fatal, as it made a large hole in the temple. Mr. Taylor left letters, taking a farewell of his friends and explaining the reason for the deed. He had lately been brooding over his private troubles. He was the agent for a Madras cigar factory, and was well connected.

Mrs. Mary Amy Spratt, wife of Lieutenant-Colonel Spratt, commanding the 1st Worcester-hire Regiment, died in Poona on July 4. The deceased lady, says a Bombay paper, who was aged thirty-seven, died of enteric fever, which she contracted about three weeks ago in the Nilgiris. Mrs. Spratt, accompanied by her husband, proceeded to Ootacamund some months ago, and while there she fell ill, but no serious symptoms were observed. It was, however, considered advisable to take her back to Poona, where she arrived about a fortnight ago. She was attended by Dr. Croly, when it was discovered that the deceased lady was suffering from enteric fever. Up to July 3 she appeared to be recovering from the attack, but a sudden change took place, and she expired early next day. Mrs. Spratt was much esteemed in the station for her kindness and thought for the families of the men of the regiment, and her funeral, which took place on the evening of her death, was largely attended by the officers and non-commissioned officers of the regiment, the other regiments in garrison at Poona being also well represented. Among others present were Mrs. and Miss Howard, the Hon. J. G. Moore, C.S., Colonel Carrington, Colonel Hibbert, Major Newnham-Smith, Drs. Trask, Croly, and Thacker.

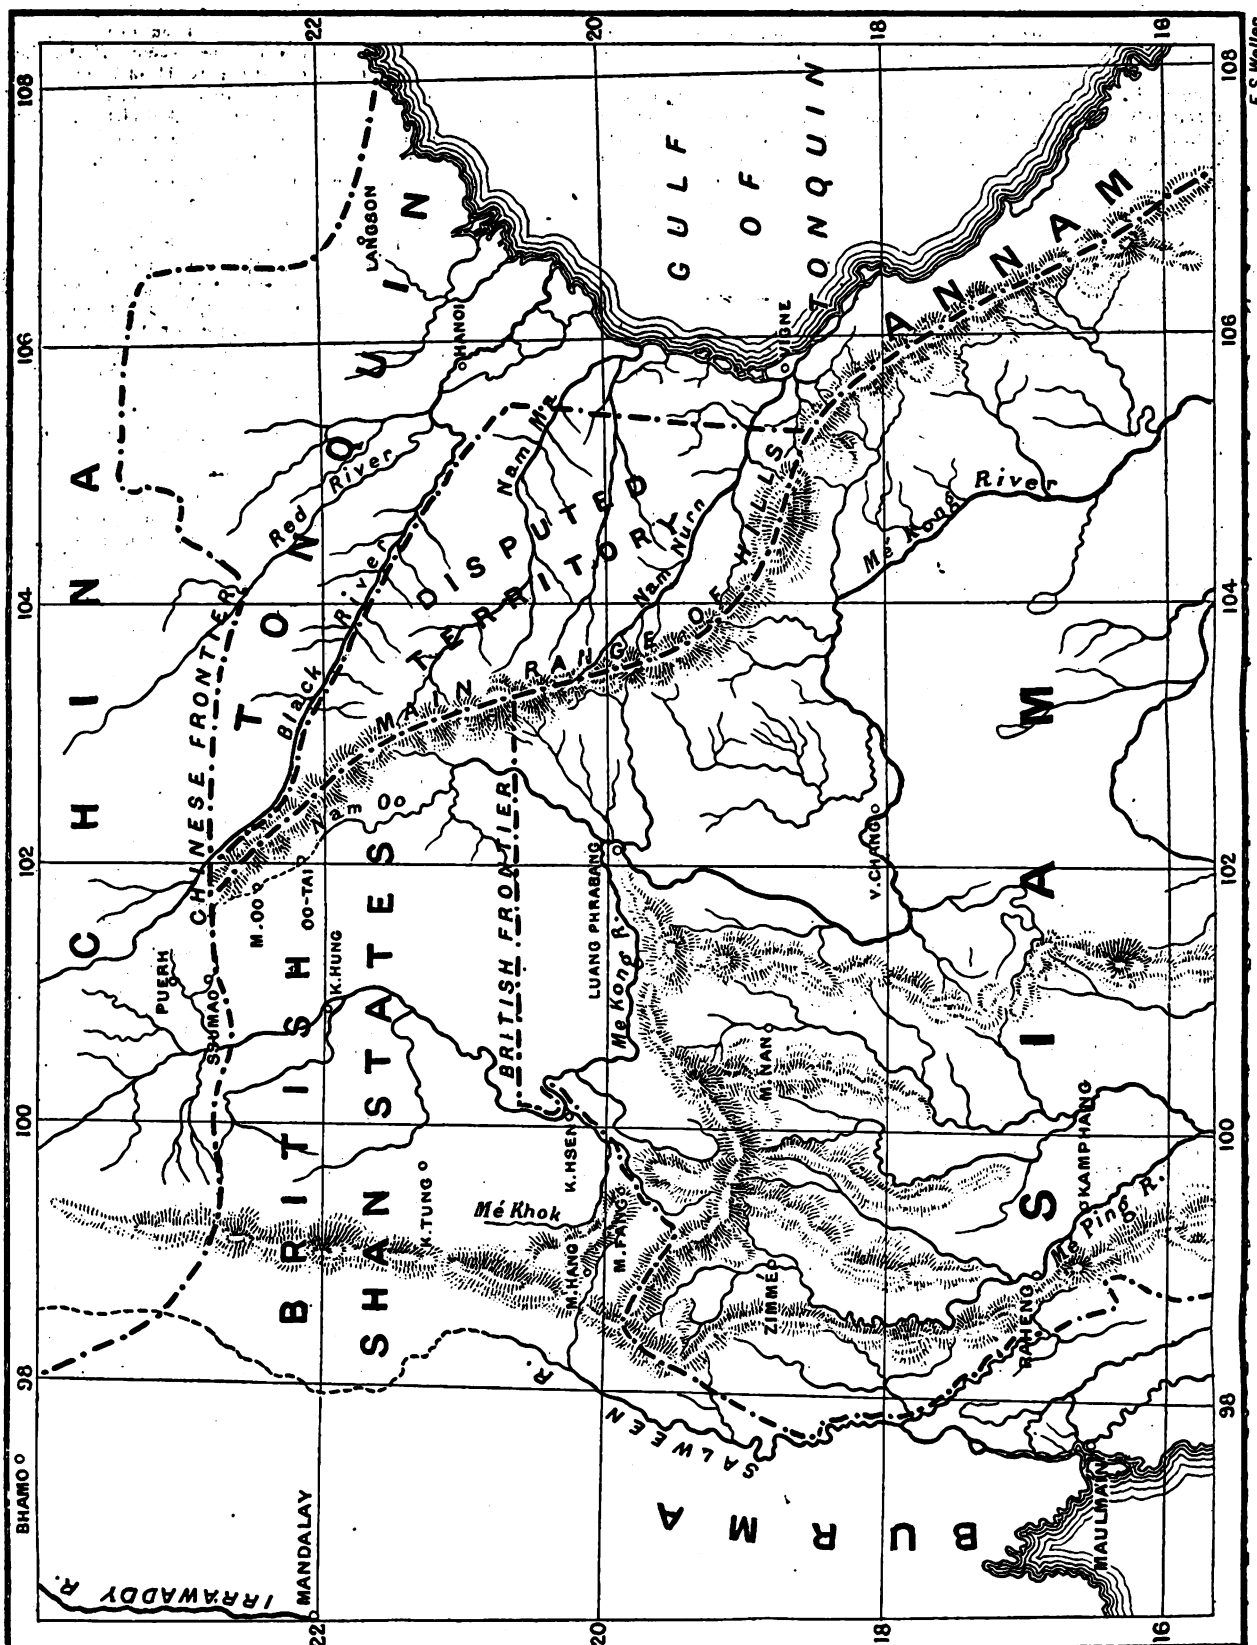

From Kotah the death is announced of Mrs. Grant Bonnar, M.D., the lady doctor in charge of the Victoria Hospital for Women in that State. Under her charge the hospital, which was only opened in June last year, has attained an immense popularity, and her loss will be severely felt.

High Price of Fodder.—Owing to the lateness of the rains, prices of fodder have risen to an enormous extent in Bombay. The Hay Pressing and Supply Company has notified to its customers that in future the price of jinwha (supplied at 11 rs.) will in future be 30 rs., and phool hay 25 rs., which used to be sold at eight or nine rupees per thousand pounds.

Intemperate Temperance.—The Times of India says:—A correspondent suggested the other day that 37 Hornby Row seemed about to take the place of Bombay Castle. Anyhow, its presiding genius, that many-sided man, Mr. D. E. Wacha, is determined not to let the Governor in Council blunder if he can help it. He comes before us to-day in the character of Honorary Secretary of the Anglo-Indian (sic) Temperance Association, of 37 Hornby Row, and reads the Government of Bombay a lecture upon their recent regulations as to the sale of toddy. This lecture fills eight heavily printed pages, and is so hastily and carelessly written that Mr. Wacha has to add two pages as a "P.S." He has himself to blame for the contemptuous answer he receives, and he is told in effect that the relaxation of the rules he prays for on behalf of what he calls the Anglo-Indian Temperance Association would inevitably increase drunkenness. The scrubbing this time comes not from the Secretary, Mr. Lee-Warner, but from the Under-Secretary, Mr. Harvey, who seems to be equally effective with his pen. "I am directed," writes Mr. Harvey, "to state for the information of the Association that Government were surprised to receive from a society styling itself 'the Anglo-Indian Temperance Association' a memorial praying for the removal of restrictions on the supply and distribution of an intoxicating liquor, the excessive consumption of which leads to much drunkenness in those parts of the Presidency where it is most commonly used; that the numerous inaccuracies observable in the memorial indicate that the Association is imperfectly informed of the real facts of the case; that careful inquiries, instituted by responsible officers, have convinced Government that existing arrangements adequately provide for the genuine demand for toddy for consumption in the raw state and for distillation in the licensed distilleries; and that the relaxation of the rules advocated in the memorial would inevitably result in increasing drunkenness and the illicit distillation of toddy."

FRANCE, ENGLAND, AND SIAM.

MAP OF THE FRONTIERS.

THE above map illustrates the frontier questions now in course of settlement between British, French, Chinese, and Siamese possessions in North-Western Indo China. The disputed territory alluded to in our article last week on "France and Northern Siam," lies entirely to the east of the Annam main range of hills. From Lord Lamington's letter, which appeared in the St. James's Gazette of the 20th inst., it would appear that the French have actually crossed the water-parting formed by the crest of these hills at one place, and have occupied a post called Dien Bien Phu, in the basin of the Nam Oo, four days' journey from that river, on a tributary stream called the Nam Ngova, which enters the Nam Oo from the east about latitude 21 deg. 5 min., and the Siamese have established a post about half-way between the French post and the Nam Oo. This information is highly important, because it indicates that both the French and the Siamese are encroaching upon territory belonging to the British Shan States, for the Nam Ngova lies well within our frontier. The French have no shadow of a claim to this territory, as the Annamite maps included no portion of the basin Nam Oo as in the Annamite possessions. The Siamese claim, like Siamese claims to other portions of the British Shan States, is probably based upon recent encroachments. To comprehend the disputes between Siam and the British Shan States lying to the north of it, we must remember the only portion of the Burmese Shan States that threw off the yoke of Burma in 1774 and accepted the protection of Siam was comprised in the bounds of the ancient kingdom of Zimmé. That kingdom extended east and west between the Mé Kong and Salween Rivers, and was bounded on the north by the territories of Kiang Hsen and Kiang Tung, which extended southwards to the Mé Khok, and by the great easterly bend of the Mé Kong which stretches from the mouth of the Mé Khok to Luang Phrabang. In 1837 McLeod learnt that Muang Nan, one of the Siamese Shan States, is as far as Kiang Khong (a town about fifteen miles to the east of Kiang Hsen) only confined to the western bank of the Mé Kong, but beyond which it is said to have a strip of country on the eastern bank towards the Kiang Tung territories. The Siamese State of Luang Phrabang, which lies to the east of the ancient kingdom of Zimmé, was then, as now, bounded to the north by the Burmese Shan State of Kiang Hung. Kiang Hung comprised twelve Tawabwashaps, or provinces, three of which—Muang Khié, Muang Long, and Muang Kheng—lay to the west of the Mé Kong; and the other nine—Kiang Khieng, Muang Phung, Muang La, Muang Lá or Ssumao, Muang Hám, Baula Luang, Muang U', Chin Tong, and Muang Hing—lay to the east of that river. The Muang U' district adjoins the territories of Luang Phrabang, and the road from Kiang Hung to Muang-Nan passes the town of Muang U', which lies ten days distant from Kiang Hung, and seven from the ferry over the Mé Kong at Kiang Khong. Utai, the frontier stockade of Muang U' in the direction of Luang Phrabang, is marked as Oo-tai on the Siamese maps, and Muang U' is marked as M. Oo. These places have never been visited by the Siamese surveyors, and their positions as shown on the map are evidently incorrect.

Up to 1880 the Siamese had not commenced their encroachments upon the territories of our tributary Shan States in the neighbourhood of Muang Fang and Kiang Hsen. Muang Fang had been deserted from 1717 to 1870, when it was reoccupied by the Burmese Shans. Ten years later the Siamese determined to oust the Burmese Shans out of that Muang, and, according to Mr. Holt Hallett, in his work "A Thousand Miles on an Elephant," the last of the Burmese Shan villagers were not driven out until 1883. In 1880 the Siamese likewise crossed the Meh Khok into the old Burmese Shan State of Kiang Hsen, which forms part of the British Shan State of Kiang Tung, and fomented a border warfare. Since that date they have gradually pushed further into the Kiang Tung territories. All reprisals on the part of our tributaries are stopped by our taking them under our wing. It is, therefore, all the more just and expedient that the Government of India should assert and defend their rights by informing the Siamese that they must retire within their proper frontier and hand over Muang Fang and Kiang Hsen to their rightful owners.

MANIPORE.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

A REUTER telegram of July 21 says:—The Government has notified its intention of erecting a memorial at the public expense to mark the spot where the victims of the Manipore massacre are buried.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs on July 26:—It is understood that the Commander-in-Chief's remarks on the report of the Manipore Military Court of Inquiry have been despatched to England, and will not be published in this country till they have been laid before Parliament. This delay is much to be regretted, as the publication of the full report, with Sir Frederick Roberts's opinion on it, would probably correct many of the errors and misapprehensions which have been current ever since the news of the disaster first reached India.

Mr. Monomohun Ghose, a leading native barrister in Calcutta, is now engaged in preparing an appeal in the case of the Manipore Princes. It is nearly finished, and will be sent to the Government by the 31st inst.

The following telegrams from the correspondent of the Times of India appear in the papers received by the present mail:—

MANIPORE, June 25.—Since my last letter to you, all the State trials have been concluded, and the three members of the Manipore royal family, whose names have become so familiar to British ears, are now under sentence of death. Will their sentence be confirmed, or will they, like the Lushai chiefs, Khalkom and Tongula, who plotted the murder of Captain Browne, escape with their lives? is at present the question that occupies the thoughts of all. It is easy for people at home, far away from scenes of terror and bloodshed, to prate of mercy and patience, but here on the spot, where every day one sees the blackened ruins of the Residency, the dread mound that marks the last resting-place of the victims, and the now desolate patch whereon that peaceful night the Dragons frowned on that scene of vengeance and savage butchery, it is hard to restrain feelings of anger and indignation that the people at home value so little the lives of their officers that they even hesitate to avenge their deaths. In these frontier districts every officer, civil or military, practically carries his life in his hand, and if the idea once obtains that an official's life is of small regard in the eyes of Government, the civis Romanus sum sentiment, which gives such moral force to the representative of our authority, will be weakened to an extent which can only be counteracted by an increase of physical force.

All sorts of rumours are, of course, prevalent regarding the future of Manipore. Some say they have it on the best authority that Manipore is to be given back to its old régime, and a small force kept here to preserve order. Others, on equally good (or bad) authority, declare that the country will be annexed, and that a cantonment will be formed for a regiment at Konjakul. Meanwhile, the life of the garrison goes on in a dull routine without excitement of any sort. There has been a longish spell of fine weather, and cholera has ceased to dog the steps of every detachment—a result due no doubt to the many precautions taken, and the amount of cleaning effected. The old Raja's enclosure or citadel has been totally demolished with the exception of the surrounding walls, and barrack for 200 men built inside, as also offices for the Postal and Telegraph Departments. The temple of Govind and the Nautch House have been enclosed by a strong stockade, which joins on to the walls of the citadel, the whole forming a very strong and compact defensive fort.

Some short time back Lieutenant Howell, the Assistant Political Officer, was sent out with an escort of thirty or forty men to collect coolies among the Nagas to the north and north-east of Manipore, as they had refused to obey the orders sent to them by the Maniporis.

On his arrival with sepoys they were very profuse in their offers of assistance, and promised large numbers of coolies, but their performances have not borne out their promises, and so few men have come in that Lieutenant Howell has been ordered to visit them again with an escort of fifty rifles of the 43rd Ghorka Rifles under Second Lieutenant S. Clay, and enforce obedience to his orders. This party will start on the 28th instant, taking fifteen days' rations of ghi and dhal and ten days' rations of atta, rice being procurable in the Naga villages. They may have to teach the villagers of Khabang a lesson, as they are reported to have made a series of raids on the villages round them; but it is very unlikely that any active operations will be opposed. It is only natural that the untamed Nagas and Kukis should be a bit restive at first, and doubtful to whom they owe obedience, but if a firm policy is carried out from the first they will soon submit with a good grace to their new rulers.

MANIPORE, July 9.—Reports from the Kohima-Manipore line state that the Kukis and Nagas, who were formerly under the sway of the Maniporis, have taken to raiding on each other. Up to the present there have been some ten raids, culminating the other day in one in which seventeen villagers were massacred. So far none of the Naga villages in British territory have been raided, but the contagion will probably spread unless some measures are taken to stop it; and if any of the Angami Nagas suffer they will assuredly attempt reprisals, and thus bring on a big feud between the Kohima Nagas and the Manipori Kukis, who have always regarded each other with veiled hostility, and would be only too glad of the chance of paying off old scores. This restlessness is no doubt due to the delay in announcing what our future policy is to be, and is not animated by any hostility against us. No convoys have been attacked or daks interfered with. Mr. Mitchell to-day reports that the road is in a very fair condition. Captain Willcocks, the chief transport officer, came down from Kohima yesterday, and starts back en route to India to-morrow.

CLEARING UP MANIPORE MYSTERIES.

The old Maharaja, having abdicated under somewhat peculiar circumstances, thought better of it and desired to be reinstated, and no doubt Government was favourably inclined towards the ruler; but Mr. Quinton and Mr. Grimwood were so strongly opposed to this view that the Viceroy in Council acquiesced in their wishes, and informed the Maharaja that his reign was over. At the same time, it was absolutely necessary to punish the ringleaders in the revolution; otherwise they, with the Senaputty at their head, might, at any moment and at their pleasure, act in a similar manner towards successive Maharajas. The Senaputty's character is of public notoriety. Nothing would ever have kept his turbulent spirit in order. It was, therefore, absolutely necessary for the safety of the State that this man should be removed. The Government never under any circumstances indicated the method in which the deportation should be effected. Mr. Quinton took the sole responsibility. He did not even consult Mr. Grimwood, for the simple reason, it is believed, that there was no telegraphic cipher code between the Assam Government and the Manipore Political Agent. To telegraph in English would have been worse than rash. The decision of the Government was anxiously awaited by the durbar, and it would probably have leaked out. Then there would have been a rising, and Mr. and Mrs. Grimwood and the Residency escort would have been in the Senaputty's hands. These facts explain away the alleged studious concealment from Mr. Grimwood of Mr. Quinton's intentions. Silence was necessary, as we have shown, for Mr. and Mrs. Grimwood's safety, and yet that the Chief Commissioner was anxious to consult the Political Agent is very clear from the despatch of Lieutenant Gurdon as a special and confidential messenger. He is said to have explained to Mr. Grimwood the line of policy to be adopted, and his telegram to his chief in Italian was seen and approved of by the Political Agent. The decision to arrest in durbar, as far as can be conjectured, was arrived at in conference between Mr. Quinton, Colonel Skene, and Mr. Cossins. It was after this conference that Lieutenant Gurdon was told that the Senaputty would be arrested in durbar.

In recent articles we have quoted some historical instances of arrests in durbar; we now quote some more recent cases. Sir Robert Sandeman not so very long ago arrested in open durbar the Naib of Kej, who had attended at his summons. In 1879 Sir Frederick Roberts, after his entry into the Bala Hissar at Cabul, read out a proclamation to the assembled nobles. After that he informed some of the principal Ministers present at the durbar that it was found necessary to detain them, as Sir Frederick suspected them of using their influence against us. In these two typical cases the idea of treachery never occurred to anyone concerned. If Mr. Quinton had been unwilling to stoop to treachery, what was there to prevent his doing so? He could easily have allayed the Senaputty's suspicions, and acted accordingly. Manipore being a subordinate native State, as we have already shown, resistance to her Majesty's troops is not war, but rebellion; and the slaughter of English officers by her subjects is nothing else than murder, and has to be punished as such. History gives us a good example of this interpretation. In 1857 the Raja of Amzhera in Central India revolted and attacked a British cantonment. He was tried with his chief officials, who pleaded his orders, and the result was that both he and they were hanged. A great deal has been said about the composition of the Court before which the offenders appear. It is in no sense a military tribunal. Ordinary offenders are being tried by one or two specially selected political officers, who, as deputy commissioners on the Assam frontier, have the power of passing capital sentences, subject to confirmation. For princely offenders the Court is composed of three officers, one of whom is one of the deputy commissioners just mentioned. Every facility will be given to the offenders to defend themselves, and justice will be done in such a manner as to render it impossible for the most thoughtless and most malicious to suggest that Government has given way to the not unnatural cry for vengeance.—Englishman, July 4.

THE SYSTEM OF HIGHER APPOINTMENTS IN INDIA.

MR. S. E. PEAL writes as follows to the Times from Sibsagar, à propos of the responsibility for the Manipore massacre :—

Permit me to point out a most pernicious system which for many years has been steadily growing all over India almost unseen, though often acutely felt, and which, in a province like Assam especially, is bound occasionally—as lately—to bring disaster.

I allude to the system of shifting officers from one end of India to the other as a necessity of service routine, quite regardless of the experiences, training, and qualification of the man, or the special, and often peculiar, necessities of the local requirements.

In this particular instance we see the inevitable results.

Mr. Quinton was a particularly good and safe man naturally, but his experience and training lay wholly among the Aryan populations of the North-West Provinces.

Suddenly either a vacancy occurs, or a good man with a wide and varied experience of the North-West Provinces has to be provided for, and immediately Mr. Quinton finds himself the head of a province he never even saw before—one all frontier, and surrounded by about the most truculent set of savages (non-Aryans) as any in India, who at times decapitate their victims actually within sound of our steam whistles, and the Government may not interfere.

It seems to me that such a system, which has slowly grown up during the last fifteen years or so, is bound to land us every now and then in some disaster.

We cannot expect any man, no matter how good, with a long experience of our North-West Provinces, to become, as if by a stroke of the pen, equally apt and experienced in all his dealings with these semi-savages races, especially in emergencies.

Mr. Quinton has, in fact, fallen a victim to what I call a pernicious system. Had he an experience of twelve or fourteen years, as a junior, of Assam and its surrounding savages he would never have attempted to arrest such a well-known, powerful, and truculent character as Tikendrajit by the means he proposed. The massacre would never have happened.

Despite all his care, his North-West Provinces experiences in this instance failed or even misled him.

The holding of durbars, at which all who are summoned must appear, especially in such a case, to hear the Viceroy's decision, is in the North-West the old, recognised, and only means whereby Government can attain its end.

But as we (can now) see, it does not suit the savage. Neither Sir J. Johnstone, nor yet (as we now know) Mr. Grimwood, would have attempted to secure such a notoriously astute savage in that way.

At the same time the removal of that man from Manipore was imperative, and to do it by fair and civilised means would have needed at least 2,000 men.

It was either a costly little war or a little stratagem, quite legitimate in such a case, and which folks at home ignorant (necessarily) of particulars call "treachery." A durbar is not an invitation to a conference, to be accepted or declined at pleasure.

In all such cases it is a command, and rightly so. Mr. Quinton throughout acted for the best and according to his lights. It may have been an error of judgment to apply the usual procedure in the rest of India to these semi-savages. It was nothing more, and there was the chance that the man would submit.

But the blame rests really, as I desire to point out, in the system of transferring men from one end of India to the other, utterly regardless of their training and experience of the requirements of the province.

Formerly our commissioners, deputy-commissioners, and even assistant commissioners, were military men of some experience—General F. Jenkins, Colonel Keatinge, Brodie, Holroyd, Veitch, Bivar, &c.—their names still remembered; they gained great local experience. Now all is changed. Officers are chopped and changed about once a year in many districts, and are yet expected to know everything.

In this large district we have had a new man about once a year for some time.

How can we expect the administration of the province to be either satisfactory or safe on such lines? The power is sliding into the hands of the native subordinates, who systematically exploit the people. We all here see it. How can we expect to escape disaster occasionally when even the head of the province is a local novice? Our officers are, nowadays, so overworked through the interminable reports and returns, which a subordinate should fill in, that they cannot spare time to get touch with the people—a fatal mistake in the East—and the masses deplore this alienation for good reasons. It will produce bitter fruit anon unless cured. We have just tasted one sample. A bad system is to blame over this Manipore business and not the men, and Lord Ripon cannot escape his fair share of the blame if any is cast on the Government of India.

ON THE BLACK MOUNTAIN.

A CORRESPONDENT of an up-country paper, writing from Seri on June 23, says :—

The force left up here on the Black Mountain, to ensure fulfilment of treaty obligations, is distributed as follows :—The Royal Welsh Fusiliers, commanded by Major Norman, are at Nimal; with them is Major Bowles' battery of screw guns (No. 9 Mountain Battery, R.A.). Nimal is a charming spot, on the crest of the pine-covered mountain range, about 8,500 feet above sea level, and about eleven miles' march from Oghi, with which it is connected by a good road. The rest of the force and headquarters are here at Seri. Here we have :—The 1st Goorkhas, commanded by Colonel Young; the 4th Sikhs, under Colonel Gaselee; the 4th Company Bengal Sappers and Miners, commanded by Captain Aylmer, R.E. A fair road connects Nimal with Seri, but there being a fall of about 3,000 feet in two miles—which the distance as the crow flies between the two places—the road is rather steep. From Seri a very good road has been made direct to Oghi. It goes via the village of Selle over the Panjigalli by Bandi village to Oghi: total distance eighteen miles. Oghi is our base of operations, and is garrisoned by the 28th Punjab Infantry (Colonel Hills).

Profound peace reigns throughout; not a shot has been fired for the past month, and troops are largely employed to help in the hutting operations that are going on under the direction of Captain Abbott, R.E. For this work the right wing of the 32nd Pioneers have been ordered back to Seri. They had started on their march to Meean Meer, but had only got as far as Oghi when the order reached them to return. It was seen that their assistance in the matter of hut-building would make an enormous difference in the time in which the huts could be got finished. The men's hopes of again enjoying the comparative ease of cantonment life, and seeing their homes and families, have been upset for a time. However, they have returned promptly to hard work, and show no signs of staleness.

The Sappers, too, are doing excellent work, and we only wish we had more of them. Sappers, Pioneers, regimental working parties, and over 700 civilian workpeople are hard at work from morning till night; even all night hammering goes on, showing how our engineers are racing the monsoon. Last week we all thought the rains had begun, but for the last day or two we have had fine weather; and now we hear that the monsoon has not yet reached Bombay even. Of the thousands of rupees being laid out on building work, none have yet gone into the pockets of Hassanais or Akazais. This is a pity, for nothing will civilise these people so quickly as getting pay for services rendered. However, it cannot be helped. Not a coolie is to be got for love or money. This, not because they are unwilling to work for us, but on account of their having to work at high pressure at their own homes. They have barely time to plough their lands and put in seed to secure an autumn harvest. Their villages, too, have to be rebuilt. Those villages that are habitable have been reoccupied, and ploughing is going on on all hands.

We take constitutional walks and visit the villages round about us, and apparently by this cause no excitement among the people. General Hammond has thus called on all the villages near us. These friendly visits have good effect: they encourage those who are disposed to be friendly with us, and keep away several noted firebrands who still bear us ill-will. These are afraid to come back to their homes as long as they see us going about there. There are several of these badmashes—men whose status in their tribe was not exalted enough to justify our insisting upon their presence in the jirga assembly that took place the other day, when the tribes sent in their representatives to notify surrender, but still men of more or less influence—who would give trouble if they could. These are feeling the inconvenience of not being able to return with safety to their lands. In fact, General Hammond has warned them off. They are not to return to their homes until they have first come in person and tendered their submission to the General. They are sending in sons, brothers, and relatives of sorts to salaam the General, but these have been rejected.

There are no signs of Hashim Ali being given up, or surrendering himself. Ibrahim Khan, his cousin and enemy, is being installed at Seri. He is building up Hashim's house and towers for his own use. Hashim's lands will no doubt also be given over to Ibrahim Khan, and thus with our help it is hoped that Ibrahim will soon be firmly re-established at Seri (from whence he was turned out some time ago by his then more powerful cousin), and his party strengthened sufficiently to enable us to leave the keeping away of Hashim Ali in his hands. Then we return to India, but who can tell what will happen between this and then?

Nimal and its vicinity, also the hills where we are building huts now, would be grand places for hot-weather stations.

A BOMBAY GOVERNMENT RESOLUTION.

RAMCHANDRA APPAJI MADHEKER, late Mamlutdar of Jamkhed in the district of Ahmednugger, is one of the native officials who has been caught up by the final swirl of the waves of the Crawford scandal and thrown up high and dry in his old age, stripped of his resources, to muse sardonically on the curious ideas which, with the clever competition-wallahs imported from England to administer the Government in Bombay, pass for logic and justice. Certificates appended to Ramchandra's statement of his case prove that for thirty-two years he had zealously, and within his narrow sphere, with some distinction, served the Government of India; but by a Government Resolution No. 1599 of 1891 dated March 2, Ramchandra was ignominiously dismissed the Service, on a charge of having had a corrupt transaction with Hanmantrao, who was alleged to be the agent of Mr. Crawford. Now, for all we know, Ramchandra may be one of the biggest rascals in the world, and the Bombay Government may be right in its decision, but its method of arriving at conclusions seems to be "slantindicular."

It is only a side matter, but we may call attention to the terms in which the Resolution of the Bombay Government refers to the relations between Hanmantrao and Mr. Crawford. That document says :—

It cannot be reasonably doubted that he (Madheker) paid the 600 rs. to Hanmantrao as a bribe and of course not for himself but for Mr. Crawford or to him in his capacity of Mr. Crawford's agent.

The Bombay Government thus repeats against Mr. Crawford in 1891 the charge of having accepted bribes through Hanmantrao, which was found not proven by its own judicial commission. It hardly seems generous, and is certainly undignified for a Government which has failed to prove a libel against a public servant, to reiterate the libel in one of its public documents. If, for no other reason than that the Bombay Government has deliberately made it part of the gravamen of its sentence against Madheker, that he was engaged in a corrupt transaction with Mr. Crawford through his agent Hanmantrao, in the teeth of the finding of its own Commission, the Secretary of State ought to ask for explanations of the following resolution :—

OFFICIAL CONDUCT : RAMCHANDRA APPAJI MADHEKER, No. 1599 OF 1891, REVENUE DEPARTMENT, BOMBAY CASTLE, MARCH 2, 1891.

Resolution :—It appears to be satisfactorily established that Ramchandra Appaji Madheker's daughter was in fact married in 1888; but she was married at Barsi in May. This does not account in a reasonable way for a remittance of 600 rs. to Poona in the middle of February. Balvantrao Godbole, who obtained cash for the draft, is a well-known sub-agent of the notorious Hanmantrao. He says Hanmantrao sent him to get the draft cashed. It is not shown that he was in any way connected with Ramchandra Appaji Madheker; he denies any acquaintance with him. Madheker says he sent the draft by his brother, Dada Appaji Madheker, now deceased; but the witnesses Banaji and another, vouched by Madheker, give a very incredible account of Dada Appaji Madheker's proceedings. He would naturally go straight to the shop on which the Hundi was drawn, instead of adopting the circuitous course which Banaji describes. Had there been a marriage of Madheker's daughter solemnised a week or two after Feb. 15, when the remittance was made to Poona, that might have accounted for the remittance, so as to free it from prima facie suspicion; but it seems impossible to say now that it is not a suspicious proceeding. The evidence of Banaji itself throws suspicion on it. The testimony of Godbole (worthless almost by itself) being corroborated by the Sowcar's books and met only by a story bearing manifest notes of invention, it may reasonably be held proved that the Hundi for 600 rs. was handed to Hanmantrao. Had it been sent for any honourable purpose there would have been no need of denying the remittance. Madheker's falsehood, taken in connection with Hanmantrao's known position and the other facts of the case, establish a corrupt transaction. It cannot be reasonably doubted that he paid the 600 rs. to Hanmantrao as a bribe, and of course not for himself, but for Mr. Crawford, or to him in his capacity of Mr. Crawford's agent. Madheker must accordingly be dismissed from the service of Government.

(Signed) G. W. VIDAL,
Acting Chief Secretary to Government.

In the absence of the testimony of the witnesses referred to in the above minute it is impossible to say how far the effect of the evidence is accurately stated, but it cannot be said that the argument and conclusions of this remarkable document command respect. What appears on its face is that in February 1888 Madheker remitted 600 rs. to Poona; that he sent it by his brother Dadaji Appaji, now deceased, and that it was in the form of a draft for the amount on a certain sowcar, whose books it is stated show the payment of the draft to one "Balvantrao Godbole." We quote the exact name, as given in the Resolution, as it becomes important hereafter to note how the man's name is cited. Balvantrao Godbole, who obtained cash for the draft, is," says the Resolution, "a well-known agent of the notorious Hanmantrao. He says Hanmantrao sent him to get the draft cashed." But the evidence of this person is admitted in the Resolution to be "worthless almost by itself." The supposed corroboration is a statement "in the sowcar's books, and that it "is met by a story bearing manifest notes of invention." Hence—argues the resolution—"it may be reasonably held proved that the hundi for 600 rs. was handed to Hanmantrao. Had it been issued for any honourable purpose there would have been no need of denying the remittance. Madheker's falsehood taken (we may assume the liberty of inserting the words "for granted") in connection with Hanmantrao's known position, &c., establish a corrupt transaction"! If this is a specimen of the judicial reasoning produced by the system of competitive examination, it is time to consider whether some other system of selection for the higher posts of the Indian Civil Service might not be adopted with advantage.

Now let us see what is the story of Madheker, which "bears manifest notes of invention"—and is treated as proof of Madheker's falsehood. The accused in his petition to the Bombay Government admits that in February 1888 he sent his brother, Dadaji Appaji, to Poona with a hundi for 600 rs., which was cashed at Nanchand Mulchand's (a sowcar) on Feb. 18 of that year. His brother was with the proceeds to purchase gold and other requisites for the daughter of Madheker, who was to have been married in the succeeding March, but was in fact not married until May. He alleges that the ceremony was postponed, as Hindoo marriages are frequently postponed, because the "astrologically auspicious days" do not happen to meet the convenience of the parties, and in fact no marriage can be celebrated in the month of Chaitra, which includes the latter end of March and the first part of April. There is no improbability in such a story taken by itself. The question is whether it is discredited by other facts. The other facts the Government adduces against Madheker are the evidence of Hanmantrao, of Godbole, and of the sowcar's books. The brother, Appaji, is dead. The evidence, the accused affirms, was taken behind his back, and no opportunity was given him of cross-examining the witnesses or correcting their statements. Hanmantrao, who was examined in the Poona gaol, where he is imprisoned, asserts that the petitioner paid some 1,000 or 1,200 rs. to avoid transfer from the Sholapore district. In answer to this the petitioner of course denies the allegation, and to confirm his denial points out that the transfer was only put off for about three months, and that on Mr. Allen's (an English official's) written recommendation, the petitioner's wife being ill in child-bed. He adds that he received no promotion or preferment in Mr. Crawford's time. Hanmantrao, however, offers no other evidence than that he received a hundi for—not six hundred but—five hundred rupees, which he says he cashed at Paranjppe's firm. No evidence confirmatory of any such payment has, according to the petitioner, been taken from Paranjppe's firm. The evidence adduced is that of the cashing of a hundi for 600 rs. at the firm of Nanchand Mulchand. This important discrepancy is not alluded to in the Resolution. Another discrepancy between the evidence of the Government and the statement of Madheker is as to the proof afforded by the sowcar's (Nanchand Mulchand's) books. Those books, according to the petitioner, show a payment of a hundi of 600 rs. to Balvantrao Vithal Godbole. Now, according to the documents in the case, the name of the Godbole whose evidence is referred to in the Government Resolution is Balvantrao Waman and not Balvantrao Vithal. The Resolution makes no allusion to this fact, which, if true, is of first importance. It conceals altogether the difference between Godbole the son of Waman and Godbole the son of Vithal. Why should it do so, if attention had been called to this vital discrepancy by the petitioner? The Resolution raises the question why Madheker's brother, Dada Appaji, did not cash the hundi himself, and why Godbole was sent to get the money. The petitioner explains it this way: "The petitioner begs to point out that it is a common practice with the native bankers not to pay the amount of a hundi unless the drawer gives a good reference as to his identity. This necessitates the assistance of a broker, and the petitioner's brother, who was not known in Poona and who cashed the hundi, did nothing more than to take the help of such a broker." Unhappily the petitioner's brother is dead and his evidence cannot be cited. One Banaji, however (referred to in the Resolution), says that the petitioner's brother did receive the 600 rs. in cash, and Madheker says that "there is ample evidence to show that out of this sum he (the brother) purchased gold for the marriage occasion," and offers to produce proof. Why was this evidence rejected? Thus there are grave discrepancies in the evidence on which the Resolution is based. Hanmantrao says he received 500 rs. from Paranjppe's firm, but does not say that he employed a Balvantrao Godbole to cash it. Balvantrao Waman Godbole says that he cashed a hundi for 600 rs. at Nanchand Mulchand's and paid it to Hanmantrao. Nanchand Mulchand's books shew that he paid a hundi of 600 rs. to Balvantrao Vithal Godbole. On evidence such as this the Government would not be justified in hanging a cat, far less in depriving a man of the pension earned through thirty-two years of admittedly honourable service, who very pertinently quotes from a Government Resolution of the Judicial Department, No. 7170, dated Oct. 16, 1883, the following paragraph :—

The Governor in Council considers that in proportion as the evidence falls short of full proof, consideration should be given to the previous character of the subordinate concerned, and especially to any specific instances of good or bad service that may have been officially noted in his case. It would seem sometimes as if previous good conduct was regarded as an aggravation of a man's offence as showing concealment of his true character. It would in the opinion of the Governor in Council, apart from the question of evidence, work well for the service of the public if subordinates were able to feel that a good character and acts of good service would stand them in real stead when their conduct is exposed to question.

We do not profess for a moment to pass judgment against the Government of Bombay and in favour of Madheker. All we know of the facts is contained in the Resolution and in the man's petition. But we should like to have the evidence reviewed by some competent judicial authority. We only say that the Resolution is a feeble production on the face of it, and that if Madheker's allegations are true, if no opportunity was given him of being brought face to face with the witnesses, and if the serious discrepancies he points out in the evidence exist, the case is one which demands review, if for no other reason than to show that better grounds exist for the conclusion arrived at than are disclosed by the Government in its own minute on the case.

A COMMERCIAL JOURNEY ACROSS PERSIA.

A REPORT by General Gordon, the Oriental Secretary of the British Legation at Teheran, describing a journey which he made recently from that city to the Persian Gulf, has just been laid before Parliament. His way lay through Sultanabad, Burujird, Khorembad, Dizful, and Ahwaz. It appears from inquiries which he made on the way that merchants have not as yet become accustomed to the Karun as a trade route, but that in some instances they prefer to send their goods to the coast by way of Bagdad. This is due partly to difficulties raised by the farmers of the local taxes and to the difficulty and insecurity of the road through Luristan. General Gordon describes the telegraph line through this district as being very badly constructed, the posts being short, thin, and weak, so that the wire in many places could not be tightly stretched, while in many places it was down altogether, because the poles, being planted in shallow holes, were easily knocked down by draught animals in passing. Descending the Karun from Shuster to Ahwaz many evidences of the existence of petroleum were seen, and an investigation of the petroleum springs of the district is being made. The opening of the Karun has already had a marked effect on the well-being of the Arab population. Labour is better paid, and the savings of a year enable many families to purchase a pair of donkeys, a plough, and seed-corn to cultivate the Government lands on their own account, without having to borrow at ruinous rates. The sheikhs, who formerly had a full command of labour in return for little more than the simplest food, now find things changed, so that many of the very poor who formerly depended on them have started as small farmers. The wheat trade on the Karun is also increasing, while rice, oil-seed, cotton, and wool are likely to be exported by this route. Hitherto the Arab traders have carried this down to Bassorah, which involves a Persian and a Turkish export duty amounting to over 13 per cent., while by the Karun there is, of course, only the Persian duty. Corresponding to this growing trade in the Karun Valley and in the improving circumstances of the people, there is an increasing import of English and Indian cotton goods and of sugar. The latter is chiefly French, owing to its low price. General Gordon says that the agricultural resources of the Karun are likely to be developed with the aid of foreign capital soon. He heard of negotiations for long leases of land on the banks of the river for the cultivation of sugar-cane, cereals, cotton, and the date palm. The difficulty is that while the applicants want a lease of sixty years the authorities offer one for twenty only, but he thinks that concessions will be given to Persian subjects and then sold to the present applicants. The capability of the land on the Lower Karun for date cultivation is very great, and is sure to attract planters. The date supply increases year by year, but so does the demand. Last year 60,000 tons of dates were exported from Bassorah. An acre of ground holds 100 trees, which begin to bear in five years, and are in full bearing in seven years. In a fairly good season a tree in full bearing gives an average profit of 3 rs., or, say, 20l. per acre. While the trees are growing the ground yields a crop of wheat, clover, or grass, and later affords pasture. It is said that 160 varieties of dates are distinguishable in these palm districts by native growers by some difference or peculiarity in fruit, stone, leaf, or stem. The Arabs pay close attention to conditions of climate, soil, water, and place, so as to cultivate the date to the best advantage. At various places in the northern part of his route General Gordon also observed the liquorice plant flourishing in great abundance; but Persian liquorice, with the necessarily heavy cost of carriage to the coast, cannot yet compete with that produced in Asia Minor. At the junction of the Euphrates and Tigris the root is collected and sent by water to Bassorah and so to Marseilles. On the whole, General Gordon's report shows that although the opening of the Karun river to trade has not, owing to bad roads and difficulties of taxation, been of much value to trade in the more northern districts, yet that in the region immediately round the river it has been productive of the greatest advantage, and appears likely in the future to be of still more benefit.

MILITARY AND NAVAL.

The Duke of Cambridge's Table Talk.—The military correspondent of the Pioneer, writing from London, says:—The Duke of Cambridge, when dining with his old corps, the 17th Lancers, a few evenings ago, made some remarks which, taking into consideration his position with regard to the army, are hardly in accordance with the fitness of things. His Royal Highness said that he disapproved of the system of examinations, and that he thought the men best fitted for cavalry officers were those who were foremost in going across country and excelled in similar ways. Most of us will agree with him, and may express the same opinion with sufficient emphasis—but then we have had nothing to do with establishing the examination system, whereas he has had much to do with it. Therefore it seems hardly right, even at a semi-private dinner-party, that the Duke should inveigh against that which he has had a great deal to do in instituting.

Inspector-General of Artillery.—The arrangement under which Major-Gen. Tillard was to act as Inspector-General of Artillery during Major-Gen. Nairne's leave has been modified, as the former officer also takes leave to England. Col. Saward, Assistant Adjutant-General for Royal Artillery, will carry on the current duties of Inspector-General while Gen. Nairne is away.

Staff Appointments in India.—With the approval of the Secretary of State, it is noticed that the following procedure will be observed in the appointments of officers to staff situations in India carrying the substantive rank of colonel in the Army:—Appointments of officers of the British Service will in future be submitted for the consideration and confirmation of His Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief and the Secretary of State for War before being notified in India. Only officiating or provisional appointments will be made, pending the receipt of such confirmation. The appointment of officers of the Indian Service will be notified to the War Office only with a view to the grant of rank in the Army being gazetted with Her Majesty's approval.

Officers' Bils and Cheques.—The Government of India, not content with levying the income tax on the salaries of officers, has just made a new departure by issuing an order that a premium of 8 a. for every 100 rs., or fraction thereof, will, with effect from July 1, be recovered for cheques and remittance transfer receipts granted by the Presidency Pay Office, Bombay, for the private remittances of military officers serving in the Military Department. It has further been ruled that payments on behalf of officers who make their salary bills payable to banks or firms in Bombay are liable to recovery of premium, and that no private remittance of 150 rs. or under will be made through the medium of the Presidency Pay Office. It is not only officers in the mofussil that these illiberal measures affect; but military officers serving in the town of Bombay itself, of course including Colaba, cannot have their pay bills as usual paid to banks and firms, but only to themselves. With the introduction of these measures, it is to be hoped that the Presidency paymaster will be able to dispense with a large portion of his establishment.

Controllers of Military Accounts, Inspectors-General of Ordnance, and Commissaries-General have been authorised to sign warrants for themselves and to issue warrants for travelling at the public expense to officers and others serving under their orders when proceeding on duty.

A lac of rupees will be devoted to camps of exercise for all India next cold weather. In the Bengal Presidency only, a large camp will be held at Manipore, divisional and brigade exercises being gone through at the large cantonments according to custom.

It is expected that at least nine regiments of cavalry and three batteries of horse artillery will be concentrated at the Manipore Camp of Exercise. There will be the usual camp for siege operations at Roorkee this cold weather.

A court of inquiry, composed of the commanding officer of the 2nd batt. King's Own Yorkshire Light Inf., Colaba, as president, and Major O. Nicholletts, 5th Bombay Inf., and Capt. W. Wicks, Royal Art., as members, was sitting, when the mail left, at the Deolali Depot collecting evidence respecting the accounts of the depot.

It is likely that the Peshawur District will fall to Brig.-Gen. Collett when Brig.-Gen. Keen vacates the command in April next.

Major-Gen. Perkins, being promoted to the rank of lieutenant-general, will vacate the Oude command on March 31, 1892.

It is reported that Lieut.-Col. R. Wace, deputy director-general of ordnance in India, proceeds home immediately for the selection of machinery for the making of the new ammunition, and that he will return to India about the beginning of September.

Major J. Grant and Major Howard Melliss, having completed twenty-six years' service, have been promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Major W. Hilliard, King's Own Yorkshire Light Inf., the popular commandant of the Colaba Depot, officiates for two months in the Adjutant-General's Department during the absence of Col. Curtis to England.

Capt. R. Fulton, 1st Goorkhas, who commanded the escort with Mr. Archer during the Kiangtung-Siam Boundary operations, has arrived at Simla from Rangoon.

Capt. T. P. Geoghegan, Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General, has been posted to the Poona district.

Capt. J. T. Carter, on promotion from the 2nd batt. Leicestershire Regt., has been ordered to join the 2nd batt. Northamptonshire Regt., at Singapore.

Lieut. Gordon, 1st Worcestershire Regt., has been appointed officiating wing officer, 5th Sikhs, and directed to join on the Samana Range, Miranzai.

Lieut. B. Upperton, 2nd batt. Oxfordshire Light Inf., has been appointed a provisional aide-de-camp to Major-Gen. R. B. H. Blundell, commanding the Poona district.

Lieut. Cole, commandant of the Surma Valley Police Battalion, who defended Changsil in Lushailand after Capt. Ulick Browne's death, is about to join the Assam Commission.

BENGAL.

OUR advices from Calcutta are to July 7.

Arrival of Sir Charles Elliott.—Sir Charles Elliott returned to Calcutta on July 6, accompanied by Lady Elliott, Sir John Ware Edgar, Mr. H. H. Risley, Mr. Johnstone, Captain Currie, private secretary, and Captain Elliott, A.D.C. The train arrived a little before the appointed time, and among those present on the platform to receive his Honour were Mr. A. Smith, Mr. J. Lambert, Mr. H. Lee, Mr. English, Mr. Baker, Sir Narendra Krishna, the Nawab Abdul Luteef, Kumar Gopendro Krishna, and Babu Durga Gutty Banerjee. The road leading to the station and the platform was guarded by the Calcutta and Railway Police. Mr. C. E. Buckland, who accompanied the party, broke his journey at Kanchrapara. The usual salute was fired from Fort William to announce the arrival.

The Benares Riot Case.—The railway-station riot case concluded at Benares on July 1. The jury acquitted seven of the accused, finding the remainder guilty. Three were sentenced to ten years' rigorous imprisonment, including three months' solitary confinement; and one of these to a fine of 25 rs. in addition; three others to four years' rigorous imprisonment, including three months' solitary confinement; three more to three years' rigorous imprisonment, including three months' solitary confinement; one to two years' rigorous imprisonment, including three months' solitary confinement, and another to two years' rigorous imprisonment, with a fine of 25 rs., to be given on recovery to the man who sustained grievous hurt; one other prisoner was sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment only. Five boys were sentenced to thirty stripes each. The next case, a Bhadaun one, was fixed for July 3.

The Assam-Chittagong Railway.—The Pioneer says the position as regards the Asam-Chittagong Railway project is scarcely so bad as was stated in Bombay. Messrs. Matheson and Company, who were granted the concession last May, then stated that it would be inadvisable to place the scheme on the London market at once, and proposed waiting until November before floating the company. The Secretary of State had no objection to this, and suggested to the Government of India that they should begin to work themselves as soon as possible, the company taking over when it should be ready to begin operations. Government may possibly set an engineering staff to work when the cold weather sets in, but they will not have many men available, while it is scarcely fair to ask them to commit themselves to an outlay upon a scheme for which no provision has been made in the Estimates. There is besides the question to be considered whether, if the company be not floated, Government may not have to construct the whole line once a beginning has been made.

The Surma Valley Light Horse.—The following resolution has been published in the Assam Gazette:—The Chief Commissioner desires most cordially to acknowledge the valuable assistance rendered by Colonel Milne, commanding the Surma Valley Light Horse, as well as by the officers and men of that regiment, as soon as news was received in the Cachar district of the outbreak at Manipore. Although the regiment was not actually called upon to render active service, there can be no doubt, the Chief Commissioner thinks, that danger did exist at the time referred to of a rising among the Maniporis residing in the Cachar district. The danger was, however, considerably reduced by the fact that these people must have been fully aware that Col. Milne's regiment would be ready at the shortest notice to assist the local authorities and check their turbulent propensities. Mr. Ward's warm acknowledgments are also due to the European planters of the Cachar district for the ready manner in which they, one and all, came forward and gave substantial help in the way of providing transport animals, coolies employed on their gardens, boats, carts, &c., for the purpose of assisting the local civil and military authorities to push on the troops to Manipore. Mr. Ward, from his personal knowledge of the capabilities of the Cachar district in this respect, can fully appreciate Major Maxwell's remark that without the aid of the European planters it would have been impossible for him to have accomplished what he did.

MADRAS.

OUR advices from Madras are to July 8.

Acting Appointment of Chief Justice, Madras High Court.—The Hon. Justice Muthuswamy Iyer, Senior Puisne Judge, is appointed to act as Chief Justice, Madras High Court, during the absence of Sir Arthur Collins, who is now in England on leave.

Madras and the Hygienic Congress.—Madras, says the Englishman, will hear nothing of sanitation. It is announced that neither the Government nor the Municipality of the capital will be represented at the forthcoming Congress of Hygiene and Demography. In view, indeed, of the record which both have established, it could scarcely be expected that either of these bodies would lend its support to such a gathering. Apart from the question of principle, there would always be the practical danger that a delegate on his return might recommend certain elementary measures of sanitation.

The Malabar Marriage Commission.—In a few days, the same paper states, the Malabar Marriage Commission sitting at Calicut will have concluded its labours. An enormous volume of evidence has been recorded in the course of the recent tour through the province and as the result of printed questions directed to some two thousand natives of all castes. It appears generally that, although the advocates of reform represent the most cultured sections of the community, they are decidedly in the minority. The natives of Malabar are, as a rule, profoundly indifferent, and in most cases are probably unable to understand the issues.

The death-rate of Madras continues abnormally high. For the week ending July 3 the rate was forty-two per mille per annum, against thirty-four.

The Government of India has informed the Madras Government that the intended deputation of Captain Temple to Madras, to inquire into the local taxation of railways and submit a report on the subject, has been indefinitely postponed.

Golconda Vencatasanta Bhupati, the leader of the recent rising in Vizagapatam, is reported to be dead. He was a son of China Bhupati, the leader of rebellions in the Vizagapatam hills in 1845-48, and 1857-58. A dangerous character is thus removed.

CEYLON.

Coffee Cultivation.—An observer who has been taking note in Ceylon estimates that the coffee plantations scarcely exceed 50,000 acres in area. Little is heard now of the industry which opened up the island to European enterprise and laid the foundation of its present prosperity. Coffee is already a subject of the past, and, failing some extraordinary revival, will be little more than a tradition with the rising generation of planters.

A Proposed Exhibition.—A large and enthusiastic meeting was held on July 1, at the Colombo Cutcherry, at the invitation of the Hon. A. R. Dawson, Government Agent of the Western Province, to consider the advisability of holding a Ceylon Exhibition at Colombo. The last exhibition of the kind was held there in 1883, and was most successful. The exhibits are to be sent from all parts of the island, and the military portion of the meeting was specially appealed to to render assistance.

Extraordinary Suicide in Colombo.—The Ceylon papers recently to hand contain very long accounts of an interesting ceremony in which Colonel Olcott and others took a prominent part—viz., the reception of an English young lady, Miss Pickett, into the Buddhist faith. The Times of Ceylon of July 25 reports the sequel as follows:—One of the most melancholy cases of suicide it has been our lot to record for a long time has to be reported to-day in connection with the death of Miss Pickett, a young Australian lady who only arrived in Colombo two weeks ago, and who, at a large public meeting, it will be recollected, took pansil with Mr. Keightley, and, on entering the ranks of the Buddhists, became Lady Principal of the Sanghamitta Girls' School in Maradana. Why she should so soon after her appearance here have decided to put an end to her life is a matter shrouded in mystery. It is possible that the change from the Australian climate to that of Ceylon told seriously on her state of mind and on her health generally; while there is another rumour that yesterday Miss Pickett got a letter from Australia which agitated her considerably; though that is hardly likely, seeing that the Australian mails were not delivered till to-day. Whatever was the cause, it appears to be tolerably certain that last night the deceased inquired of some of the children under her care which of the wells in the compound of the school in Maradana was the deepest, and that, after the children had gone to bed, she crept from her room (the bed in which was quite undisturbed when the room was examined this morning, showing that it had not been lain on), and, letting herself out of the house by means of the key, which was in her possession, she made her way to a well directly in front of the house and flung herself in. The well is a deep one of 16 feet or 17 feet, and contains about 12 feet of water, the result being that Miss Pickett was drowned. The tragedy naturally created a good deal of excitement in the, usually quiet neighbourhood, and during the morning hundreds of persons gathered round the gates of the compound, which were locked, and endeavoured with true native curiosity to ascertain exactly what had taken place. Dr. Bowles Daly, who, with several leading Theosophists, afterwards turned up, showed the greatest disposition to have the whole case properly sifted, and did what he could to ensure this being accomplished. At the inquest, from information given by Dr. Daly, it transpired that the deceased had received no foreign letters, and that she had been reading last night a book entitled "The Perfect Way," or "The Finding of Christ," which may have probably caused depression of spirits. A verdict of "Found drowned" was returned, though the coroner directed the jury that it was a case of suicide.

BOMBAY.

OUR advices from Bombay are to July 10.

Narrow Escape from Accident of Lady Harris.—Lady Harris narrowly escaped an accident on July 7. She had driven under the porch of Miss Watson's, East Street, when her horses, a pair of Australians which she was herself driving, shied. Lady Harris handled the restless pair in a clever manner, and averted what promised to be a serious accident.

A Well-Earned Snub.—The Presidency Association recently petitioned against the appointment of Mr. Chitty as Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court, and the rumoured intention to appoint Mr. Webb as Chief Presidency Magistrate. Government, replying to this in a Resolution, says:—"It may be generally understood that in making appointments to the public service it is impossible for Government to admit of the responsibility passing from its judgment to that of popular opinion. Her Majesty's Government has laid down rules of general application, and where it appears to the Local Government advisable to make exception to those rules, reference to the Secretary of State is compulsory. It appears to the Governor in Council, from the memorials now before him, that popular opinion, or opinions which claim to be popular, cannot be relied upon for consistency in matters of appointments. The records of Government show that the humble memorial of the under-mentioned inhabitants of Bombay, dated May 5, 1887, which was signed by a large number of residents, including the then President, Vice-President, and members of Council for the time being of the Bombay Presidency Association, urged the claims of Mr. Webb to the office of Chief Presidency Magistrate as one who 'your memorialists submit has proved himself efficient and capable of discharging the duties of the office' to the entire satisfaction of the community. The memorial now submitted asserts the many disqualifications of the same gentlemen for the post of Presidency magistrate. Under these circumstances I am to state that Government must decline to be biassed in these matters by such representations as those now submitted. The Governor in Council will continue to depend for advice in his selections or recommendations for appointment to the public service on those who, from their situation and acquaintance, are best fitted to judge of the professional qualifications of candidates who seek his nomination."

Bombay Yarns.—There seems a growing desire among spinners and capitalists, says the Indian Textile Journal, to increase the range of yarns which is now produced in India. We have already got to successful 40's, and many are prepared to assert that the better varieties of Indian cottons are capable of being converted into 50's. There is a large demand for all counts from 40's to 60's, and if the latter is beyond the possibility of the Indian fibres, there is nothing to prevent the importation of Egyptian cotton into Bombay. As we have already referred to this subject, we shall only reiterate the statement which we have already made—namely, that to the promoter of the first mill for this manufacture a large and profitable margin of profit lies at hand.

A Forest Officer in Trouble.—George Herbert Wittenbaker, a European, was found guilty at the Bombay High Court Sessions on July 1 of criminal breach of trust as a public servant, he having about June 30, while employed in the service of Government at Buldana in the capacity of a forest officer, and while entrusted with moneys to the extent of 1,791 rs., received by him for grazing fees for cattle, misappropriated out of that sum the amount of 693-8 rs.; and also at the same time and place having applied to his own use a further sum of 404-8 rs., being part of a sum of 940 rs. received by him from cattle-owners for grazing fees. He was sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment.

BURMA.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE Rangoon correspondent of the Times telegraphs on July 26:—

The Rangoon Times announces that a new route to the Jade Mines has been discovered which is fit for use at all seasons and is a great improvement on the present road.

Although the rainfall is unusually heavy generally throughout Lower Burma, it is deficient in certain parts of the northern districts, and is short throughout Upper Burma.

Sir A. Mackenzie, who is on tour, said, in a recent speech, that the condition of the people was unsatisfactory owing to the fact that the rains had been for some years short and capricious; when funds became available he hoped that irrigation works might be provided. He urged the people meanwhile to construct works, promising that if the works were executed by the people themselves the Government would exact no water rate.

In a speech at Magwe, the Chief Commissioner urged the Burmese loogyees and agriculturists to get the young men of the district to join the police force and thus stamp police work by their approval as a respectable career. He promised improved lodging and clothing, and said that the police would be encouraged to have their wives and families round them. The higher ranks, including the inspectorships, would, in future, be largely filled by Burmans. When the force was reorganised 20 per cent. of the military police and 8 per cent. of the civil would be mounted.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that a pioneer regiment will be sent up to Manipore next cold weather is, says the Allahabad paper, a welcome indication that the question of through communication between Assam and Upper Burma is under the serious consideration of the military authorities. They must, of course, be the first to move in a matter of this kind, as they have to think of the troops garrisoning Manipore and of the advantages of having Tammu and the Kubo Valley connected with Kohima. But, with the Chittagong-Assam Railway about to be built, the Public Works Department should also bestir themselves and work out a project for linking the railway system of the Mu Valley with the line which will traverse Assam throughout the whole length of the province. It may not be possible, for some years to come, to carry out an extension of this kind, but there can be no difficulty whatever in framing estimates and preparing detailed plans for the section from Tammu to the junction with the Assam line, which has already been surveyed. Sir Richard Temple has done good service in drawing public attention at home to the possibilities of a Burma-Assam Railway, and we are certain to hear more of such a scheme before long. At present there is a fair weather road, with strong iron bridges over nullahs and watercourses, linking Golaghat with Nichuguard at the foot of the Naga Hills. This road follows the left bank of the Dansiri river through the Nambha forest up to Dimapur, where it crosses the stream by a temporary wooden bridge, which disappears in the rain. At Nichuguard there is a fine steel suspension bridge over the river at its exit from a gorge in the hills. This Golaghat-Nichuguard road is not metalled, and consequently it generally becomes a mere mud track from April to November. The Dansiri rises in the monsoon months to a height sufficient to enable country boats to ply up to Dimapur, only six miles from Nichuguard. It would be possible to lay a tramway through the Nambha, and this would certainly be cheaper than metalling the roadway for some sixty miles, as every ton of metal would have to be imported, there being no stone in the forest that could readily be used. But the new Chittagong-Assam line, when made, will pass close to the foot of the Naga Hills, and will throw off a branch to Golaghat, if not to Gauhati. We have therefore really to consider what the country is from Nichuguard to Manipore, and beyond that to Tammu.

THE PACIFICATION of Upper Burma has made such progress that a reduction of 3,000 men on the sanctioned strength of the military police has been effected. The figures, says the Bombay Gazette, however, are somewhat deceptive, for whilst the sanctioned strength was over 18,000, the average strength in the previous year was but 16,000; so that the actual number of men at the close of the year was 15,392—at best a net reduction of 690 men. Moreover, the frontier levies were transferred to the regular army under a scheme for garrisoning the Chin Hills and the Southern Shan States by troops instead of police. But four battalions were amalgamated into one, and the services of four companies were dispensed with at a stroke of the pen. Further, ten and a half companies were dispensed with by the consolidation of six battalions of police into a military regiment. Other reductions are in contemplation, for district officers are now being asked to report the minimum force of all kinds which they consider necessary for the maintenance of order in their districts. Little work which calls for comment has been done by the force, with the exception of the Mogaung battalion, which has been employed with success against the frontier tribes.

AS AN INSTANCE of official brutality, the Mandalay Herald relates the following respecting a police officer with an unpronounceable name who has gone to relieve Mr. Cumming as Assistant District Superintendent of Police in Rangoon:—"A curious story comes to us from Myittha, a sub-division in the Kyaukse District. We have reason to believe in the authenticity of the report, and we call upon the head of the Local Government to institute the necessary enquiries into it. It runs thus. It would appear that Mr. Szczepanski, the lately appointed Assistant Superintendent of Police to Rangoon in place of Mr. Cumming, and who was then on special duty to run to earth the notorious dacoit Pan Zun, found his way to Myittha about a week ago in the early part of the evening, which place he wanted to leave the same night for some place or places unknown; the services of the Myothoogyee were taken into requisition to secure carts for Mr. Szczepanski and his luggage. The Myothoogyee was unable to furnish this gentleman with the conveyances he wanted that night, although every effort had been made to get them, but he promised that he would endeavour to provide them in the morning. Apparently this seems to have irritated this worthy policeman, for we hear that he flew at the Myothoogyee's throat, bringing him to the ground, and thereafter struck and kicked him. The injuries received by this officer were such that he was carried to the hospital in a stretcher, where, we believe, he is still under treatment. To crown all this, the unwarranted assault was committed by an officer whose duty it is to maintain peace and order, and committed in the presence of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, whose clear duty it was to have placed this truculent policeman under arrest. It is also stated that Mr. Szczepanski made next for the Myook, another magistrate, with intent to assault him; the Myook thought prudence the better part of valour and was lost to view; thereupon, Mr. Szczepanski, in a most grandiloquent and authoritative tone, announced to the surprised spectators that he suspended the Myook. These are facts which we are prepared to substantiate as correct. The matter was duly reported to the Deputy Commissioner, Kyaukse, who lost no time in visiting the Myothoogyee in the hospital. Mr. S. Szczepanski, finding how matters stood, made every endeavour to hush up the affair by offering to tender an apology to the Myothoogyee. This, the Myothoogyee, we believe, either from pressure or a misapprehension of Mr. Szczepanski's position and believing that this gentleman was almighty with the Local Government, and no doubt having in view some hopes of future advantages, has signed some document that he would receive Mr. Szczepanski's apology. The following is what purports to be the apology:—

"To the Thugyi of Myittha.

"It is with great regret that I have heard of you being so injured from the effects of the beating I gave you. The intense irritation I felt at the moment is the only excuse I can give for my hastiness, and I am now wishing to apologise for it, and I sincerely hope that your injuries are not so severe as have been made out.

"(Signed) L. N. SZCZEPANSKI, A.D.S.P."

"Palaik, June 24, 1891.

The Commissioner ought not to give this man a chance of making such an apology again.

HYDERABAD.

THE Resident at Hyderabad has written to the Minister, warmly congratulating him upon the recent orders for the introduction of a regular settlement into two of the Telingana talukas. Sir Denis Fitzpatrick's letter, we understand, says the Bombay Gazette, makes a detailed examination of the scheme, and discusses at some length, and critically, the proposals for what he rightly regards as a large, important, and very difficult work. The Nizam's Government have certainly dealt frankly and liberally with the whole question. There has been no attempt to conceal the abuses and hardships which have grown up under the existing system—or want of system—the unduly exacting rates charged upon the land, the uncertainties of assessment and measurement, and the refusal of the rights of a free choice as to the lands the ryots will take under cultivation. All this they have freely acknowledged, and they have shown great liberality in regard to future rates. The Resident does not exaggerate the importance of the work to which the Minister has lately given sanction when he compares it with the introduction by the first Sir Salar Jung of the Bombay settlement system in the Mahrattwari portion of the Nizam's dominions. Mr. Dunlop, the able Settlement Commissioner, and the Vicar-ul-Moolk—who has just returned to Hyderabad in greatly improved health—are deservedly commended by the Resident for the great service that they have done in bringing about this important reform.

A CLAIM FOR THREE AND A-HALF LACS.

The Deccan Standard says:—The hearing of the suit brought by Mr. Tom Palmer, barrister-at-law, against Nawab Sir Kurshed Jah, K.C.I.E., the Premier noble of Hyderabad, for nearly three and a half lacs of rupees, commenced on July 1, before the Special Commission that has been appointed by the Nizam's Government, with the approval and direction of his Highness. The members of the commission, under the presidency of Nawab Imad Jung, Chief Justice of Hyderabad, sat from noon until about 3 o'clock, but beyond framing the issues nothing was done, the greater part of the time having been wasted with arguments between the counsel for the defendant and the pleaders for the plaintiff about technicalities and the wording of the plaint. Sir Kurshed Jah was represented by Mr. Rudra, barrister-at-law, and Messrs. Forbes and Munden, pleaders, appeared for the plaintiff, who was present in court during the proceedings. On the case being called Mr. Rudra rose and handed his written statement in reply to the plaint filed by the plaintiff. On resuming his seat, and after the perusal of the document by the members of the commission, Mr. Forbes said that before the case proceeded any further he wished to call attention to the second para. of the pleas, and took exception to the wording which was intended, he averred, to insult and annoy his client. The words he wished to call attention to were those in which Mr. Palmer's plaint is stigmatised as a tissue of falsehoods, and that the case was brought to extort money. Mr. Forbes added that he was both astonished and pained to read such remarks made against his client, more so as Mr. Palmer was a member of the same profession as Mr. Rudra, and concluded by asking the Court's protection for his client, and that the obnoxious para. be expunged from the statement. Mr. Rudra replied by stating that he was within his right in the remarks he had made, and that although it might be unpleasant to Mr. Palmer to hear a spade called by its name he had a duty to perform to his client, who, the plaintiff had the audacity to say, had defrauded him. He repeated that Mr. Palmer's action was itself fraudulent and bordered on criminality, and concluded by again repeating that his remarks were perfectly correct, and that he was prepared to prove them and more, if necessary, later on. In fact, he would, when the right moment arrived, make disclosures that would astonish both Mr. Forbes and the court. One of the members of the commission here intervened and intimated it could not take into consideration the expressions used, and which were objected to, at this stage of the proceedings.

Mr. Rudra: I understand the plaintiff's counsel are prepared to alter para. 12 by substituting the word an for the in it. Wait one minute, where are the written and verbal promises you say you have? Where are they?

Mr. Forbes: What we can show amount to promises.

Mr. Rudra: What? For the whole amount?

Mr. Forbes: Yes, for the whole amount.

On this stage Mr. Rudra again removed his application that Nawab Vicar-ul-Umma be made a co-defendant to the suit. General Campbell replied that the Commission had nothing to do with Vicar-ul-Umma.

The court, after much wrangling between defendant's counsel and those for the plaintiff, proceeded to frame the issues and afterwards adjourned to Wednesday, July 22, at noon. Issues framed—

First.—In what capacity and under what terms was the plaintiff engaged by the late Amir-i-Kabir, the father of the defendant, in England; and if the plaintiff was engaged as counsel, can this suit be maintained?

Second.—Did the defendant promise the plaintiff to pay the plaintiff any balance which might be found due by the late Amir-i-Kabir to the plaintiff?

Third.—What was the balance due by the late Amir-i-Kabir, father of the defendant?

Fourth.—What sum of money is now payable to the plaintiff?

Fifth.—Whether the plaintiff is entitled to receive his balance from the defendant only without the conjunction of Nawab Vicar-ul-Umra Bahadur, who is the defendant's brother and partner (coheir)?

AN AFFRAY WITH ARABS.

A Secunderabad correspondent writes to a contemporary :—The case in which two Arabs are charged with having attacked and wounded Lieutenant Sexton, of the Hyderabad Contingent, and Lieutenant Brewster, of the Artillery, whilst on a shooting trip in the Indore district on the 20th May last, has commenced in General Campbell's court at Chaddarghat. Mr. Forbes, pleader, prosecuted, and a native pleader of the City High Court defended the prisoners. Colonel Prideaux, Deputy Judge Advocate-General, watched the case on behalf of the officers. The evidence of the complainants went to show that whilst they were encamped near the village of Salikontah they sent Farid Khan, one of their shikaris, to the village to procure two buffaloes for a kill. Farid returned and reported that the buffaloes were refused, and that he had been hustled by Arabs. Subsequently two Arabs came up, accompanied by the village Patel and others. When Mr. Sexton inquired what they had come for, the bigger Arab of the two replied, "To furnish supplies." But the smaller Arab said they had not paid for their former supplies, and spoke insolently. The officers refuted the complaint indignantly, whereupon the smaller Arab drew a pistol and brandished it in front of them. Mr. Sexton got up, and from behind seized the man by his two arms as he was about to draw a sword. Mr. Brewster rushed up behind, and, seizing the Arab, hurled him down an embankment. Then the smaller Arab ran towards Mr. Brewster and aimed a pistol at his head. Mr. Brewster, wrenching away the pistol, struck the Arab with it on the head, and the pistol went off, and the flash of the discharge set fire to Mr. Brewster's coat. He noticed at the time that the Arab's arm was also burnt by the flash. Thinking matters were getting serious, Mr. Brewster ran to his tent to get a gun, but on the way he tripped and fell, when the smaller Arab ran up and stuck him with a spear in the thigh. Mr. Sexton then called out to him that he was wounded by a pistol. The Arabs soon after the affray ran away. The matter was subsequently reported to the police.

In cross-examination it was elicited that a pass was obtained to shoot in the jaghirs of the Nizam's territory; that the officers showed their wounds to a native doctor, who came to Indore, and that he did not extract the bullet from Mr. Sexton's arm, saying the inflammation was too great. He bandaged Mr. Brewster's wounds. He did not, however, give a certificate to the extent of the injuries. Mr. Brewster admitted that a man had been killed in a village near Indore, and that his relatives complained to him about it, but he said the man was killed by a tiger. The pleader for the defence endeavoured after this to show that the officers were the real aggressors, having created a panic in the village, and threatened to assault the Arabs, who, in self-defence, used arms. The case was adjourned.

PUNJAB, N.-W. P., OUDE, &c.

THAT the Orakzais on the Kohat frontier have been completely subdued, the Civil and Military Gazette thinks there is little room for doubt. There are rumours current, however, that neighbouring sections of the Afridis are still restive, and that fanatical leaders are exciting the men of Tirah to give us trouble. Whether there is any truth in these rumours time will tell, but those who should know place little reliance on them. It is not considered possible that men who have so much to lose will wantonly commit themselves. At the same time, it is difficult to exaggerate the mischief that half a dozen mullas can be guilty of in a very short space of time; and there are many, whose opinions must carry weight, who are firmly convinced that until much of the wind which has got into the heads of the tribe which at present furnishes our army with such excellent soldiers, has been knocked out, peace and quietness will be difficult to attain. Colonel Swetenham, commanding the 27th Punjab Infantry, has returned from short leave to Kohat. Major Leigh, Political Officer on the Samana, has taken a few weeks and gone to the Gullies, Mr. Dallas remaining on the Samana on special duty, while the latter's place at Hangu has been taken by Mr. Spencer, who passed through on his return from Simla on the 25th of last month.

The rule of Chitral had sent some dozen of his picked men to Gilgit to learn drill, &c., as taught in the Indian Army, with the Cashmere imperial service troops. These have now returned to Chitral, and have been inspected and rewarded for their efficiency by the Mehtar, who has ordered a regiment to be raised after the English fashion. As Kaffirs, if they wish, are to be enlisted in this regiment, Colonel Durand, at Gilgit, may have an opportunity of learning at no distant date whether the Kafir comes up to our estimate of his probable merits as a recruit. Probably, however, says an Indian contemporary, the Kaffirs who would enlist in Chitral would not be Lal Kaffirs from the interior of Kaffirstan, who are as superior to the outer Kaffirs as the Highlanders of Scotland used to think themselves to their Lowland neighbours, and that is saying a good deal.

CENTRAL ASIAN NOTES.

A Reuter telegram from St. Petersburg of July 23, says :—It is announced that the Ministry of War has under consideration a scheme for the construction of a railway from Dushak, a station on the Transcaspian Railway, to Sarakhs, on the Afghan frontier. The journal adds that the projected line will have both strategic and commercial importance. The Russian Invalid, the military organ, states that a military store depot is about to be established at Kueschk, a short distance north-east of Herat. It is semi-officially announced that the depot now existing at Saryjasi will be abolished, and another formed at Jelatan.

The following telegrams relating to the Katy Greenfield abduction have been received since our last issue :—

TAURIS, July 23.—I learn from So-uj-Bolak that the greater part of the riotous Kurds have stealthily dispersed. Miss Greenfield was handed over on Tuesday to the local authority.

TEHERAN, July 25 (Reuter).—In consequence of the intervention of some notables from Suleimania, Miss Kate Greenfield was safely removed from the Turkish Consulate at So-uj-Bolak to the Governor's house. The British Chargé d'Affaires proposes that Miss Greenfield should be interrogated by a committee of British, Turkish, and Persian officials, at a place chosen by herself, regarding the statement that she had become a convert to Islamism, and had voluntarily accompanied the Kurds to the Turkish Consulate.

The Governor's house at So-uj-Bolak is surrounded by Ottoman Kurds, who are committing great excesses, and render the town unsafe. The Persian authorities appear to be reluctant to expel the rebels.

A Berlin telegram to the Times says :—A private telegram has been received from Jassy to the effect that M. Hitrovo, the former Russian Ambassador at Bucharest, whose intrigues were supposed to have to a great extent contributed to the recent conspiracies in Bulgaria, has been appointed Minister in Teheran. It is further stated that Sir F. Lascelles, the present English Minister in Bucharest, will also be appointed Minister in the Persian capital.

Of the three actions in which Umra Khan of Jandol was said to have been worsted, in the fighting now going on in Bajaur, it now appears, states the Lahore paper, that in one—although the least important—his men held their ground, and under Majid Khan, his nephew, repulsed the attack of the Kohistanis upon Dir. The Kohistanis lost twenty men: and Majid Khan occupies the position with, it is said, 2,000 foot and 100 horse. In Nawaghi territory, on the other hand, where Umra Khan has a small invading force, his defeat is confirmed: and his men are said to be hard pressed on all sides by superior numbers. To Ramora, where Umra Khan also sustained a serious reverse, he has sent a reinforcement of 500 foot and fifty horse. It is characteristic of these petty frontier wars that Umra Khan should have selected this critical moment to celebrate his brother Muhammad Shah's marriage, and that Safder Khan of Nawaghi, his opponent in that part of the sphere of operations, should have agreed to a truce (which ended recently) so as not to interfere with the wedding festivities. Umra Khan, it is said, wished to convert the truce into a peace, but his terms were not listened to.

The petty fighting which had been going on between different maliks in Swat has come to an end, until next time. Whether the attention of the belligerents has been distracted to the larger disturbances going on in Bajaur is not stated.

NOTES FROM THE FAR EAST.

A REUTER telegram from Victoria (British Columbia), dated July 22, says :—The steamship Empress of India, which has arrived here from Yokohama, brings further advices regarding the anti-foreign movement in China, which present a gloomy picture of the present state of affairs. The whole of Southern China is described as in a state of turmoil. Law and order are set at defiance, and armed bands of plunderers make business almost impossible.

Lewing Chuen, the Governor-General of the Island of Formosa, is said to be in such bad health that he is not expected to live long, and it is believed that his death will be the signal for revolts and a general uprising against Chinese rule. The feeling around Shanghai is also one of great disquiet on account of the recent riots, and the foreign residents apprehend attacks at any time.

The ringleader of the riots at Wuhu has been arrested in Shanghai, and handed over to the authorities. The band of Chinese pirates which infested Hanoi has been nearly wiped out by the French, but their punishment does not seem to exercise any deterrent effect on others as attacks on villages are reported to be of very common occurrence.

Li Hung Chang, Chief of the Nui-ko, or Internal Council, which advises the Emperor on legislative matters and reforms, is arranging to start a cotton factory at Shanghai, at a cost of a million dollars.

The Viceroy of Nankin has issued a proclamation that all persons found to be members of the Kolao Society will be executed.

The foreign representatives at Peking (writes the North China Herald of June 13) have collectively asked the Tung-li Yamén in a formal note whether it considers that the Government can protect foreign life and property in China, and what steps it proposes to take to do it; if the reply, for which the foreign representatives are now waiting, is unsatisfactory, foreign Governments will take measures for the protection of their subjects or citizens. The question itself implies a doubt of the power or will of the Chinese Government; but yet, as the Tung-li Yamén can only make one answer, it really does not seem much use asking it. It is a part of the general weakness and flabbiness that characterise the dealings of foreign Powers with China nowadays. Whether it can or cannot, the Chinese Government does not at the present moment protect foreign life and property; and that is the position on which the Ministers should act, without wasting time on notes and replies which cannot possibly do any good to anyone, while during the delay the rioting and incendiarism continue from day to day.

A missionary writing from Nankin says the people have burned the Viceroy in effigy with an arrow stuck through his heart, and that placards are posted all over the city charging the Viceroy with seceding from the Kolao Hui.

On June 16 the same journal adds:—The collective note of the Foreign Representatives at Pekin has resulted in the issue on Saturday last of an Imperial Decree, a translation of which will be found in another column. The decree is a consequence of a memorial from the Tsung-li Yamén to the throne, recounting the outbreaks at Wuhu, Tanyang, and Wusueh. The terms of the decree are all that could be desired. The Emperor refers to the fact that the treaties with foreign Powers provide for the free promulgation of Christianity in China, and praises the Christian religion. Long years have passed since these treaties were made, and Chinese and foreigners have lived on friendly terms. "How is it that lately churches have been burnt and destroyed almost simultaneously? It is certainly strange and astounding." The trouble is attributed to the evil men who are always ready to spread false rumours and mislead the minds of the people, drawing after them peaceful and good people, "with the expectation that an opportunity will occur for plunder." The Viceroy and Governors of the Liang Kiang, Hukuang, Kiangsu, Anhui, and Hupeh are to put down these bad men with the strong hand. The local officials are to devise measures for the protection of foreign life and property, merchant and missionary. If they fail in their duty, "let the higher authorities report the exact state of the case and have such officials cashiered." The Tartar Generals, Viceroy and Governors are to settle up promptly the claims arising out of these riots, "and not allow the subordinate officials to delay and procrastinate."

Meanwhile, though active measures are now being taken, and a few rioters have been arrested, bamboosed, cangued, or decapitated, the officials have not succeeded in catching any of the leaders, or in discovering the organisation. There can be little doubt that there was an organisation, which was roused to action by the economies of the Viceroy at Nankin, and made use of the anti-Christian feelings always latent in the people, and kept alive by the calumnious literature which is constantly being disseminated from Hunan, with the covert encouragement of many of the officials.

As a well-known correspondent writes us (N. C. Herald), "Not only the Emperor and Empress Dowager and the members of the Imperial family, but all the high officers of the Government stick in Pekin always. They never travel in the country, and are entirely at the mercy of the high local officials in the provinces as regards information, who report as they please, and act as they please. A British Minister who understood Chinese ways, and travelled about every year more or less, and gathered information in all parts, could revolutionise Pekin and would be greatly feared by the Government. By sticking in Pekin always he knows practically nothing, and has no influence whatever."

The Paris correspondent of the Times wrote on July 24:—The Débats attaches some importance to England having agreed to receive Chinese Consuls in her ports, this concession, which has been pressed for by China for twelve years, being an indirect revision of the Treaty of 1860, which merely allowed English Consuls in Chinese ports. The Débats attributes the concession to the advances made by Russia and France, the former by way of the Caspian Railway, the latter by Tonquin. England is consequently anxious to keep in China's good graces, for just as the Marquis Tseng described Sir H. Macartney as "his arms and legs," so China may be England's arms, legs, and especially her eyes, keeping a good lookout on her frontiers. The new consulates will, on the other hand, protect Chinese coolies, and will give China a precedent for asking a like concession elsewhere. Other powers, however, may have good reasons for being less complaisant, and China should avoid treating Frenchmen less favourably than other foreigners, especially at Shanghai and Nankin, where coolies have been seen to refuse to take the luggage of a French lady, and to insult the coolies who did take it. If this one case is the only French grievance against China, it seems a very microscopic one.

WOMEN IN INDIAN FACTORIES.

(To the Editor of THE HOMEWARD MAIL.)

SIR,—With reference to Mrs. Pechey Phipson's letter which appeared in your issue of the 22nd inst., I would refer your readers to my letter in the Times of May 20, where my allusion to Mrs. Phipson's lecture in Bombay occurs. They will find that far from my quoting her words "as an argument against the employment of Indian women in factories," they were merely used in order to show—to use the very words quoted by me—that:—"A Hindoo girl of fifteen is about equal to an English girl of eleven, instead of the reverse, and that statements to the contrary by Englishmen who have no opportunity of becoming acquainted with Hindoo family life were totally misleading." In no lecture, and in no letter of mine, have I argued "against the employment of Indian women in factories." I have merely quoted evidence of Indian medical officials, factory inspectors, and managers of mills to show that their opinion is unanimous that operatives of all classes are being overworked in Indian factories. It will be well to put this evidence together, so far as medical opinion is concerned, for the information of Mrs. Phipson, who from her letter appears never to have been inside an Indian cotton mill, and merely reflects the picture drawn for her instruction by a large manufacturer and mill-owner at Allahabad.

After quoting Dr. Thomas Stephenson Weir, Health Officer to the Bombay Municipality, and Dr. Joseph Anderson, House Surgeon in a Bombay Hospital, Mr. Hallett continues:—

Dr. Lumsdaine, the Sanitary Commissioner of the Bombay Presidency, who in 1878 was instructed by the Government to carefully inspect the factories and report on their condition and as to the protection which should be given to the operatives, after inspecting twenty-two of the cotton mills, urged in his report that:—

"I think impartial opinion will say the hours of labour ought to be reduced. For men, I would suggest ten hours; for women, and boys from thirteen upward, nine hours; and for children, six hours; and in this time I would give one interval of half-an-hour in the forenoon and another in the afternoon, so the real working time would be nine, eight, and five hours. On purely physical grounds I would close the mills one day in every seven."

Mrs. Phipson has given your readers the picture drawn by Mr. Runchorelal Chotilall, a cotton manufacturer at Ahmedabad; I quote the report of the Factory Inspector at Ahmedabad, who will be allowed to be a more unbiassed authority. In his factory report, dated Ahmedabad, July 28, 1888, Mr. James, the collector of that district, states:—

"The hours worked are just as long as the sun affords light. Work begins at early dawn and ends at twilight. During the months of May and June the recorded time during which the engines were at work at one mill, which I recently visited, continued from 13 hours to 13 hours 20 minutes, and at that season when the heat was intense, fluctuating on hot days between 112 deg. and 117 deg. in a verandah or tent, with, this year, the addition of cholera raging in a severe epidemic form. But no relaxation was allowed to the employés either on account of the heat or the epidemic. Factories should not be allowed to work longer than from 6 A.M. to 6.30 P.M."

As to Mrs. Phipson's contention that the work of a mill-hand is "comparatively light and easy" when compared with "the hard labour of a coolie or of an agricultural labourer," I would refer her to the following statement, taken from the report of Drs. Bridges and Holmes in 1873 on "The proposed changes in hours and ages of employment in textile factories." These gentlemen reported to the Local Government Board that:—

"We have already referred more than once to the unremitting and monotonous character of all labour at a machine driven by steam. If the day's work of a housemaid, or even of a charwoman, be closely looked at, and compared with that of an ordinary mill-hand in a card-room or spinning room, it will be seen that the former, although occasionally making greater muscular efforts than are ever exerted by the latter, is yet continually changing both her occupation and her posture, and has very frequent intervals of rest. Work at a machine has inevitably a treadmill character about it; each step may be easy, but it must be performed at the exact moment under pain of consequences. In hand-work and housework there is a certain freedom of doing or leaving undone. Mill work must be done as if by clockwork."

I may further remind Mrs. Phipson that all mill work is done in a standing position. How would she like to suffer the mental and bodily strain of standing for thirteen and fourteen hours attending to machinery in motion, as an Indian mill-hand has to do at the present day at Ahmedabad? Yet she considers that no protection ought to have been granted to women and girls, from fourteen years of age upwards, from such excessive labour. How would she like a child of hers of nine years of age to work standing in a mill for seven hours each day during six days out of every seven, as is sanctioned by the new Indian Factory Act? To realise the fatigue thus imposed upon a child, we must remember that standing is far more fatiguing than walking, and when continued for long periods tends to deform the frame of human beings, particularly of those under the age of twenty-one, that is of those whose physical development is immature. In her lecture she declared that "For centuries you (natives of India) have been children of children, and there is no surer way of becoming servants of servants." The operatives of India are, as is evidenced by the opinions of medical men and factory inspectors above quoted, being mercilessly sweated by their mercenary employers. If protection cannot be given to the women and young persons without chancing their being thrown out of work unless the running hours of the mills are restricted to such fair hours as medical men, factory inspectors, and common sense demand, a Factory Act should be drawn out to bring the running hours within reasonable and humane limits, when every soul employed in the mills would receive the needful protection.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

HOLT S. HALLETT.

A Gallant Rescue.—On Sunday morning (July 5) at eight o'clock, when the first cutter of the Indian Marine steamer Clive, at Bombay, was being lowered, the man in charge of the after-fall accidentally let go owing to the wet condition of the rope. There were twelve lascars and one officer in the boat at the time. The officer, Mr. Rowand, and five of the lascars were thrown into the sea. Two boats were immediately put off, and the officer, Mr. Rowand, and three lascars were rescued. Mr. Baugh, the commanding officer, who was in his cabin at the time the accident happened, gallantly jumped through one of the stern ports at imminent risk to himself and succeeded in rescuing one of the lascars as he was sinking. The tide was so strong at the time that it carried them both towards the Indian Marine steamer Navigator, when a boat was lowered from the vessel and both Mr. Baugh and the lascar were rescued in a very exhausted condition. The five men who remained in the boat were slightly injured. One lad, named Shaik Ali Hyder Kajee, aged eighteen years, is missing. A careful search was made for the boy, but without success. It was raining very hard and the sea was very rough at the time.

INDIA, &c., IN PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

Friday, July 24.

The Straits Settlements.—LORD BRASSEY called attention to the increased military contribution required by the Imperial Government from the Colony of the Straits Settlements for the maintenance of the garrison, and suggested that the whole question of imperial defence should be referred to a Royal Commission.

After a few remarks from LORD STANLEY OF ALDERLEY,

LORD KNUXTFORD said that with regard to the increased contribution by the Straits Settlements for the maintenance of the garrison, the question had received due consideration, and the Government felt that in all the circumstances the demand made on the Colony was not unreasonable, in view of the principle that had been recognised as to the part which the Colonies ought to take in regard to their defences.

The EARL OF KIMBERLEY thought the Colony had no special reason to complain, since her Majesty's Government had not held the Colony strictly to the arrangement made at the time of the transfer, for they had carried out works of immense importance at their own expense.

Compulsory Retirement in the Army.—The EARL OF NORTHBROOK called attention to the case of Colonel George Jackson, commanding the 5th Bengal Cavalry, who was for some time on his personal Staff when he was Viceroy of India, and he complained of having been retired without any sufficient reason.

LORD CHELMSFORD said he had gone carefully into the circumstances of the case, and had come to the conclusion that Colonel Jackson had been treated with but scant justice.

VISCOUNT CROSS said Colonel Jackson had been removed from his command because his superior officers considered him inefficient. Therefore he could not interfere with a view to bringing about the colonel's reinstatement in the command, and he might add that the Secretary of State's Council was opposed to any action of the kind being taken.

Burma.—LORD LAMINGTON asked the Secretary of State for India whether the Indian Government had yet decided upon recognising the State of Kyang Kheng as tributary to the Burmese Shan State of Kyang Tung.

VISCOUNT CROSS said there was no doubt this was a very important question. The Government of India at the present moment were considering the matter, and they had agents in the country. They had not yet sent in their reports, but he hoped before next session they would be laid before the House.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Thursday, July 23.

Outrages upon Europeans in China.—SIR W. HARCOURT asked the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, having regard to the outrages recently reported upon European residents at Woosieh and other places in China, whether he would state what measures had been taken for the protection of British residents on the Chinese coast, and what was the present situation in that region.

SIR J. FERGUSSON: In a letter from the British Admiral on the China Station, dated Shanghai, May 23, he stated that he had strengthened the force of British vessels in the river Yangtze Kiang, and that four would be stationed there; in addition there was a German gunboat at Hankow, and three ships of war in the river. Sir John Walsham reported on the 21st ult. that there were nine foreign men-of-war in the river and also a strong naval force at Shanghai on the day following the outbreak of the riot. The Chinese Government appear to be fully alive to the gravity of the situation, and on the first outbreak at Wuhu telegraphed to the Viceroy to take immediate action. In reply to the representations made to them on the part of her Majesty's Government, they have given assurances that a rigorous investigation would be made into the circumstances attending these anti-foreign riots, and that none of the guilty party should go unpunished. Two men had been executed at Wuhu, two condemned to death at Wusuch, and several mandarins degraded. Correspondence on the subject will be laid before Parliament as soon as it can be prepared.

Old Crimean and Indian Soldiers.—MR. CALDWELL asked the Secretary of State for War whether the sum of money to be devoted to the old Crimean and Indian soldiers would also be applicable to the Land Transport Corps who served before the fall of Sebastopol.

MR. E. STANHOPE: Men of the Land Transport Corps who served in the Crimea would have the same claim to generous treatment as other soldiers who served in that campaign.

Friday, July 24.

The North-Western Frontier of India.—In reply to Mr. Bryce, SIR J. GORST said the Secretary of State was not in a position to give any information relating to the expenditure on the North-Western frontier of India, because he did not possess it, and would have to communicate with the Government of India as to how far it was possible to obtain it.

The Rupee Stamp is doomed. As soon as the present issue is exhausted—and this will probably happen towards the end of the year—an entirely new stamp of the same value will be put into circulation. The design, the Bombay Gazette says, is now before the Government for approval. For the death of the old stamp, and its relegation to the collector's album, we have to thank those people in Bombay who so successfully placed in the market a receipt stamp of their own, resembling very closely the genuine article.

THE FRENCH AND SIAM.

THE Temps thus sums up the advices received at Marseilles from Tonquin, in reference to the doings of the French in Siam:—

M. Pavie had returned to Hanoi a few days before the sailing of the French packet. The indefatigable French Consul at Luang Prabang had fulfilled the mission he had spontaneously undertaken with the most brilliant success. Starting from Hanoi on Jan. 2 with MM. Lefèvre-Pontalis and Vacle, on March 31 he reached Chien Hong, on the Mé Kong River, near the Chinese frontier. There he met M. Massic, Acting Vice-Consul at Luang Prabang, and M. Macey, the delegate of a commercial syndicate in the Upper Maos, who had come through Laos with a convoy of goods. After a few days' rest, MM. Massic and Vacle set out on their return journey by the valley of the Nam-Ja, while MM. Pavie and Lefèvre-Pontalis proceeded to China by the right bank of the Mé Kong. On April 23 they parted. M. Lefèvre-Pontalis to return to Hanoi by the Black River, while M. Pavie penetrated into Yunnan, visiting the region close to our frontier, and finally returning to Hanoi via Lao-Kai and the Red River.

LORD LAMINGTON ON THE SITUATION.

Lord Lamington writes to the St. James's Gazette:—Allow me to correct some inaccuracies that occur in a paragraph in this evening's issue of the St. James's Gazette referring to the French advance in Indo-China. It is there stated, "The French crossed the watershed which forms the natural boundary of Tonquin and Siam more than a year ago, and are firmly established in the Nam-Hu Valley, where they are said on good authority to have a thousand European troops." I imagine by the Nam-Hu is meant the Nam-Oo, and in that river system the French have one post called Dien Bien Phu. But this is four days' journey from the Nam-Oo itself, and is situated on a tributary called the Nam Ngooa. The garrison is now reduced to half a company of tirailleurs (Annamite troops), a lieutenant and two sergeants being the only Europeans. So far, however, as the tranquillity of the country is concerned, any troops are superfluous. The Siamese have established a post half-way between Dien Bien Phu and the Nam-Oo, so as to mark the frontier. I can vouch for these statements, but little over four months having passed since I was there.

CHINA AND BRITISH TRADE.

THE following is the official reply to the letter addressed by the Blackburn Chamber of Commerce to Lord Salisbury, printed in our last issue:—

"SIR,—I am directed by the Marquess of Salisbury to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st inst., referring to the imposition of taxes on British goods in Southern China, and the question whether such imposts are in accordance with the treaty engagements of China towards this country.

"I am to inform you in reply that the matter is receiving attention.

"T. H. SANDERSON."

THE PURCHASE OF STORES.

THE Bombay Gazette says:—We publish in another column the resolution of the Government of India on the purchase of Government stores in this country which we recently announced to be in course of preparation. It will be seen that the resolution only partially, and under very rigid conditions, concedes the point which was so ably brought to their notice in the memorial of the manufacturing engineers and iron-founders of India last year. Government express their willingness to modify, "as a tentative measure," the existing orders prohibiting the local purchase of manufactured articles of iron and steel made up from imported materials. They emphatically lay down that the famous resolution of 1883, affirming that "there is no reason why articles manufactured in India should not be obtained locally, even though the raw material necessary to their manufacture might have been originally imported from Europe," has no application to "bars and plates of iron and steel which are made up into bridges, roofs, and other finished engineering structures." It would have been well for their ruling if they had not stated their reasons for it. But that may pass for the present. They have drawn up a schedule of articles, tenders for which, they hold, may, in accordance with the spirit of the resolution of 1883, be invited locally. These are chiefly bridges and roofs of small span required for the buildings and roads and irrigation branches of the Public Works Department, and for Municipalities and District Boards. Railway supplies, so far as can be foreseen, will still be indented for from the Director-General of Stores at the India Office, but there will be a relaxation of the rule in regard to this class of stores in cases which could not have been anticipated, and in which delay would involve loss. If Government had carefully studied the report of the finance committee of 1886 before penning the paragraph which deals with this subject, they would have been forcibly reminded of what great things the Stores Department in London is capable of in the direction of delay—two years, for example, being sometimes taken up in supplying such ordinary stores as iron bolts, nuts, screws, and other things of that class, which any manufacturer would ordinarily have in stock. The guarantees for testing for which Government insist upon the most elaborate precautions being taken will not, we believe, be objected to by any responsible firm in India. The firms, indeed, which have asked to be permitted to tender for the larger descriptions of work have expressed their willingness to submit to any of the usual testings, and there is nothing in the elaborate provision which is to be made to guard against bad workmanship which they need object to, beyond the somewhat too ostentatious proclamation of distrust in Indian iron manufactures which is implied in them. The Government might, we believe, have gone further than they have done, without detriment to public interest, and without raising the suspicion that they were doing anything for the preferential protection of Indian industry. Their somewhat extravagantly solemn disclaimer of a desire to embark on a protective policy is a little superfluous.

THE INDIAN BUREAUCRACY.

MR. S. E. PEAL writes to the Times from Sibsagar in Assam a letter in which he argues that the chief blame for the lamentable fiasco at Manipore lay neither with Mr. QUINTON, nor Mr. GRIMWOOD, nor the Government of India. He attributes it rather to the breakdown of a system of shifting officers about from one district to another without any regard for previous experiences or local requirements. One fact stated by MR. PEAL is a pregnant one. He says: "In this large district we have had a new man about once a year for some time." That is a state of things which certainly seems worth the anxious review of the Indian Government. No one with eyes cleared from official bias or complacency can have consistently watched the tendencies of Indian administration, during the past few years—say, since LORD RIPON blundered through his term—without acquiring an uneasy suspicion that it is declining in force, efficiency, and administrative morale. The trump cards are shuffled about among a diminishing group of civilians, and not, as MR. PEAL suggests, with much discretion. Round men are put into square holes. Promotions and appointments, civil and military, seem in too many instances to be settled rather by influence than by judicious estimate of efficiency. "The power," says MR. PEAL, "is sliding into the hands of the native subordinates who systematically exploit the people." It seems impossible that the shrinking number of men of real capacity to whose hands our present system of selection allots the practical grasp of administration, can overtake the vast and responsible work of checking and controlling the increasing body of inferior uncovenanted and native officials who are most in touch with the people, and are acquiring a large and perhaps a dangerous influence. Exigencies of finance deter the Government from sending out a larger number of picked men from this country, or selecting from its staff of military officers men who have shown capacity for the higher administrative positions. Whether it is that the men we now get for the Civil Service are inferior, or, as MR. PEAL suggests, that a bad system has gradually been introduced by the bureaucracy within a bureaucracy which has the chief control of Indian affairs, the impression produced by current events in India is that instead of increasing in efficiency the administrative element is deteriorating, spite of the fact that conspicuous abilities are to be found here and there among the men chiefly responsible for Indian government. Indeed the time is rapidly approaching when the test of unprejudiced inquiry should be applied to the system of government established since the mutiny.

MR. HALLETT AND MRS. PHIPSON.

ON the principle of giving a hearing to both sides we print another letter from MR. HOLT S. HALLETT on the Indian Factory question, in reply to MRS. DR. PECHEY PHIPSON's letter to the Times which we published last week. The letter received was too long for insertion and we have been obliged to cut out some quotations from reports of medical and official opinions, with the general character of which we have been made familiar in previous correspondence. MR. HALLETT rather gratuitously questions whether MRS. PHIPSON has ever been inside an Indian cotton mill. One of the criticisms which occurs most frequently in hostile comment on MR. HALLETT's propagandism in this matter is that he has never been inside an Indian cotton mill himself. We do not think there is much in the cavil, in any case, and rather wonder that MR. HALLETT should condescend to the argument, especially as MRS. PHIPSON's letter implies that she is practically acquainted with the conditions of the problem she writes about. What MRS. PHIPSON says amounts to this, that given the necessity of doing some labour to earn a livelihood, the mills afford the Indian women a kind of work which, if severe, is less severe than any alternative which presents itself: that already the restrictions imposed by the new Factory Act will lead to a large diminution of female employment in the mills; and that further restrictions—at all events in the existing condition of things—will extinguish it. MR. HALLETT simply says in reply, what he has said over and over again, that official reports show that the work was very wearing, etc. etc. That however is no reply to MRS. PHIPSON. She as a woman pleads that Indian women, who are content to do the work, should not be driven out to harder work or to starvation, in order that MR. HALLETT's refined sense of the fitness of things should be gratified. The plea is good. It is made by a woman who is entitled to at least as much credit for being actuated by humane feeling as MR. HALLETT himself. No one will believe for a moment, whatever suspicions MR. HALLETT may entertain, that MRS. PHIPSON would not be glad to see the conditions of female labour in mills improved; but she, being on the spot and having taken the pains to make herself personally acquainted with the subject, sees what MR. HALLETT and the Lancashire Chamber of Commerce refuse to see, that the improvements must be gradually introduced, and in such a manner as not to ruin altogether an important industry which has grown up in India, or to deprive an increasing number of females of the means of livelihood.

THE Mahomedan Literary Society of Calcutta, which, under the enlightened lead of NAWAB ABDOOL LUTEEF and his coadjutors has done so much to place the relations of the Mahomedans to the Government and their native fellow-citizens on a sounder footing, has issued a memorandum in the vernacular language, entitled "A practical view of the Age of Consent Act, for the benefits of the Mahomedan community in general." It is unhappily too long for reprint in our columns, but we have read it with interest and can commend it as a clear and concise statement of the law and its object, for the information of Mahomedans not acquainted with legal technicalities. The Society says that one of the motives of its issue is to "disabuse the Mahomedans of any suspicion of interference by Government with their Religion that may have been raised in their minds by misrepresentations" which have been widely circulated by "men insufficiently acquainted with the requirements of the Mahomedan Religion." This patriotic effort to remove popular misunderstandings must be highly appreciated by the Indian Government, and should be recognised in this country as a proof, were any wanted, of the increasing enlightenment of the Mahomedan community in India under our rule.

We understand that the delegates appointed to the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography to represent various interests in India and Ceylon have been invited to become honorary members of the Northbrook Club, Whitehall Gardens, during the month of August. We hope that other London clubs connected with India may be able to pay the Indian delegates a similar compliment. Among the latest subscribers to the funds is the Maharaja Bahadur of Tippera and Mr. Dosabhooy Framjee, C.S.I. The former, in writing to the honorary secretary for India, expresses cordial sympathy with the objects of the Congress, and heartily wishes for its complete success. General Sir C. G. Arbutnot, K.C.B., late Commander-in-Chief of the Madras Army, has become a member of the Indian Committee. The Syndicate of the University of Bombay have nominated the following delegates:—Surgeon-General H. Cook, M.D., M.R.C.P., Deputy Surgeon-General H. Vandyke Carter, M.D., and Brigade-Surgeon J. B. Lyon, M.R.C.S. The Colombo Municipal Council have appointed as their delegates the Right Hon. Sir W. H. Gregory, Sir G. W. R. Campbell, and the Hon. S. Grenier.

It has been finally decided by a vote of the Calcutta Corporation to send Dr. Simpson, the health officer, to the Hygienic Congress. Sir Henry Harrison is also deputed to represent the Corporation.

Surgeon-Major Sinclair has been appointed the representative of Burma on the Hygienic Conference, which assembles in London on Sept. 10 next.

There is no foundation whatever, Truth says, for the report that Prince George of Wales is to visit India next winter. Prince George, as I have already announced, is to succeed Commander Milne in the command of the royal yacht Osborne early in November. It is very improbable that there will be any more royal tours through India for a long time to come.

The London correspondent of the Manchester Courier writes:—The Princess of Wales is extremely gratified with the spontaneous response made by the ladies of England to her appeal on behalf of Mrs. Grimwood, the heroine of Manipore. I learn from the officials who have charge of the fund at Marlborough House that when the accounts are made up it will be found that there will be the handsome amount of about 1,500*l.* to hand over to Mrs. Grimwood. The Queen has expressed her intention to contribute.

The first lady up Mont Blanc this year was Miss Maggie King, sister of Mr. H. S. King, M.P., himself one of the most successful of our English Alpine Club mountaineers. She accompanied Mr. Arthur King, who recently arrived in Europe from Bombay. The time made was good, being thirty hours from Chamounix to Chamounix.

General J. S. D. Tulloch writes to the Standard of July 24:—Referring to your editorial in the Standard of this morning, I beg to bring to your notice that the Holy Coat of Treves is not the only garment that has worked miracles. When I was stationed with my regiment at Lahore in the year 1849, a fire broke out in the city, burning down a number of houses, and only stopped when it reached a house which was said to contain a pair of the Prophet Moohumud's pyjamas.

The British and Portuguese Commissioners, Mr. Carey and Senhor Azez, met at Lisbon on July 23 with the object of commencing negotiations for a new treaty between Portugal and British India.

THE VICEROY AT THE SIMLA UNITED SERVICE CLUB.

H.E. THE VICEROY delivered the following speech at the United Service Club on July 9:—

I cannot thank you sufficiently for your kindness in offering me the hospitality of this admirable club. I can assure you that I shall look back to this evening, which I have spent in your company, as one of the most agreeable episodes of my career in this country. The manner in which you received the President's observations when he proposed my health has dispelled from my mind the last shreds of suspicion which crossed it when first I became aware of your intention to invite me to dine with you. You will recollect that about that time rumours were persistently circulated to the effect that my health had broken down, and that I was meditating an early abandonment of the office which I have the honour to hold. I was myself quite unconscious of any such intention, or of any necessity for such a step. In vain, however, did I descend and ascend the steepest khuds in the vicinity of Simla in order to satisfy myself that my lungs and limbs were in a sound condition. In vain did I test my powers of intellectual digestion by experimenting upon the toughest Administration reports. The rumour was repeated from week to week, until at last I was beginning to believe that there might be something in it after all. The suspicion that crossed my thoughts was, therefore, perhaps excusable. The suspicion was, that this entertainment might perhaps have been offered to me with the idea that it was to be a valedictory banquet, and that the baked meats which you were going to spread before me were to be those of my own political funeral. It therefore was a relief to me to find that I need see in this distinguished assembly nothing more formidable than a gathering of my official colleagues and personal friends who desire that I should enjoy for the space of an evening the advantages which this club was able to offer its guests. In thanking the club for the compliment which has been paid to me, I must be allowed to congratulate the members upon the comfort, convenience—I may almost say well-ordered—luxury of this establishment, and upon the excellent results which have been achieved by the process of renovation which it has lately undergone. I was delighted to hear General Badcock associate this great change for the better with the name of my old friend and colleague, Sir George Chesney, whose forward policy in this respect he so pleasantly referred to. It is satisfactory to find that, in this case at all events, his bold adoption of a forward policy produced nothing but good results. Gentlemen, the United Service Club appears to me to be an institution of the greatest public utility and importance. There probably is no place in the world in which a good club is more needed than it is at Simla. The composition of your club is probably unlike that of any other club in existence. I doubt whether there is any club which combines a larger proportion of working bees and a smaller number of drones. I find amongst its members hard-worked officials of different departments of the Government of India. We find officers serving under his Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, we find the Headquarters Staff of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, and to these must be added representatives of that numerous body which finds it necessary to come up to Simla from time to time in order to transact business with the Government of India. Can we doubt that Government will be better served from the fact that so many of those who are working for it are able to find here the pleasantest of society, most comfortable accommodation, and the best of entertainment? Can we doubt that the different elements to which I have just referred will blend more kindly and more usefully in consequence of a preliminary fusing which they undergo in the pleasant social crucible which is provided here? The fact that the Club is composed of such materials gives to the compliment which it has paid me this evening exceptional value and significance. It is a compliment which I regard as enforcing the principle which seems to me we should never be weary of insisting upon, a principle which should be borne in mind by all who are serving the Queen in this country, from the youngest subaltern to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, from the most recently-joined civilian to the veteran who is consigned to premature extinction by the operation of the 'fifty-five-years' rule—I mean the principle that the whole of the services are bound together by membership of a common association, that of those who are helping to maintain the credit of the British race and reputation of the British Empire in this its greatest dependency. That principle is, I can assure you, one of which the Government of India will certainly not be forgetful; and speaking as its head, I will take upon myself to say that there is no obligation which I recognise more readily than that of watching over and protecting the interests of those who are serving us, and of seeing that no injustice is done them whilst they are bearing their share of our burdens. I am sure, Mr. President, that you will not misunderstand my meaning when I add that if it is our desire to support the members of the Services and to watch over their interests with a jealous eye while they are yet with us, I feel it to be not less our duty, when occasion rises, to see to it that no injustice is done to their memory and no unjust aspersion cast upon their reputation when they are no longer able to defend themselves. For myself, gentlemen, as you have been good enough to drink to my health, let me say, what I believe every Viceroy would tell you, as I do, that the strain of his official responsibilities would be intolerable but for the consciousness that he can depend upon the loyal support of the Services, and feeling that he is surrounded by a body of men whose best energies are at the disposal of his Government.

Rapid Travelling.—Among the records of rapid travelling in mountainous countries must be placed the journey made in June by Lieutenant Manners-Smith, Staff Corps, in rejoining his appointment as commandant of infantry at Gilgit. On news being received of the threatened disturbance at Chalt, he took only three days to reach that outpost from the Wular Lake, having to cross more than one very high pass and to follow the difficult route by way of Astor and Bunji. The journey, some sixty miles a day, was made on such ponies as could be got along the road.

High Court Judges' Pensions.—The new rules regulating the pensions of judges hereafter to be appointed to High Courts of Judicature in India have been made by the Secretary of State. Under the powers conferred on him by an Act of Parliament, at present a judge is entitled to a pension of 1,200*l.* sterling after eleven years and a half actual service on the bench, in which acting service is counted, but furlough is excluded. Henceforth this pension is only to be given after fourteen and a half years' actual service, but a judge is to be allowed to retire on 800*l.* after ten years, and on 1,000*l.* after twelve and a half years of actual service. The new terms will probably suit young barristers, especially those appointed directly from England, and also those at the Indian Bar who have accumulated a fair private income early in life; but in the case of members of the Civil Service the maxim beati possidentes will probably apply. At present they remain, as a rule, on the bench until they attain the higher pension; and unless exchange goes up so as to enable larger savings to be put by, it is as likely as not that their juniors will have to wait the additional three and a half years, and so promotion in the judicial line will be retarded.

MIRANZAI EXPEDITION.

MILITARY DESPATCHES.

THE despatches of Brigadier-General Sir William Lockhart, having reference to the two Miranzai Expeditions, are published in the Gazette of India. After detailing the object of the second Expedition, the Governor-General in Council, in concluding his remarks, says that he heartily concurs with the Commander-in-Chief in his high appreciation of the vigour and ability with which Sir William Lockhart conducted these operations, and of the gallantry of the troops under his command.

In General Lockhart's despatch the services of the commanders of columns and of staff and regimental officers are brought to notice. Mention is also made of several warrant officers, Native officers, non-commissioned officers, and men. His Excellency congratulates them on the honourable distinction they have thus received. His Excellency the Viceroy is glad to have the opportunity of expressing his sense of the valuable services rendered by Mr. R. Udny, the Commissioner of the Peshawar Division, and by Major H. Leigh, Political Officer, assisted by other officers of the British and Native Army, alluded to by General Lockhart. His Excellency is pleased to notice the efficiency of the Commissariat and Transport Departments, both in field and in preparation and concentration of force, when many difficulties of time and distance had to be overcome, in furnishing supplies and transport. That these difficulties were successfully surmounted is greatly due to the power of organisation displayed by Lieutenant-Colonel R. Patch, the Commissary-General of the Western Circle, and by the officers working under him. It is also a source of satisfaction to his Excellency to observe that Colonel Lockhart has commended in appreciative terms the services of the Public Works, the Telegraph, and Postal Departments.

The Governor-General desires, in conclusion of this General Order, to express his sincere acknowledgments to the head of the Government of the Punjab, Sir James Lyall, K.C.S.I., and to the civil officers concerned, for the assistance given by them, and for the readiness with which the resources of the Provincial Administration were placed at the disposal of the military authorities, not only in this campaign, but in other expeditions which have been undertaken within the last three years on the frontiers of that Province.

Sir Frederick Roberts considers that much credit is due to Brigadier-General Sir William Lockhart for the skill and energy displayed in the conduct of the operations, and to all ranks under his command for the soldierlike spirit with which they encountered hardships of no ordinary kind.

In the first expedition General Lockhart mentions the name of Major Leigh, Political Officer; Major C. Egerton, Assistant Adjutant-General; Lieut.-Colonel A. Turner, commanding Second Column; Colonel A. Bruce, commanding First Column; Lieut.-Colonel C. Brownlow, commanding Third Column; and Brigade-Surgeon R. Harvey, Principal Medical Officer.

In the second expedition General Lockhart mentions Major C. C. Egerton, Major V. Jenkins, who succeeded Major Egerton, who was wounded, Captain D. Hickman, Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General, Captain A. Mason, Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General, Lieutenant-Colonel E. Lantour, Major R. A. J. D. Cunningham, R.A., Major W. Shone, R.E., Lieutenant H. Kays, Signaller, Brigade-Surgeon R. Harvey, Captain E. Sandys, Chief Commissariat Officer, Captain H. Wharry, Transport Officer, Captain R. Mackenzie, R.E., Lieutenant the Hon. C. Bruce, Lieutenant Brazier Creagh, Captain O. Nugent, Colonel M. Sym, Lieutenant-Colonel A. Turner, Lieutenant-Colonel C. Brownlow, Colonel W. Biscoe, Lieutenant-Colonel W. Vouden, V.C., Messrs. O. Dunne, Telegraph Department, A. Bean, Postal Department, and W. Macdonald, Public Works Department.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTE.

In reviewing the record of police administration in Burma last year, Sir Alexander Mackenzie referred in emphatic terms to the general want of interest displayed by Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners in this branch of their work. The Chief Commissioner thought it advisable in fact to point out that the supervision of the police in their several districts was a charge which devolved upon them in virtue of their office; and could no more be neglected than their functions as Magistrates or Revenue officers. Sir Alexander Mackenzie has now followed up this lecture with an equally blunt definition of the relative position of Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners on the one hand and the officers of the Public Works Department on the other. It must, he says, be understood—"once for all"—that the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner are not merely Revenue and Magisterial functionaries, members of a separate and limited Civil Department; but that they are local representatives of the Provincial Administration, and as such are responsible for all branches of civil work within their respective jurisdictions. There is far too much tendency towards "departmentalism" in Burma, not only in connection with public works, but with other branches of the administration. There should be no such thing, the Chief Commissioner points out, as an "independent department." Executive Engineers, for instance, stand to the District Officer in practically the same relation as the District Inspector of Police, the Deputy Conservator of Forests, or the Civil Surgeon. All are professionally under the control of the superior officers of their departments, but executively and locally subordinate to the District Officer. There is little chance, after this plain statement, says the Englishman, that any of the officers in question will forget his relative position during Sir Alexander Mackenzie's tenure of office. Readers of the Chief Commissioner's resolution may, however, question whether the subject might not have been handled a trifle more delicately.

THE INDIAN HOME ACCOUNTS.

THE Times of India says:—Blue Books, as a rule, do not afford interesting reading, but the annual statement of the Indian Home Accounts has a perennial fascination. During the past decade we have read them and criticised them year by year, but time does not wither nor custom stale our continued interest in the problems they present to the mind. In an ever-changing world it is refreshing to find some things which do not alter. All the heavy charges in the Home Accounts seem to be permanent. Whether it be fair weather or foul with the Indian Exchequer, whether we are paying for a war or a famine, or congratulating ourselves on a surplus, the great Home Bill still continues to drain the Treasury. Men may come and men may go, but the Secretary of State for India always seems to be playing an Imperial game of hide-and-seek with drafts for a million sterling. Bismarck's abdicator, institutions perish, but the Store Department of the India Offices continues to spend its hundreds of thousands of pounds. The cost of the staff of this Department alone amounts to more than 30,000*l.* per annum. Professor Fawcett always held a strong opinion that the whole matter of sending out stores to India should be investigated by a strong and able Commission, but he never was sufficiently powerful to have it appointed. It is difficult to understand why the Supreme Government and the Local Governments should not have the power of ordering out their own stores from home, or, what would be preferable, giving the contract to local firms to procure them. The responsibility of finding ways and means of expenditure would make them thrifty and desirous of buying in the cheapest market. The Store Department in the India Office has no inducement to be economical, for thrift is only practised when the obligation of finding the resources is thrown on the expending power. The waste of time which means loss of money caused by having to order stores through the India Office is enormous. The delay in the completion of every large undertaking is, we are always told, due to some of the material not having arrived from the India Office. It is a matter like this in which technical knowledge of the law and people is not required, but only broad principles are involved, that members of the House of Commons might do real service to India. Mr. Schwan is a business man, and instead of slandering Englishmen might be more profitably employed in investigating the Store Department of the India Office. An energetic M.P. might produce a most interesting and useful discussion if he inquired into the worth and fighting capacity of her Majesty's ships employed in the Indian seas, for maintaining which the Indian taxpayer paid 44,789*l.* in 1889-90. It would also be interesting to ascertain whether the recommendations of the Director of Marine have been fully investigated as the Finance Committee suggested. Captain Hext believed that if two of her Majesty's vessels in the Persian Gulf were dispensed with, and only one retained, the place of other two being taken by Indian Marine vessels, one-third of the cost of the Gulf service, or 1,60,000*rs.*, could be saved. Captain Hext said:—"I feel convinced that the work will be more effectually carried out by these two vessels than it is at present, and I am able to speak with some authority on this question, as I was for a considerable period senior naval officer in the Persian Gulf." The extravagant cost of the Indian transport service, consisting of five troopships—the Crocodile, Euphrates, Fumna, Malabar, and Serapis—has been frequently commented upon by us, and all we said on the subject was fully endorsed by the Finance Committee. The cost of the troop service in 1889-90 amounted to the large figure of 218,997*l.*

It is sad to think that a scandal is allowed to exist until circumstances arise which render it impossible for it to survive any longer. It is not the Finance Committee nor public criticism which promises to bring about a reform in the transport service, but paucity of men. That abuses die hard seems to be the law of nature. Circumstances may arise which will render it impossible to continue the injustice and folly of making India pay 12,000*l.* for the mission to the Court of Persia, and of allowing the Indian Government to have no representative on that mission. A committee of the House of Commons, so far back as 1870, recommended that the members of the Persian mission generally should be selected by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs from her Majesty's Indian service. This reform has been vigorously supported by Sir Henry Rawlinson, but though he speaks with the voice of experience and knowledge, it has been the voice of one crying in the wilderness. It is a reform which affects the welfare of the Empire, but it injures the patronage of the Foreign Service. The Secretaries and Attachés regard Persia as a land of exile, and return as soon as possible to the fleshpots of Paris and Vienna. The result is there is no one on the staff of the Embassy who knows Persian or the records, and there is a want of continuity in our Persian policy. The evil is a grave one, and there is no cure for it, unless at least half the members of the Persian Mission are selected from the Indian service. It is also a scandal that India should contribute 15,000*l.* for her Majesty's establishments in China, and that the colonies who are more interested in the matter should not contribute a farthing. But it is not easy to levy a contribution from a colony. They refuse to contribute towards the expenses of the Colonial Office. It would be interesting and instructive to compare the cost of the Colonial Office and the India Office. The statement of the Home Accounts informs us that "salaries, wages, and allowances" amounted to 147,688*l.* In the Correspondence Department there are six secretaries at 1,200*l.* each. "One who is also Government Director of Indian Railway Companies receives 1,800*l.*, and one receives 1,400*l.*, which salaries are personal to the present holders; one secretary also receives Indian military board pay at 25*s.* a day and an additional annuity of 327*l.*; one an Indian judicial pension of 1,200*l.* a year; and two Indian Civil Service annuities of 1,000*l.* each." There is little doubt that these gentlemen would have accepted these posts if the condition had been made that they should only draw half their pensions during the time they were serving at the India Office. A considerable saving might be made in the pension charges, if all the posts in the India Office were thrown open to retired Indians, on the condition that they forfeited half their pensions during the time they were serving there. It is sad, too, to find that the postage of despatches to and from India cost the large sum of 3,864*l.* and the cost of telegrams to India amounted to 3,254*l.* If the number of telegrams and despatches were reduced by half it would greatly conduce to the better government of the Empire.

There is one satisfying item in the Home Accounts. It is gratifying to find that the Indian Engineering College at Cooper's Hill has begun to pay its way. The expenditure amounted to 22,062*l.*, and the receipts to 22,442*l.*, leaving a small balance of 378*l.* This balance, we trust, will increase year by year. The institution grows in favour with those who intend to follow the engineering profession, but have no intention to enter into the service of the Government of India. At first the College was regarded with suspicion and jealousy by the profession, but this feeling is rapidly expiring. Men are seeing that besides the old apprentice training it is necessary that engineers should have a wide and thorough scientific education, and this they can get at Cooper's Hill. It is a matter of congratulation that there is no foundation in a recent rumour that the College is about to be closed, for among the many good gifts which the strong brain and untiring energies of General Chesney bestowed upon India Cooper's Hill is not the least valuable. It has accomplished the main and important object for which it was founded, which was to give India not only civil engineers, but a body of gentlemen who had received a liberal education, and were charged with the spirit of esprit de corps so necessary to a service in India. So far from any desire to see Cooper's Hill abolished, we should like to see it made the college for an Imperial service for India. Within its walls should be trained men for the Civil Service, for the Public Works, for the Forest, and for the Telegraph Departments. India would then have one service united by the strong bond of a common seat of learning and fellowship in youth.

COMMERCIAL.

CALCUTTA, July 6.

THE Directors of the Bank of Bengal, at their meeting held on Thursday morning, made no change in the rate of interest, the official minimum remaining unaltered at 3 per cent.

The statement of the Bank for the week ending 30th ult. shows the following changes in figures:—

LIABILITIES.
Treasury Balance at Head
Office	Rs. 93,45,722	Decrease	Rs. 11,59,807
Do. at Branches	1,81,83,367	Increase	1,81,264
Other Deposits	7,06,58,144	Increase	11,17,632
Post Bills	4,67,364	Increase	6,685
ASSETS.
Bank's Investments	Rs. 2,13,48,035	Increase	Rs. 3,80,343
Loans	72,47,584	Decrease	7,65,416
Accounts of Credits	69,07,459	Increase	3,81,477
Mercantile Bills	2,12,63,766	Decrease	23,19,209
Cash at Head Office	3,83,61,513	Increase	36,00,467
Do. at Branches	2,65,02,997	Decrease	11,00,506

The analysis of the above figures shows a further decrease of over 38½ lacs in the public demand, made up as follows:—By an increase of over 11½ lacs in "Other Deposits," together with a decrease of 7½ lacs in "Loans," and nearly 23½ lacs in "Mercantile Bills," minus an increase of over 3½ lacs in "Accounts of Credits."

The Treasury balance at head office stands reduced by nearly 11½ lacs, while at the branches it is increased by over 1½ lacs. The Bank's investments were increased by over 3½ lacs.

The final result of these changes is an increase of 36 lacs in cash at head office, while there is a decrease of 11 lacs at the branches, making the exact total 6,48,64,511 rs., equal to 63.9 per cent. of the current liabilities of the Bank, against a proportion of 61.5 per cent. of last week.

EXCHANGE.—On France for commercial bills at six months' sight is 1.89½ frs., and 1.88 frs. for three months' sight, while on Mauritius private bills at sixty days' sight are quoted at 2.7/16 per cent. discount. The rate for thirty days' sight mercantile bills in Hong Kong is 220 rs., and on Singapore 224 rs. On Bombay telegraphic transfer is quoted par, and sixty days' sight Bank drafts are at ½ per cent. discount.

TEA.—At usual auction on July 2, 9,000 chests were sold. Fine kinds were again wanted, and sold well. Common and ordinary Souchong were lower. Small leaf packages were taken in large quantities for Bombay.

JUTE.—Inactivity has again characterised this market, some sales of old crop good first native marks at 22.8 rs. being the only transactions. The principal balers still refused to sell new crop, but the home markets are indifferent, and do not respond to offers on the basis of 24.8 rs. This state of enforced idleness does not seem likely to end until the supply of new jute becomes larger.

GUNNIES.—The market shows little or no change, and business is still on a small scale.

HESSIANS are quiet but steady. A few Bran bags found buyers at 18 rs. for August-October, and there are rumours of a sale of 8 oz. 40-inch cloth for next year at 6-4 rs.

JOINT-STOCK SHARES.—Owing to the change in the weather work has been carried on full time, but this has had no visible effect in the amount of business put through, which continues disappointingly small. With the exception of a pretty smart inquiry on July 3, to complete investment orders, so as to secure the past half-year's dividend, the rest of the week has been nearly a blank.

JUTE MILL SCRIP has firmed up, and, though no material advance has to be recorded, the tone of the market is much more satisfactory.

In gold shares, transactions have been confined to Sonapets. On the strength of some excellent specimens of quartz having come down from a portion of the property now being prospected, shares advanced 2 a., but the market lacks sustaining power; the upward movement was short-lived, and the stock gradually weakened again.

In investment stock landing and shippings have issued a very satisfactory report, and have been done at a small advance, and continue in favour, but Bengal paper mill, the only other stock dealt in, shows unmistakable signs of weakness. New Beerbhoom coal shares, too, are considered too high for the present return given by the company, and will probably see lower figures.

There is no change in the position of tea, though prices realised lately have been a trifle better.

BANK OF BENGAL.

Rate of Interest for Demand Loans 3 per cent.

BOMBAY, July 9.

Business has continued to be slow and tame in all its branches, both export and local buyers of cotton having been quite absent from the market on some days; while the inquiry for wheat and seeds has been very limited and the tone of both markets quiet, when not actually dull. Exchange has fluctuated but slightly, and rates are on about a level with those which ruled a week ago. Government paper has moved downwards upon the whole, and Four per Cents. are 3-16 lower than they were. There has been but a slight demand in the freight market, and the present reduced rates are barely maintained, although there is very little tonnage expected. The fall of rain in some important districts has led to rather more activity in the forward branch of import business, but otherwise the position is unchanged.

MONEY.—A falling-off in the Presidency Bank's cash balance of 20½ lacs, shown by the statement of affairs issued on July 6, following a diminution of 9½ lacs in the previous week, and reducing the balance to some 263½ lacs, might seem to indicate rather less ease in the money market than other circumstances point to in the general slackness of trade, and a more assured feeling as to the future, in view of the abundant rain which has generally fallen. But the figures given in the return showed that, while the continued contraction of the trade demand for money was evidenced by an increase of 7½ lacs in Private Deposits, and a decrease of 5½ lacs in Bills Discounted, the item which so considerably affected the balance was that of Loans, which, owing to special requirements, had become augmented by 28 lacs. The Cash Balance was also reduced by some 4½ lacs, more having been put into Government Paper, and by a sensible decrease in Public Deposits. No change in rates has been made, and 3 per cent. remains the bank's minimum rate.

Imports.—PIECE-GOODS.—Accounts regarding the progress of the S.-W. monsoon received from several of the centres of distribution of staple grey goods are more favourable than they were, and dealers have, in some cases, begun to send home orders for fresh purchases, but the ready market may be called unaltered at last quotations, and stocks are increasing. There has been no change in bleached, Turkey red, dyed, and printed goods, a small business having been done at current rates. Local goods are very nearly unsaleable, and the transactions in them do not sum up more than 800 bales. The clearances of imported goods are estimated at only 1,800 packages.

YARNS.—The inquiry for imported twist has been slack, and only a small business has been reported in a quiet market; but prices may be called unchanged. Sales of Bombay spinnings at Hong Kong for the fortnight are returned as 8,000 bales, and at the three ports at 10,000 to 12,000 bales, with exchange at 22½ rs. Spinners here have made some consignments to induce business and have in some cases succeeded, China buyers now showing some disposition to take up small lots at the reduced rates. The market closes quiet, with very little doing.

METAL.—A moderate business has been done in copper in a quiet market, and on the basis of previous rates. Yellow metal has been steady at former quotations, and has also been taken to a moderate extent. In iron only a small business has been passing, but prices of all descriptions are unchanged.

COAL has been dull, and rates continue weak and drooping both for ready and near coal.

Exports.—COTTON.—A moderate business was done in this staple, though entirely for local spinners' account, on last mail day on the basis of previous rates; but since then the market has been dull, with little or no inquiry for export or from the mills, and at the beginning of the week prices gave way 1 r. to 2 rs. per candy in Oomras, Westerns, and Good Dharwar. The total purchases for local consumption since the date of last report do not sum up more than 3,500 bales, consisting chiefly of Oomra kinds, Dhollera and Bhownugger, Compta Ginned, and Dharwar; while exporters have taken only about 1,500 bales of Oomras, Bengals, and Compta Ginned. The market closes quiet, with quotations 1 r. to 2 rs. higher for Belatee, and lower to the same extent for other descriptions.

The receipts of the present season's crop during the week have been 11,000 bales, compared with 18,500 bales to hand in the previous week, and 7,900 bales received in the corresponding week last year; and the deficiency in the total arrivals compared with last season's is now 217,600 bales.

WHEAT.—Only a small amount of business has been transacted in this market, and the feeling has been quiet or dull; but prices were maintained at the previous level until the 8th, when quotations were put down ½ a. per cwt. all round.

SEEDS have not been in much request for export on any day, and generally there has been only a small business passing in a quiet market. Linseed has advanced ½ a. per cwt., say to 6-7-6 rs. to 6-10-6 rs. per cwt., but other descriptions are unchanged in value.

ANNUAL BONUS POLICIES. THEIR SPECIAL ADVANTAGES.

I.—Economy of Premium at Outset of Assurance.

The Premium charged by the "UNIVERSAL" on the Policy being effected, and irrespective of reduction by Cash Bonus annually after six payments, has always been from 5 to 10 per cent. lower than the average scale of Premiums charged by such other Life Offices that divide Bonuses every year. The rates of the "UNIVERSAL" are also more economical than those of the average of Offices declaring Bonuses only once every five years.

II.—Low Rates of Premium Reduced by Annual Cash Bonus.

The practice of an Annual Division of Profits has long been considered by leading authorities to be the most just and regular that can be adopted. Its success in the case of the "UNIVERSAL" has been shown in more than half a century's experience, by enabling returns of Premium to be made to the assured averaging upwards of 45 per cent. of the original rates charged, thus practically reducing the average outlay for the Policy to 55 per cent., or 11s. in the pound, of the contract rates stipulated to be paid.

III.—Large Reversionary Bonuses Annually Added.

The sum allotted to each Policy at the yearly Division of Profits may be applied either in reduction of the current year's Premium, or in annual augmentation of the amount assured, by the addition to the Policy of such Reversionary Bonus as each year's return of premium will assure as a Single Premium at the then age.

GENERAL NEWS.

By the arrival of the present mail, via Brindisi, we are placed in possession of advices and gazettes from Calcutta to July 14; Madras, July 15; Bombay, July 17.

The Viceroy was confined to his room suffering from influenza and neuralgia, but was better, and progressing favourably.

A statement has gone the round of the press, writes an Indian contemporary, that the Viceroy, in replying to an invitation from the Nizam, expressed his intention of paying an early visit to Hyderabad. As a matter of fact the invitation was courteously acknowledged, but with his autumn tour not yet mapped out, his Excellency could not of course say whether he would visit the Nizam's dominions this year or next.

H.E. Lord Harris's eleven defeated a team of cricketers selected from the Worcestershire and Lancashire Regiments at Poona on July 13, his Excellency making top score.

An Ootacamund telegram of July 16 says:—Lord Wenlock leaves Ootacamund shortly on a tour to North Arcot, Chingleput, Coimbatore, and Cuddapah districts for the purpose of visiting the distressed portions therein.

The Governor of Madras, says a Times telegram, will cut the first sod of the Nilgiri Railway on Aug. 3, and he then proceeds on a tour to the districts which are in distress and are threatened by famine.

Lord Wenlock, says another telegram, has abandoned his projected visit to Poona, but the local Press censures him severely for having summoned a Famine Commissioner from his pressing duties in the plains to hold a conference with the Government at Ootacamund; and it suggests that in the circumstances the Government ought to have sacrificed its own ease and met the Commissioner at Madras.

All connected with the Bombay University, says the Bombay Gazette, will be glad to learn that the Hon. Mr. Justice Jardine has been elected Dean of Arts on the nomination of Mr. Justice Telang and Principal Oxenham.

Mr. Lennard and Mr. Beech, who recently arrived at Gilgit from Kashgar, had excellent shooting on the Tag-dambash Pamir. They got seventeen ovis poli and four ibex. The sportsmen had no idea that anxiety had been aroused as to their fate owing to rumours in Hunza. They met with no extraordinary adventures in crossing the Hindoo Koosh into Chitral.

A suitable allowance is to be made to the relatives of Signaller O'Brien, who was killed with Mr. Melville at Myangkhang.

Frequent reference has been made to the absence of artillery with Mr. Quinton's escort. It has come to light that when the small force was at Kohima, Lieutenant Chatterton suggested taking the two 7-pounders which always were stationed there. Colonel Skene consulted Mr. Quinton, and it was unfortunately decided not to take the artillery.

General Collett shortly after his arrival at Imphal wrote a report dealing with the operations controlled by Colonel Skene and the events of March 24 from the point of view of an impartial military critic. It is suggested this report be made public.

The Government of India, in the Military Department, have under consideration the report of the Military Court of Inquiry into the Manipore disaster, together with the Commander-in-Chief's opinions thereon.

The Secretary of State has expressed his satisfaction at the progress made in organising the Imperial Service troops for Native States during the past year, especially in the Punjab States, Cashmere, and Rajpootana.

The winner of the Simla United Service Institution's gold medal for the annual essay competition is Lieutenant Cardew, 10th Bengal Lancers. The subject of the essay was "Recruiting for the Native Army."

The directors of the Himalaya Bank (Limited), Mussoorie, have decided to go into liquidation.

In the months of April and May India imported gold to the value of 82 lacs, the export being only 17 lacs, thus leaving a balance in the country of 65 lacs. With silver also there was a large overplus, the imports being 311 lacs and the exports 20 lacs. During the two months 156 lacs of rupees were coined.

According to Mr. Finucane's report on the jute crop, the total estimated area sown this year is 1,798,357 acres, as against 2,104,070 last year. The estimated outturn is a 12-anna crop against a 16-anna one in 1890.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs on Aug. 2:—

During the past week there has been a happy change in the weather in Northern India. When hope seemed almost at an end, a cyclonic storm from the Bay of Bengal brought a plentiful supply of rain to the districts threatened with famine, and although it is too soon yet to say that all the danger has disappeared, there is at least no longer any immediate cause for anxiety. The fodder famine in Rajpootana has ceased, and there is now a fair prospect of good harvests throughout the Punjab and the North-West Provinces. Relief works will still be required in some districts of the Northern Punjab, but this necessity has arisen from the damage done by the locusts, and not by the deficient rainfall.

In the Bombay Presidency the monsoon has set in with a force which has more than made up for its long delay. Heavy floods are reported, causing in some places loss of life and injury to property.

and seriously interrupting traffic on the Bombay and Baroda Railway. In the native State of Bhownuggur there is said to have been an extraordinary rainfall of 15 inches in twenty-four hours. Reports from Madras, however, are still unsatisfactory, especially as regards the east coast districts.

Some misconception appears to prevail on the subject of the rules which have been recently issued regarding the publication of newspapers in places administered by the Indian Government but not forming part of British India. These rules are not intended to interfere with the prerogatives of native princes. They apply to places like Bangalore, Secunderabad, &c., which are British cantonments situated within native States, but administered by British magistrates. These places have been the favourite resorts of some of the worst types of native journalists—men who would be very summarily dealt with if they ventured to publish their seditious prints in native territory proper. It is to be hoped that the new rules will have the effect of checking their licence, but, indeed, the whole subject of the vernacular Press is one calling for the speedy attention of the Government. There has been lately a marked increase of violence in the tone of many journals in their deliberate misrepresentation of the acts of the Government, and an avowed sympathy with its enemies, which cannot fail to have mischievous consequences unless an example be promptly made.

The new cantonments at Seri in the Black Mountain district are nearly finished; the troops remaining on the spot are to move into them shortly. The buildings are of a substantial character, which seems to show that there is no thought of an early evacuation; and as the removal of the troops would certainly be followed by an immediate reappearance of the turbulent chief Hashim Khan, there is no doubt that the Government is wise in keeping its hold on the district till peace is assured.

Sir E. C. Buck, Secretary to the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department, is about to visit Calcutta in order to confer with the trustee of the Indian Museum here regarding the collection of economic products for the Indian Section of the Imperial Institute. Dr. Thurston, of the Madras Museum, will be transferred to Calcutta to direct the arrangements for making the collection. It is expected that in the course of a few years a more complete collection of the economic products of India will be brought together in the Imperial Institute than has yet been made for any country.

The practical work of the Leprosy Commission is virtually completed, and the draft report for the Government of India is in proof, but much remains to be done in correcting the same and in preparing plates, maps, and statistics. The report is so full that it will probably not be ready before the beginning of September. It is understood that the Commission has arrived at a unanimous decision on the two main questions—namely, the contagiousness and hereditary transmission of the disease; but the conclusion of the Commission will not be known till the report is published by the National Fund in England. The Commission will also propose a practical scheme for diminishing leprosy in India, and it is believed that the Government will not be disinclined to legislate in accordance with its suggestions.

The following telegram from the Governor of Madras has been received at the India Office:—"Reports for the week ending July 25 show that rainfall was general; good in Kistna, Godavari, Nilgiris, South Canara, and Malabar, and in parts of Vizagapatam and Kurnool; fair in parts of Ganjam, Nellore, Bellary, and Coimbatore; slight elsewhere. Rainfall up to date much below the average in all districts except Nilgiris, and deficiency of rain is greatly retarding agricultural operations in several districts, notably in Nellore, Chingleput, North Arcot, South Arcot, and Salem districts; considerably relieved in Royachoti taluk of Cuddapah and in parts of Coimbatore by recent rains, but no signs of improvement in Chingleput and North Arcot. Ample work provided for all needing it at present."

We have received the following telegram from the India Office for publication:—"From Viceroy, July 28. There is an improvement in agricultural prospects and development of monsoon season. There has been good general rainfall throughout the country, except in part of Madras, Carnatic, and Upper Burma, in consequence of which there is no present cause of anxiety in Northern India. Strong monsoon blowing west coast. More rain imminent in Punjab and Rajpootana, where fodder famine has been arrested by rain. Crop operations in Northern India generally progressing satisfactorily, and there is no present cause for anxiety in North-West Provinces and Oude. Rain fell last week in Coimbatore region, slightly improving the condition of affected districts, but has ceased. With development of monsoon in Northern India locust plague abating. In Northern India prices abating where there has been rain, but information incomplete."

The following telegram from the Viceroy, dated July 31, has been received at the India Office:—"Weekly reports confirm improvement in prospects in Northern India cabled on Tuesday. Prices fluctuating. There is an improvement in Chingleput, North Arcot, and Upper Burma."

The Bank of China, Japan, and the Straits, 31 Lombard Street, and Messrs. André, Mendel, and Co., 1 Whittington Avenue, are authorised to receive subscriptions for an issue of 185,000l. Six per Cent. Prior Lien Mortgage bonds of the Manila Railway Company (Limited), being part of a total authorised issue of 285,000l., to be secured by a mortgage deed giving a first charge on the railway, in priority to the whole of the existing debenture and share capital. It is only contemplated to issue the balance of 100,000l. if and when required. The bonds are redeemable by fifteen annual drawings at 105%, commencing on July 1, 1906, or, at the option of the company, at any time after that date at 110%. The price of issue is 98 per cent. It is stated that the construction of the railway is fast approaching completion, and the first portion of the line, about twenty-seven miles, was opened for traffic on March 25 last. The receipts from that date to June 30 last were 7,392l., and show a surplus over working expenses.

GUP.

THE correspondence from Simla shows that although the places full and all the elements for a lively season exist, it is turning out a particularly dull one. No one says why.

A correspondent writes to the Times of India from Poona July 10:—A very large number of ladies and gentlemen—over 350 in all—responded to the invitation to attend her Excellency Lady Harris's "At Home" at Ganeshkhind last night. The guests commenced to arrive shortly before 9.30 P.M., and in a very short while the handsome and spacious ball-room of Government House was well filled with a large and brilliant assemblage, among whom were several native ladies and gentlemen. Captain the Hon. St. Leger Jervis, A.D.C., and Captain Cox, A.D.C., were all attention to the guests, and the arrangements being, as they always are on such occasions, perfect, everything went merrily from start to finish. Captain J. Fowle, A.D.C., was unfortunately unable to attend, not having yet quite recovered from the effects of the fever with which he had been laid up for several days. The Government House party—including his Excellency the Governor and Lady Harris, the Hon. Sir Raymond and the Misses West (who are, for the present, guests at Government House), Miss Croft, Colonel F. Rhodes, D.S.O., military secretary; Mr. S. W. Edgerley, C.S., private secretary; and Dr. Martin, M.B.—entered the ball-room precisely at 9.30 P.M., and extended a warm and hearty welcome to all who had attended. The band, which was stationed in the gallery, immediately afterwards played the first valse on the programme, "The Rose Queen," and the list of sixteen dances was gone through in rapid succession. Both Lord and Lady Harris danced a good deal, and everybody appeared to enjoy himself or herself right well. The floor was simply perfect, and with the excellent music of the Governor's band, under the direction of Herr Zimmer, there was much enjoyment in dancing. There was ample sitting-out accommodation, the conservatory at the south end of the ballroom, which was reached through a covered-in passage, looked remarkably pretty. Several of the ladies wore exquisite dresses, and general opinion appeared to vote Miss Croft and Miss Jervois the belles of the ball. Her Excellency also was very prettily dressed, and so also were Mrs. Moore and the Misses West and Miss Howard. The Tempete went off very well, both their Excellencies taking part in it, as also did his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, who is as full of energy as he has ever been. At midnight there was a supper, and it is needless to say that it was of a very recherché description.

All Poona, writes the Pioneer correspondent, loses a friend in Padre Horne, who is off home on leave. He is most popular with all classes of society, especially with the soldiers, and the good work which both he and Mrs. Horne, who went home in the spring, have done amongst the poor and the sick, during their residence in this station, will long be gratefully remembered. We are, I am glad to say, getting another great favourite, Mr. Beck, in Mr. Horne's place. The Lord Bishop of Bombay is staying at Kirkee, and is to be seen daily on the Links. He is an enthusiast, and also a very good performer—the two things don't always go together—at golf, and I am told that he preached a sermon about it the other day. Talking of golf, as I was riding round by Ghorpuri the other morning before breakfast, I saw a procession of three couples, at about a hundred yards interval between each pair, halted between the bridge and the hospital. Two other couples were waiting at the Tee for "line clear," and a stout, middle-aged gentleman, in a brown hat, was holding a lengthy argument with his partner, on the putting green of the first hole, as to whether he had got there in five strokes or in six. The pairs in rear were indulging in a modified form of the Communion Service. I don't know much about the game myself; but, as a matter of common sense, I should think that such discussions might be carried on equally well after "holing out." The language is, I am told, much improved by the introduction of the clerical element into the ranks of the players.

In searching through his office records, Principal Oxenham has had the good luck to come across the original correspondence relating to the portrait of Elphinstone which now hangs on the walls of Elphinstone College. The money for the portrait was subscribed, it seems, by the Native Education Society, who, in January 1826, forwarded to London 2,600 new Spanish dollars (526l. 4s. 1d.) as a retaining fee, with a strong desire that the commission should be entrusted to Sir Thomas Lawrence, the President of the Academy. "The occasion," wrote the Society, "for which he is to be now called on is a very rare one, prompted at the instance of princes, noblemen, and gentlemen of a very distant country, to which, moreover, there may not yet have been transmitted a single monument of that painter's genius." In reply Sir Thomas Lawrence stated that his usual fee was 750 guineas, half to be paid in advance, and after thanking the Society for the great honour done, that he could, he said, "not be indifferent to the pleasure of extending the credit of my comparative talent in a country to which this act of voluntary respect gives additional honour, and to whose fidelity England is indebted for so vast a portion of its greatness." Before the portrait was finished Sir Thomas Lawrence died; but the face was fortunately complete, and the unfinished portion was entrusted to one of his favourite pupils named Simpson. The Native Education Society, in acknowledging the receipt of the portrait on July 23, 1831, declare that "the execution exceeds their highest expectation." Three years later Elphinstone was informed of the establishment of Elphinstone College by the natives of the Bombay Presidency, "to mark, in a way the most acceptable to you, and at the same time more creditable to themselves, the esteem and admiration which they felt for your character."

A correspondent writes to us:—

"Dear Sir,—Your paragraph in the Homeward Mail of July 27 concerning Lieutenant Manners Smith's rapid travelling shows the energy and endurance of that admirable officer. Don't you think the feat of Captain Davis, Devon Regiment, is worthy of record? He, a few weeks since, with his 120 west-countrymen, marched 100 miles on foot over the hills and jungle-paths in Upper Burma in five days, and then fought and won a battle. This is the stuff Englishmen are made of."

A strange story is now going the round of the Vernacular Press. Pandit Srikrishna Prosonno Sen, who is familiar to us as the principal agitator against cow-killing in India, publishes a wonderful account of a Brahmin girl of four years of age in the columns of a vernacular religious tract printed at Benares. The girl's name is Saraswati, the name of the Hindoo goddess of learning, and looked "resplendent with intelligence and heavenly beauty," according to the Pandit's narration. He found her on the banks of the Chandra Bhaga river—a stream which is full of the holy reminiscences of the Ramayan and Mahabharat. The Pandit conversed with her in Sanskrit on philosophy and the Vedas, and found that she had the most difficult and abstruse truths of these branches of knowledge at her fingers' ends. The Pandit says that she is the avatar of the Hindoo goddess of learning in this sinful age.

The following true "griffin" story comes from the Central Provinces. Three bold shikaris fresh from England sallied forth to slay the wild and wily bison, and met with sport far beyond their expectations, managing to kill sixteen head and to wound nine. Unfortunately the animals were not bison, but the common or garden buffalo, and the rage of the cultivators on the discovery of their loss may be better imagined than described.

The Rev. Dr. Pentecost, who recently travelled in India, afterwards wrote an article in the Independent, in which, among other things, he dealt with the peculiarities of the Bengali Baboo. In this the reverend doctor was indiscreet enough to refer to the opinion of a "Mr. T.," a high educational officer in India, who had declared to him that all Bengalis were "monumental liars." Hence a furious teacup storm. From some correspondence in the Bengal papers it appears that Raja Peary Mohun Mookerjee has written asking Mr. Tawney, C.I.E., principal of the Presidency College, if he was the "Mr. T." alluded to. Mr. Tawney has very curtly and very properly declined to give the Raja the assurance he asked for, and the native papers are now calling for Government action. It may not be very wise of Government officials to express their private opinions freely to globe-trotters, clerical or lay; but to hold them, or any department of them, responsible for anonymous, or practically anonymous, communications, says the Pioneer, is out of the question.

"Seeta Ram" writes to the Madras Times:—"This, I have frequently pointed out, is the age of Kali Yuga. A few days back a man was bitten by a mad jackal at Sitygram, and he died. After his death his belly began to puff extremely and exploded, and three young jackals were thrown out of it alive. I am the humble transcriber, not the sponsor, of the marvel. The narrative in the newspaper from which this is taken is so stately in its simplicity, and so devoid of adornments and comments, that it challenges comparison with the marvels narrated of former times. Dead men, for instance, in ancient histories were said to have risen from their graves and walked about; but there the account of the resurrected men ceases. In a similar manner, in brief and simple terms, is told the modern narrative of the three jackals. What became of the jackals after they were ejected—whether they ran away to the jungles or were caught by the bystanders and sent to the Zoological Gardens, are no more narrated than what became of the dead men who came to life in ancient times. In either case, it is a marvellous story; but this is the age of Kali Yuga, alias credulity and mendacity, and the writers of former days seem to have known this equally well with the writers of the present day." Seeta Ram adds that Kali Yuga is Sanskrit for fin de siècle.

The Kanarese paper published in Mysore is responsible for the following:—"In Chittaldroog lately a mad dog bit a horse. The animal died, and its carcase was thrown into the jungle. Foxes fed on the flesh, and they also went mad. They, in their turn, bit horses and rabbits, and they followed suit. These latter in their turn bit some men in the fields, and they are gone mad." A very mad business.

PERSONAL.

SURGEON-MAJOR J. P. GREANY, M.D., has been appointed civil surgeon, Belgaum, vice Brigade-Surgeon Hughes.

Surgeon-Major D. C. Davidson has been appointed civil surgeon, Satara, vice Surgeon-Major Greany.

Surgeon-Major H. W. B. Boyd, F.R.C.S.I., superintendent, Lunatic Asylum, Colaba, has been allowed furlough for six months. Surgeon J. P. Barry acts for him.

Surgeon-Major G. Bainbridge, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., Indian Medical Service, has been promoted to brigade-surgeon, from Sept. 18, 1890, vice Cook, promoted to deputy surgeon-general.

Brigade-Surgeon D. E. Hughes, M.D., F.R.C.S., has been appointed civil surgeon, Poona, vice brigade-surgeon H. Cook, confirmed as deputy surgeon-general, but to continue in the Military Department till relieved.

Mr. J. S. Slater, barrister-at-law, has been appointed to act as Chief Presidency Magistrate and Revenue Judge of Bombay during the absence on privilege leave of Mr. C. P. Cooper.

Mr. Higham, superintending engineer, is to officiate as chief engineer of irrigation and joint secretary to the Government of the Punjab during Colonel Ottley's absence on furlough.

Mr. Sibold acts in Mr. Higham's place as superintending engineer.

The Rev. P. B. Horne, M.A., chaplain of Poona, has been granted furlough for two years, and the Rev. J. H. Beck, M.A., acting chaplain of Deolali, has been appointed to act as chaplain of Poona during the absence of Mr. Horne.

Srinagar is now empty, says a correspondent. The Resident and visitors have gone up to Gulmarg; Captain Gordon has departed for Ladakh; the Maharaja is returning to Jammoo; and Raja Ram Singh, the Commander-in-Chief, is proceeding to Gilgit to inspect the frontier.

A Bengalee lady graduate of the Calcutta Medical College, Miss B. B. Bose, has obtained the second certificate in medical jurisprudence and two prizes, viz. Lady Thompson's prize and Henry Fawcett's prize.

The Rev. J. M. Walker, M.A., senior chaplain, Madras Ecclesiastical Department, retires from the service on Jan. 1, 1892, and prior to retiring proceeds on two years' furlough to England. Mr. Walker left Madras on July 13, and was to leave Bombay on the 17th in the P. and O. s.s. Oriental.

In the course of the next few months several vacancies in the Political Department will be filled. Colonel Ross, Resident of the Persian Gulf, retires in September. Sir H. Prendergast, now at Mysore, and Colonel Tweedie, at Baghdad, leave in October; while Colonel Powlett, Resident in Western Rajpootana States, vacates his post next February.

A carriage accident of a serious nature has happened to Lieutenant Dickenson and his wife at Poona near the Government Telegraph Office. The lady and gentleman were driving in a high dog-cart, when the horse bolted. Mrs. Dickenson was thrown out and the wheel of the trap passed over her body. She was conveyed to the Sassoon Hospital, where it was discovered that the lady had, fortunately, sustained no further injury than a severe shaking. She was afterwards conveyed to her home at Kirkee.

Poona society, says the Pioneer, in the intervals of amusement, occupies itself at present with future appointments to the Executive Council, in consequence of frequent rumours that Sir R. West means to retire and that Sir C. Pritchard's recent knighthood is only a sign and step to higher promotion. The general opinion is, however, that the former will serve his full term, which expires in November 1892. There are actually two members of the Civil Service who have acted in Council before, namely, Mr. John Moore and Mr. James Naylor. They both came prominently before the public as Commissioners for the great trial of Mr. Wilson, C.S., at Ahmedabad. Mr. Naylor has since been decorated with the C.S.I. He was also Member of Council during the proceedings against Mr. Arthur Crawford and the offer of the celebrated indemnity to the corrupt Magistrates and Judges. He has not qualified for the High Court by serving for three years as a district judge, but for many years he has been a sort of consulting law officer. Mr. Moore's laurels have been won chiefly in the revenue line. He was, however, specially selected in the Wilson trial; and as champion of the Mamlutdars, he, with Messrs. Keyser, Loch and Candy, sent circulars to the rest of the Civil service, including even some of the judges, urging them to remonstrate with the Secretary of State, who had cashiered the erring officials. Mr. Moore is now close on the end of his thirty-five years' service, and must soon retire. Mr. Arthur Trevor, the Commissioner in Sind, who has still five years to run, is also talked of as a possible member of Council, if a revenue officer is selected; while among the district judges, Mr. Tagore, one of the most senior, belongs to a high Brahmin family, and Mr. Edward Candy has acted twice as a judge of the High Court. In Bombay, however, the usual practice is to appoint the senior judge of the High Court to be Judicial Member of the Council, and in Mr. Justice Birdwood the Government would gain a scholar who came out among the Wranglers at Cambridge, became Fellow of Peterhouse, and has been appointed by Lord Harris Vice-Chancellor of the University of Bombay. This gentleman has held many distinguished offices, and is at present the first favourite. If a lifetime ably spent in the Secretariat is the royal avenue to power, Mr. John Nugent would be in the running, closely followed, however, by Mr. T. Mackenzie and Mr. Henry James, and one or two of the collectors. The executive part of the Bombay Civil Service hopes ultimately to annex both the Memberships of Council; and if the Commander-in-Chief be reduced to a lieutenant-general commanding a corps d'armée the whole government will fall into the hands of revenue men, and become a Cabinet without either War Minister or a Lord Chancellor. The Bombay Presidency Association, which volunteered advice the other day with reference to a successor to Mr. Justice Scott, has not yet opened its mouth. But as all the Native Associations supported Lord Reay, and the friends of the Mamludars are still active, their choice would probably fall on some senior official pledged to the same policy. The Native Press has kept on moralising ever since the Crawford trial, and has only lately been induced to drop the subject by the timely diversion of the Baccarat Case and the opportunity it affords of discussing the Prince of Wales.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

By the death of the Earl of Westmorland the Jockey Club loses one of its oldest members. Born on Nov. 19, 1825, Francis William Henry Fane was the fourth son of the eleventh Earl of Westmorland, the diplomatist who represented England at the Vienna Conference in 1855. After being at Westminster for some years he went to Sandhurst, and thence to India, where he served through the Punjab Campaign of 1846, and obtained a medal for his bravery at Gujerat. After being aide-de-camp to the Governor-General of India for a short time, he returned to England and exchanged into the Guards, serving with great distinction in the Crimea, where he was rewarded with the Orders of the Bath, the Legion of Honour, and the Medjidie. He was appointed aide-de-camp to the Duke of Cambridge in 1856, and held that appointment until he retired from the Army with the rank of colonel in 1860, having the year previously succeeded to the earldom, to which he had become heir by the death of his three elder brothers.

A private telegram has just been received from Bombay announcing the death of Captain Sir Henry Morland, at the age of fifty-seven. Sir Henry Morland's Indian experience extended over forty years. He filled an important post in the Indian Navy up to the time of the abolition of that force in 1863, when he became the principal port officer of Bombay, in which capacity he did excellent work in organising the commissariat and transport of the Afghanistan Expedition. He was also well-known for the share he took in all public matters in Bombay. He was chairman of the municipality in the Jubilee year, and brought to England the address of congratulation to her Majesty, by whom he was knighted. Sir Henry occupied a prominent position in Freemasonry, and at the time of his death was the head of all the Scottish lodges in India.

The death has been reported of General Francis Loch, who served at the siege of Mooltan in the Punjab campaign of 1848, in the Indian Mutiny, and likewise in the Abyssinian Expedition. General Loch joined the Army in 1844 when less than seventeen years of age, became full general in 1889, and died at Richmond on July 27, aged sixty-four.

The death is announced as having occurred suddenly of Lieut.-General E. G. Luard, C.B., at the age of eighty-four years. The deceased officer, who had seen considerable service, entered the Army in 1845, became lieutenant-general in 1884, and retired under the non-employment rule in April of last year. Besides serving in five different regiments he filled no fewer than eleven appointments on the staff of the Army. He served with distinction in the Crimea as brigadier-major and deputy-assistant adjutant-general, being present at the siege of Sebastopol, and also assisted at the capture of Canton in the China war. He received distinctions for his services in both these campaigns.

Major-General St. J. O'N. Muter, Bombay Staff Corps, died at 7 Portland Terrace, Southsea, on July 18. He joined the Indian Army March 18, 1841, and retired with the honorary rank of major-general, Dec. 1, 1875; served in the campaign in the Southern Mahratta country in 1844-5.

On Saturday, Aug. 1, Major Herbert Chamberlayne Smith, formerly of the Commissariat Department, and a visitor from London to Devonshire, met with a terrible death about a mile from the Plymton Railway Station. Some years ago he received a sunstroke when in India, and he had ever since suffered at intervals from fits of depression. He arrived at Plymton a few days ago, on a visit to Dr. Ellery, a personal friend and medical adviser, and seemed to have benefited greatly by his visit. On Saturday morning, however, he was found wandering about the line near the station, and was ordered off by a ganger. Three hours later he again got on the line, and was seen standing on the parapet at a small bridge crossing the road about a mile from the railway station. He remained there until the approach of a train, the driver of which, on seeing him, blew his whistle several times to attract his attention. He, however, took no notice of this warning, and, when the train reached the bridge, he was seen to throw himself right in front of the engine. The train was immediately pulled up, and, when the body was picked up, it was found to have been frightfully mutilated.

Captain Charles Chenevix-Trench, 5th Goorkhas, died suddenly at Simla on July 26 in his thirty-fifth year. He was the second son of the late Mr. Philip Chenevix-Trench, of Botley, Hants, and received his commission in the 8th King's Own in 1875. He exchanged into the 5th Goorkhas in 1878, and served with distinction in the Afghan War.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphed on Aug. 2:—"Dr. Barclay, a member of the Leprosy Commission, died at Simla this morning from typhoid fever. Dr. Barclay had gained a high scientific reputation by his researches in cryptogamic botany and by his efforts to solve the problem of Indian wheat diseases. He was to have gone to Mysore next winter to study the coffee plant disease."

Mr. Gwatkin Williams fell down dead while playing lawn-tennis at his own house at Durbhunga on July 7. The cause of death, it is thought, may have been heat apoplexy, though the native doctor who was called in was of opinion that it must have been heart disease. He was buried in Durbhunga on the 8th. The Maharajah of Durbhunga has expressed to Mrs. Williams his heartfelt sympathy, and his own deep sense of the loss which the Raj has sustained by the death of Mr. Williams. His Highness, with generous instinct, has invited Mrs. Williams to remain at the Manager's house as long as she may wish, and has placed the whole establishment at her disposal.

Mr. O'Brien, Assistant Commissioner of Lahore, died of typhoid early on July 10. The District Court bar passed a resolution deploring the sad occurrence, and attended the funeral, which took place the same evening. The deceased civilian was a popular and promising officer, and apparently of sound and strong constitution. Among the other results of Mr. O'Brien's death is the postponement of the hearing of the case of Warburton v. the Tribune newspaper, down for hearing in the District Court.

The death of Mr. Henry Bliss, which we announced yesterday, says the Rangoon Times of July 7, must have been a shock to those who counted themselves as his friends. No doubt the events of the past twelve months in connection with certain legal proceedings in our Courts in which the deceased gentleman was a prominent member, alienated from him the good will of some of his acquaintances; but, notwithstanding the painful disclosures in question, there are still some few who knew Mr. Bliss regret his early death. Apart from his business misfortunes, we think we are expressing the opinion of a great many of our readers when we say that the name of Captain Henry Bliss will long be remembered with kindly feelings by his brother Volunteers. It was mainly through his tact, and that of his able Lieutenant the late Mr. Chandler, that the Artillery Corps of Rangoon Volunteers could boast, at one time, of being one of the finest body of men in the Volunteer service of India. Now it is but a mere shadow of its former self.

Miss Robinson.—The eldest daughter of Admiral Robinson died at Trincomalee on June 28. She had been ill of fever since the 23rd. It is also rumoured that her heart was affected. General sorrow and sympathy are manifested by the whole community. At the request of the Government Agent, the decorating the town in honour of the Governor's visit was suspended as a mark of respect to the bereaved family.

We take the following notice of the late Dr. Rajendralala Mitra, C.I.E., whose death has been announced by telegram, from the Times. For upwards of forty years Dr. Mitra has been one of the most learned and industrious contributors to the pages of the "Journal and Proceedings of the Asiatic Society of Bengal," which is the recognised medium of publication at Calcutta of all researches in the history, literature, archaeology, and natural science of India and adjacent regions. Among Dr. Mitra's papers published by the society, and numbering in all 114, may be mentioned the following:—"On Some Græco-Bactrian Relics from Rawul Pindi" (1862); "On Greek Art in India," and "On Leprosy in Ancient India" (1875); "On the Representation of Foreigners in the Ajanta Frescoes" (1878); and various papers on human sacrifices, the use of spirituous drinks, the consumption of beef, and other customs among the ancient people of India. Another branch of antiquarian research to which Dr. Mitra devoted much attention was the elucidation of inscriptions (whether on stone or copper) and of ancient coins, and his numerous notes and treatises on these possess great historical value. His more important works were:—"Buddha Gaya, the Hermitage of Sakya Muni," a handsome monograph on that great temple; "The Antiquities of Orissa," in two volumes, a work which was the outcome of an archaeological mission to Bhuvanes' vara, whither Dr. Mitra was despatched by Government in 1868-69; "The Indo Aryans," produced in 1881; and "The Sanskrit Buddhist Literature of Nepal," in 1882. Dr. Mitra was often consulted by the Government in regard to antiquarian and literary matters, and he was created a Companion of the Indian Empire in 1878. He was also a Fellow of Calcutta University.

The Bombay Educational Record says:—"The sudden death of Rao Sahab Mahiputram Supram Nilkant, C.I.E., the Principal of the Ahmedabad Training College, when on the point of retiring after a service of thirty-six years, is very sad, and his loss will be felt in the department and in many directions for a long time to come. Mr. Mahiputram visited England a quarter of a century ago, and resided, we believe, in an English training college in order to acquire a real and familiar acquaintance with the best methods of school management. On his return to India he threw himself energetically into the task of applying his English experience to the circumstances of his native Gujarat, and since that date he has been intimately associated with every phase of the development of primary education in his province, and, we believe, no one doubts that the excellence of the schools of Gujarat is largely owing to the influences which radiated in great force from Mr. Mahiputram in his college in Ahmedabad. A Government resolution has well expressed the general regret felt at Mr. Mahiputram's death, and states that the Governor in Council "desires to place on record his high sense of the valuable services rendered to education by the deceased officer during a faithful service of more than thirty-five years."

Prince Kedar Nursing, Rana Bahadoor, of Nepal, died at Calcutta on July 10. The deceased prince was a nephew of the great Sir Jung Bahadur, the famous Prime Minister of Nepal. Like his uncle he was a staunch friend of the British Government, and proved his friendship by joining the Nepalese force which Sir Jung Bahadur so successfully led into the disturbed districts of Oude during the Mutiny in 1857; and by taking part in those military operations which effected the dispersion of mutinous sepoys collected in strength at the different points along the Oude frontier. The Prince's services during this critical period were duly mentioned in the despatches of the Indian Government to the home authorities. On the assassination of Sir Runodeep Sing, Rana Bahadur, on Nov. 22, 1885, Prince Kedar Nursing, with other members of Sir Jung Bahadur's family, sought shelter in the British Residency at Khatmandu, and eventually made his way into British territory. Of all the Nepalese refugees there he is described as one of the best-educated, most well-read, and most courteous. He was well-known to the leading members of Calcutta society.

MANIPORE.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs on July 29:—

The papers connected with the Senaputti's defence have been despatched from Calcutta, and will reach Simla on Friday.

The final orders of the Government on his case, on those of the other princes, and on the future status of Manipore, will probably be announced by the middle of August.

The Government of India in the Military Department have under consideration the report of the Military Court of Inquiry into the Manipore disaster, together with his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief's opinions thereon. It certainly seems desirable, observes an Indian contemporary, that the fullest publicity should be given to the facts elicited by the Court, so far as may be consistent with the rules which guide publication in such matters. The Blue-books already issued have given a full and complete history of the political side of the question; but a good deal remains to be cleared up regarding the military operations.

THE AGITATION IN CHINA.

MR. W. V. DRUMMOND writes a second letter, dated June 11, to the North China Herald in relation to the agitation in China:—

I have long been of opinion that a spirit of unrest has arisen, and has been rapidly growing in China, that it has grown much more rapidly during the last five years, and that it exists in much greater force in certain parts of China than in others. Its inception arose, I think, from an unconscious and innate feeling which would be considered and described by a certain class of politicians in England and America as one of healthy discontent. The "progressive desire" which seized upon Japan a generation ago is beginning to work in China, and will run its course as surely and irresistibly as it has in that country, though very possibly in a different manner, and at a different pace. The feeling has, as yet, produced no articulate expression of the wrongs to be removed, the improvements to be achieved, or the results to be attained, but it has led to the banding together of enormous numbers of men in secret societies which seem to have agreed upon one point in common, namely, that the removal of the present Manchu dynasty, and the establishment of a purely Chinese dynasty on the throne, is the first object of their desires. Secret societies have undoubtedly existed in China from a remote period of history, but they have greatly increased in numbers of late years, and comprise all classes, both official, mercantile and agricultural, the most important element at present being military officials and soldiers.

Next, as regards the forces that are now at work in connection with political movements in China. During the last thirty years or so two provinces of China have risen to a commanding position, viz. Hunan and Anhui, and the rivalry now existing between the people of these two provinces, and which extends from the very highest to the lowest, is the dominant factor in the politics of the immediate future of China. The famous Tsêng family, and especially the great General Tsêng Kuo-fan, have been primarily instrumental in pushing forward the interests of their countrymen of Hunan, who are now the most martial people in China. The great Viceroy Li Hung-chang has unceasingly fostered the interests of his countrymen of Anhui. Apart from the Tartar garrisons, which are, with the exception of the force at Peking, of no real strength in any part of China, the great majority of the soldiers consist of Hunan and Anhui men. The Hunan men are so powerful at Nankin that no Viceroy who is not a Hunan man and a soldier can keep them under any control. The Hunan men are now the leading spirits in China, but since the death of the Viceroy Tsêng Kuo-chuan last year they have no recognised political chief. The Viceroy Li Hung-chang is unremittently pushing forward the men of Anhui in every part of China. His brother, Li Han-chang, has the post next in importance to his own, viz., the Viceroyship of Canton, and Anhui men are rising rapidly in power everywhere. Liu Ming-chuan, who has just vacated the Governorship of Formosa, is a native of Anhui, and in connection with his name an instance may be mentioned illustrating the feeling before referred to. It is not long since the Governor of Formosa had serious difficulties in coping with the savages who live in the hills, and who broke out and attacked the Chinese. The Viceroy Li Hung-chang promptly sent Admiral Ting and some powerful ships of the Peiyang fleet to his assistance. The present disturbances on the Yangtze are far more serious, yet the Viceroy has not sent one of his ships to assist in quelling them, but has even kept a number of the best ships of the Nanyang fleet, which belongs to Nankin, lying idly at Weihaiwei with his own ships. The Governor of Formosa was an Anhui man, the Viceroy of Nankin is a Hunan man. The Viceroy Li has for many years past exercised all the power that he possesses by direct interference with Shanghai, although this place is entirely beyond his proper sphere of influence, and is within one of the provinces governed by the Viceroy of Nankin. He often succeeds in getting his protégés appointed to the Taotaihip of Shanghai, which is the second richest post in the Empire. The last one, Kung, was an Anhui man, and arrangements have been privately made already for the appointment of the Viceroy's son, who is now the Minister to Japan, as the next Shanghai Taotai. The Viceroy Li has also obtained the entire control of the China Merchants' Company, and is working energetically to keep a monopoly of cotton-spinning enterprises here in his own hands, and in many other ways is constantly striving to exercise a paramount influence at this, the most important place in China. The comparative inertness and weakness of the Nanking Viceroys enable him to do this with very great success.

In reference to Shanghai, it may be worth mentioning that there are about four or five thousand soldiers posted in and near the native city who are Hunan men, while there are about eight thousand at Woosung who are Anhui men.

The Viceroy Li has a more thorough knowledge of what is going on in all parts of China than any other official, and if he had selected a different time for his inspection of the fleets and forts, and kept his powerful fleet of ironclads cruising in the Yangtze river instead, these terrible outbreaks at the river ports would never have happened. There is only one other point to which I will at present refer. The day has already arrived, when the internal politics of China are not only far more important to her own interests but also to the interests of foreigners than the so-called Imperial politics of Peking. Far more can be learnt regarding the former at Shanghai than is known ever to the Cabinet of the Chinese Government, much less to the foreign ministers at Peking, whose energies were exhaustively occupied in grappling with the solemn farce of an Imperial audience while events long prepared and of momentous importance were on the eve of occurring. Nero fiddles while Rome is burning.

It needs only very ordinary intelligence to see now that the policy underlying the present series of outbreaks, which I sketched briefly in my former letter, is rapidly running its course to what appears likely to be a completely successful result. The French property already destroyed must have been worth many millions of taels. When the bills are sent in what is the Chinese Government going to do? It will not pay, but if not, what then? If the French submit to the loss their expulsion from China will be practically complete, and the position of all other foreigners will rapidly become intolerable until another foreign war inevitably occurs. I have only touched very briefly upon a very few points of importance, but my letter is already far longer than I had intended it to be.

THE VICEREGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

A SIMLA telegram of July 16 says:—

The Legislative Council after being postponed late last night was held at Viceregal Lodge to-day. The Hon. Sir Philip Hutchins presided, as the Viceroy is still indisposed. The Hon. Sir Alex. Miller proposed that the Hon. Mr. Rattigan be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Law of Evidence with respect to bankers' books. The Hon. Sir Philip Hutchins stated that the Bill to authorise the transfer of certain jurisdiction from the High Court of Judicature, Madras, to the Court of Small Causes, Madras, would be introduced next week. Sir Alex. Miller will introduce the Bill to validate certain marriages solemnised under part 6 of the Indian Christian Marriage Act 1872, and explained that the object was to validate a few marriages which had taken place between natives, one of whom only was a Christian. The Bill would also provide against future marriages of a similar character as far as possible.

The Council adjourned for a week.

OFFICERS AND THEIR DEBTS.

At the Bombay Small Causes Court on July 10, Mr. Smetham, of the firm of Messrs. Chalk, Walker, and Smetham, appeared before Mr. W. E. Hart, Chief Judge, and presented an affidavit made by Mr. Jamsheedjee Manockjee Billimoria, acting managing director of the Oriental Loan Association, Limited, praying that leave might be granted to file a suit against Frederick Bernard Deane, captain in the 2nd Madras Lancers, at present residing at Kampti, in the Central Provinces, for the recovery of 379-10-3 rs., being the balance due and payable by the defendant to the plaintiffs under an indenture, dated Nov. 28, 1885, passed to the plaintiffs' company.

It appeared that on January 1, 1889, there was found due and payable by the defendant to the plaintiffs 2,958-9-9 rs. under an indenture, dated Nov. 28, 1885, signed and passed by the defendant and one George William Deane to the company, and for the recovery of such sum and further interest and costs a suit was on January 16, 1889, with leave under clause 12 of the letters patent, filed in the High Court against the defendant and George William Deane. Since the filing of the High Court suit the defendant paid certain sums on account, and on July 18, 1890, the defendant came to Bombay and arranged and agreed with the plaintiffs' company to pay within a short time the balance and further interest and costs, and the suit was at the request of the defendant and upon such arrangement withdrawn. The defendant had never denied, and the plaintiffs believed he even now did not deny his liability to pay the amount now sued for. An account was made between the plaintiffs and the defendant up to 1st inst., showing a balance now claimed. The defendant from time to time paid the interest due on the indenture, and the same had at no time become barred by the statute of limitation. By a covenant in the indenture, the defendant agreed and declared that in event of any proceedings being instituted to enforce payment of the sum of 2,500 rs. or of any of the instalments thereof, or to enforce any of the covenants contained therein, the same might be had and taken in Bombay. The sum paid by the defendant was received by the plaintiffs' company in Bombay, the surrender value of the policy mentioned in the defendant's account was also received in Bombay, and the plaintiffs' company's account books to prove receipts and payments were in Bombay, and the defendant agreed that this suit might be instituted in Bombay. The plaintiffs therefore prayed that leave might be granted to file a suit in this Court against the defendant, and that an order might be made to forward the summons for service on the defendant.

His honour, after going through the affidavit, said that section 151 of the Army Act of 1881, as amended by section 7 of the Army Act of 1888, was clearly intended, in his opinion, to preclude officers in the Army from being sued otherwise than within the jurisdiction in which they were stationed. Since the passing of the Act of 1888 he had always made it a rule not to grant leave to sue officers in the Army in this court who were not within its jurisdiction. He had discretion, under section 18 of the Small Causes Court Act, to grant such leave, but he never exercised such discretion for the reason above stated. Leave was accordingly refused.

Mr. Smetham requested that a note might be taken of his application, as the matter would have to go to the High Court; but his honour declined to make such note, stating that the case was not before the Court, and there was no law directing that such a note should be made.

THE CARD SCANDAL IN MANDALAY.

THE Rangoon Times, writing of the scandal which has already been briefly alluded to, says:—A painful scandal which has steadily gained ground until it has become public property, is to the effect that a young officer in a native regiment, having arrived in Mandalay en route for Secunderabad, whither he was bound to attend the annual musketry course, took up his quarters in the club, of which, by the by, we believe, he was not an elected member, and becoming an habitué of the card-room, was in the custom of playing poker nightly. His luck was so consistent and became so proverbial, that more than once his play was viewed with suspicion, and finally, rumour says, he was detected by the club secretary and one or two more players in bringing a king of diamonds from the bottom of the pack and putting it into his own hand. The other players made him put down his hand, when it was found to contain three kings—a hand well worth betting high on. Before the others compelled him to show his cards, however, one of them taxed him with having the king of diamonds in his hand, which he admitted, adding that he had others too. The result of this was that the remainder of the table paid him his winnings and left the room. When accused he replied, "You are bringing a very serious charge against me," and then bent his head on his hands. The matter, we believe, was kept quiet for a day or two, not with a view of screening the offence, but to decide the best course to adopt. The result was a court of inquiry, the evidence transpiring being kept, of course, very private. In the meantime the officer, who, we believe, scarcely appeared to realise the extent of the trouble in which he was involved, though he avoided the card-room, frequented the billiard-table, departing for Secunderabad a day or two later. It is further rumoured that, having left without paying his club account, he wrote to the secretary requesting that the amount might be deducted from his whist winnings. We believe he is on his way back from Secunderabad, having been sent for, of course, under arrest.

We believe that an onlooker, who also was inclined to substantiate the charge, has sailed for England on well-earned leave, having spent the past season in hunting for the source of the Irrawaddy! It will be the hardest of luck if he has to return to give evidence as to what he is rumoured to have seen. Coming from a family of soldiers, with more than one brother in the service, one of whom at least has the reputation of being the soul of honour, it is painful to think that a stainless record should be so stained (should the accusation prove true) by the misconduct of one of its members. It is a matter of congratulation that these cases occur so seldom among our military men, the vast majority of whom at least more than sustain the unblemished record of the name of soldier, and we sincerely trust that, both at home and abroad, amongst the highest and amongst the more humble of rank, we have heard the last of these nauseous stories, which are calculated to fill the minds of the uninitiated with the most erroneous impressions regarding the lives and habits of those who have pledged themselves to defend their country's honour and to maintain their own, with the sword.

COMPLETION OF THE KHOJAK TUNNEL.

THE Englishman of July 14 says:—In a few days the Khojak Tunnel and its approaches will be a fait accompli, and another link will thus be forged of that line which in the years to come will probably be known as the Great Central Asian Railway, uniting the East and the West, and girdling half the world's circumference with rails. The undertaking, which has not its equal in India, was the outcome of one of three projects submitted to the Government of India by Mr. F. J. O'Callaghan, C.S.I., and was the one specially recommended by the engineer-in-chief. Under this project the line from Killa Abdulla is continued sixty miles from Quetta, into the Khojak Pass, piercing the Khwaja Amran Range, and finally establishing a temporary terminus on the Chaman plain. The Secretary of State cordially endorsed the Government of India's approval, with the result that the first sod of this great work was turned in December 1887. It was estimated that the line, the tunnel, and the concomitant works would cost about 131 lacs, but an additional seven miles having been sanctioned later on on the Chaman side, 12 lacs more had to be added to the original estimate, bringing the total to 143 lacs. The tunnel, the great engineering work of the scheme, is about two and a half miles in length, and is pre-eminent as the longest in Asia.

Many and appalling were the difficulties which surrounded its formation. The tunnel itself is responsible for a considerable increase in the expenditure, bringing the sum total to 152 lacs, or 9 lacs above the estimate. Fuel for working the boring machines, a very considerable item, was made all the more expensive by the action of the North-Western Railway, which enhanced the rates of carriage after the works were begun, and into the coffers of which went most of the excess. Extra arching was another item, and this was due to the loose nature of the strata inside the mountain—contrary to what might have been anticipated from an examination of the surface. And again, when within one hundred yards of completion, when everyone concerned was rejoicing to think that the two ends would meet, by a most unfortunate piece of luck a vertical stratum of clay charged with water was met, and out of it came pouring a torrent of water and mud at the rate of several hundred gallons a minute. Even now water still issues from this part of the tunnel, but not in very considerable quantities. This unforeseen circumstance retarded the tunnel work for six months. All along the work had been carried on most rapidly, and as much as thirty-seven yards a week were done at a face. The cost is less per yard than that of any of the larger Alpine tunnels, such, for instance, as the Mont Cenis, St. Gotthard, or the Arlberg, although these had the immense advantage of unlimited water-power for driving their machinery. In the Khojak the rock-drilling machinery used was Schram's, and most effective and simple it proved to be. The rope inclines over the mountain were features in the work. These were built to facilitate the transport of material from one side of the range to the other, and ran up the hillsides at a gradient of one in two and a half. They carried a total of three-quarters of a million of tons of material. As originally intended, the tunnel was to be completed by October 1890, but the work was delayed for the reasons we have already mentioned, and also by the severity of the winter of 1890-91. Within four months forty inches of rain fell, most of it in the form of snow, recharging the mountain range with water. The winter cold was unprecedented, 24 deg. below freezing being registered during the night, while the maximum during the day was only 36 deg.

The result was excessive mortality among the coolies, and no fewer than a fourth of those employed—that is to say, 1,000 men out of 4,000—lost their lives during that one winter. A regiment of Pioneers was quartered near the mouth of the tunnel, and rendered good service; their presence, moreover, was invaluable in keeping in check the lawless Pathans and members of other equally turbulent tribes from which the labour was entirely recruited. From these facts a good idea may be formed of the immensity of the work that was so quietly and yet so expeditiously carried on away on our remote frontier. From March 1887 to May 1889, Mr. O'Callaghan, the surveyor and projector of the work, was engineer-in-chief, and was able to give his valuable advice and supervision. He was succeeded by Mr. F. E. Robertson, now chief engineer of the East Indian Railway, who, however, remained for but a few months, when Mr. G. P. Rose assumed full charge. In his great work he was most ably seconded by Messrs. Woods and Egerton, executive engineers, and Messrs. Weightman, Johns, and Percival, assistant engineers. Mr. Rose, who is a Cooper's Hill man, came to the country in 1877, joined the Khojak undertaking in 1888 as executive engineer of the tunnel and its approach works on the Killa Abdulla side, and actually began boring in April 1888. He was especially designated for the post by Mr. O'Callaghan, and was employed while in England in selecting machinery and engaging miners. Mr. Rose's first experience in tunnel work was on the railway between Rawul Pindi and Peshawur, and he was practically responsible for the completion of the well-known Chappur Rift on the Sind-Peshin line. To him—to his indomitable energy, his engineering experience, and his wonderful powers of organisation—is due the entire success which has attended the completion of the Khojak section of the railway of the future. India abounds with monuments of engineering skill, and Mr. Rose has added to the list a noble achievement. The latest success of the engineer has firmly established his reputation, which was already widely recognised in engineering circles. During the past few years visitors to India from all parts of the world have been attracted to the far-distant frontier by the fame of the Khojak Tunnel, and already in Europe the greatness of the achievement is well understood, and the name of the victorious engineer is mentioned with honour. It is to be hoped that in the case of so vastly important a triumph over natural difficulties and obstacles the hero of the hour will not share the fate of the prophet who lacketh honour, or rather honours, only in his own country. India will honour itself in doing honour to one who has succeeded with a stupendous task so admirably where success was so doubtful of attainment.

THE CHIEF COMMISSIONER AND THE P.W.D. IN BURMA.

Indian Engineering of July 11 says:—It is time for us to say a word about the shameless way in which the Local Government in Burma is trying to burke the claims for compensation of the railway and other officials who had their houses burnt and their effects looted by the Wuntho rabble at the beginning of the late outbreak. These losses were incurred solely through the negligence and want of preparation on the part of the civil authorities, who kept sending the Sawbwe ultimatum after ultimatum without any kind of force being kept in readiness to back it. The consequence was that when the Wuntho people decided to fight, they had the game in their own hands for the first ten days, and burnt and plundered in every direction. When the troops did come up, the military portion of the business was promptly and brilliantly done, and it is apparently the object of the Chief Commissioner to take credit for this and hide the previous mess at any cost. One of the Railway Survey parties, which was ordered in at a moment's notice, had to leave behind stores to the value of over 1,000 rs., which were all looted. At two railway construction subdivisional headquarters all the officers, subordinates, and contractors lost the whole of their houses and property, all burnt and looted by the Wuntho raiders.

For all this serious loss the Local Government have absolutely declined to entertain or forward any claims whatever for compensation. It has been pointed out to the Chief Commissioner that he cannot decently decide a matter in which his Government is practically on its trial; and that as he cannot sanction the claims himself neither can he reject them, but all representations have been met by an absolute refusal to consider the matter at all.

We cannot imagine the deep feelings of disgust which have been caused throughout the department by the constant neglect and contumely with which it has been treated, especially since Sir Charles Crosthwaite left Burma. This has been finished up by the circular recently issued, which entirely subordinates the Public Works Department engineers to the district officers, who are in most cases younger men and absolutely ignorant on professional matters. Some of the provisions of the circular are of course salutary enough. It is the studiously insulting tone of it that has been felt to be so objectionable and brutal by the men who have slaved for the last five years in all manner of hardships and discomforts without any of the extraordinarily rapid promotion which has rewarded the competent men in all other departments.

Service in Burma has always been unpopular; it will now be impossible to keep the department fully manned. All the best men we know in it are determined to get out of it, or retire at the earliest possible moment, and the Burma Provincial Public Works Department will soon become nothing but a refuge for the impracticable and incompetent men that no other province will keep. There has been too much of this already, and it will be necessary for the Government of India to take immediate steps to put things on a better footing, and teach their satrap some discretion and manners.

The same paper has the following paragraph :—

The probable drafting of a number of engineers from the older provinces for new schemes of irrigation in Burma is attracting considerable attention in the North-West and Punjab. It is expected that these provinces will be called on to provide the full quota of executives. Most of the assistants will no doubt be appointed direct from Cooper's Hill as on most of the larger projects completed during the last fifteen years. As regards the latter, the main object is to get men who are very junior, and who, owing to constant contact with the people for some years, will get a fair command of the local language.

THE TRADE OF INDIA.

THE trade of India for May, as shown in the Returns, has fallen off considerably in imports, nor, although the wheat exported has increased enormously, do the exports of merchandise as a whole exhibit any marked augmentation. The imports of merchandise for the month have been reduced by no less than 90 lacs compared with last year, while they are quite a crore less than in May 1889. For this diminution cotton goods, including twist and yarn, are mainly responsible. In all divisions under this heading, grey, white, and coloured piece-goods, the decrease is marked, while the totals for cotton goods compare as follows :—May 1891, 218 lacs of rupees; 1890, 287 lacs of rupees; 1889, 275 lacs of rupees. The imports of treasure are also less than last year, although they are a little over the corresponding month of 1889. Thirty-four lacs of rupees of gold have been imported, being 16 lacs of rupees under last year, but about equal to 1889. Silver at 83 lacs of rupees is 10 lacs below 1890, and the same amount above 1889. The exports of merchandise for the month are given at 1,016 lacs of rupees, 1890 being 993 lacs of rupees, and 1889 989 lacs of rupees. As the trade of our port showed at the time, says the Times of India, the exports of wheat have very largely increased. No less than 188 lacs of rupees were exported during the month, compared with 65 lacs of rupees in May 1890, and 61 lacs of rupees in 1889; and for the first two months of the financial year—April and May—the exports of this commodity alone amount to 269 lacs of rupees, against 108 lacs of rupees in 1890, and 110 lacs of rupees in 1889. It is worthy of notice that, while for the two months the exports of wheat to the United Kingdom are 40 lacs of rupees higher, those to France and Belgium together have been augmented by no less than 96 lacs of rupees. The actual figures for April and May for the three countries compare as follows :—

	1889. Lacs.	1890. Lacs.	1891. Lacs.
United Kingdom	Rs. 53	Rs. 63	Rs. 104
Belgium	9	9	40
France	25	17	83

This large increase in wheat exports is, however, counterbalanced by a falling off in cotton, the exports of which for May 1891 are put down at 201 lacs of rupees, being 116 lacs of rupees under the same month last year, and 37 lacs of rupees below 1889. For the two months the figures are :—1891, 421 lacs of rupees; 1890, 693 lacs of rupees; 1889, 534 lacs of rupees. A diminution such as this is sufficiently serious to prevent any undue jubilant feeling over the large extension that our wheat trade has recently experienced. Rice, we observe, has slightly fallen off during the month, the exports, at 87 lacs of rupees, being 23 lacs of rupees, and 16 lacs of rupees below 1890 and 1889, respectively. The only other alteration in the returns that it is necessary to refer to is in seeds, which, at 154 lacs of rupees, are half a crore above May 1890. In linseed, gingelly, but particularly in rapeseed, the increase is observable, the exports of the latter being 22 lacs of rupees higher than last year. Subjoined is our statement showing the excess of exports over imports and Council Bill Drawings for May, compared with the corresponding month in the two previous years :—

Imports of Merchandise, May 1891	Rs. 4,82,16,014

REFORM IN PERSIA.

THE Bombay Gazette says :—A Reuter telegram a few days since referred to a movement of some importance which had begun in Persia for introducing political and administrative reforms into that country. There is little doubt that the moving spirit in the agitation is Malcom Khan, the clever Armenian who in 1889 resigned the Persian Embassy in London in consequence of a misunderstanding with the Grand Vizier. Malcom Khan is an old hand at constitutional reform. He is said in his student days in France to have made a special study of constitutional law, and when he went back to high office in Persia he did his best to persuade the Shah to introduce reforms of various kinds. Nothing came of his reforming energies—not even his own banishment and disgrace; and the deposition from his government, not long since, of the Zil-e-Sultan—the most distinguished representative of liberal ideas in Persia—showed clearly enough that the day for reform had not yet come. Malcom Khan meanwhile has been busily preparing the field for the growth of new ideas. By means of a vernacular newspaper, distributed far and wide through the Shah's dominions, he has been endeavouring to awaken the people to a consciousness of the need of better government, of a more equitable administration of the laws, and of greater security for person and property. In a recent letter to the Turkish Minister at Teheran he says that the body of doctrine which he seeks to propagate throughout Persia, while it embraces the essential conditions of modern civilisation, is strictly founded on the principles of Islam; that there is no pretension in it to an advanced Western liberalism, and that he asks for nothing but a law which will give security for life and property, a law, in fact—to quote his own words—"which might save us from the atrocious disorders and from that organised system of brigandage which the complete absence of any laws whatever has created throughout this unfortunate country." Malcom Khan claims that his idea has commended itself to the most distinguished minds in Persia. Are these the forty whom we learnt the other day had been arrested for their share in a movement which the Shah regards as threatening to his person and dynasty? At any rate there is reason to believe that thus far Malcom Khan's summons to reform has been that of a voice crying in the desert, from which nothing is likely to come save a determined effort on the part of the Persian Government to stifle it. The latest information on the subject is that the creation of a representative system is included in the claims which have been urged upon the Shah, and that his Majesty, whom Malcom Khan found it easy to persuade to go on two pilgrimages to the West, is not as easily to be persuaded to borrow Western ideas and Western institutions. The Persian Midhat can play the reformer's part in safety, for we believe he is carrying on his agitation from a secure distance. Not many years ago Lord Dufferin chronicled in a telling sentence the brief career of a similar enterprise in Turkey. "Amidst the applause of the Liberal world," he wrote, "a parliament was called into existence at Constantinople; a few months later it disappeared, and its champion and fugleman is now languishing in the dungeons of Taif." The Persian Midhat is hardly likely to get as far as his Turkish prototype, but he will at least escape his fate.

Indian Trade and Finance.—Mr. O'Connor's Review of Indian Trade records an increase in the imports and a corresponding decrease in the exports, both being the result of the phenomenal variations in the rate of exchange during the year. The rise in silver is attributed to the excessively large imports of that metal and the unusual influx of gold. The silver imported was largely in excess of the commercial requirements, which were smaller than usual, and money was abnormally cheap. This and the stagnation of trade, combined with the purchase of five millions of Government paper by London and one million by the Government of India, caused an unprecedented rise in Four per Cents. The census returns show an increase in the foreign trade of India during the decade four times greater than the increase of the population. The exports of foodstuffs show no increase, though the returns indicate that the yield of the harvests has grown in proportion to the increase in population and the foreign demand. A large increase is noted in India's trade with Germany and Belgium.

Sir Charles Crosthwaite.—The Pioneer says :—The date of Sir Charles Crosthwaite's return to India is still doubtful. Under the Act which regulates such affairs, a member of Council must return at the end of his six months' leave before he can draw the pay of his appointment, and moreover he must resign his membership of Council if he is absent from duty for more than that period. Sir Charles could, of course, resign and be reappointed, but this would involve a heavy loss of pay, unless a special grant were made to recoup him. He has undoubted claims to generous treatment at the hands of the Secretary of State, for it was from remaining at his post at a most trying time in Burma that his health broke down; but it seems to be a case of the laws of the Medes and Persians so far as Lord Cross and his advisers are concerned. If the doctors at home sanction his return next month, therefore, the Public Works Minister will probably elect to rejoin at the conclusion of his leave; but not until he has sailed from England can it be held certain that he will appear at Simla during the current session of Government. If his health a few weeks hence is not thoroughly restored, Sir Charles must of necessity resign his appointment, with the certainty, of course, that he will be gazetted to it again in November, which is the month, we believe, in which he would prefer returning to this country. He will, in any case, hold the Public Works portfolio for a short time only, as he will presumably succeed Sir Auckland Colvin as Lieutenant-Governor of the North-West Provinces next November.

Foolish Questions in Parliament.—A curious illustration of the way in which the inquiring Member of Parliament who wants to know something about India can get hold of the wrong end of the stick is supplied, says the Bombay Gazette, in a question that was put to Sir John Gorst on June 23 by Mr. J. P. Smith. Any one who after recent corresponding and minuting on the subject can think that there is "a regulation of the Indian Government under which all British manufactures required for Government works, such as State railways, require to be purchased through Indian firms only" must be held to beat the record for reading things the wrong way round. The complaint, as any one but a fussy House of Commons man must know, is not that "officers in charge of public works in India are hindered from purchasing goods direct from the manufacturers in England," but that they are prohibited from purchasing them from stocks held in India by Indian firms. This formed one of the subjects of remonstrance from the iron founders and manufacturing engineers of India in their memorial to Government last year, and oddly enough, as we remarked the other day, Government, while dealing fully with the other matters mentioned in the memorial, have had nothing to say about this. Sir John Gorst has fallen back to the ways of dulness since his daring Tarquinius Superbus flight, or Mr. J. P. Smith, whoever he is, might have been given reason to regret that he had himself up to ask so foolish a question.

MILITARY AND NAVAL.

Lady Roberts's Fund for Nursing Sisters and Officers' Hospitals.—The annual statement of receipts and expenditure connected with Lady Roberts's Fund for Nursing Sisters and Officers' Hospitals has just been issued. Up to July 1, 1890, over 1,06,000 rs. had been collected, and during the past year the income in India for the year was about 23,500 rs. This was made up of some 13,000 rs. from subscriptions and entertainments in aid of the fund, and 6,500 rs. odd, interest or investments, the balance being payments by patients. The expenditure was a little over 18,000 rs., thus leaving a balance on the year of more than 5,000 rs.; a very satisfactory return indeed, says the Times of India. The chief items of expenditure were, of course, the salaries of the nurses (10,600 rs.), and the cost of keeping up the homes in the hills, some 5,000 rs. In England 303½ was collected; this was expended mainly in paying the passage of two nurses from England and in purchasing furniture for the Quetta Home. The fund is one which should be warmly supported by every British officer and soldier serving in India.

The Reorganisation of the Madras Cavalry.—The Secretary of State has refrained from entirely acceding to the proposals of the Commander-in-Chief of India, backed by the Supreme Government, for the reorganisation of the Madras Cavalry. The Madras Government and Commander-in-Chief vigorously protested against the reductions. Sir Frederick Roberts and the Supreme Government recommended the disbandment of two Madras Cavalry regiments, in order to admit the raising of a larger number of local battalions for Burma. Lord Cross has directed that no further reductions are to be made in the Madras Infantry regiments, and, being unsatisfied with the arguments advanced for the retention of only two cavalry regiments for Madras, has sanctioned a reduction of only one regiment, while the remaining three will each be supplemented by an additional hundred men. The total saving by this arrangement is estimated at 90,000 rs. per annum. It is believed that the 2nd Madras Lancers will be the regiment disbanded.

Warrant Officers' Pay.—The warrant officers of the Indian Army Departments are agitating for (a) increased pay and allowances; (b) higher furlough pay; (c) higher family remittances; (d) free passage to England; (e) free passage by road and rail to the hills when going on sick leave; (f) house accommodation when there; (g) increased allowance of baggage and number of servants when proceeding by rail. They apparently overlook the liberal way in which they have been granted leave, remarks the Bombay Gazette, and the liberal pension rules which no other servants of Government enjoy—viz. pension in England and the Colonies, at the same number of pounds sterling per annum as they are allowed rupees per mensem in this country—e.g. a warrant officer retiring on 240 rs. per mensem in this country can take 240l. per annum in England or the Colonies. It would be well for them to carefully consider the subject before putting forward claims which would not meet with consideration and be entirely thrown out. Let them point out where the shoe actually pinches and they may obtain relief.

Officers and Volunteer Corps.—The appointment of officers to Volunteer Corps has undergone another change. It is now ordered that the commandants and field officers of corps in the Bengal Presidency, with the exception of the corps comprising the administrative battalion, East Indian Railway Volunteers, will be appointed by Local Governments or Administrations, with the approval of the Government of India, and in the other case by the Commander-in-Chief in India. Officers of lower grades will be elected by the members, as has always been the case, but in railway corps they will be nominated by the commanding officer from the members of the corps; and, in both cases, will be submitted for the approval of the Local Government or the Commander-in-Chief, as the case may require.

The Proposed Mobilisation.—It had been hoped that during the coming cold weather an attempt might have been made to mobilise a large number of troops in India, with a view to testing the machinery which has been elaborated since 1885; but, says the Times of India, the expenditure involved in the protracted operations in the Black Mountain, coupled with the second Miranzai and the Manipore expeditions, has been too great to permit of any exceptional outlay in the direction indicated. It was estimated that at least four lacs of rupees would have been required to carry out the experiment in mobilisation, whereas the usual grant for camps of exercise in all India is only one-fourth of that sum. The allotment gives 65,000 rs. to the Bengal Army, and this will permit of a fairly large concentration at Manipore, and of the usual manoeuvres in the various district commands. During the last six months some 20,000 troops have been engaged in real warfare, and although the expeditions have only been against frontier tribes, both officers and men must have acquired some practical knowledge of the work required of them in the field.

The Bhownuggur Contingent for the Imperial Service Corps.—Captain Forbes, who has been appointed advising and inspecting officer for the cavalry which is being organised for the Imperial Service Corps by the States of Bhownuggur, Junagadh and Nowanuggur, was at Bhownuggur when the mail left, and the organisation of the contingent in that State, which is to consist of 300 Lancers, was being actively proceeded with. The Maharaja, who will be the honorary colonel of his troops, has issued a stirring appeal to his Rajput and other subjects to enlist in a service which will be honourable to them and of value to their State and to the empire. The address recalls the military traditions of the Rajputs; and, says the Bombay Gazette, if the new corps opens out a career to this class of the Maharaja's subjects—the class who are most in need of employment and are at the same time best fitted for this service—it will be a double benefit.

Sukkur Fort.—With a view of completing the fortifications at Sukkur, which have already cost the State some lacs of rupees, it is now proposed to garrison the Sukkur fort, situated in the centre of the Indus, with some troops and heavy guns, for the protection evidently of the Lansdowne Suspension Bridge spanning the river.

Revised instructions for fitting valise equipment pattern, 1882, and the revised edition of Infantry Drill have been received in India for distribution to the three Presidency armies.

The Secretary of State has decided that no recovery shall be made from the estate of a deceased officer in respect of any advance of pay drawn by him on return to duty from the India Office.

All matters connected with discipline, drill, inspections, reviews, stores, sergeant-instructors, &c., of Volunteer corps, will be referred by general officers commanding to Army Headquarters, unless the general is of opinion that the matter more properly comes under the province of the local Government or administration.

The following is an extract from the Annual Report of the Inspecting Veterinary Surgeon, Madras Army, dated April 23 last, on the horses of the 7th (Q.O.) Hussars:—"I have never seen in the army better groomed horses with greater bloom on their coats, and all the signs of health, and just in proper proportion."

The force which Captain C. Maguire takes with him to British Central Africa as a police force will be composed as follows:—Seven men from the 1st Hyderabad Lancers, ten from the 2nd Lancers, five from the 3rd Lancers, twenty-six from the 23rd Punjab Infantry, and twenty-three from the 32nd Pioneers.

In spite of the vigilance exercised by the cantonment authorities, thefts of Government arms appear to be still rife in Rawalpindi, for we find from a notification published in the last Police Gazette that during the early part of June last no fewer than eight Martini-Henri rifles were stolen from the barracks of the 1st Battalion King's Royal Rifles at Rawalpindi.

It is expected that at least nine regiments of cavalry and three batteries of horse artillery will be concentrated at the Manipuri camp-of-exercise. The troops taking part in the manoeuvres will be drawn from Umballa, Meerut, Muttra, Bareilly and Lucknow, and will include the 5th Lancers, the 7th Dragoon Guards, and the 16th Lancers. There will be the usual camp for siege operations at Roorkee this cold weather.

It has been ruled that the Government of India may grant a step in honorary rank, with permission to wear the uniform of his corps, as an exceptional case, to an officer, without reference to his length of service; and that a step in honorary rank may also be granted, in exceptional cases, to a lieutenant-colonel, major, or captain, without reference to his length of service.

In modification of former orders, the Government of India has ruled that when an officer is placed on deputation, and it is known from the first that the period of his deputation will exceed three months, he shall not be allowed to draw fixed tentage at all, but that in other cases it may be drawn up to a maximum of three months, provided that the officer acting for the officer absent on deputation shall draw only the tentage of his own rank.

It is noted at Simla that the command of the local Volunteer corps has been offered to Sir Mortimer Durand, and the hope is expressed on all sides that he may accept it.

Col. T. O. Underwood passed the high proficiency examination in Urdu at Fort St. George on July 6.

Col. A. M. Rawlins, R.H.A., colonel on the Staff and commanding the Royal Artillery, Poona District, has been granted leave from July 17 to Sept. 14.

Col. C. J. Smith, whose services have been replaced at the disposal of the Military Department, will not return to his post as consulting engineer of railways in Madras on the expiry of his furlough this month. Lieut.-Col. W. E. Coaker will get the permanent appointment.

It was currently reported that Col. Major, Madras Staff Corps, presidency paymaster, would succeed Col. C. T. P. Luxmore, Madras Staff Corps, as pay examiner, Bombay, on the latter vacating on attaining fifty-two years of age—namely, on Aug. 1.

Four officers, says the Poona Observer, are in the running to succeed General Kenny Herbert as Military Secretary to the Government of Madras—namely, Cols. Hunt, Hallett, Hope, and McLeod. Col. Hallett, who has made his mark in the legal branch, first as Presidency Magistrate and then as Judge-Advocate-General, Madras Army, is considered to have the best chance. It is believed that General Kenny Herbert will find employment in the Political Branch of the Service, as several vacancies will occur in the next few months.

Major R. H. Daniell, Staff Corps, Second-in-Command, 5th Bombay Cavalry, has been granted leave to proceed out of India on private affairs under the Leave Rules for the Staff Corps, for the unexpired portion of his one year's leave in India, from date of departure in Sept. 1891 to April 14, 1892.

Major H. F. S. Ramsden, Madras Staff Corps Military Accounts Department, in which he was employed as Ordnance Examiner, Bombay, has left Poona for Simla to take up his new appointment in the Military Department, Secretariat.

Major C. H. Scott, R.A., Ordnance Department, was to deliver a lecture at the United Service Institution, Simla, on July 21, on smokeless powders. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief would preside.

The Government of India have sanctioned the appointment of Lieut. H. A. K. Jennings, R.A., Ordnance Officer, as Assistant to the Inspector-General of Ordnance, Madras Circle, in room of Col. C. W. Brereton, R.A., whose services have been placed at the disposal of the Commander-in-Chief. The appointment will have effect from August 1, 1891.

Crime in Calcutta.—There appears to have been a considerable increase of crime in Calcutta last year. "Cognisable" offences were more numerous both in the town and suburbs than in 1889, while "non-cognisable" fell off in the town and increased in the suburbs. Burglaries, it is satisfactory to note, show a general decrease, but there is a very discouraging growth in the number of convictions for cruelty to animals. There was only one case of kidnapping with theft, although over five hundred children wearing ornaments were found astray in the streets of the city.

BENGAL.

OUR latest advices from Calcutta are to July 14.

The Lieutenant-Governor at Hooghly.—On July 10 the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal with Mr. Veasy, commissioner of Burdwan, and Mr. Cooke, district magistrate of Hooghly, opened a new town hall at Hooghly. The proceedings opened with a short address, embodying a welcome and a hope that under his honour local self-government would expand. It drew attention to the poverty of the municipality, and asked for material help from Government. His honour's help was also asked to bring his influence to bear on the East Indian Railway to open a station near the viaduct of the new Hooghly Bridge. His honour then declared the Victoria Jubilee Hall open, and proceeded to inspect the gaol, the cutcherry, and the imambara. He stays for four days in Hooghly.

Students Entertained by the Lieutenant-Governor.—His honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal gave a river party on July 11 to about 100 students in the M.A. classes of the different colleges in Calcutta. The party started from Chandpal-ghat at 4 P.M. in the steamer Buckland, which had been very kindly lent for the occasion by the Port Commissioners, and returned at 7 P.M., after a very pleasant trip as far down the river as time allowed. All the students were introduced to his honour by their professors or principals, and had a few minutes' conversation. Lady Elliott had a word for each and all in her usual charming manner. Refreshments, both orthodox and otherwise, were plentiful and done ample justice to. Besides the students, the party consisted of Lady Elliott, his honor's staff, Mrs. Henderson, Messrs. Tawney, Webb, Stack, Rowe, Lee Stephen, Nilmani Mookerjee, Mahesa Chandra, Nyayarutna, and Bankim Chandra Chatterjee. The trip was thoroughly enjoyed by all, and the students showed their appreciation by cheering his honour as he drove away from the ghat.

Earthquake.—A slight but decided shock of earthquake was felt in Calcutta on Saturday at 4.10 A.M. A telegram states that it was also felt at Maulvi Bazar, in Sylhet, at about the same moment. In Calcutta, the shock was followed by occasional earth tremours which lasted for a quarter of an hour.

The Magistracy.—Appeals against the decisions of the Calcutta magistrates were almost uniformly unsuccessful last year. Of thirty-four ordinary appeals preferred against the orders of the Chief Presidency Magistrate, only one resulted in a conviction being set aside, while the High Court was moved in revision in five cases, but only once successfully. Fifty-one appeals against the orders of the Northern Division Presidency Magistrate were all unsuccessful, together with ten out of twelve motions to the High Court. Of twelve ordinary appeals against the decisions of honorary magistrates, all except one were rejected, and the same fate befell three motions to the High Court. There could scarcely be more satisfactory proof of the care and accuracy with which justice is dispensed by the Calcutta magistracy than the general ill-success of appeal against their decisions.

It is said to be the intention of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to abolish all the zillah schools in the Lower Provinces. His honour thinks that the time has come when the zillah schools might well be self-supporting.

An interesting ceremony, writes a local correspondent, was witnessed on July 6 at Sehore, Bhopal, when Colonel Ransford, the Acting Political Agent, opened the new Leper Asylum. The ceremony was attended by all the European and principal native inhabitants of Sehore, including the representatives of the various States in the Bhopal Political Agency.

MADRAS.

OUR advices from Madras are to July 15.

The Distress around Madras.—The season reports for the week ending July 4, writes the Madras Mail, disclose a more gloomy situation than ever, and if the rains still continue to hold off in the provoking manner that they have done hitherto, the reports of the ensuing weeks may be expected to show a continually increasing measure of distress. Although the rainfall was general throughout the Presidency during last week, it has been very slight in the affected tracts. Government reports that distress is increasing in Chingleput and Kalahasti Zemindary in North Arcot, where prices show a serious rise, and also in parts of Cuddalore and Coimbatore. In Chingleput rice is now at 10.82 seers per rupee as against 11.63 seers last year; while ragi, the staple food, is at 17.70 seers as against 23.08 seers last year. In North Arcot prices are rather better, but still very high. Rice there is at 11.29 seers as against 13.16 seers last year, and ragi is at 22.08 seers as against 27.43 seers last year. In Chingleput over 7,000 coolies were employed on works on the last day of the week—viz., 1,631 in Ponneri, besides 1,875 employed under the Salt Excise manufacturers; 2,056 in Chingleput, 1,693 in Trivellore, 715 in Madurantakam, 525 in Saidapet, and 475 in Conjeevaram, 275 persons, including 69 women, and 146 children, were being fed in the kitchens in the four taluqs of Ponneri, Trivellore, Saidapet and Chingleput. Up to date 447 wells have been constructed, and 1,240 wells were under construction during the week. The loans sanctioned up to date for this purpose amount to 14,577 rs. In North Arcot 5,249 coolies were employed on works on the last day of the week in Wandiwash taluq, and 1,899 in the Kalahasti Zemindary. The number being fed at kitchens in the Wandiwash taluq on June 27, was 777, including 131 women and 599 children, and in the Kalahasti Zemindary 795, of whom 602 were children. These are the two districts most affected, but Cuddapah reports that the cattle are dying for want of water; while drinking water is reported scarce in some parts of South Arcot and Nellore. This failure of drinking water for men and cattle is the most serious feature of the distress in some villages, and it is to be hoped that Government will take immediate steps to grant loans for drinking water wells, where necessary, as readily as it does for irrigation wells.

We pointed out on Saturday the very urgent need there was for this form of relief, and from information that has reached us since it is clear that to neglect it any longer is to court the visitation of those famine diseases which experience shows are even more fatal than starvation itself.

The death-rate of Madras continues abnormally high. The Madras Municipal Amendment Bill has been dropped under telegraphic orders of the Secretary of State.

Colonel Moore was to be installed on July 18 as Grand Master for the Madras Presidency, vice Lord Connemara. All members of the different lodges in the Presidency had been invited to attend.

The Ootacamund paper hears that the wife of a local pleader, Mr. Rencontre, will be one of the participators, with three others, of twenty-one lacs of rupees left them by the Marquis D'Castellas. The amount has for some years been in chancery, and has only now been sent to the Administrator-General, Calcutta, for distribution to the parties entitled to participate. Marquis D'Castellas made his fortune by indigo-planting in Bengal.

CEYLON.

Railway Extension.—The extension of the Haputale Railway as far as Bandarawella has been sanctioned by the Secretary of State for the Colonies. Mr. Waring has been prospecting the country between Polgahawella and Kurunegala in connection with the proposed railway extension in that direction.

Failure of a Colombo Firm.—The well-known firm of Messrs. Alston, Scott and Co., Colombo, has been obliged to suspend payment in consequence of the failure of their chief correspondents, Messrs. Campbell Rivers and Co., Glasgow, a house of 200 years' standing, in connection, first, with the West Indian, and latterly the East Indian, and chiefly Ceylon trade. The position of the Colombo house, a correspondent says, was further complicated by the death of Mr. John Patrick Alston, of Muirburn, and liquidation was felt to be the best way out of the difficulty. The London house does not go into liquidation, and the Colombo firm is expected to show a favourable result, plantations in their hands having been paying their way, and being very promising for the future. Messrs. Percy and Stanley Bois in connection with this failure have announced that they have commenced business as merchants and commission agents under the name of Messrs. Bois Brothers and Co. The partners of Messrs. Alston, Scott, and Co. are Messrs. H. C. Buchanan, F. W. Bois, W. Gibson, and W. H. Alston; and the agency of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China held by them has been transferred to Messrs. Whittall and Co. Mr. Stanley Bois has gone on a visit to Calcutta, and it is thought that the object is to arrange for the British India Agency held by the old firm.

BOMBAY.

OUR latest advices from Bombay are to July 17.

Cotton-trade Frauds.—The members of the Bombay Cotton Trade Association held a meeting for the purpose of discussing the memorandum drawn up by Mr. H. E. M. James, C.S., relative to the question of frauds in the cotton trade and the deterioration of the staple. Mr. J. Tintner presided. The chairman, having explained the object of the meeting, dealt at some length with Mr. James's memorandum, and in the course of his speech said the staple had not been so good as it was some years ago, but that was not the fault of the Association. He was of opinion that they should commence with the ryot. Government should assist the ryot by inducing him to plant the best seeds that could be procured. He did not think that sufficient use had been made of the experimental farms. From time to time the Association had got a few samples of cotton grown at the farms, and had expressed a desire to the managers to buy certain quantities of it, but they never heard any more about the matter. Mr. James thought that the Association was to blame for very much of what had occurred; but the chairman did not really think that was the case, for the Association was very strict with cotton that came before it for survey. He concluded his remarks by moving—"That this Association approves most heartily Mr. James's proposals, requesting the Government to organise the distribution of good local seed in large quantities at cost price, or even below that, or, if necessary, gratis, in order to induce the ryot to procure his seed from the Government depots, but it cannot, however, accept his views with regard to legislation in any form, not considering the same desirable in principle, nor conducive to the effect intended."

A Dishonest Forest Officer.—At the Criminal Sessions, before Mr. Justice Farren, what is known as the Booldana breach of trust case came to an end, after a week's hearing, on July 7. In it, George Herbert Wittenbaker, a European forest officer, claimed to be tried on two charges of criminal breach of trust as a public servant, he having about June 30, 1890, while employed in the service of Government at Booldana, in the capacity of forest officer, and while entrusted with property to the extent of 1,791 rs., received by him for grazing fees for cattle, misappropriated out of that sum the amount of 693.8 rs.; and also at the same time and place having applied to his own use a further sum of 404 rs. 8a., being part of a sum of 940 rs. received by him from cattle-owners for grazing fees. Mr. Jardine and Mr. Russell, instructed by the Hon. Mr. Frere, acting Public Prosecutor, appeared for the Crown. Mr. P. M. Mehta, instructed by Messrs. Mansuklal, Damodhur, and Jamsetjee, represented the accused. After half an hour's consultation the jury unanimously found the prisoner guilty in respect of the two charges of criminal breach of trust. The prisoner said he had already stated what he had to say, and did not wish to add anything more. His lordship, in passing sentence, said it was his painful duty to give effect to the verdict of the jury. The accused, as a European British subject, should have set an example to others; but it appeared that when money was entrusted to him, he was not proof against the temptation to take it. Feeling sure that accused had given way to temptation, and that he had suffered much pain, as was shown by the medical evidence, and bearing also in mind that this was his first offence, his lordship said he would take a lenient view of the case, and accordingly passed a sentence of two years' rigorous imprisonment.

BURMA.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE Rangoon correspondent of the Times writes on Aug. 2:—

The want of rain continues to be very seriously felt in many districts in Upper Burma. Sir A. Mackenzie, who has been on tour through the districts between Prome and Myingyan, has, in several speeches made at durbars held by him, expressed the sympathy he felt with the people in the losses they had sustained by the failure of the rainfall. Relief works will probably be necessary in several districts. In Lower Burma, on the other hand, the rains continue to be unusually heavy.

The Chief Commissioner announced in a speech at Pococo that he had submitted to the Government of India a scheme for the immediate construction of a railway to link Myingyan with the Burma State Railway at Samon. This line would be extended from Myingyan to a point on the Irrawaddy opposite Pococo.

At a durbar held at Myingyan, in referring to the recent fighting in the Chin Hills and to the work remaining to be done there, Sir A. Mackenzie paid a high tribute to the gallantry of our officers. He said he doubted if the arduous conditions of military service in Burma were fully realised at home. After referring in flattering terms to Major Grant's gallantry, he added:—

"To my mind, it argues an even higher type of military virtue to hold with pluck and cheerfulness the fever-stricken valley post, to lead with calm confidence the little band of Goorkhas and Pathans along the precipitous hill path, not knowing when may come a volley from the lurking tribesmen, or the not less deadly hail of loosed rock, or to rush the strong stockade over spiked paths, and through the jungle dense with thorn, with no admiring armies looking on, and for glory only a chance of falling by the fence of some unknown hill village."

To avoid henceforward hurling troops against unknown stockades and well-fenced villages, the Chief Commissioner said that he had, with the assistance of Sir Frederick Roberts, arranged that all frontier posts and expeditions should be supplied with mountain guns or rockets. A few shells or rockets would often secure a bloodless victory.

THE GOVERNMENT of India have taken up the question raised by Sir Alexander Mackenzie in Burma as to the complete subordination of the Public Works officers to the civil executive. There are already in existence rules which should be sufficient to regulate the relations between the two authorities mentioned, and Government are likely to declare emphatically what is to be the correct interpretation of them.

THE CHIEF COMMISSIONER of Burma lays against the police commissioners and deputy commissioners of the province the following complaint:—He finds that, with one or two exceptions, the reports which are sent to him are little better than compilations of totals, and that from the brevity with which many deputy commissioners comment on the police reports of their districts, as well as from the remarks made by several regarding the relations between the magistracy and the police, it is apparent that many of them fail to appreciate their position as heads of the police of their districts.

IT WOULD appear from the official records, as well as the local press, says the Times of India, that Burma is the home of lost causes and forgotten aspirations, although now and then we hear a wail of regret. The proposals for creating a High Court of Judicature and establishing a University at Rangoon are as much things of the past as the snows of last year. Time after time the Chief Commissioners and Judges of the Province have supported the memorials of the Chamber of Commerce and of the local Bar, insisting that the highly defective judicial arrangements should be remedied and an effective tribunal of three Judges established. But the system of separate and rival Judges still goes on as in the olden days when we had a Supreme Court and a Sudder Court; and if an appeal goes to Calcutta, separate fees have to be paid to the counsel and solicitors there. The present indifference of the Rangoon community is the more remarkable, as it is believed that the Supreme Government were willing to act on a scheme drawn up by a former Judicial Commissioner seven or eight years ago.

WE MAY soon have some more fighting in Burma, says the Mandalay paper. It is under consideration whether it will be advisable or not to include among the semi-independent States, subject to the British Government, the State of Kyaing Chaing, which is at present overrun by the Siamese, but which was subject to Burma when the upper province was ruled by a Burmese king. The Kyaing Chaing State is situated on the east side of the Mekong; but as the Burma-Siam Boundary Commission think that the river is wholly unsatisfactory as an eastern boundary of Burma they deem it advisable to include the State in Burma. We do not know whether the ruler and people of this State are willing to acknowledge British sovereignty, but in any case we are sure that Siam will have something to say in the matter.

A TELEGRAM to the Pioneer from Fort White (July 7) states:—The rains have fairly set in, but a large quantity of corrugated iron has already been brought up by the Chin coolies and the barracks have been roofed with it, and, as the tents have been consequently abandoned, we are prepared to withstand three months' rain. The sickness at present is not excessive, and not nearly as bad as it was last year at old Fort White. Captain Stone has gone down, and the Commissariat duties devolve upon Lieutenant Smiles, who has come up to relieve him, and, as Lieutenants Grant and MacTier have arrived, Lieutenant Champain has gone down to rejoin his own regiment. The Haisei people have come in and taken oath, following the example of the Kanhows; and by so doing they have obtained the release of two of their people who had been in gaol at Myingyan for two months.

Indian Engineering learns that the surveys undertaken by Mr. F. R. Bagley at the northern end of the Mu Valley Railway, now under construction, are nearly completed. Judging from Mr. Bagley's reports on the Shan Hills Railway Survey, it adds, we expect that his present performance will be commensurate with expectations.

PUNJAB, N.-W. P., OUDE, &c.

THE LONG-CONTINUED drought has made Simla quite unhealthy this season, half the station being down with influenza. If rain holds off much longer something akin to a water famine may be expected. The ryots are in despair, and energetic tom-toming is going on night and day in hopes of propitiating the clerk of the weather.

It is probable that a Bacteriological Laboratory will shortly be established in connection with the Lahore Veterinary College for the study of equine and bovine diseases.

IN CONNECTION with the important change in the Excise administration in the North-West Provinces, that of levying a stillhead duty varying with the strength of the liquor manufactured, in lieu of the one uniform rate at present in force, which comes into operation on Oct. 1 next, the Commissioner of Excise has now intimated a revised scale of duty that will be levied—namely, a stillhead duty of 1 re. per imperial gallon on liquor which is from 48 to 52 degrees below London proof, and a stillhead duty of 1-8 re. per imperial gallon on liquor which is from 23 to 27 degrees below London proof. It is provided, moreover, that liquors of the above-mentioned strengths only shall be issued from Government distilleries.

HYDERABAD.

THE Standard publishes the following telegraphic news from Hyderabad:—

"An official report, signed by the Minister, Sir Asman Jah, gives an interesting account of the army of the Nizam, from which I take the following facts and figures. The regular troops number 1,230 cavalry, 260 artillery, and 3,320 infantry. Attached to this force are 57 European officers.

"The irregular troops number 20,676, of whom 6,386 are Arabs. Of this force about 3,500 are cavalry. There is a separate irregular force of about 1,000 men, known as the Nizam Mahaboo.

"Last comes the Golconda Brigade of 360 cavalry, 1,050 infantry, and 162 artillery. This brigade is regularly drilled and carefully trained in all branches of military duty. It is pronounced to be very efficient, with the exception of the guns of the artillery, which are old, and are to be replaced with new ones.

"By a new arrangement, the Government of Hyderabad has obtained a firm hold over the irregular troops. Instead of paying their commanders, the men have to present themselves once a month to the appointed officers of the Nizam, and receive their pay direct from them. This arrangement has naturally dissatisfied the officers, but it has given great pleasure to the soldiers, who now receive their pay regularly and intact.

"For the first time for four years the Hyderabad Government has published an account of its annual proceedings, and Sir Asman Jah's Report to the Nizam for the last official year is in every way a remarkable and interesting production. He also engages that, owing to his stringent orders to his subordinates, regular Administration Reports shall be published each year in future.

"The present report deals with all matters of government under twenty-six heads, ranging from police to the press, and from surveys and stamps to sanitation. The general impression has hitherto been that the financial position of the Nizam's Government is unsound, but the facts point to an opposite conclusion. The revenue amounted to 4,05,94,382 rs., and the expenditure to 3,16,11,179 rs., showing a balance of 89,83,203 rs., or nearly three-quarters of a million sterling. On this result the Minister naturally pronounces the financial position to be very satisfactory, and it is rendered the more gratifying by the surplus paid during this period by the Indian Government on account of the assigned district of Berar showing a deficit of half a lac as compared with the preceding year."

SOME of the vernacular newspapers at Hyderabad have expressed themselves in favour of the new Hyderabad press rules. A leading Urdu paper states that these rules will supply a long-felt want for the control of the press, in the absence of any special laws on the subject, and will put an end to blackmailing.

THE ANNUAL tent-pegging tournament at Hyderabad took place a day or two ago, when the silver cup presented by Colonel Neville, C.I.E., was won by a team of the 4th Lancers, Hyderabad Contingent. Last year this cup was won by the 7th Hussars, but as the condition is that it can only be held if won for two consecutive years, it has passed out of the hands of the Hussars, and is now held by the Contingent. Several teams from Secunderabad and the Nizam's troops competed for the prize, and there was a large assemblage of visitors, who evinced great interest in the sports. In the absence of Mrs. Neville, who, to the great regret of her numerous friends, is laid up with illness, the cup was given away by Mrs. Lawrie, the popular wife of the Residency surgeon.

A LOCAL CORRESPONDENT writes:—The evidence adduced for the prosecution in the case in which two Arabs were charged with having attacked and wounded Lieutenants Sexton and Brewster, has been corroborative. During the hearing on Monday and Tuesday the shikari, the orderly, and Mr. Sexton's butler, have repeated, with hardly a contradiction, the story of the complainants. The cross-examination was a wearisome one, continuing for several hours together each day, during which no contradictory evidence was given. Some amusing passages-of-arms occurred in Urdu between the court and the native pleader. On Wednesday the statements of the two accused were taken. The first accused denied having attacked the officers at all. On his telling the sahibs that buffaloes could not be procured that evening as the ryots, who had not been paid, had run away, the sahibs got very angry, and abused him and his colleague, and attacked him. They threw him down, and both sahibs took away his arms, while the orderly hit him on the head with a spear. Mr. Brewster shouted to his servant to bring a rifle from the tent, while Mr. Sexton held him behind; and when the rifle was brought, Mr. Brewster took it and fired at his chest; but he turned round and received the charge on his left arm. He added that he fell senseless, and the bigger Arab then came up and took him away to his village. The second accused supported the story that Mr. Brewster fired on the smaller man, but he did not, it appeared, witness the affray. Having recorded the statements, the Court framed charges under sections 109, 326, and 511 C. P. Code. On hearing the charges read, the pleader for the defence withdrew from the case, but the Judge intimated that he would acquaint the Government with his action, and ask whether they would appoint a pleader for the defence.

French Aspirations in South India.—Indian Engineering says:—Pondicherry, not content with being connected with the S. I. Railway system, and thus able to divert no small share of the export trade of the adjacent British districts, is now desirous of monopolising the whole of the export trade of British territory between the Palar and Coleroon Rivers, which should find its way to Madras and Cuddalore. The proposals for another branch line from British into French territory have been lately referred to by us, though the prospect of its being carried out appears to be remote. We now find Karikal anxious for a railway to connect it with the Myavaram-Mutupett line at Peralam. With Tranquebar languishing, and the possibilities in store for Nagore and Negapatam, we must look upon this proposal also with concern and suspicion.

CENTRAL ASIAN NOTES.

It is notified in the Invalide Russe that Major-General Karpoff, of the Corps d'état-major, has been appointed military governor of the district of Semipalatinsk.

The Nahr-Dar, an Armenian newspaper published at Tiflis, has received the following communication from a correspondent at Merv:—The number of Russian colonists in the Transcaspien territory increases daily. The local authorities, anxious to promote the well-being of these colonists, are helping them both with money and grants of land. The neighbourhood of Pul-i-Khatun, on the Hari-Kud, has been fixed on as a region which may be given over to them, and an engineer, M. Ouspensky, has been drawing up plans for the establishment of a colony there.

It is notified in the Invalide Russe that Colonel Yolschine, commanding the 121st Regiment of Infantry, is promoted to the rank of major-general and appointed to the command of the 2nd Brigade of the Line of Turkestan.

According to a Reuter despatch from St. Petersburg (July 29) the Russian Government will shortly commence the construction of the first section of the new branch line which is intended to connect the Transcaspien railway system with the town of Sarakhs, on the Russo-Persian frontier. The new line, which will be 325 kilometres long, will be of great strategic importance, bringing railway communication with European Russia within a comparatively short distance of Penj-deh and the Herat frontier of Afghanistan. The undertaking is also intended to facilitate the export to Persia of Russian Central Asian products, especially cotton.

The Lahore paper learns from a reliable source in Cabul that the account given by a Cabul correspondent, in its issue of the 24th, regarding the journey of the new British agent, Sardar Muhammad Afzal Khan, was incorrect. The agent's arrival at Cabul was not private and unceremonious, as stated. Indeed, as soon as the Sardar entered the Ameer's territory, he found all arrangements made for his convenience. At every stage military officers awaited his arrival, and accompanied him with an escort to the limits of their respective commands.

Dr. Gray's arrival in India may for the moment, says an Indian paper, attract attention to the fact that there is a little colony of six Englishmen in Cabul, servants of the Ameer, and busily engaged in the manufacture of arms and ammunition. Messrs. Walsh, Lovett and Co. have just sent up two more Europeans on a temporary visit, one being Mr. Walsh, junior, while an English tailor has also come out to take service with Abdul Rahman. The latter treats his Europeans generously. In spite of the difficulties of their position in a fanatical city, they all seem satisfied with their engagements. Dr. Gray, as might be expected, has a very large practice in Cabul, thousands of the common people flocking to him in the year for treatment. They have great faith in the foreign hakim, unbeliever though he is, for their own doctors are, of course, ignorant of even the rudiments of surgery. Diseases of the eye are exceedingly common throughout Afghanistan, and Dr. Gray is continuing the work begun by Dr. Owen during the British occupation of Cabul in 1879-80. One story is told which illustrates how strong is filial affection among the Afghans, treacherous and cruel though they are in their dealings with each other. A soldier in the Ameer's army took his blind mother all the way from Mazar-i-Sharif to Cabul, a long and toilsome journey, in order that Dr. Gray might operate upon her eyes. The case unfortunately was a hopeless one, as only too many are in Afghanistan, where cataract and other eye diseases run their course before the patients are brought to the doctor. It is something, however, gained in the cause of humanity that even one surgeon should be practising in Cabul.

Through the courtesy of the writer, we are able to produce the following letter which he has addressed to the Times of India in relation to an extract we recently published from that paper:—

"Sir,—With reference to the comments of 'the well-known Central Asian Traveller' upon our letters 'From London to Samarcand,' I should wish to remark that the terms 'Russophilism' and 'Russophobia' appear to me to be altogether senseless as applied to anyone's views regarding our national relations with Russia, for there can be no more reason for us to love any particular foreign Power than to fear it. If, however, your correspondent by using this term means to imply that I am one of those who believe that our national interests would be better served by a more conciliatory demeanour towards Russia than by one which appears to aim at exasperating her by attacks upon her self-esteem and attempts to baffle her in every move, then I have no objection to the application of the term 'Russophile' to myself.

"I have now visited the Caucasus four times, which is once more than your correspondent, and have seen no occasion to alter my opinion regarding the attitude of the Christian population there, by which I mean more particularly the Georgian element, as being the more numerous and important. The foremost admirer of the Armenians would admit, I think, that their tastes are not such as are eminently fitted for a military career. I am not surprised, therefore, that the Russian Government should hesitate about the promotion to the rank of general officer of such as have engaged in it.

"'Caucasian' is a vague term to use, for the region of the Caucasus is supposed to contain a greater variety of distinct nationalities in a smaller space than any other part of the world; if it is intended to apply it to the more turbulent Mahomedan portion of the population (including the 'gallant' Circassian), it is not improbable that many of these are still pining for the good old times when they could plunder the villages and ravish the women of their Christian neighbours with impunity, as their brethren still do across the Turkish frontier.—Yours truly, C. E. BIDDULPH."

A telegram from So-uj-Bolak, dated July 28, says:—Miss Greenfield was yesterday privately consulted by her mother, Mr. Paton, the acting British Vice-Consul, and Prince Nosrat Dowleh, the commander of the Persian troops. She asserted of her own free will that she had become a convert to Islamism. She declared that she loved Aziz, the Kurd who had carried her off, and had changed her religion voluntarily. Her words were: "I love Aziz, and I am Mussulman." But to-day the Daily News prints a fresh telegram from Tauris, in which it is asserted that in a private interview with her mother she said she was a Christian but was afraid to say so publicly. Dr. Greenfield thinks the girl is slightly deranged. Mr. Paton, the acting British Vice-Consul, is said to be dissatisfied.

Quite a number of conflicting reports, writes the Pioneer, have recently appeared regarding Umra Khan of Jandol, the "coming Khan" as we ventured to call him last year after his victories against the petty chiefs in the country between the Kunar River and Swat. According to trustworthy information that has reached us, he appears just now to be in rather a bad way. Intoxicated with success he needlessly made enemies all round, and even attacked Mian Gul, who looks upon himself as the new Akhund of Swat. The result is that he has now arrayed against him Sadfar Khan of Nawagai, Mahomed Sharif Khan (ex-Khan of Dir), Mian Gul, and the Swatis, while in the background stands his implacable enemy the Ameer of Cabul. Abdul Rahman is most anxious to break his power, and is now hounding on the Mohmands against him. Umra Khan has shown such spirit and enterprise in the guerilla war, which has now lasted for three or four years, that we cannot but sympathise with him in his extremity. He is, however, a man of great resource, and it is quite possible he may again prove himself more than a match for all his enemies.

NOTES FROM THE FAR EAST.

THE following telegrams have been published since our last issue:—

SHANGHAI, July 27 (Standard).—The fact has been disclosed that the son of an eminent Chinese Diplomatist now in Europe took a leading part in stirring up the late riots and outrages, in which a number of Christians lost their lives. The same person, I am informed, was the actual author of the revolting placards against foreigners.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27 (Reuter).—Advices by mail from China give details of fresh depredations on Christian missions. The latest attack was made on June 29 at Yankao, where the Catholic mission was methodically looted, the crowd standing in a line and passing the plunder from hand to hand. The mission buildings were afterwards set on fire. A few days previously four chapels were destroyed in the province of Kivang Si, near the city of Fu-Chen. The school and the priest's residence were also plundered and burned. On the same day some predatory bands destroyed the French Orphanage at a place called Hai Men. In addition to destroying the building the robbers carried off eight or nine little children.

A correspondent, writing to the China Mail, says that there is a rumour in Canton that serious disturbances have occurred in the province of Fe Kien, it being stated that a band of rebels, several thousand strong, have captured a city. Intelligent Chinese, he adds, think that it will be difficult for foreigners in Canton to escape.

On June 15, a junk, containing three merchants and nine other passengers, with a crew of seven men, was attacked off King Ho, shortly after dusk, by five junks filled with armed men. Resistance was offered and a fierce fight raged for half an hour, at the end of which time two passengers had been killed, two of the crew shot, and three so badly wounded that they died in a few minutes. The remainder, seeing no other chance of escape, then jumped overboard and swam for some distance, being eventually picked up by a fishing boat. The pirates in the meantime seized the junk and sailed away with her.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31 (Reuter).—Advices from Hong Kong state that the recent trouble in the Yangtse Valley spread as far inland as Ichang. A mission station at Spasi was burned, and the mob attempted to capture a steamer, while riots also occurred at Hai-men and Tsung-ming. A general feeling of uneasiness still prevailed at other places in the north, but the large number of gunboats which had arrived in the Yangtse had checked the rioters. The Imperial edict reducing the Chinese garrisons throughout the Empire, imposing a new tax on salt, and requiring the whole of the "lekin" tax on opium for Imperial purposes, is mentioned as one of the chief causes of the riots.

FOOCHOW, Aug. 1 (Times).—Further riots appear to be imminent. Malignant placards are posted up threatening the expulsion of foreigners.

The Missions at Yengping and Fuhning are reported to have been attacked and some lives are said to have been lost.

This port is totally unprotected.

The following is an extract from a Shanghai letter which has been received in Manchester. The date is June 20 :—

We are living in quite exciting times here, and I imagine it won't be very long before we have a row of some sort. There are in China a great number of secret societies, by far the most powerful of which is one called the Kolao Hui. This is a very big society, and has now grown to such enormous proportions that it bids fair to overthrow the Government. The rules of the society are kept secret, and so great are the penalties for disclosing the names of its members that, in spite of its enormous size, the authorities cannot lay their hands for certain on a single member. So far their chief hostility has been shown against the foreigners, not because they dislike us or want to harm us particularly, but simply because they think that by so doing they may land the Government in trouble with the foreign Powers. This, then, is the real source of all the trouble. At lots of the outposts near here there have been outbreaks, but these were capped the other day at Wusieh, when two Englishmen were massacred by the mob. This is a place quite near here, and a place where lots of fellows go up to shoot. The consequence is there is an uneasy feeling here, and every precaution is being taken to protect the settlement. Placards are posted about informing the peaceably disposed that as soon as they hear the alarm go (four guns followed by strokes on the fire bell) they must stay in their houses, as the volunteers will turn out, and anyone in the streets then will be there at their peril. Personally, putting together all I have heard, I don't think we have occasion to fear very much. There are too many foreigners here, and I fancy the volunteers would do a lot to stop any row. Besides that, we have about six men-of-war and gunboats, which could land a thousand to twelve hundred men. Still, the authorities are not letting the grass grow under their feet. We have a few more recruits for the A Company, and these are being instructed every day. A new German company has been started, about fifty strong, all of whom have served at home. This ought to make a very useful company—perhaps the best of the lot. We have been holding ourselves in readiness for the last week or two, and have been practising sentry-go at nights. The other night I kept guard at the powder magazine for about an hour, and it wasn't bad fun preventing anybody from passing if they hadn't the password. Anyhow, one thing is certain, we have not seen the end of the Kolao Hui, and I should not be surprised if there is a revolution sooner or later.

The Daily Chronicle publishes a letter from a missionary, the Rev. Albert J. H. Law, from Nankin (June 16), who, after describing some recent events, says :—"It is firmly believed by many, and earnestly contended in a Shanghai paper, that a great many of these disasters might have been prevented had the British Minister at Peking and the Admiral of the British fleet in these waters taken prompt and sufficient precautions. Although the British fleet for China and Japan numbers over twenty vessels, it is rarely the case that one is to hand when needed most. The Shanghai paper says it is true the ports of China are not so inviting to our officers and sailors belonging to the squadron, but surely the safety of the British in China should be the first consideration. The policy of our Minister at Peking is seriously questioned. In desiring to be on good terms with Chinese officials at the capital the treaty rights of British subjects are oftentimes shuffled, or at least appear to be so, and the deaths of two of our fellow-countrymen—one a young missionary in the bloom of youth, should stir up every right-minded person to use his or her influence in contending that British interests should be properly looked after. As missionaries we come out willing, we trust, if need be to give our lives for the propagation of the Gospel. We do not desire to see Christianity press its onward march by the help of the bayonet and the cannon, but, considering that the treaty gives us the Emperor's protection, and that her Majesty has representatives here to see the treaty carried out, surely we are not required to stand still and see our fellow-countrymen butchered in cold blood because our British officers here do not like to hurt the tender (?) feelings of the Chinese court by keeping British war-ships patrolling the river Yangtze at all times, a safeguard not only to the British but to the Chinese Government, who cannot control their own people. Compensation will of course be asked for. But prevention is better than cure. Let the friends of those whom we mourn be assured of our earnest sympathy with them at this time."

The North China Herald of June 26 says :—Admiral Richards intended when he left Tientsin to go on to Shanhaikuan and Newchwang, but the alarming telegrams he received at Tientsin made him hurry down here, and he has now gone up the Yangtze to judge of the position of things for himself. We presume that it would be quite irregular for him to go to Wusueh and exact reparation for the brutal murder of Mr. Argent and Mr. Green. It is stated that it is intended to send a post-captain's ship here, and it is hoped that the Severn, Captain Hall, will be selected. It is stated in the home papers received by the mail, however, that the Severn has been ordered home to be paid off, and is to be replaced by her sister ship the Mersey. The Phæbe, an 8-gun 3rd-class cruiser of 2,575 tons and 7,500 horse power, is being prepared at home to take the place of the three gun-vessels that are to be recalled from this station. Owing to anticipated trouble at Tongchow, the Aspic left Chinkiang for that place on the 18th. She returned to Chinkiang but left again and was passed at Tongchow on Sunday morning by the Tehhsing.

After the arrival in Hankow of the refugees by the steamer Tehhsing from the late riot at Wusueh, says the same paper, H.B.M. Consul was appealed to by her captain as to his right to land a volunteer force from the steamer and fire if necessary to rescue the lives of ladies and children should a similar case to that of the Wusueh riot again occur. We are now asked to publish the following reply :—

"DEAR CAPT. CAIN,—You asked me if in case of an affair like the Wusueh one you would be justified in landing a party and saving the lives of the ladies and children in danger, and whether, if you could not save the ladies otherwise, you would be justified in firing. My answer is a clear and concise yes. Killing criminals in defence of life is justifiable homicide.

"But after the criminals are in flight you must not fire; killing criminals in revenge is murder. So would killing them be after the danger has ceased.

"I propose informing Lord Salisbury and Sir John Walsham of your question and my answer.

"Meanwhile I should be obliged to you if you would give my letter to you full publicity.—Yours truly, CHRIS. GARDNER.

"Hankow, June 8."

It is reported that Admiral Richards has given instructions to the officers of the gunboats that if they see any attempt at rioting they are to open fire. Let this be known and the roughs will be possessed of wholesome fear. England, Germany, America and France are at last uniting on this question, and it is hoped, says the North China Herald, that the Chinese officials everywhere will get to know that foreign powers are not going to stand their nonsense any longer. They must prevent rioting or foreign powers will take matters into their own hands and prevent it themselves.

There is no doubt that the Kolao Hui is a non-Buddhist military society. The people say that in taking the oath of membership they kill a cock and drink the blood—the old and new members do this together—and that this is a measure intended to ensure the fidelity of the members to each other. It began some fifty years ago in Yunnan and Kueichow, but later on its chief seat was in Hunan, as at present. It was in the army all through the Taiping troubles. Similar societies have existed in China ever since the Han dynasty. They often make much of the planchette, which implies the Taoist element. A suspended pencil scratches characters on a sanded planchette, and is supposed to be moved by one of the immortal genii of the Taoists, who comes down in response to an act of worship to the room where the members of the society are assembled. It is seated on a phoenix or loan. He moves the pencil, and the leader of the society present interprets the marks made in the sand. This custom of expecting the genii to come down and write oracles has been common in China ever since the third or at latest the fourth century. If any sect has this ceremony it is not Buddhist but Taoist. In the statute-book the law is as strict against the one as against the other. The Sacred Edict also is as decided in its language against the one as against the other. Taoist brotherhoods in some cases prepare an elixir of life and burn it in a crucible, others read aloud certain charms which may be Taoist or Buddhist. Incense burning is a common ceremony, and hence the name of the sect called Yi chu hsian, "one stick of incense."

There appears to be a curious rumour afloat in Hong Kong to the effect that the Northamptonshire Regiment may return to that colony, replacing the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders. Nothing is known in Singapore of any such proposed garrison move, and it is thought to be quite unlikely.

The Siamese Government, says the Rangoon correspondent of the Times, is now displaying much interest in the provinces on the Mekong River. Three Princes are about to be sent from Bangkok to administer those territories. Prince Pidgit will take charge of the provinces along the Lower Mekong, which comprise some of the most fertile territory in Siam. He enjoys a good reputation as an energetic and capable administrator. Prince Pradrak will assume the government of the Karat provinces, and Prince Samprasit is charged with the administration of Luang Prabang.

INDIA, &c., IN PARLIAMENT. HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Monday, July 27.

Trincomalee.—In answer to Mr. Schwann, Mr. E. STANHOPE said: The question of securing a supply of ice at Trincomalee is at present under consideration.

Famine Precautions in India.—MR. BUCHANAN asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether, in view of the increasingly serious reports with regard to impending famine in the North-West Provinces, Rajpootana, and other districts in India, he would give the House the most recent information on the subject, and would state what steps the Government of India had taken to meet the distress and danger that might arise.

SIR J. FERGUSSON, who replied on behalf of Sir J. Gorst, said he had with him the latest telegrams about crop and famine prospects, dated July 24, but as they had appeared in the newspapers he did not know whether it was necessary to read them. A further telegram was expected to-morrow, and thereafter a weekly telegram would be sent every Friday while anxiety continued. As regarded preparations for dealing with the famine, the Secretary of State was in telegraphic communication with the Viceroy, whom he had urged to take every necessary precaution without delay for the relief of distress, and from whom he had heard that adequate arrangements had been made for all contingencies anticipated. In all the threatened British provinces famine codes had been issued and plans drawn up for dealing with distress caused by famine. Funds were available for meeting the cost of relief, and in any district where relief operations were necessary they would be commenced on the lines of the scheme laid down in the famine codes. In two districts of Madras considerable relief operations had been going on for some months.

Tuesday, July 28.

The Threatened Indian Famine.—DR. TANNER asked the Under-Secretary for India if there was any foundation for the report from Bombay that a famine was regarded as inevitable in the North-West Provinces in consequence of inadequate rainfall, and, if so, what steps were being taken or would be taken for the relief of distress.

SIR J. GORST: The best answer I can give is to read the following telegram from the Viceroy, dated July 28, to the Secretary of State:—"There is an improvement in agricultural prospects and development of monsoon season. There has been good general rainfall throughout the country, except in part of Madras, Carnatic, and Upper Burma, in consequence of which there is no present cause of anxiety in Northern India. Strong monsoon blowing west coast. More rain imminent in Punjab and Rajpootana, where fodder famine has been arrested by rain. Crop operations in Northern India generally progressing satisfactorily, and there is no present cause for anxiety in North-West Provinces and Oude. Rain fell last week in Coimbatore region, slightly improving the condition of affected districts, but has ceased. With development of monsoon in Northern India locust plague abating. In Northern India prices abating, where there has been rain, but information incomplete." There is thus no present apprehension of famine in Northern India. Regarding the steps taken to relieve distress, I can as yet add nothing to the answer given yesterday upon the same subject.

The Indian Veterans.—MR. E. ROBERTSON asked whether it would be necessary to make any application to the House this session in fulfilment of the promise made to give assistance to the veterans of the Crimea and the Indian Mutiny.

MR. E. STANHOPE: It will not be necessary to make any application to the House. I propose, as I said, to deal with a limited number of cases. I think it would be desirable that any very strong cases should be sent in for our consideration, but I propose to ask the Commissioners of Greenwich Hospital to act as umpires in these cases in preference to deciding them myself.

Thursday, July 30.

The Indian Budget.—The usual resolution directing the financial accounts of India to be referred to a Committee of the whole House was agreed to, and the consideration of them was fixed for Monday, Aug. 3.

The Rajabai Tower Tragedy.—In answer to a question by Mr. S. Smith, SIR J. GORST said: The Secretary of State has no official information. The petition referred to seems to have been presented while the proceedings against the accused man were going on. The Bombay Government very properly refused to interfere with the course of justice, but reserved the consideration of the necessity for further inquiry until the trial was concluded. The whole matter has received, and is receiving, the fullest attention of the Government of Bombay, and the Secretary of State sees no reason for interference. (Hear, hear.)

NOTICE OF MOTION.

MR. CONYBEARE—East India (Arrest of Natives).—To call attention to the unconstitutional character and dangerous abuse by the authorities in India of the regulations of the years 1818 and 1827, permitting the arrest and imprisonment and deprivation of property without trial of her Majesty's Indian subjects, and to move a resolution.

INDIAN SOCIAL REFORM.

(To the Editor of THE HOMEWARD MAIL.)

SIR,—I am thankful to find that a lady of knowledge and influence has penned a convincing protest against the mischievous interference with Indian society which is being effected by the Factory Act. You are, indeed, acting most kindly to the women of India by giving prominence to Mrs. Phipson's humane remarks. Even more extensive and more cruel wrong is being inflicted on Indian women by the thoughtlessly-enacted Age of Consent Act. This is also one of those reforms in which zeal without knowledge is attempting to prevent a few cases of wrong by indiscriminate injury to women in general. The whole fabric of Hindoo society is being overturned, the relations of the sexes among millions of innocent people is disorganised, discontent with English rule is stimulated, religious animosity is awakened in its most odious form, political agitation is provided with an inflammatory weapon, and the condition of Indian women is made more burdensome than ever, because two acts of indefensible brutality have been committed, and it is supposed that some twenty or thirty other women may have been more or less hurt. In your last issue you announce that the agitation against the Act is breaking out with fresh vitality. You may be certain of this that India will never again be quiet until that ill-considered interference with the Hindoo religion is removed from the Statute Book. My article in the National Review last April, pointing out the danger and impropriety of the Act, was considered an anomaly in the excitement of the moment; but now that the mischief has been set on foot the Indian Government itself is doing all it can to stifle the objectionable statute. The present number of the Asiatic Quarterly Review boldly denounces the measure; and Colonel Malleon has raised his voice against it at the end of his new volume on the "Indian Mutiny." It is not pleasant to acknowledge mistakes and repeal foolish Acts; but it is far more foolish to persevere in rendering the government of India impossible.—Very respectfully yours, FREDERIC PINCOTT.

THE STAFF CORPS.

(To the Editor of THE HOMEWARD MAIL.)

SIR,—The Morning Post, in its issue of July 15, has an article on promotion in the Indian Staff Corps which is not quite "up to date." It says that: "When young subalterns leave their British regiments for the Staff Corps, they do so with their eyes open." Take the case of myself and some hundreds of officers who joined the Indian Army in 1875-76-77-78. At that time promotion in a British regiment ran about ten and a half to eleven years for captains, nineteen for majors, and twenty-five for lieutenant-colonels. The rupee was then (in 1875) fairly close to the value of a florin, and the cost of living, rent, &c., was incomparably less than it is at present, while Staff and Civil appointments were much more numerous. The dwindling rupee has caused Government to curtail such appointments, and so it has hit the Indian officer twice over. Besides this, the custom of locating British troops in the hills during the summer has grown of late years, so that the Queen's Service officer has his home there, out of the fierce hot-weather heat, and has his year or two at home at the depot, whither he and his family are entitled to conveyance by troopship at a nominal charge, whereas the Staff Corps captain, whose furlough-pay at home is 250*l.* a year, up to his fifteenth-year service, has to pay some 150*l.* out of this sum for return tickets for himself, his wife, and, say, one child. This is mainly because the rupee has fallen in value. I may add that should the Staff Corps officer travel by P. and O. the return fares for his family would run away with his whole year's salary, and it is hard to save in India for the first twenty years nowadays, when prices are high, and when the rate of exchange entails a loss, in remitting to England, of some 6*s.* 6*d.* in the pound. This seems incredible, but it is true. It has been demonstrated over and over again in the Indian papers, in plain statistics, that the officer who sticks to the Queen's Service is financially richer than his Staff Corps contemporary (who has not private means to do so), as the former is promoted to the successive grades years sooner, and thereby comes earlier on an enhanced rate of pay. We, in the Staff Corps, could not have foreseen the effect of the death vacancies in the British service caused by the Afghan Wars, the Zulu, Boer, Egyptian, Burma, and Frontier expeditions, nor could we anticipate the Royal warrants affecting promotion in the British Service, all of which have totally upset the conditions of relative promotion which we may have borne in mind when we entered the Indian Army, though it is hard to find an old and calculating head on young shoulders. I know the case of an officer of the Staff Corps, who, to supplement his small pay as a subaltern, when at home on leave, "coached" a Militia officer for the Line. He had at that time five years' service, and before being promoted to captain he was mentioned several times in despatches, and specially thanked by Government; yet his pupil, starting in the British service five years' after his instructor, and not having such war services, was made a captain before the Staff Corps "coach," or rather "slow coach." This is not an isolated case. The effect of the unforeseen changes is, that those who intend to go in for real soldiering find they are commanded, in cantonments, and especially on active service, by men who entered the Army years after they did. The consequence is, that to the already fortunate ones in the British service, blessed with quick promotion, private means, good stations, and white men to soldier with and lead into action, and the congenial society of a large mess, comes the further luck of commands on active service, over us, their quondam seniors, and further rewards in brevets and decorations. We deprecate the phrases "agitation" and "grievances," but when times, money-rates, and warrants have changed (for low exchange is a boon to the British Service officer, who must have money remitted to him from England), we would beg for a reconsideration of the periods of promotion in the Staff Corps, fixed twenty-five years ago, when everything was very different, and the pay and prospects in the Indian Army much brighter—viz. in 1866. If a number of officers in a British regiment are killed in action, or retire on account of illness contracted on a campaign, it makes an enormous difference to the survivors; whereas every officer might be killed in a native regiment except a subaltern straight from Sandhurst, without the latter benefiting. Indeed, wars will come to be looked upon with disfavour by the officers of the Indian Army, as they have been the means of affording rapid promotion to men in Queen's regiments, and thus of facilitating our supersession. British promotion may not be very rapid now, but the next big war would see line officers get their companies in five, and troops in the cavalry in four years' service, against our eleven. With climatic and other disadvantages we venture to think that the Staff Corps should have some decided advantages granted to it over the British service. The supposed extra pay is a fallacy in the long run, as the Indian officer has to subscribe, married or single, to pension funds and to keep a charger, and the cost of entertainments has to be divided among seven officers instead of four times that number; then the British Service officer draws captain's pay four years earlier, and major's pay four and a half or five years earlier, than his S.C. contemporary. A volunteer is worth two pressed men, and the conditions of the Indian Service should be so attractive as to draw as volunteers the best and keenest soldiers from the British Service, instead of only those with powerful Indian family interest, or those boys from Sandhurst in whose fathers' days the now barren pagoda-tree blossomed in its prime, till it was withered by exchange, &c.

A Postulate of Empire.—Reis and Rayet says:—The Manipore despatches down to June 3 have been published. In one of them Lord Cross informed the Viceroy, so runs the telegram, that "he agreed with the latter that it was essential for the security of the British position in India that the subjects of native States should understand that the murder of British officers renders the murderers and abettors liable to be punished by death, despite orders from the authorities of the States concerned." That, on the face of it, is no doubt, an extraordinary doctrine, but it is the result of an extraordinary history and the concomitant of an extraordinary polity. That is an assumption which the British in India are constrained to adopt, and it is an assumption which Southern Asia must be constrained to submit to. It is the condition of the situation. The Empire can be maintained only on the principle of the inviolability of the British person. It may be reasonably doubted whether the principle is quite applicable to a state of war like that in Manipore. But, generally speaking, the doctrine is unexceptionable. Harsh as it may sound, conflict as it may with the received notions of international jurisprudence, it must be accepted as a necessary rule justified by circumstances. It is a special protection in an exceptional situation. It is the prime postulate of empire.

LONDON: TUESDAY, AUGUST 4, 1891.

THE AGITATION IN CHINA.

WE republish to-day—not having had room for it last week—the second letter which MR. W. V. DRUMMOND addressed to the North China Herald on the causes of the anti-foreign riots. It will be found worth an attentive perusal. MR. DRUMMOND writes with a large knowledge of his subject, and his appreciation of the situation is by no means reassuring. He speaks of the "spirit of unrest" which has been rapidly growing in China, especially during the past five years. "The 'progressive desire,'" he says, "which seized upon Japan a generation ago is beginning to work in China, and will run its course as surely and irresistibly as it has in that country, though very possibly in a different manner and at a different pace." The serious part of it is that this progressive desire has excited the activity of vast secret societies, whose common point of aim appears to be the deposition of the present Manchu dynasty and the establishment on the throne of a purely Chinese family. In this movement, MR. DRUMMOND tells us, official and mercantile classes, and, what is more important, military officers and men are largely engaged. Taking this point alone in MR. DRUMMOND'S statements—and it seems to be confirmed by all the telegraphic news we receive from China—we can appreciate how grave an effect such a movement may have on foreign interests in China, and amongst those interests none are more important than those of Great Britain. Moreover it is clear that, out of the complications which may arise from another Chinese revolution, may be developed opportunities for the Powers not friendly to Great Britain, to win material advantages over her in China and her dependencies. Yet—strange to say—but very little interest appears to have been taken by English politicians in these events, which may result in incalculable loss and the most serious complications. The gentlemen who undertake to look after British interests in Parliament can give their attention to an immense variety of petty concerns, from the artistic treatment of our coinage to the charging of a double halfpenny for compound words in a telegram, while affairs that may impair our influence in the Far East or paralyse a vast trade are entirely ignored. It might have been well to remind the Government that it is expected to look after British interests in China, that it is doing so just now in a rather perfunctory way, and that if it fail to protect those interests political and commercial it will certainly have a very serious account to settle with the British public. It is almost a farce to keep a Minister at Pekin who appears to be there simply not to bother the Chinese, and who it is stated when he receives complaints from HER MAJESTY'S Consuls, never even acknowledges receipt of them.

It does not diminish, it rather increases the gravity of the situation created by this movement in China, that French subjects have been the greatest sufferers, and that the indemnity likely to be demandable by the French Government is estimated at two millions sterling. If the Chinese Government should fail to pay the French demands—and we may be sure that the claim would not be reduced from any desire to make things easy at Pekin or to avert a quarrel—we can readily imagine that French diplomacy might manage to extract substantial advantages—and very much to the detriment of Great Britain—either for French citizens in China, or for the trade through Tonquin, or in concessions of territory and political influence. We may be sure it would make the most of its opportunity, and the demonstrations at Cronstadt warn us that its influence and that of Russia would be found combined against that of Great Britain. We indeed practically stand alone face to face to the now practically united forces of our chief rivals in the Far East. The limited commercial interests of Germany in those parts would hardly justify her in taking sides with us on any issue that may arise. We need not work out further the idea above adumbrated. Enough has been hinted for serious reflection. It seems to us that we ought to be represented at Pekin by a strong man; that our fleet on the China Station ought to be increased and, till the troubles are over, should be kept on the spot; and that our Foreign Office should display a little more spirit and firmness in face of a rather threatening situation.

WE really do not see why the Government of India should keep up its vexatious system of gazetted promotions in the Telegraph Service only twice a year. True, thanks to the criticism of the newspapers and other influences, the Government was forced to modify the rule that permanent promotions could only be made on April 1 and October 1; and it now gives to permanent appointments retrospective effect; but, as has been pointed out by correspondents of the Englishman, "in the case of vacancies occurring during the half year, officers have to wait many months before they know to whom the steps will go." This seems an unnecessary and stupid regulation, and we cannot help thinking that it has never come under the notice of the Secretary of State, who sent out to India some very sensible regulations which someone or other who does that business at Simla or Calcutta seems to have spoiled. In the Indo-European Telegraph Department—a sister Service—vacancies are promptly filled up and gazetted. Why should it not be so in the Government Telegraph Service? Does the Government really, as is suggested, make some few thousands of rupees out of it, by putting men of inferior classes to do the work of their superiors, not on the salary of the latter but on their own salary? So it would appear from the statements made by the Englishman's correspondents. How can any Service be expected to keep any heart or show any vigour when it is treated in this shabby manner? Another thing that may well be looked into at the India Office is the present weakened state of the Department, one result of which is that no leave is now granted without a medical certificate. It is calculated that the Department will be eight officers short of its strength at the end of the year. If this sort of thing goes on there will be quite a batch of vacancies to fill up by and bye, and all the old trouble of a block in promotion will be renewed.

THE report which we published some time since, on authority in which we had confidence, that it was in contemplation to cut the connection of Government with Cooper's Hill College and that it would be converted into a private institution, has been officially denied, and the proceedings on Public Day—July 29—when SIR JOHN GORST and several members of the Indian Council were present, seem to show that whatever changes were canvassed, it has been decided, for the present at any rate, not to carry them into effect. We cannot say that last Wednesday's function was particularly brilliant, but that is not to be expected in so practical an institution. What was more important, they shewed that the College was in a sound condition. Out of 124 students, 45 will soon leave, and there are 67 candidates for admission in September. The College is indeed one of the best educational institutions in Great Britain, and it has contributed a large number of most valuable men to the Indian Administration. SIR JOHN GORST took, as was perhaps natural, an optimistic view of the advantages offered by the Indian Public Works, Forestry and Telegraph Services. His remarks may apply to an average set of men, but Cooper's Hill has produced many above the average in its various departments, and for such men the treatment meted out by the Indian Government has not been altogether such as to attract their equals to seek an Indian career under the Government. With the removal however of a few grievances the Secretary of State might flood Cooper's Hill with a high class of candidates, and for the sake of future efficiency it would be wise to act promptly.

The Queen has made the following colonial appointments:—Sir William Robinson, K.C.M.G. (Governor of Trinidad and Tobago), to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of Hong Kong and its Dependencies; Sir Frederick Napier Broome, K.C.M.G., to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of Trinidad and Tobago and its Dependencies; and Lieutenant-Colonel John Alexander Man to be Commandant of the Volunteer Forces of the Colony of Trinidad and Tobago.

Prince Christian Victor of Schleswig-Holstein, who came home to attend the marriage of Prince and Princess Aribert, does not accompany Prince and Princess Christian to Germany, but will proceed later on to India, where he will rejoin his regiment, the 1st battalion King's Royal Rifles.

Replying to a letter from Sir W. Wedderburn, chairman of the British Committee of the Indian National Congress, Lord Cross regrets that circumstances for which the Government were not responsible should have rendered it impossible to proceed further at present with the Indian Councils Amendment Bill. He hopes, however, that the measure will be reintroduced at the earliest opportunity, and dealt with effectively during the next session of Parliament.

With the approval of the Prince of Wales, the Maharaja of Vizianagram, K.C.I.E., has been appointed a vice-president of the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography; Rao Bahadur Runchorelal Chotalal, C.I.E., of Ahmedabad, has been appointed a Member of the Honorary Council of the British Empire. The Municipal Commissioners of Rangoon have nominated as their delegates to the Congress, Mr. O. D. Clark, A.M.I.C.E., Mr. H. H. Mathews, M.I.C.E., Mr. J. Thompson, and Mr. S. G. Jones. The Maharaja of Vizianagram has subscribed 200% to the funds of the Congress.

It is expected that the Queen will invite to Osborne a number of the distinguished foreign visitors who will visit London next week for the Congress on Hygiene and Demography. The Prince of Wales will specially come to town on Monday, the 10th, to preside at the opening meeting of the Congress.

The Times of July 31 was requested to state that Mrs. Melville's friends "are not satisfied with the gratuities which it is proposed to bestow on her." They are indeed so paltry that we were surprised to see the first statement in print.

The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce on July 30 discussed the question of a Burma-China Railway, the scheme before the Chamber being one as to which a letter had been sent to the Chamber by Mr. J. Ogilvy Hay. Mr. Gladstone moved—"That the council has heard with great satisfaction of the progress made with the survey of a railway route from Mandalay towards the frontier of China, and hopes the Government of India will complete the survey of the remaining twenty-five miles as speedily as possible, with the view of the railway being constructed without delay, either by the Government or by private enterprise, as may be found most convenient and desirable, if the said route is found to be suitable for the purpose." This was carried unanimously. It was said that the Manchester Chamber of Commerce has already passed a similar resolution.

We hear that, with a view to ascertaining the capabilities of the Salonica Railway as an alternative route for the Indian and Eastern mails, the Postmaster-General has applied to the Board of Trade for the assistance of one of their railway inspectors to survey and report upon the condition of the line.

Mr. Edmund Forster Webster, C.I.E., 32 Lennox Gardens, S.W., has been appointed honorary secretary of the United Kingdom Branch of the Countess of Dufferin's Fund, vice Colonel John Robertson, about to proceed to India.

In the House of Commons to-day the Indian Budget will be submitted by Sir J. Gorst.

Mr. Maclean has given notice of the following motion on going into Committee on the Indian Budget:—"That in the opinion of this House the present relations between India and Afghanistan are of an unsatisfactory character, and that it is desirable, in the interests of the trade of both countries, that the Indian railway system should be extended as far as Candahar." Inasmuch as several resolutions have precedence of that in the name of Mr. Maclean, there is very little probability of its being moved. Mr. Provand has the first place with a motion dealing with Indian factory legislation, but it is understood that he will not press it to a division. Mr. S. Smith, however, who comes next with a motion respecting the constitution of Indian Councils, is said to be determined to take the sense of the House, in which case no subsequent motion can be put, and Mr. Maclean will have to be content with a speech on the main question.

CALCUTTA, July 13.

The directors of the Bank of Bengal, at the meeting held on July 9, made no change in the rate of interest, the official minimum remaining unaltered at 3 per cent.

The following are the figures of the bank's statement for the week ending July 7.

LIABILITIES.

Treasury Balance at Head Office	Rs. 1,00,893	Decrease
Do. at Branches.....	38,53,036	Increase
Other Deposits	4,12,835	Increase
Post Bills.....	13,951	Decrease

ASSETS.

Bank's Investments	Rs. 17,55,987	Decrease
Loans	27,44,979	Increase
Accounts of Credits	2,23,410	Decrease
Mercantile Bills.....	9,47,861	Decrease
Cash at Head Office	15,89,832	Decrease
Do. at Branches	51,65,696	Increase

Analysing the above figures it will be seen that the public demand for money on the bank had increased by nearly 11 1/2 lacs, made up as follows:—By a decrease of 1/8 of a lac in post bills, together with an increase of nearly 27 1/2 lacs in loans, less an increase of about 4 1/2 lacs in other deposits, coupled with a decrease of nearly 2 1/2 lacs in accounts of credits and 9 1/2 lacs in mercantile bills. The treasury balance at the head office stands reduced by 1 lac, while it is augmented by over 38 1/2 lacs at the branches; the bank's investments were realised to over 17 1/2 lacs. The final result of these changes is a decrease in the cash at head office by over 15 1/2 lacs, while at the branches it is increased by over 51 1/2 lacs, making the exact total 6,84,40,375 rs., equal to 64.7 per cent. of the current liabilities of the bank, against a proportion of 63.9 per cent. last week.

TEA.—On July 9 about 9,000 chests were disposed of, fine teas and all good liquoring sorts selling well. Those wanting in strength or flavour showed some fall in value, while ordinary Souchong kinds were again lower. Bombay buyers again cleared the market of small leaf Pekoes, and took occasionally some neatly made Pekoe Souchongs.

JUTE.—There has been a little more doing in old crop at 22 rs. for best native marks. Arrivals of both old and new fibre in the Bazaar are increasing, but prices are steady.

GUNNIES.—Australian buyers of corn sacks having come out the mills have been able to maintain their firm attitude, and the turn of prices is in their favour. General business has not been on a large scale. The Cape again took a fair quantity of No. 2 twills and wool packs for early one, the U.K. some A. twills, flour bags, salts and E's. Burma has made further purchases of C's for the season at 18s. Bombay and country markets quiet.

HESSIANS are steady, with a small business doing in 40" cloth and bran bags.

JOINT-STOCK SHARES.—The week has passed without incident, and there is nothing which calls for particular notice or remark in the share market. The amount of actual business put through has not been large, but the general tone is far from unhealthy, and most stocks maintain a firm position. Jute Mill scrip has commanded the most attention, and properly so, for the returns now being given to shareholders are very handsome, and the position of the mills as to reserves, &c., is very strong. The transactions in miscellaneous and investment stocks are distributed over a large number of concerns; but these are not of any magnitude, and are put through in order to secure the benefits of the past half-year's working. The following companies among others have been dealt in:—Bengal Paper Mills (at a small decline), Bengal Telephone, Burrakur Coal, Calcutta Steam (at an advance of a rupee), Canal Press, Darjeeling-Himalayan Railway, Turkessur Railway, Titagarh Paper Mills (both the latter at higher rates). In gold shares the market has been without animation, and no large lines have changed hands. The prospect of there being many thousand shares thrown on the market on account of defaulters helps not a little to keep buyers off, and prices at a low level. There appears to be remarkable vitality, however, in Sonapets. These shares were, from the above-mentioned and other causes, a good deal depressed, and this depression was carefully fostered and encouraged by the "bears," but on the assay of quartz from the Gilua reef being published they rapidly recovered some 3 annas. The fluctuations in this stock have been considerable, but it closes firmer than it was, at a point or two higher.

BANK OF BENGAL.
Rate of Interest for Demand Loans 3 per cent.

BOMBAY, July 16.

There has been little doing in exports, wheat and seeds having been taken to a moderate extent only, though generally in steady markets. Exchange, after receding a little from last quotations, took an upward turn again, but became weaker and rates closed 1-16 to 3-32d. lower than those of July 9. Government paper is 1-16 higher in four than it was. Freighters are dull and depressed, and re-lets by ready steamers have been pressed upon the market at lower rates. The unfavourable weather reports from the consuming districts has checked the forward demand for imports which was setting in a week ago, and the ready market is dull and weak.

MONEY.—There was no increase in the trade demand for money after the date of the Presidency Bank's Statement of Affairs noticed in last report, and a falling off of some 8½ lacs in the Cash Balance disclosed by the Return issued on July 13 was entirely due to another cause. The slackness of trade was indicated therein by the large diminution of over 13½ lacs in Bills Discounted, and in Loans there had been some decrease during the week covered by the Return; and although Private Deposits had diminished by 10½ lacs, the net decrease in trade requirements was still represented by 5½ lacs. The position of the Cash Balance, notwithstanding these figures and the realisation of over 3½ lacs of Government Securities, was owing to considerable withdrawals of Public Deposits both at the Head Office and the Branches, a continuance of which will tend to enhance the value of money at a time when its normal condition would be that of unusual abundance. The Bank of Bombay minimum rate remains at 3 per cent., no change having been made at the board meeting.

Imports.—PIECE GOODS.—There has been a very small demand in the bazaar for staple grey goods; and accounts from the up-country districts regarding the rains not having been favourable, mofussil buyers have not been making any purchases, while the flow of indents for next season's supplies has stopped to a great extent. Stocks meantime are increasing, and prices have a downward tendency. Bleached, dyed, turkey red and printed goods are in the same position as they were, and there is no change in quotations for any description. Very little has been done in local goods, prices for which are drooping. The clearances of imported goods from the bazaar for the week are estimated at 1,800 packages; those of local goods at 1,000 bales.

YARNS.—Only a small business has been done in imported twist, and the price has given way ½ a. per lb., the market being quiet at the decline. About 4,500 bales of Bombay spinnings were sold at Hong Kong in the week ending July 13, with exchange almost the same as before. Spinners are very willing sellers, but they find no buyers of large lots even at a further concession in rates. China buyers are taking up small lots of choice makes at slightly lower figures, and rates are quite of a nominal character. About 700 bales have changed hands during the week, and the market closes very quiet, with little or nothing doing.

METALS.—A moderate business has been done in copper, and prices have given way 4 to 8 a. per cwt. in a quiet market. Yellow metal has also been taken to a moderate extent, but the tone of this market has been steady, and prices are unchanged. Iron has been in moderate request at previous rates in a steady market.

COAL is sufficiently cheap to tempt consumers, but as they hold full stocks for their monsoon requirements, very few came out as actual buyers. The stock landed for sale on the bunder is estimated at 90,000 tons, out of which 75 per cent. belongs to importers, representing the largest stock held by importers in the last few years. There is some inquiry for September shipment; but on account of the ready mineral being offered so cheap, buyers are disinclined to pay sellers' prices, which are higher by 1½ r. to 2 rs. per ton than ready coal. Some cheap lots of ready and shortly-due Scotch coal have been placed at 10½ rs. to 11 rs. per ton.

Exports.—COTTON.—There was more doing in this staple at the close of last week, both for export and local spinners' account, in a steady market, but without any important change in rates; but the new week opened with a quiet feeling and no inquiry at all for export, while transactions for account of the mills were on a small scale again.

The receipts of cotton of this season's growth into Bombay during the week have been 8,500 bales, compared with 11,000 bales arrived in the previous week, and 6,100 bales to hand in the corresponding week last season; and the falling-off in supplies of this season's crop, compared with that of 1889-90, is now 215,000 bales, or some 2,500 bales less than it was a week ago.

WHEAT.—A small business continued to be done in this staple, in a steady market, to the end of last week; but on July 13, although transactions were still on only a moderate scale, the tone became firm, and prices advanced half to 1 a. per cwt. Thereafter the feeling became less firm, but was still steady with only a moderate business passing, but with no further change in rates.

SEEDS have not been in much demand for export, and the only movement in prices has been in linseed, which advanced 1½ a. per cwt. on July 13 in a firm market; but the advance was lost on the next and following days, the market eventually becoming quiet.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE

COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. C. BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED a REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and, as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances defying elimination), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false. This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR of CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See The Times, July 13th, 1884.

DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, LONDON, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, one dose generally sufficient. Dr. GIBBON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, stated “2 DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME OF DIARRHOEA.” From SYMES & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880. To J. T. DAVENPORT, London.

DEAR SIR,—We congratulate you upon the widespread reputation this justly-esteemed medicine has earned for itself all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sordidness there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of DR. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE in Diarrhoea and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhoea, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescribe and patient alike.—We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & Co., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the TRUE PALLIATIVE in NEURALGIA, GOUT, CANCER, TOOTHACHE, RHEUMATISM.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a liquid medicine which assuages PAIN of EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep WITHOUT HEADACHE, and INVIGORATES the nervous system when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of EPILEPSY, SPASMS, COLIC, PALPITATION, Hysteria.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The IMITATIONS of the REMEDY has given rise to many UNSUBSTANTIAL IMITATIONS. Be careful to observe Trade Mark. Of all Chemists, 1s. 1d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

GENERAL NEWS.

By the arrival of the present mail, via Brindisi, we are placed in possession of advices and gazettes from Calcutta to July 21; Madras, July 22; Bombay, July 24.

The Viceroy was making satisfactory progress towards recovery from the attack of influenza, and was sufficiently well to preside at the Viceregal Council meeting on July 23.

Messrs. A. Stephen and Co., jewellers, have made a very handsome silver cup, to be presented by his Excellency the Viceroy to the E.I.R. Volunteer Corps, stationed at Jamal-pore, for the season 1889-90. The trophy, which is gained by Corporal E. R. Dale, is very neatly executed, being of old Georgian design. The base is of ebony, and the figure of a marksman surmounts the cover.

At the invitation of his Excellency the Viceroy, his Excellency Lord Harris, G.C.I.E., will visit Simla early in September. His Excellency, who will be accompanied by Lady Harris, Miss Croft, Colonel F. Rhodes, D.S.O., military secretary, Mr. S. W. Edgerley, C.S., private secretary, Dr. Martin, M.B., and Captain the Hon. St. Leger Jervis, A.D.C., will leave Ganesh Khind on Aug. 31, and will return to Poona on Sept. 12. The Simla season will be at its height just then.

The Viceroy has selected Mr. D. Fitzpatrick, Resident at Hyderabad, to succeed Sir J. B. Lyall as Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, on the retirement of the latter in March next.

There is every possibility of Lord Wenlock, Governor of Madras, visiting Calcutta during the cold weather.

Lord Wenlock cut the first sod of the Nilgiri Railway at Coonoor on Aug. 4, amid great enthusiasm.

Sir Charles Crosthwaite having resigned his seat in the Supreme Legislative Council, and taken furlough till Jan. 18, 1892, Colonel Pemberton will continue to act until a definite decision is arrived at.

In connection with the new Provincial Contracts, the Government of India, in the Financial Department, was still engaged in drawing up what may be called a new schedule. The local governments will be called upon to express their opinions upon this before any resolution defining their engagements is issued.

The recommendations of the Government of India for the grant of medals for the Manipore and Miranzai Expeditions have been forwarded to the Secretary of State.

The views of the military authorities at Simla on the report of the Court of Inquiry at Manipore have been sent home. Pending their publication in Blue Book they are not likely to see light in India itself.

The Government of India have signified their intention of erecting a memorial at the public expense at Manipore to mark the spot in the Residency Compound where the remains of the officers who lost their lives during the revolt now rest, and also to put up a tablet in the Cathedral at Calcutta to their memory.

An appeal for subscriptions on behalf of Mrs. Grimwood from the officers and men of the Army has reached India, and is being circulated among the various commands.

General Elles's despatches upon the Black Mountain Campaign are before Government, but may not be published for some little time.

Important revisions are in course of being carried out in the mobilisation scheme for India, recent expeditions having revealed several weak points in the paper programme of concentration. This is more particularly the case in regard to medical and transport branches.

A Calcutta telegram of Aug. 7 said:—Orders have been issued that arms are to be supplied to the police on duty in Calcutta on the occasion of the impending Mohurrum festival. Serious apprehensions are entertained that the Badmishes, or disorderly characters, may endeavour to provoke disturbances, in order to have an opportunity of attacking the police and revenging themselves upon them for their action during the riots which took place last May at Sham Bazaar, in the native quarter, in connection with the demolition of a small Mahomedan mosque.

The trial of the persons charged with taking part in the fatal riot in Calcutta last May commenced at the Sessions Court at Alipore on Aug. 5, and is likely to last some time. Considering the present excited state of religious feeling in India, says the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, it is an unfortunate circumstance that the trial will coincide with the Mohurrum festival.

Simla has been exceedingly unhealthy during the fortnight, says the Lahore paper, and an exceptionally large number of residents have been down with fever, influenza, and other sicknesses. The Viceroy was still confined to his room, and suffering severely from neuralgia and headache consequent on influenza. Lady Roberts has been ill for nearly a month. The Foreign Secretary, too, was again laid up the other day.

Dr. Barclay, adds the same paper, has been ill with typhoid, but is now recovering, and several other cases are reported in the station. Mrs. Lightfoot, who experienced a bad sunstroke, was so ill the other day that her life was despaired of; but she is now considered out of danger. So far only a little over an inch of rain has fallen, and the scarcity of water is becoming serious, so far as the health of the community is concerned.

Mr. G. Rose, the Chief Engineer of the Khojak Tunnel, had gone to Simla to make arrangements for the formal opening ceremony.

The Sambalpoore branch of the Bengal-Nagpore Railway has been sanctioned by the Secretary of State.

The military station situated about two miles from Apozai in the Zhob Valley is to be known as Fort Sandeman.

The road to Gilgit is now in rapid progress. It is proposed to construct another line through Chilas to Gilgit, which is said to be shorter and easier than the existing road.

The charge of the Lundi Kotal Serai in the Khyber Pass has been transferred to the Public Works Department of the Government of India.

Sanction has been accorded to the grant of second-class passages for the attendants on officers of the British and Indian Service who may be proceeding to England in private steamers as invalids on account of serious illness or insanity. In cases when the attendant on an insane officer is another officer, a first-class passage is allowed.

THE following notice was published in the Gazette of Aug. 11:—"War Office, Pall Mall, Aug. 11, 1891.—1st (Duke of Connaught's Own) Bombay Lancers.—Lieutenant-General his Royal Highness Arthur William Patrick Albert, Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, K.G., K.P., G.C.S.I., G.C.M.G., G.C.I.E., K.C.B., A.D.C., to be Honorary Colonel. Dated Aug. 12, 1891."

The Raja of Sarawak is expected in England about the end of September. The Ranees are spending some days in company with the Raja Muda and her two other sons at the Chateau of Haut Buisson at La Ferté Bernard Sarthe.

The Queen has appointed Harry Lionel Churchill, Esq., to be her Majesty's Consul for the Provinces on the South of the Caspian Sea and the North-East of Persia.

The Queen has also appointed John Richard Preece, Esq., to be her Majesty's Consul at Ispahan.

SEDITIONOUS PUBLICATIONS.

THE following telegrams have been received from the Calcutta correspondent of the Times :—

AUG. 7.—The Government has at last moved in the matter of the native Press. To-day the chief Presidency magistrate of Calcutta, on the application of the standing counsel to the Government, issued warrants under the Indian Penal Code, Section 124 (a), against the proprietor, editor, manager, and printer of the Bungobasi, one of the most largely-circulated vernacular journals, in respect of articles published in its issues of March 28, May 16, and June 6. He also granted a warrant to search the office. The section in question makes punishable with transportation for life or for a shorter term or with imprisonment for three years anyone exciting or attempting to excite disaffection to the Government for the time established by law in British India.

AUG. 9.—The State prosecution of the Bungobasi, a weekly Bengalee newspaper, which is said to have a circulation of 20,000, is likely to occupy a large share of public attention. As already mentioned, warrants were issued on Aug. 7, and the same afternoon the printer was arrested, the office was searched, and the books were seized. Yesterday morning the remaining three accused—namely, the proprietor, editor, and manager—surrendered. All four were brought before the chief magistrate of the Presidency. Counsel for the defence applied for an adjournment and for the admission of the accused to bail, but the Crown counsel objected that under law the offence was not one in which bail could be accepted. After some argument the magistrate said that as the prosecution had opposed it, he must reject the application, but if the matter had rested on his own discretion, he would have been inclined to grant it. Some formal evidence connecting the accused with the paper was then recorded, after which the prisoners were remanded to gaol, and the case was adjourned till to-morrow.

The articles which are the subject of complaint refer for the most part to the Age of Consent Act, and are certainly couched in the most wild and extravagant terms. Fever, cholera, and other diseases are said by the paper to be spreading with the extension of English rule in India, and that rule is described as one of brute force. The Government is held to be responsible for floods, famines, and so on.

The contention for the defence, as far as was disclosed in yesterday's proceedings, appears to be that the articles were written under the influence of strong religious excitement, and that although the language is foolish and intemperate, yet there is nothing in it which was intended or was likely to excite disaffection to the constituted authorities.

If the accused are committed the trial will probably take place at the next Criminal Sessions of the High Court, which begin on Aug. 19. The trial of the first batch of men charged with being implicated in the recent riots in Calcutta is still proceeding in the Suburban Sessions Court at Alipore, and it is likely to last for at least a week longer.

The prosecution of the Bungobasi was resumed in the police-court to-day. The Crown counsel called evidence to prove the publication of the articles in question. The prisoners' counsel did not cross-examine. The case was adjourned till to-morrow, when the prisoners will probably be committed for trial. It is understood that they propose to move the High Court to allow them bail.

AUG. 11.—The prosecution of the Bungobasi newspaper was continued to-day. The accused were committed for trial. Their counsel afterwards moved the High Court for an order for their release on bail. The Advocate-General, for the Crown, opposed the motion, urging that the articles in question were clearly intended to stir up religious hatred against the Government. After some argument before the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Beverley, the Court ordered that the four accused might be released, provided that each of them executed a bond for 10,000 rs. and found two sureties of 10,000 rs. each.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times writes on Aug. 9 :—

The reports of the weather from Upper India are again better. A plentiful supply of rain has fallen in a great portion of the North-West Provinces and in the Punjab, while in some places, such as Simla, the fall has been so excessive as to cause some injury to property. It may now be assumed that there is no immediate cause for anxiety with regard to the crops in Northern India. The commencement of the Attock-Marri line of railway has been sanctioned as relief works, but this necessity is mainly due to the damage done by locusts. The floods in Bombay are subsiding, but they have done much harm and caused considerable loss of life in Bhowanuggur. Reports from Madras are still gloomy. The Governor starts on the 14th inst. on a tour of inspection in the distressed districts.

We have received the following telegrams from the India Office for publication :—"From Viceroy, Aug. 7. No change of any importance since my telegram of the 3rd. Anxiety continues regarding Upper Burma, and number of persons employed on relief works increasing in Madras; agricultural operations generally proceeding satisfactorily elsewhere, but parts of North-Western Provinces and Oude, Punjab, Mysore, Hyderabad in need of more rain. Except in Madras and Upper Burma, prices stationary generally or falling."

"From Governor, Madras, Aug. 7.—No improvement in condition of affected districts since telegram of July 28. Rain insufficient for cultivation, but will improve pasturage. Nine thousand six hundred employed on special works in Chingleput, 6,633 in North Arcot, 2,265 in Coimbatore. Number on gratuitous relief, 2,369 in North Arcot, 1,534 in Chingleput. Prices gradually rising."

A mysterious incident occurred on Aug. 7 at the Howrah Terminus of the East Indian Railway. A wine case arrived from Patna, consigned to a Mahomedan in Calcutta. As it emitted a peculiar smell, it was opened and found to contain the body of a young Mahomedan woman in an advanced state of decomposition. A post-mortem examination showed that death was due to arsenical poisoning. No clue to the mystery has been discovered.

G U P.

AN excellent card had been arranged for the Gymkhana meeting fixed to come off to-day at Guneshkhind, writes the Times of India correspondent at Poona on July 20; but, owing to continuous rain which fell yesterday and to-day, it was found impossible to carry out the programme in its entirety. In spite of the inclemency of the weather a large number of guests were present, and, rather than disappoint them altogether, it was decided to have the tent-pegging competition and pony flat-race. For the former no less than fourteen competitors, including his Excellency, came forward, and they ran singly and not in sections. The competition was of a very keen nature, Lord Harris running with Lieutenant Bidgood, R.H.A., rather close for the first prize. The two carried the peg five times each, and then, when the peg was turned sideways, Lord Harris just missed carrying the peg, though he just touched it. Lieutenant Bidgood carried his amid much applause, and won the prize with 18 points, being one point more than the Governor. Lieutenant McMunn, R.A., was third with 14 points. He carried the peg four times, but knocked down the fifth. The other competitors were Captain Hobday, R.A., Lieutenant Ford, R.A., Captain Brunker, Surgeon Peterkin, Brigadier-General Gatacre, Lieutenant Gausson, Resaldar Sayadullakhan, A.D.C., Colonel Rhodes, Captain Butler, Lieutenant Bell, and Surgeon Croly. For the Guneshkhind Derby four bravely came forward. Shotover got away with the start, but was soon collared by Hialal, who won easily by two lengths. Judge, ridden by Lieutenant Bell, finished third, being six lengths behind Shotover. Bonny Boy carried 10 st. 7 lb., the rider being Lieutenant Bidgood. The course was very heavy and sticky. General Hogg, who judged in the tent-pegging, acted as starter for this race, Colonel Merriman, C.I.E., being judge. A very pleasant evening was spent.

The Golf Tournament was won by the Bishop, his lordship starting at scratch, and doing his eighteen holes in 85 strokes, 42 and 43 for the two rounds.

An interesting letter from Quetta appears in the Times of India. Writing on July 12 the correspondent says :—Our organised frivolities are about over, and we are all succumbing to the heat, which is so great that some regimental messes are thinking of leaving off cloth and dining in white mess dress. Think of this perspiring "Bombegians"! Our races were rather tame owing to the sudden death of Sir Oliver St. John, which threw a gloom over the station, and caused the postponement of all the excitements of the week. This was most disappointing to the visitors, of whom there were many—so many, that a picked eleven nearly beat our local team at cricket, a game in which we rather plume ourselves. Mr. Beatty, the son of the popular starter, practically saved the match by his fine display of batting. However, the postponed dance and theatricals came off a week ago, and were fully attended. Of the former I will merely say that it was remarkable for the lateness of the hour at which "God save the Queen" stopped the flirting. The theatricals were good, but not an unqualified success. The piece chosen was Mr. H. J. Byron's "Weak Woman." This is so well known that I will not bore you by a repetition of the plot, which, in my opinion, is not strong enough to dispense with first-rate acting. Regarding the ladies, Mrs. Barnes by her grace and personal charms made up for a somewhat imperfect rendering of Lillian Gaythorne.

Miss A. Brooke-Meares, as Mrs. Gunn, was made up rather too youthfully for that elderly lady; but, considering that she was an absolute débutante, we may hope great things for her, as she acted with an aplomb and an accuracy which few could have imitated. Of Miss Brooke Meares, who acted the principal part—Miss Helen Gaythorne—we can only say that we think she would make her fortune in the metropolis. This is not the cheap admiration of the ordinary amateur critic, as the whole house will testify, who simultaneously rose to their feet from excitement at the end of the second act when Helen swoons in the arms of Lillian. The professedly comic part of Mr. Belli Bivar as Captain Ginger went down well, but we fancy a more critical and refined audience than one consisting of Tommies would have been bored by the monotony of his manner. Mr. Goring Jones as Arthur Medwin did justice to an uninteresting lover's part. Mr. Hickie as the doctor was a distinct success. Mr. Eardley-Wilmot as the page boy had a small part, which he did well enough to make us look forward to seeing him in a larger one. Mr. Molesworth as Tootal made 10 per cent. out of his part, when he should have made 100. Fred. Fanshawe was played by Mr. Buck, who is acknowledged to be one of the best burlesque and low comedy actors in Western India. So let us draw a veil, and hope that he won't try ordinary comedy again. The tedium between the acts was relieved by the admirable singing of Colonel Brooke Meares, whose performance formed the charm of the evening. Things in general are getting more lively as an Amusement Committee has been formed, which provides something each Tuesday evening. At present we have had a dance and a concert, and a Fancy Dress Ball is coming off shortly. There are several stations who would do well to imitate this idea. The concert was remarkable for the equal popularity of Colonel Brooke Meares' high class singing, and of Mr. Hickie's low class music (?): both these gentlemen were vociferously encored.

To-day we had the most successful Gymkhana since "The Boy" has left us. Captain Bush organised a most excellent programme, and the card commenced with a Polo Scurry. This was won by Mr. England's Pale Tail, which was only just visible to Major Whitby on a chestnut, placed second. In the Spiral Tandem Race Mr. Carr beat Major Gaisford's pair by a nose. The event of the evening, however, was the Subalterns' Steeplechase. For this there were ten entries—a number which compares favourably with the number of starters in most Indian jump races. Of these seven belonged to the Durham Light Infantry, and the remainder to the Royal Fusiliers. Mr. England won by a length on Bartimeus from Mr. Young on Osman. Messrs. DeLisle, Eardley-Wilmot, and Goring Jones were respectively and respectably next. There was one fall, but all got round eventually. The prize was a silver cigarette case, presented by General Sir G. White, V.C. The Jumping Competition for Horses obtained eleven entries, and was won by Mr. Webb-Ware's black charger. The 2nd P.W.O. Grenadiers dispensed hospitality, and Lady White presented the prizes.

On Tuesday afternoon (July 21), writes a correspondent of the Madras Mail, one of the prettiest weddings at which it has ever been my lot to be present took place at the Roman Catholic Cathedral in Armenian Street. The ceremony was fixed for the convenient hour of 5 P.M., by which time a large number of ladies and gentlemen had assembled in this grand old church. Among them were Mr. Justice Parker, the Hon. Mr. J. A. Boyson, Colonel, Mrs., and the Misses Underwood, Colonel and Mrs. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Jones, Mr. and Miss Morris, Dr. and Mrs. Carr White, Mr. and Mrs. Tremenhare, Captain and Mrs. Cadell, Mr. Meyer, Dr. Nield Cook, Colonel Fisher, R.A., and many others. Merrily the bells rang out as the gallant bridegroom, Mr. J. S. Roche, marched up the aisle in the handsome uniform of the 21st Hussars, accompanied by his friend and best man, Dr. Allan Grant, of the gallant clan of Seafeld Grants, which produced "the hero of Thobal." Shortly afterwards the bride, Miss C. E. Robertson, daughter of late Deputy-Surgeon-General Robertson, of the Madras Medical Service, appeared on the scene, leaning on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. David Leighton, who stood in loco parentis and gave her away. The bride looked charming in a gown of rich white corded silk with Court train trimmed with orange blossoms and Honiton lace. She wore the usual wreath of orange blossoms and tulle veil caught up with a pear pin, and carried a lovely bouquet of white roses and maidenhair fern. The bridesmaid, Miss Bateman, was very prettily attired in a confection of cream nun's veiling embroidered with heliotrope, sash and bonnet to match, and wore a brooch set with pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. His Grace Archbishop Colgan officiated, assisted by Father Meyer, and accompanied by the usual following of acolytes.

"LANGUAGE LEAVE."

Ah! Hark to the lay of an indigent "Sub,"

The "hope" of his station in Ind,

When the temperature's hot, ay, e'en in one's tub,

And the pomfret and prawns are all tinned.

But a few months ago I bid friends Adieu

They said "lucky chap," I believe,

"Six months out of this, I wish I were you

To get off on 'Language Leave'!"

Leave! Mystic word! Wherein are thy charms?

As I gaze on my "Bagh-o-Bahar,"

As each morning I'm met by my Munshi's "salaams,"

And each week get this from Mamma:

"I know that for me, darling boy, you'll work well,

Success you must really achieve,

It's your very last chance—Think of Simpson and Bell

And make use of your 'Language Leave'!"

"Kind words," you will say, "from a fond mother's heart."

So they were; but—(in a P.S.)—

A sentence she wrote, which may make you start,

Concerning the "H. and L. S.":

"I hear it's all right—if the Munshi you bribe"

(Pray, pardon the sigh I must heave),

"Let me know what he wants, of course we'll subscribe

To help you on Language Leave!"

Poor woman, alas! how little you know!

Such things ne'er happen to-day,

You are thinking, my parent, of long, long ago,

When "pass" depended on "pay."

Now be it known to you, fond mamma,

If success you would have me achieve,

I must toil night and day on my monthly "pagar,"

Which is "cut" when on Language Leave!

Night and day I have toiled for three months or more,

A state of perfection to gain.

I've paid Munshi's ad lib. rupees by the score,

Till my pockets of "dibs" have been drained.

Then came the "Great Day" when all I had crammed

I disgorged for the "Board" to receive,

They refused it, alas! while they gently "salaamed"

And suggested some more Language Leave!

Plucked! Cruel word! with what meaning 'tis fraught,

Stern ruin how often it brings!

On many a life what havoc you've wrought!

Yes, "you," in whose hands are these things!

No champion I for the cause of the "plucked,"

In good part, Sirs, my remarks, pray receive.

But it was really your fault that last time I was "chucked"

After three months of Language Leave.

You told me that "this" and that "that wouldn't do,"

That my "style" wasn't up to the mark,

How strange does it seem that those who got "through"

Their "style" prefer to keep dark.

I was up for the "Lower"—my standard was "low"—

That's why I was ploughed, I believe,

At the next special Board, Sirs, "mehr bani karo"

And release me from "Language Leave!"

I-SMITH SAHEB. (In the Times of India.)

Mysore Races.—These races took place on July 21. There was a good attendance. The weather was fine, and the course in splendid order. The Chamundi Stakes was won by Mr. Chamundi's Whirlwind. The Dewan's Purse was secured by Aga Khan's Tenebreuse. The Pony Derby was won by Major Radcliffe's Barney. The Mysore Stakes fell to Mr. Newton's Sirius. His Highness the Maharaja's Purse was taken by Captain George's Friskey. The Arab Pony Derby was won by Aga Khan's Colonel.

PERSONAL.

LORD WOLVERTON, who had been doing some shooting at Simla with Lord William Beresford, V.C., arrived at Poona on July 21, and was staying as a guest at Government House, Gunesh Khind. He was present at Lady Harris's ball, and was to leave for Bombay on the 23rd, to catch the homeward-bound mail steamer on the 24th.

Sir Harry Prendergast had not quite recovered from the accident to his leg. Though not able to walk or ride, he was able to take a drive. His general health, however, is reported as excellent.

A correspondent writes on July 19:—Sir Henry Morland's condition causes the greatest anxiety to his friends.

Among the recent sufferers from fever at Simla is the Maharaja of Patiala.

Colonel C. J. Smith, who rejoins the Military Department, will not, it is reported, return to his post as consulting engineer of railways in Madras, on the expiry of his furlough this month. Colonel W. E. Coaker will get the permanent appointment.

Consequent on the retirement of Colonel McRae from the Forest Department, Mr. J. L. Laird has been appointed second grade Conservator; Mr. W. S. Hexton, third grade; Mr. R. C. Wroughton, first grade deputy; Mr. H. Mainwaring, second grade deputy; Mr. W. A. Talbot, third grade deputy; Mr. H. W. Keys, fourth grade deputy; and Mr. R. P. Ryan, first grade assistant.

Major L. L. Fenton, Superintendent of Surveys under the Rajasthanic Court, Kathiawar, has been appointed to act, in addition to his own duties, as President of the Rajasthanic Court, Kathiawar, during the absence of Lieutenant-Colonel J. M. Hunter, on privilege leave.

Captain J. Fowle, A.D.C. to Lord Harris, is still an invalid, and continues to feel the effects of the recent attack of fever. He will, it is thought, have to go on short leave to recover his health.

Dr. Cleghorn, who has succeeded Dr. Ferrall, was to join his new appointment of Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals in the Punjab at Simla on Aug. 6.

The Rev. Augustus Atkinson, Principal of the Martiniere College, Calcutta, has been appointed Principal of the Lawrence Asylum at Ootacamund, in the place of the Rev. Mr. Dene. The appointment, says the Times of India, is very popular.

Mr. E. L. Cappel, C.S., has been appointed Director of Land Records and Agriculture. Mr. C. G. Dodgson, C.S., has been appointed second assistant collector, vice Mr. Cappel.

Mr. G. T. Hynes is appointed Deputy Director-General of Post Offices in India, and Mr. Phillip Sheridan, Postmaster-General of the Punjab, in place of Mr. G. T. Hynes.

Mr. F. W. Porter, late magistrate and collector of Allahabad, takes over the Police Department in the North-West Provinces from Colonel Ollivant this month.

By virtue of a Government resolution appearing in the Bombay Government Gazette, Mr. J. Sanders Slater, barrister-at-law, would officiate as Chief Presidency Magistrate at the Esplanade Police-court from Aug. 1, when Mr. C. P. Cooper would proceed to England on three months' leave.

On July 12 a meeting of judicial officers, members of the local bar, and others, was held at Lahore, to express grief at the untimely death of Mr. W. P. O'Brien, late Assistant Commissioner, at which it was resolved to send a letter of condolence to the parents of the deceased.

Mr. A. A. Kanthack, a member of the Indian Leprosy Commission, has been appointed to the John Lucas Walker Studentship in Pathology at Cambridge. The objects of the appointment are that the holder shall devote himself to original pathological research, and shall not systematically follow any business or profession, or engage in any educational or other work which, in the opinion of those entrusted with the administration of the fund, would interfere with his original inquiries. The appointment is tenable for three years, and it is not obligatory for the holder to reside at Cambridge more than three terms. He is at liberty to spend the rest of his time in visiting the Continental laboratories.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

Last week we announced the decease on July 25 at Coed Mawr, Carnarvon, of Surgeon-Major W. George Ward Clemenger, who had retired after a service in the Indian Army of over twenty years. He entered the East India Company's service in 1846, serving during the Indian Mutiny at Meerut. He also served in the Umbeylea campaign. The following is an extract from a letter from Major J. P. W. Campbell, officiating commandant 5th Goorkha Regiment, to the Staff officer of Abbottabad, Feb. 26, 1864:—

"On Nov. 18 three companies of the regiment under Captain Close were employed under Major Ross; their services have been reported in the despatch with one exception. Surgeon Clemenger was attached to this party, and did excellent service, as reported to me by Captain Close. Besides tending the wounded, his attention to whom has been conspicuous throughout, he personally aided in rallying the men, Europeans and Natives, exposing himself in the bravest manner. In one of the retirements, with his own hands he packed the reserve ammunition of the detachment in dandies, and thus saved it from falling into the hands of the enemy. This officer's gallant conduct, and which was no part of his professional duty, deserves, I respectfully submit, some special notice, and will, I trust, receive it."

We have to announce the death of Lieutenant-General Francis Walker Drummond, formerly of the Bengal Cavalry, which took place on Aug. 4 at Hawthornden, the family seat in Mid-Lothian. The deceased was the second son of Sir Francis Walker Drummond, second baronet of Hawthornden, and was born in 1817. He entered the Indian Army at an early age, joining the 5th Bengal European Light Cavalry, and saw a good deal of service. He went through the Bundelcund campaign of 1842, was at Punniar in the following year, and received the bronze star. He served in the Sutlej campaign of 1845-46, for which he received the medal, and went through the Punjab campaign of 1848-49, obtaining the medal with two clasps.

In 1873 he became lieutenant-general. He married Pauline Jemima Catherine, daughter of Mr. Charles Mackenzie, of the Bengal Civil Service, in 1839, and leaves a son and three daughters surviving him, one of whom is the widow of Mr. Quinton, Chief Commissioner for Assam, who was murdered at Manipore in April last.

On Saturday, Aug. 1, Major Herbert Chamberlayne Smith, formerly of the Commissariat Department, and a visitor from London to Devonshire, met with a terrible death about a mile from the Plympton Railway Station. Some years ago he received a sunstroke when in India, and he had ever since suffered at intervals from fits of depression. He arrived at Plympton a few days ago, on a visit to Dr. Ellery, a personal friend and medical adviser, and seemed to have benefited greatly by his visit. On Saturday morning, however, he was found wandering about the line near the station, and was ordered off by a ganger. Three hours later he again got on the line, and was seen standing on the parapet at a small bridge crossing the road about a mile from the railway station. He remained there until the approach of a train, the driver of which, on seeing him, blew his whistle several times to attract his attention. He, however, took no notice of this warning, and, when the train reached the bridge, he was seen to throw himself right in front of the engine. The train was immediately pulled up, and, when the body was picked up, it was found to have been frightfully mutilated.

Surgeon-General G. E. Will, in charge of the military station hospital at Devonport, was returning from his duties of inspection on July 31, when his horse shied near the South-Western Railway Station, and started off at a rapid pace down a steep hill, throwing Surgeon-General Will head foremost to the pavement. Some bystanders picked him up, and he was taken in an unconscious state to the hospital, where Surgeon Nicholas and members of the medical staff examined his injuries, which proved to be a compound fracture of the skull. After lingering for half an hour Surgeon-General Will expired. He was about fifty-six years of age, and had been holding his appointment for the past three months, previous to which he held a position at Aldershot, and was formerly attached to the Royal Artillery. The Duke of Edinburgh, Naval Commander-in-Chief at Devonport, was present on Aug. 5 at the funeral at the Stoke Cemetery of the late General. Vice-Admiral Sir Walter Hunt Grubbe was also present, and there was a very large attendance of officers from her Majesty's ships in harbour and the regiments in garrison.

Mrs. Roe, wife of Mr. Roe, Judge of the Chief Court of the Punjab, died at Simla on July 18 from the effects of an attack of influenza. There was a large attendance at the funeral, including the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab. Mrs. Roe was, and had been for many years, one of the best known and most esteemed ladies in the Punjab, and her death, says an Indian paper, will be felt as a personal loss by a very large circle of friends.

An Ootacamund correspondent writes on July 18:—The death yesterday of young Mrs. Clogstoun, wife of Mr. Cuthbert Clogstoun, of the Police, and daughter of General and Mrs. Morgan, has cast quite a gloom over many of the people in Ootacamund. Much sympathy is felt with the bereaved husband and family, who are among the oldest residents up here. Mrs. Clogstoun has spent the greater part of her life here, and has endeared herself to many.

A person of considerable mark in his native city, Benares, and even farther afield, has been carried off by the prevailing disease in the Hon. Baboo Bireswar Mitter, who died of cholera during the night of July 17. He was a man of strong character, says the Pioneer, exceptional intelligence, and considerable oratorical power, and it is beyond doubt that it was very largely owing to his influence that the scheme for waterworks and drainage was accepted by the Municipal Board of Benares, and that it has made such wonderful progress. He was, in fact, the life and soul of the Board, and it may be fairly claimed for him that he guided its helm through very troublous waters. He was selected a few months back by the Lieutenant-Governor of these Provinces for a seat on the Local Legislative Council, where the assistance he gave in moulding the Waterworks Bill was most serviceable.

A Peculiar Disease.—The Madras Times says:—Particulars have reached us of a novel and peculiar kind of disease which is now prevalent, to some extent, in the town of Manjeri, in Malabar. The symptoms at first are those of an ordinary cold, accompanied by slight fever. Then a small vesicle, like that of smallpox, appears on the tip of the little finger. When this vesicle breaks, death generally ensues within twenty-four hours. Some people have already succumbed to this extraordinary disease. Dr. Beach, the District Surgeon of Malabar, has already proceeded to Manjeri to investigate the disease.

Conversion of the Indian Debt.—Twelve months ago we (Englishman) represented the advisability of the reduction of interest on the Indian debt, and strongly urged that conversion should be undertaken without loss of time. The proposal excited disapproval in certain quarters, but it is observable of late that the necessity for conversion is becoming apparent to those who were blind to its advantages at the time when it could have been carried out under singularly favourable conditions, and with a tithe of the disturbance to speculative money markets which must now accompany the practical adoption of the scheme. Had our suggestion been adopted and carried out when it was originally made, the requisite three months' notice being given of the reduction of interest to 3½ per cent., Government securities would now have been saleable at par. This at least is proved by the subsequent course of the market. No one but the speculator would have been much the worse for the change, while the Imperial finances would have benefited at the rate of twenty lacs annually. In one way or another, it is clear that the conversion problem must shortly be faced, for it is a distinct injustice that the Indian taxpayer should continue for an indefinite period to pay excessive interest on his debts.

THE MANIPORE DISASTER.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphed on Aug. 10:—
The Government, after considering the appeals of the Manipore prisoners, has passed the following orders:—

The conviction of the Regent and Prince Angao Sena on the charge of waging war against the Queen is upheld, but the sentences are commuted to transportation for life and forfeiture of their property, on the ground that they were tools in the hands of their brother.

The conviction of the Senaputty on the charge of waging war and abetting murder is also upheld. There is no ground for clemency in his case, so he and the Tongal General will be executed.

The executioners and the subordinate rebels are to be transported during pleasure.

In a later dispatch, dated Aug. 11, the correspondent adds:—

The Manipore Regent and the other prisoners sentenced to transportation are to go to the Andaman Islands. The annexation of Manipore now seems highly improbable; it is much more likely that some relation of the royal house will be made Raja.

The troops at Manipore are to be considered a Field Force until Sept. 30. This means that they will enjoy all the privileges accruing to troops on field service without the fighting.

Dr. Paterson, 2nd Goorkhas, appeared before a medical board and obtained four months' sick leave to India. He left Manipore on July 22 for Dehra Dun.

Lieutenant Reynolds has been appointed brigade transport officer in charge of the line from Dinapore to Kazuma, and Lieutenant Rice, brigade transport officer, from Maitiphum to Manipore.

The Manipore correspondent of the Englishman thus states the reasons for and against annexation:—"The advantages would be briefly, 1st, the settlement once and for all of a State which has always been in a condition of constant internal discord and revolt; 2nd, the securing of the highway between Burma and Assam, which will increase in importance as time goes on, and may eventually be the line of a railway stretching directly from Bombay to Bhamo; 3rd, the consolidation of our North-Eastern Frontier Districts, for as soon as the Chins and Lushais are thoroughly subdued we shall wield supreme control from the Chindwin to the Brahmapootra, without any independent States between to act as constant irritants on the surrounding tribes; 4th, the moral effect on the Nagas, Chins, and Lushais, who have always regarded Manipore with a considerable amount of awe and respect, and will be still more disposed to fear the power which has raised itself on the ruins of Imphal. The disadvantages, on the other hand, are, 1st, the question of expense, for the annexation of Manipore will entail a small outlay for many years to come, as our administration can hardly be carried on as cheaply as formerly, and more troops will have to be raised to reinforce the already undermanned garrison of Assam; 2nd, the coolie question, which means that under the old regime coolies were supplied by the Durbar whenever required in large numbers at a cost of two annas per diem, while our system will not admit of this practice being continued, as it was practically a system of forced labour, and the experience of the Naga Hills shows how rapidly the cost and difficulty of procuring coolies increases under our rule.

The following telegrams are from the Manipore correspondent of the Times of India:—

JULY 4.—There has been very little of interest going on in Manipore of late, with the exception of the trial of the executioners and the sentries over the officers during the time they were confined in the Durbar hall. The evidence is all very clear and straightforward up to a certain point, that point being the actual execution; but then all the witnesses with remarkable unanimity seem to have retired. The only new light thrown on the proceedings of that awful night was the strange appearance of the Maibas or Demon worshippers in the entrance of the building behind the Dragons, which has probably a more significant meaning than has yet appeared from the evidence, but which may be elucidated when their examination by Major Maxwell takes place. The sepoys have got hold of a story, that the executions took place in full Durbar, the Princes being seated on the steps of the Throne-room behind the Dragons, and that the Maibas with mysterious rites placed the heads of the victims in the jaws of the Dragons as an offering to their Demon god. Be this as it may, there is no doubt that the true story of how the executions were carried out is still a matter of uncertainty.

General Collett has unfortunately been a good deal troubled by an old wound in the leg, which has prevented his getting about as usual, but he was able to get down to the second Gymkhana last Thursday in a dooly.

JULY 17.—Major Maxwell has gone out to Konjakul for a few days to inspect the site of the proposed sanitarium. A gymkhana was held yesterday, and was a great success. There was a large gathering of officers and sepoys, and for the first time a good many Maniporis viewed the events with considerable interest. A watering race for the battery over hurdles caused great amusement, and there were many spills. Wrestling on pony-back for teams of four Goorkhas produced several good struggles, the final heat being won by a team of the 42nd Goorkha Rifles.

JULY 20.—Lieutenant Howell's party has returned from its trip among the Nagas, after having been away for some three weeks, and having visited a good many villages. The detachment of the 43rd Goorkha Rifles at Konjakul rejoined headquarters yesterday at Manipore.

JULY 21.—The chief political officer has just returned from a short visit to Konjakul. During the present month he has been engaged in gathering information concerning the agricultural capabilities of the valley. Five Nagas, supposed to be the murderers of Mr. Melville, arrived here on the 16th. They were escorted from Mao Thana by a detachment of thirty police of the Naga Hills Battalion. Captain Fitzgerald, chief commissariat officer, arrived yesterday from Kohima, where he has been organising the arrangements on that line.

THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE ON INDIA.

THE following letter appears in the Times:—

SIR,—In a letter to the Times of yesterday Sir Lepel Griffin mentions that "the Russian Ministry of War has under consideration a scheme for the construction of a railway from Dushak, a station on the Transcaspian Railway, to Sarakhs, on the Afghan frontier." (The last expression is a mistake, Sarakhs being seventy miles from Zulfikar, the nearest point of the Afghan frontier.) It is a curious coincidence that, only two days earlier, I had mentioned the same fact in a speech in the House of Commons. As Sir Lepel Griffin is right in saying that "this significant announcement has received less notice than it deserves from the English Press"—he might even have said that it has received none at all—it may not be inopportune if I apprise your readers, from information received from the country concerned, of what is actually in progress on the Transcaspian Railway.

It will be remembered that that railway at present extends from the harbour of Uzun Ada on the east shore of the Caspian (the terminus is about to be shifted to Krasnovodsk, a much superior port farther to the north) to Samarcand, a total distance of nearly 900 miles. For the first 400 miles it runs in a south-easterly direction, parallel to the great mountain range which here constitutes the north-eastern boundary of Persia. At the small station of Dushak it turns in a north-easterly direction, and crosses the sand desert to Merv and the Oxus. Dushak, therefore, is the point at which the existing rails have been brought into closest proximity both to Meshed, the capital of Khorassan, and to Herat, the famous Afghan fortress. The Russian frontier, however, extended by the encroachments of 1885 and by the subsequent delimitation, stretches far beyond Dushak in a southerly direction towards Afghanistan, including Sarakhs and Penjeh (where the Russians have a military station called Takhta Bazaar), and at one point approaching to within less than sixty miles of Herat. It is across this belt of intervening territory—i.e., between the Transcaspian Railway and the Russo-Afghan frontier—that it has been for some time foreseen that Russia, presuming her to have forward designs, would sooner or later extend her railway system, thereby creeping nearer at the same moment both to Khorassan and to Herat. This is the nature of the extension that is now being designed.

Three possible alignments have been suggested for such an extension:—

(1) From the station of Dushak, already mentioned, to Sarakhs, a distance of about 100 miles. This would advance the Russian rails to a point distant only 100 miles from Meshed, and 170 miles from Herat. When I was in Meshed a year and three-quarters ago the project was being discussed, and had been referred to a commission of officers and experts in the Caucasus, the then Governor-General of that province, Prince Dondukoff-Korsakoff, being understood to favour the scheme. This is the project that is alluded to by Sir Lepel Griffin.

(2) From Merv up the valley of the Murghab river to Penjeh, a distance of 130 miles. This is the line that was strongly recommended both to the Russian authorities and in conversation with myself, by M. P. Lessar, formerly a member of the Russo-Afghan Boundary Commission, and now Russian Diplomatic Agent at Bokhara. It would advance the Russian rails to a point only 140 miles distant from Herat, but it would run away, so to speak, from the Persian frontier—i.e., from Khorassan and from Meshed.

(3) The advantage of an alignment which should simultaneously benefit Russia in both directions—viz., by bringing her nearer at once to Meshed and to Herat—has suggested a third alignment, which, if my information be correct, is more likely to be followed. This is from a station on the Transcaspian Railway named Karibent, placed at the point where the railroad crosses the river Tejend, flowing northwards under that name from Sarakhs, and under the name of the Heri Rud in its upper reaches from Herat itself. From Karibent to Sarakhs runs the high road that has been made by the Russians for the conveyance of troops and stores to their military station at Sarakhs. This road, following the Tejend valley, is to be the line pursued by the new extension. It will advance the Russian railway communication to Sarakhs, which, as I have pointed out, is only 100 miles distant from Meshed and 170 miles from Herat. Sarakhs itself is a military post on the Russo-Persian frontier, where the Russians have a cantonment on the east side of the Tejend river, and the Persians a big decayed fort, garrisoned by a small detachment, on the western bank.

A few words in conclusion as to the meaning and probable consequences of this extension. Russia has, of course, a perfect right within her own territory to carry her railways where she pleases; nor is there here any legitimate ground for protest. It may further be contended that commercial advantage will result from this extension, inasmuch as it will carry Russian wares to a point nearer the bazaars both of Meshed and Herat. This is to some extent true, although her present position is quite sufficiently advanced to give Russia the mastery of both markets in all such goods as she is capable either of producing or of importing. The real significance of the railway, which it is scarcely possible either for the Russophile to exaggerate or for the Russophile to ignore, is that it involves an advance which will tighten the grip of Russia upon Khorassan, and fortify her menace against Herat. I affirm, with due knowledge of what I am writing, that such a line, if constructed by Russia, will be constructed by her, not for the sake of Sarakhs, but with the twofold ulterior intent—(1) of an extension westwards to Meshed; (2) of an extension southwards to Herat. Sarakhs, a settlement in a desert, will not long remain the terminus. The Persian and Afghan capitals are the real destinations.

It is with no feeling either of suspicion or of panic that I cast this horoscope, having long foreseen and argued that such a move must come. As soon as an amiable professor with a craze for bugs, like Komaroff, was succeeded in Transcaspia by a strong personality and great strategist, such as Kuropatkin, it was certain that a southerly

Branch line would be made; and General Annenkoff has himself always advocated the construction. The latter officer has now ceased to direct the railway. But the very fact that it has been handed over to the exclusive control of the Military Department, and to General Kuropatkin, is an indication of the line on which further development will proceed. I trespass on your space only in order that Englishmen may know in what quarter the little cloud is forming on the horizon. It may be no bigger than a man's hand as yet. Let us keep our eyes on it as it swells upon the heavens.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
Carlton Club, Aug. 7. GEORGE N. CURZON.

THE VICEREGAL COUNCIL.

A MEETING of the Legislative Council was held at Simla on July 23, H. E. the Viceroy, who was making satisfactory recovery from his influenza attack, presiding. The Hon. Sir Philip Hutchins introduced the Bill to define the Jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes, Madras, and in the course of his speech, after pointing out that the Bill was designed to give effect to the proposals frequently urged on the Government of India by the Government of Madras, stated that a rough sketch which was transmitted to Madras in order to secure that the Bill should express the exact intention of the local authorities had been somewhat roughly assailed by the High Court, which, as constituted last September, declared that it had been launched without due consideration. As a matter of fact, however, the outlines of the measure originated with Sir Walter Morgan in 1872, and had been repeatedly supported by Sir Charles Turner, and were unanimously approved by the High Court itself as constituted in 1879, and again in 1885, and were referred to by the Judges in 1887 and 1889 as having been deliberately adopted. It had also been warmly recommended by the local Government every year since 1887; but, although the outlines must be taken as accepted, perhaps the sketch draft had filled in details in a manner to which objection might be taken. Certain changes, therefore, had been made, and the honourable member felt convinced that the Bill as now formulated would be generally approved by the full Court. The changes were as follows:—The local Government would fix the date on which the measure would come into force. There would be no transfer of Insolvency jurisdiction. The concurrent jurisdiction of the High Court would be reserved, subject to the present rule as regards forfeiture of costs, but, on the other hand, the present limit of jurisdiction would be 5,000 rs. The power was reserved to the Government to raise it as high as 10,000 rs. The scale of fees prescribed in the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act would be applied to all suits. The practical result, therefore, is the establishment of a regular side for the Small Cause Court, the original jurisdiction being now possessed exclusively by the latter. It would rest with Government from time to time to say how many Judges might be necessary for each Court, but it was anticipated that a single Judge could do all the original work worthy of attention of a High Court, including the Criminal Sessions and Insolvency. Thus the existing machinery would be utilised under conditions highly convenient from their elasticity. Both the Local and Supreme Governments recognise their obligation to give the full number of Judges required. It has always been anticipated that the change would tend to increase litigation. If the increase prove large there was the sixth Judge, whose letters patent the honourable member himself had been chiefly instrumental in procuring; but they had first to remove a practical denial of justice admitted by the Honourable Judges; and secondly, to obviate a lamentable waste of judicial power, all the more remarkable on account of the great size of Madras City and the petty character of most of the litigation. The regular side of the Court would be in all respects distinct, and the Small Cause side would remain as efficient as ever for the recovery of simple debts. A few more appeals might come to the High Court Appellate Side, but they would amount to less than one-twentieth of the work of which the Court would be relieved. In conclusion, the honourable member protested against being suspected of entertaining insidious designs to the disadvantage of his own Presidency. He had pressed for the very same measure when looking forward to finish his service in the High Court. He regarded the Court with affection, but he could not regard its original jurisdiction as a fetish, which it would be sacrilegious to touch.

Hon. Sir Alex. Miller having moved the Bill to validate certain marriages solemnised under Part 6 of the Indian Christian Marriage Act 1872 be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon. Sir P. Hutchins, Mr. Rattigan, and the mover, the Council adjourned for a fortnight.

NAVAL DEFENCE OF INDIA.

THE Times of India says:—Sir Edmund Fremantle has written for the second issue of Captain Eaton W. Petley's "Calcutta Naval Volunteer Annual" a paper on the naval defence of India, which will be read with especial interest just now when the talk of an Indian Navy is being revived at home. The Vice-Admiral goes into the heart of the whole matter when, without at all underrating the value of shore batteries, he asserts frankly enough his opinion that quite enough will have been done in that direction when the defence works on the Hooghly, and at Bombay, Trincomalee, Rangoon, Aden, and Colombo are completed; and he deprecates altogether any further additions which it is the tendency of scientific officers to propose with the view of making this or that place more secure, "oblivious occasionally of the force required to adequately man them." Admiral Fremantle, in short, believes with the poet that "Britannia needs no bulwarks, no towers upon the steep," and that her duty is less to protect our ports and harbours than to keep the enemy at a distance from them on the sea itself. There is no doubt a good deal of truth in Admiral Fremantle's complaint that in matters of this sort we allow ourselves to be a good deal too powerfully influenced, not by the actual necessities of the situation, but by what is being done in the same direction by foreign powers. In times of peace the nation as a whole is strenuously opposed to incurring any considerable expenditure on military works, and accordingly there is every now and then a "scare," accompanied by much wild talk about the defenceless of our coast line at home and in our colonies and dependencies. Mr. Stanhope himself has more than once been a "scare-monger" of this description, and while public opinion has remained in an agitated condition he has succeeded in getting his heavy war estimates passed without much opposition. The system is an unhealthy one, but it sometimes works out well enough, and achieves objects which perhaps in less excited times would be unattainable, or attainable only with the maximum of difficulty. Sir Edmund Fremantle is appropriately rough on this spasmodic legislation. "It is suddenly discovered," he observes, "that Toulon or Spezzia are strongly fortified, while the defences of Portsmouth or Plymouth are lamentably weak, and in hot haste we set to work to copy our neighbours. If it gives confidence to the unthinking public, if it imposes on our possible enemies, good! But often these are the only fruits of our expenditure." As the Admiral pertinently observes, foreign powers in reasonable apprehension of a combined naval and military attack from the sea have need of much stronger batteries than we require. "They must perforce protect their arsenals against a determined attack from the mistress of the seas, and if they cannot command the sea routes they can at least defend their harbours." We are in a different position, and our aim need simply be to keep the enemy at a distance from our harbours, for it is, as he says, a national necessity that we should protect our trade routes and our enormous commerce, and adequately guard our own highways.

Maritime supremacy is, in short, the great watchword after all, though there seems in the constant elaboration of coast defences some danger of forgetting it; and Sir Edward Fremantle points the dictum out of the moral of history. The surrenders made by the French in India at the Peace of Paris in 1782 were the great outcome of the superiority of British naval power when it had pitted against it so sterling a naval commander as Bailli de Suffren, who fought no fewer than five general actions with the British Admiral, Sir Edward Hughes, in which no advantage was gained on either side. Again, to take the negative side of the picture, it was the lack of this naval superiority in the West Indies and North America that caused the loss to England of the United States, for without assistance from the French fleet Lafayette and Rochambeau could not have maintained their position, and Washington himself attributed the surrender of Cornwallis at York Town entirely to this factor. It was a naval force (though Clive was certainly on board with 500 or 600 men) which re-took Calcutta in 1757, and afterwards seized Chandernagore; and even Plassey might not have been had it not been for the Navy. In Sir Edmund Fremantle's view, Colonel Clive, man of genius and born leader of men as he was, gives place in those exciting days to Admiral Watson and the Navy—Admiral Watson whose name is remembered, as it were, only by an accident. That fate attends naval operations in these days too. The two first Burmese wars, the China war, the Ashantee Campaign—no one (except Admiral Fremantle) credits the Navy with any share in these matters, and the Navy after all was a most vital adjunct; while the Vitu Campaign last October was solely conducted by the Navy, assisted by 150 Indo-African police, and would have cost Germany, according to General Von Caprivi, at least 75,000, and a great naval effort, whereas to us it came as little more than the ordinary work of the day. The main safeguard of India, in fact, is this naval supremacy, and Admiral Fremantle's object in insisting on the matter in vigorous terms is to drive home to Englishmen the supreme value of naval defence, a matter which he fears is very imperfectly understood or appreciated. He instances in particular the case of Ceylon, where a loud outcry was raised at the "rapacity" of the Home Government in demanding an increased contribution. They were ready to vote money for an extra battery at Colombo, but the other matter was preposterous; while all the time, as a matter of fact, Colombo "is not really defensible by batteries except at enormous expense," while in the absence of adequate naval defences there are half a dozen spots (Galle for one) where an enemy could attack, and possibly attack successfully. "It sounds almost like a paradox," adds the Admiral, "but I feel inclined to add that the security of Ceylon and India chiefly depend upon the strength of our Mediterranean and Channel fleet." There must, of course, there as elsewhere, be a second or inner line of defence mainly local in character, but the principle remains unchanged.

An Indian Navy Admiral Fremantle regards for various good reasons as impracticable: all the necessary work, he believes, can be done by working the local mobile defences, with officers and men of the Royal Navy, assisted by Indian Marine officers specially qualified and a proportion of lascars. The Indian Navy did splendid work upon occasion, and Sir E. Fremantle denies them no whit of their achievements; but "the times have changed; ships, armaments, and the implements of war generally are now so varied and complicated that constant familiarity with new conditions has become essential to the naval officer, while the crews of men-of-war now consist mainly of experts." An Indian Navy, he thinks, could only be revived and made efficient by sending the majority of the officers and men home at frequent intervals to enable them to keep up with the times, which would prove practically almost impossible: and by establishing expensive naval schools in India, which in the best and most favourable of circumstances could only partially do their work, and would be constantly liable to become rusty. It is impossible not to feel that there is a great deal of truth in these arguments. At any rate it will evidently require much more powerful reasons than have yet been offered on the other side of the question before the necessity for the establishment of an Indian Navy becomes patent. As to the idea of a naval attack by a foreign Power on Calcutta or Bombay, Admiral Fremantle looks upon the notion as mere midsummer madness. He has heard it gravely argued at Bombay that "the enemy" might take his light draught ships and torpedo-boats up the harbour clear of the present batteries, and that we must have guns on Karanja Island. "Now here," he says, "is a proposition which seems to me simply monstrous, the assumption being that Bombay is likely to be attacked by an ironclad fleet, supported by numerous gunboats and torpedo-boats. These must, of course, have come through the Suez Canal, and the British Fleet must be supposed to have been annihilated, but on the latter assumption London would probably be more tempting bait than even 'all the riches of Cathay.' There is still the Cape route, however, but even from that direction such an attack, to be successful, premises such a condition of helplessness on our part as to put the serious discussion of the matter outside the pale of reason. Two belted cruisers, Sir E. Fremantle thinks, would be quite sufficient to protect Bombay harbour, unless the enemy's fleet should drop suddenly from the skies. "Floating defences" are the Admiral's watchword for the safety of India, and the principles on which he proposes to work them, a brief outline of which we have given above, have, he tells us, "already been agreed upon by a joint India Office and Admiralty Committee, and will be put in working order when the torpedo gunboats Assaye and Plassey arrive at Bombay. The ships are to have the nucleus of crews from the Royal Navy, and to be under the Naval Commander-in-Chief, but Indian Marine officers and natives will complete the complement." Captain Petley's Annual, by the way, in which Sir Edward Fremantle's article appears, is an exceedingly artistic and interesting production, full of excellent illustrations and of letterpress, which being written by experts, is of especial value. Captain Petley is well-known on the other side as the Commander of the Calcutta Naval Volunteers; a corps of whose zeal, energy, and efficiency Admiral Fremantle expresses himself in warm terms of appreciation.

FRONTIER POLITICS.

THE Times of India of July 24 says:—The author of "Across the Border" has a very sensible article in the current number of the Fortnightly on our North-West frontier expeditions, in connection with the popular idea at home of the policy under which they are carried out. It takes an English public (and especially, it would appear, the legislative portion of it) a long while to appreciate the fact that India covers as large an area as Europe, excluding Russia, that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal rules a population nine millions in excess of that of the United States, or that the population of the North-West Provinces and Oude is equal to that of the whole German Empire, that of the Punjab to that of Spain and Portugal put together, and that of the Central Provinces to that of Holland and Belgium. More difficult still has it proved for them to understand that India is not a nation, but a congeries of nations, and that no such term as "Indian" can indicate a native of India. It is easy to see in these circumstances how dangerous ignorant popular clamour may become with regard to such remotely-known peoples as the frontier tribes who are constantly giving us trouble of one sort or another, and how hopelessly the question of the absorption or annexation of these tribes becomes confused with the question of our relations with feudatory states. The questions are not connected in even the remotest degree. One has only to look at the map to understand how ridiculous to the Anglo-Indian mind appear the vapourings of Mr. Labouchere on this very subject. The fact is, the bringing of these border peoples under British rule is not only the simplest solution of our frontier difficulties, but is the best fate that could possibly befall the tribes themselves. To establish the truth of this proposition, we need not go further than the work of Sir Robert Sandeman, and the enormously improved condition of the Belooches under his administration. Tribal anarchies and deadly feuds, the semi-barbarism which often means also semi-starvation, with their accompaniments of ragged misery and epidemic disease, give way, under the influence of British rule, to peaceful times, to the undisturbed cultivation of the land, to improved sanitary conditions, and eventually to a large measure of comparative prosperity. As Mr. Oliver points out in the article referred to, the Indian Government in pursuing this policy are not only relieved to a large extent of the necessity for constant punitive expeditions, but they gain also exceedingly valuable sanitarium for the troops. Many more of the battalions needed for Upper India can thus be located in temperate uplands instead of the hot unhealthy stations in the plains, while "a want that is every year making itself more felt would also be gradually supplied in the form of additional recruiting grounds." It is certainly "intolerable" that a few thousand ill-armed tribesmen should be left with the power of disturbing the border, when that power can be taken away by converting the tribes into loyal subjects and good soldiers.

RUSSIA AND INDIA.

THE Pioneer says:—It must be remembered that the Moscow paper, which has been talking big about Russian intentions towards India, is not an irresponsible journal like the Novoye Vremya, but speaks by the card and has an official status denied to its contemporaries; while the fact that the censorship of the Press is a reality in Russia cannot be overlooked in connection with threats held out to England. It may be taken, therefore, that the irritation aroused by the visit of the German Emperor to England has resulted in a revival of anti-English feeling among the ambitious military and political officers about the Czar. The display of this irritation is opportune, inasmuch as it furnishes a justification for those defensive measures in the north-west frontier of India which have been condemned in some quarters as an unnecessary provision against an imaginary danger. The lessons learned during the scare of 1885 have been forgotten by the critics who declare that no serious attempt will ever be made by the Russians to disturb the peace of India. The lull in the aggressive movements of Russia, which caused alarm and distrust six years ago, has been taken to mean that no revival of the schemes of Skobelev is possible, that the frontier finally demarcated in 1887 will endure for ever; and that the Indian Government can sit with folded hands awaiting any further developments with perfect equanimity. Every crore spent on strategic railways and roads, on the fortification of the Peshin position, and on the increase of the garrison in India, has been condemned as so much money wasted. It is forgotten that Russia has completed her strategic railway from the Caspian to Samarkand; that she has outposts on the Tejed and Murghab; that she has pushed her troops to Kirki on the Oxus, whence they can easily cause mischief in Afghan-Turkistan; and that, generally, her military preparations in the Tians-Caspian Province have been steadily matured. The old plea that the Czar's policy was one undertaken solely in the interests of civilisation can scarcely be accepted. The wilful manner in which the collision with the Afghans at Panjdeh was provoked opened the eyes of English statesmen to the danger arising from the advance of Russia to the very borders of Northern Afghanistan, and that danger was not really lessened by the after-proceedings of the Boundary Commission. It is quite true that the negotiations were conducted in a friendly spirit, but Sir West Ridgeway and his companions realised how readily further trouble might have been caused had any hitch occurred in the work of delimitation. Since that period the Government of India have been forced to embark upon lavish expenditure on the north-west frontier and to increase their military budget in order that the country might be placed in a strong defensive position. This outlay, we have all along held, was imperative, for immunity against attack can best be secured by showing an enemy that every preparation has been made to resist his advance, and that he will not start upon a campaign with all the advantages on his side. If nothing had been done in 1885, Russians of the Skobelev school might be tempted to force the Czar to take yet another step forward in Central Asia, to find a pretext for seizing Herat and Balkh, and absorbing all the territory north of the Hindoo Koosh; but they must now see that the war which would follow upon such aggression is not a consequence which they can provoke lightly.

SIAM AND THE POWERS.

THE Bombay Gazette of July 24 says:—Lord Lamington's question in the House of Lords in reference to Siam was, in one respect, framed under a singular misconception of the interest of Europe at large in Siamese affairs. An invitation to the Powers to unite in guaranteeing the autonomy of that country against French encroachments would imply that the European Governments are equally interested in maintaining the independence of Siam. To nearly all of them, however, Siam is une quantité négligeable, and it would be a new and unheard-of thing to ask Austria and Germany and Italy, for example, to take any Asiatic territory whatever under their protection in the manner suggested. Germany, perhaps, has a certain commercial interest in the country, for much of the trade of Bangkok is in German hands, and German capitalists, it was lately reported, have obtained the concessions for two lines of railway from Bangkok to Korat and Patiew, two rich rice-growing districts, which are about to be constructed. German commercial and financial interests, therefore, must be taken into account by way of exception to Lord Salisbury's remark that Siam interests only England and France. The question, of which we heard a good deal in 1885, when the future of Upper Burma had to be decided upon, has been revived by the advent of M. Lannesan in Tonquin as the Governor-General of Indo-China. M. Lannesan is the accredited representative of a forward and even an aggressive French colonial policy. His book on "The Colonial Expansion of France" is one of the most Chauvinist productions, from the colonial point of view, that have been written for some years, and we may understand what his views are in regard to the "Expansion of France" in the Far East, from the calculation therein made that if France will only strengthen her naval position in Indo-China and Madagascar, she would, in the event of war, be able to cut off England from her Eastern possessions, and even menace India. Such being the view that M. Lannesan takes of the probabilities of French expansion in Asia, it was not surprising to learn the other day that the new Governor of Indo-China had already alarmed the Siamese by designs on Luang Prabang, one of the Shan states tributary to Siam. Apparently M. Ribot has given the English Government assurances that M. Lannesan has no intention of putting into execution, at the cost of the Siamese, his strong ideas about the colonial expansion of France. But when the fox is brought into the near neighbourhood of the geese, we make little of the assurance that he has instructions not to disturb them, and M. Lannesan's ideas in regard to the countries around Indo-China are so rooted as to have become an instinct which he may find it difficult to control, even under the strictest orders from Paris. There is, we know, a document on record which is more eloquent even than his book as to the conception of the claims and mission of France in the Farther East. M. Lannesan was the reporter to the French Chamber of Deputies upon a commercial convention between Burma and France which was concluded in the last year of Theebaw's reign. If the Siamese Government have a copy of his report within their reach, they will not thank the author of it for having become so near a neighbour. Luang Prabang, which seems to have had some tributary connection with Annam as well as with Siam, had a very prominent place in M. Lannesan's survey of the countries in the Indo-Chinese peninsula in which France was interested, and the reporter was careful to remind the Chamber that much advantage might be derived from the relations between Annam and Luang Prabang. And, again, M. Lannesan laid stress upon the fact that Siam and much of the country under Burmese sovereignty were not regularly organised territories. The plain meaning of this is that such territory may be easily embraced by an "expanding" Power as he wants France to be. It is believed by many who are able to form a reliable opinion on the subject that, not long after this, French inclinations towards acquiring a commanding influence in Siam asserted themselves in a more direct way, but that the circumstances of the time proved unpropitious. That France would some day seek in Siam for compensation for the disappointment she met with at Mandalay in Theebaw's time has, however, never been a secret, and now that M. Lannesan has become her Eastern pro-consul it is no wonder that the Siamese are anxious.

MILITARY AND NAVAL.

Military Secretary to the Madras Government.—The following reports in reference to the Madras Military Secretaryship were current in India when the mail left:—Col. H. R. Hope has, it is stated, been appointed to succeed Brig.-Gen. Kenny Herbert as Military Secretary to the Madras Government. Col. Hutchins, Deputy Quartermaster-General, Madras Army, brother of Sir Philip Hutchins, is in the running for the appointment of Military Secretary to Government. Among the four officers named as likely to succeed Brig.-Gen. Kenny Herbert as Military Secretary to the Madras Government, Col. McLeod, commanding 3rd Light Cavalry, and at this moment on his way out from England, is regarded in military circles as first favourite; but it is doubtful whether he will give up his chances of a brigade.

The Reorganisation of the Madras Cavalry.—The following letter appears in the Times of India of July 24:—Sir, A telegram under the heading "Reorganisation of the Madras Cavalry," purporting to emanate from your own correspondent, appears in the Times of India of July 16. The supposition contained in the last sentence has caused surprise and no little annoyance to the regiment referred to, particularly as it would appear to have no foundation outside the imagination of your own correspondent. I have been requested to ask you to kindly give prominent notice to this letter in your columns, as a contradiction to the statement that any belief exists that the 2nd Madras Lancers is likely to be the regiment selected for disbandment.—Yours, &c., B. HOLLOWAY, Lieut., Adjutant, 2nd Madras Lancers. KampTEE, C.P.: July 18."

Staff Corps Promotion.—"B. L. H." writes to the Times of India:—The statements and remarks that appeared in the Pioneer of the 9th inst. regarding Staff Corps promotion have, of course, attracted the attention of every officer in that service. It should be noted that the Pioneer's military correspondent and the Pioneer itself have from first to last thrown cold water on the question of the Staff Corps' claim to quicker promotion. What is now stated in that paper is no way borne out by what Sir J. Fergusson said in the House in reply to Mr. Gourlay—namely, that the matter had not yet been brought to the notice of the Secretary of State for India. It is the present intention of a large majority of the officers of the Indian Staff Corps to take steps to have the matter brought to the notice of the Government and of the public, when, it is to be hoped, some more satisfactory result than that prognosticated by the Pioneer will be achieved. In the meantime officers of the Indian Staff Corps need not accept the verdict of the Pioneer as gospel, or its long-winded and obscure allegory about A and B, as in the least degree representing a true analogy.

The 12th Burma Infantry and the Chin-Lushai Medal.—The name of the 12th Burma Inf. will always, thinks the Pioneer, be associated with the defence of Thobal, for of the eighty sepoy with Lieut. Grant on his march into Manipore territory, fifty belonged to that regiment in which he himself is a wing officer. Before its conversion into a regular battalion the 12th Burma was known as the Chin Levy, and as military police the Sikhs and Punjabis in its ranks did good service on the western frontier of Upper Burma. In the expedition against the Chinboks particularly they had some sharp jungle fighting, and their powers of endurance were tested very severely. For some reason best known to the authorities, the Chin-Lushai medal was refused to the Levy, though it was given broadcast among the troops. The men were much disappointed at being passed over, and considering the hard work which fell to their lot, it is difficult to understand why they were left out in the cold. Even now, we believe, it is not too late to give the medal, and in view of the splendid behaviour of the Tammoo detachment last spring, it would only be a generous act on the part of the Government of India to reconsider their old decision. A few years ago a notification was published granting a medal for a Mohmand expedition that had taken place a quarter of a century ago; so that there is a good precedent to justify action in the present case. In the Chinbok affair, too, the Burma Government declined to give the men of the Chin Levy free rations, though it was understood that such would always be granted to military police battalions serving across the frontier.

A Fin-de-Siècle Subaltern.—For unsurpassed "cheek" the Lahore paper commends the following narrative to the reader. Recently a young officer on the staff in the Western Presidency was gazetted to join a battery of artillery in northern India on the expiry of his term of Staff service. He thereupon wrote to the officer commanding the said battery inquiring whether the officers were a sporting lot, and if so, he would join at once, otherwise he would take leave and postpone the date of giving his future comrades the pleasure of his company. The reply he received, if not polite, was very curt, and the result of it was the young sportsman proceeded on leave, pending an arrangement to exchange into another battery. This has since been accomplished, but the C. O. of the second battery has not received any inquiry as to the pursuits of himself and officers.

The Black Mountain.—The Seri correspondent of the Pioneer writes on July 8:—For the last fortnight we have had unpleasantly hot weather, rendering life in tents far from comfortable. However, most of us have brushwood screens round and over our tents; and, compared to those who are now in the plains of India, we are well off as far as climate is concerned. In other respects also we are doing well. Very good food, and lots of it, thanks to the Commissariat Department, a few enterprising bunnias, and a model mess secretary. We get next to nothing out of the country. The people who have been giving our great Government so much trouble are apparently a very poor lot, and incapable of developing the resources of their country. We pay liberally for everything the villagers bring in for sale, and we live in hopes of supplies being brought in more freely as the people get more settled in their homes, and get their farms into working order. The right wing of the 32nd Pioneers have nearly finished the task allotted to them in the matter of barrack-building. They will be leaving us on the 10th inst. for Meean Meer, their home, to rest perhaps, but more probably to be off again road-making in the Manipore direction. Such is the rumour. Why can't they be left here to make the road along the crest of the Black Mountain range, from Pabal Galli, in the south, to Jal Gali in the north. This road has been talked of since 1888, and is to be made by the Punjab P.W.D. Some Pioneers or Sappers should be given the job. It would surely be better to pay soldiers to do the work than that the money go into the pockets of P.W.D. contractors. We have established a "Games' Fund," and ordered all kinds of sporting paraphernalia. A court has been laid out, and we have good lawn tennis, thanks to our sporting honorary secretary, who promises us cricket and other delights. We had a great revolver-shooting competition the other day, with lotteries and sweeps on it to increase the excitement. Lieut. Cromiline, of the Goorkhas, beat us all. A cricket team went up from here last week to play the Nimal garrison (R. W. Fusiliers and No. 9 M.B., R.A.). The result was a drawn match, for the ball went to pieces before the completion of the second innings. Our cricket here is of the single-wicket type, there being no ground large enough near camp for double-wicket play. However, when the Black Mountain develops into a proper hill station, there will be ground to be got just as good as the Murree Flats or Simla's Annandale.

The scheme of defence for the port of Madras is to be carried out after January next, funds having been obtained unexpectedly.

If the necessary arrangements can be made within the limits of the outlay sanctioned for the Mainpoori Camp of Exercise, not nine, but twelve cavalry regiments will be concentrated there.

Under instructions from Army Headquarters, Surg.-Major A. B. Seaman, I.M.S., in medical charge 2nd (Queen's Own) B.L.L. at Allahabad, is directed to proceed to Calcutta so as to arrive there not later than July 27, for medical charge of the 17th Bengal Inf.

At the beginning of July, Rawul Pindi and Lucknow had between fifty and sixty cases of typhoid fever in each cantonment hospital among the British troops. This disease has also been prevalent in the British regiments at Sialkote, Chakrata, Cherat, Bareilly, and Allahabad.

With reference to the disbandment of one Madras cavalry regiment, it is now stated that the 4th Madras Light Cavalry, and not the 2nd Madras Lancers, as before wired, will probably be disbanded. The 2nd Lancers will proceed from KampTEE to Bangalore early next cold weather, the 3rd Light Cavalry proceeding to Bellary.

Major-Gen. Nairne, inspector-general of artillery, is likely to get one of the first class districts which fall vacant in India next spring.

General Luck, inspector-general of cavalry, has arranged to take six months' leave to England in place of three, to which he was gazetted, thus deferring his return to India until the middle of October.

Col. J. Galloway, C.B., Staff Corps, is permitted to proceed to England under the Regulations.

Col. J. F. Hilton, Seaforth Highlanders, will be placed on half-pay on Sept. 2, and has been permitted to proceed home on or after that date.

Col. A. C. B. Hall, of the 1st batt. Loyal North Lancashire Regt., stationed at KampTEE, having, on July 1, completed four years as commandant of that corps, has vacated his command, and comes home on half-pay.

Major Frank Ryley, the senior major, succeeds to the command, his place as second in command being filled by Major A. G. Tidy, deputy assist. adj.-gen. for instruction, Poona. Major Tidy will therefore rejoin his regiment at KampTEE when the garrison class of which he is now in charge finishes its present course, which will be in a few days.

Lieut.-Col. A. B. Stopford, R.A., assist. adj.-gen., who has been promoted to a half-pay lieutenant-colonelcy, with effect from April 19 last, is continued in his Staff appointment.

Major Le Gallais, 8th Hussars, was expected to arrive at Poona about July 27 to assume charge of his duties as aide-de-camp to H.E. Sir George Greaves, commander-in-chief, in place of Major P. L. Clowes, who has rejoined his regiment.

Major R. H. Daniell, Staff Corps, second-in-command, 5th Bombay Cavalry, has been granted leave to proceed out of India on private affairs, under the Leave Rules for the Staff Corps, for the unexpired portion of his one year's leave in India, from date of departure in September, 1891, to April 14, 1892.

Capt. D. W. McPherson, 1st batt. B. B. and C. I. Railway Volunteers, is to be borne on the rolls of the corps as a supernumerary.

Capt. W. Quentin, Staff Corps, wing commander, 4th Regt. (1st batt. Rifle Regt.) Bombay Inf., has been allowed furlough to Europe for one year.

Surg.-Major J. Arnott, M.D., Indian Medical Service, has been promoted to brigade-surgeon, with effect from April 30, 1891, vice Brig.-Surg. A. N. Hojel, retired.

Capt. G. W. YOUNGHUSBAND and E. E. Taylor, Lieuts. W. H. Lewin and E. Peach, of the Indian Staff Corps, have passed the standard required by the Queen's Regulations, and are qualified to be interpreters in the Russian language; Capt. A. D. Enriquez has passed in Italian and Russian.

Capt. J. Monteith, Staff Corps, 2nd squadron commander, 7th Bombay Lancers, has been granted leave on medical certificate for one year.

Lieut. Wadeson, 7th Bombay Cav., has been nominated as brigade-major to the inspector-general of cavalry for next season.

The Madras Municipal Amendment Bill, it will surprise many of our readers to hear, writes the local Mail, has been "dropped" under telegraphic orders from the Secretary of State. The quidnuncs are asking the reason, but nobody can give it, not even the Madras Government itself apparently.

BENGAL.

OUR latest advices from Calcutta are to July 21.

The Bengal Benares Railway.—The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal arrived at Kulna on July 14, and replying to an address which drew attention to the necessity for the promotion of the Bengal-Benares Railway scheme, said there were so many other more important projects needing early attention that it was doubtful if this one had any chance of being taken up yet. He suggested, if the want was felt to be very urgent, that local capitalists might see their way to starting it, in which case he promised every support.

Wreck of the Steamer "Coningsby."—The chief and second engineers and fourteen of the crew of the steamer Coningsby, which was wrecked off the Isle of Chaduba, on the coast of Aracan, arrived in port by the British India steamer Kistna. The Coningsby, which was bound from Marseilles to Diamond Island for orders, at 4 A.M. on July 7, ran on a rock, and rapidly settled down. The crew got into lifeboats and made for the Island of Chaduba, four miles off, where they were well treated by the inhabitants. On the fourth day of their stay they were picked up by the British India steamer Husty and taken to Kyouk Phyou, where they were taken on by the Kistna. The captain, second officer, third engineer, and two seamen have remained at Akyab, where an inquiry will be held.

From private reports received in Calcutta it seems that the prospects of jute are somewhat more favourable than was supposed. Bailers are said to be more disposed to sell the new crop.

Two rival factions of Sikhs, including influential members of their community, came near to causing a riot on Wednesday (July 15) at Calcutta. One party were trying to obstruct the other in the performance of their religious rites in a garden in the suburbs. A rule was issued to show cause why they should not be bound down to keep the peace for one year in a large sum. The case came on before the magistrate of Sealdah. Some evidence was recorded, and the hearing was adjourned. The court was thronged by Sikhs, who formed a large crowd outside also, and were not easily dispersed.

A collision is reported on the Red Road, Calcutta, between two carriages. A phaeton, containing Mrs. Baker and Mr. and Mrs. T. Inglis, of Alipore, was run into by a landaulette. All the parties were thrown to the ground, and one of the occupants of the landaulette was hurt rather badly. The ladies received nothing worse than a shaking. The phaeton had a front wheel taken off besides other damages, and the landaulette's shafts and springs were broken. Both conveyances were completely overturned in the collision.

The French barque Maxim David was wrecked near False Point, Calcutta, on July 13, the captain and two of the crew being drowned. The rest of the crew have arrived in Calcutta.

MADRAS.

OUR latest advices from Madras are to July 22.

Madras Sanitation.—In reviewing the reports of the Sanitation of Madras during 1889 the Government, in an Order dated June of this year, states among other things that the Governor in Council cannot but consider that the authority vested in the Municipal Commissioners by the existing Act might much more effectively be exercised than at present were the members of the Commission to co-operate more heartily with the president for the suppression of the nuisances complained of. The Commissioners desired the grant of powers to municipal servants enabling them to arrest offenders. The Governor in Council was not satisfied that the private scavenging system has been fully or fairly tried by the Commissioners, and he cannot approve of the attempt being abandoned on the first slight discouragement. The report of the Commissioners is extremely meagre, and the Governor in Council can only regret that a subject of such vital importance as the drainage and water supply should have been treated in so perfunctory a manner as it has been. The Sanitary Commissioner also brought to notice that the death-returns of the Municipality were seriously inaccurate, and that the subject was ignored by the Commissioners.

New Grand Master.—Col. G. M. J. Moore, the popular President of the Madras Municipality, was on July 18 installed with much éclat as District Grand Master of the Freemasons in the Madras Presidency, vice Lord Connemara. The lodges throughout the Presidency were represented on the occasion, and some brethren from other provinces were also present. Colonel Moore has been long connected with the District Grand Lodge of Madras, and has been held in high esteem as Deputy District Grand Master. Four out of the six Judges of the local High Court, including Sir Arthur Collins, the Chief Justice, and two out of the three Judges of the Small Cause Court, are active members of Madras Freemasonry.

Forcing Girls to Eat.—The Collector of North Arcot, in reporting the difficulties he had to contend with in trying to induce the Vellama people of the Kalahasti Zemindari to resort to the relief kitchens, says:—I had up the local heads of their caste panchayat, as also their male relations and the Zemindari Tahsildar, who is of the same caste. The latter and the Panchayetdars admitted somewhat reluctantly that, although their caste prejudices did not allow of the girls going to the kitchen, they would not put the girls actually out of caste for going. This being so, I pressed them to bring the girls that evening to the kitchen, and accordingly, with some difficulty, I brought the whole party, Panchayetdars and Tahsildar included, to the kitchen. I had clean leaves provided for the girls and asked them to eat. This they refused to do, with bitter tears. The Deputy Tahsildar, who was also present, reasoned with them in vain. So, too, in a half-hearted way did the Panchayetdars. As the act was not held to be one which would outcaste the girls, I suggested to the male relatives to feed them. With great difficulty the girls were made to sit down, and their male relatives dipped their (the girls') hands in the food and tried to convey the hands to their mouths. A grain or two of rice was forced in. All this time the children were weeping bitterly, and the scene was very painful; as, however, the Commissioner thinks that a "persistent endeavour" should be made to overcome such objections, I stayed till it was dark, and went away, re infecta.

A Quaint Old-World Story comes from Dindigul, the once famous township on the border of Madura and Coimbatore, says the Englishman. During the past twenty years Dindigul has moved with the times at least as briskly as most other towns in the Presidency, but the missionaries, who have been established in the district for nearly three hundred years, still appear to preserve intact the traditions of Robert de Nobilibus and John de Britto. At a village within a few miles of the town the students of the Roman Catholic school, on returning from a picnic a few weeks ago, wantonly cast the remains of their feast at a Hindoo idol by the roadside. Complaint was made to the Roman Catholic priest, but the aggrieved Hindoos failed to obtain redress, and from that moment the unfortunate prelate has known no peace either by day or night. His straw-stack caught fire, his cattle died, the decorations of the church were mysteriously ignited, and stones came hurtling into the building during the celebration of mass—all from the most impossible directions, and many apparently "from about the middle of the walls." The police were called in, but failed to solve the mystery; and the long-suffering priest has now been forced to the conviction, which he does not hesitate to admit in public, that the whole chapter of accidents is the work of the offended devil whose fane had been desecrated by the Roman Catholic students.

It is rumoured that the Standing Committee of the Madras Municipality has approved the proposal of Messrs. Hutchinson and Company for the construction of a tramway at Madras.

A sum of nine lacs has been sanctioned for expenditure on the Madras harbour during the current financial year.

The Wynaad planters are about to address the Madras Government requesting that Mr. Lawson, the Government Botanist and Director of Cinchona Plantations, be sent to Java on the special duty of reporting on the cultivation of Cinchona in that island.

CEYLON.

According to the latest information from Ceylon, says the Manchester Guardian, it would appear that Sir Arthur Havelock is seriously contemplating the substitution of a general land tax, and possibly some other means of raising revenue, for the justly condemned paddy tax. A report by Mr. A. R. Dawson, one of the Government agents who were prominently associated with the Select Committee appointed some time ago to inquire into the working of the grain tax, makes known the interesting fact that the Governor has actually proposed a general land tax. The report gives a summary of the proceedings of a conference between Mr. Dawson and the district assistants and native headmen of the Western Province to consider the report of the Select Committee, and, in particular, the practicability of a general land tax and of an increase in the salt revenue. The important fact in the report is the avowed opinion of the assistant Government agents that a general land tax would be quite practicable, that the Select Committee has overrated the cost and difficulty of its collection, and that a survey—the alleged necessity for which has been the sole plea for delay—is not indispensable for its imposition. Thus the objections to an immediate general assessment have been authoritatively declared to be imaginary.

BOMBAY.

OUR latest advices from Bombay are to July 24.

The Rajabai Tower Tragedy.—The native papers, while they generally acquiesce in the soundness of the verdict in the Rajabai Tower case, are disappointed to see that the tragedy has, after all, remained a dark mystery. They express a hope that now at least Government will consider it their duty not to allow the matter to rest here, but will order such inquiry as might result in discovering a clue to the mystery. In the Jame-Jamshed a letter is published from Mr. Sorabjee Shapoorjee Bengalee, who says that the result of the trial, presided over by a sound and impartial judge like Mr. Farran, shows that there was no outrage or attempt at outrage, that the unfortunate rumours which had got abroad had naturally roused the indignation of the community, and that Parsee papers had done much to fan the flame. He thinks that the money which has been subscribed to the Tower Fund ought to be restored to the contributors. He concludes by observing that the leaders of the community ought to have guided them on this occasion with firmness and wisdom, instead of allowing themselves to be driven along by the general current of feeling and opinion. The Jame-Jamshed repudiates the charge that Parsee papers did anything to incite popular feeling, saying that the very circumstances of the tragedy were such as to stir up the soul to its depths, and that native papers, not of a particular section, but of all classes of the community, had combined on this occasion to raise the voice of complaint. Were they all mistaken or misguided in their cries for justice and for a satisfactory inquiry in order that the truth might be known?

Masonic Installation.—Captain H. M. Prior, Military Accounts Department, was installed on July 23 as the Right Worshipful Master of Lodge "Orion in the West" for the ensuing year. There was a large gathering present, the following lodges being represented:—St. Andrew's in the East, Level, Sphinx, Glittering Star, Military Jubilee, De la Pire, Royal Connaught, Caledonia, and Union. Worshipful Brother Captain C. D. Wise was the Installing Master, and Brother Prior, having been duly installed, appointed the following office-bearers:—Brother Major E. D. Newham-Smith, Senior Warden; Brother Captain B. M. Horrocks, Junior Warden; Brother J. Jenkins, Secretary; Worshipful Brother S. Dickie, Treasurer; Brother Phillimore, Senior Deacon; Brother W. J. Greengrass, Junior Deacon; Brother Surgeon R. C. Thacker, Inner Guard; and Brother David Low, Tyler. At the conclusion of the business the brethren partook of an excellent repast, and the evening was spent in an enjoyable manner.

The Mausoleum of Aga Khan.—The whole of Saturday, says a Bombay paper of July 24, was observed by the members of the Khoja community of Bombay as a general holiday, in order to celebrate the occasion of the re-gilding of the domes of the magnificent mausoleum of the late H. H. Aga Khan, situated at Mount Road, Mazagon. The cost of the ornamentation of the domes amounted to about 40,000 rs., some thousand tolas of pure gold having been used in the process, the amount being given by Mr. Abba Narsu, a rich Khola merchant of Kilwar, on the Zanzibar Coast. It would appear that at the time of the disturbances created by the Germans on that coast the donor had reason to fear that his business would be affected, and then made a vow that if he succeeded he would present a sum of money for the embellishment of the mausoleum. The difficulties on the coast having been settled, and the business of Abba Narsu having in consequence prospered, the sum promised was sent to Bombay, and the work of re-gilding the domes put in hand. The same gentleman, it may be added, a few years ago, also gave a sum of 8,000 rs. for silversmithing the gates leading to the tomb. The tops of the central and two eastern domes, weighing 35 maunds, the tallest of which is 16 feet in height, having been re-gilded under the supervision of members of the caste at the Jamatkhana near Khoja Mohla, a procession was formed early on Saturday morning, comprising musicians, standard-bearers, and two four-in-hand brakes and carriages in which the gilded domes were carried through the streets. The members of the Khoja community, despite the inclemency of the weather, turned out in large numbers, and threw rose-water and other offerings over the contents of the vehicles, which presented an imposing appearance, the summit of each dome being surmounted by a gilt lozenge-shaped device, bearing an inscription.

BURMA.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

The Rangoon correspondent of the Times telegraphed on Aug. 9:—

The want of rain continues to be felt throughout Upper Burma. Serious scarcity in that region is certain, and if rain does not come within the next month there will be famine. The question of establishing relief works is engaging the attention of the local Government. The rainfall in Lower Burma continues to be unprecedentedly heavy.

The Tsawbwa of Wuntho has declined to accept the terms recently offered him by the Chief Commissioner—namely, residence and kind treatment in Lower Burma. The Tsawbwa has sent a defiant reply, refusing any terms except restoration to his territory.

The elder Tsawbwa is hovering about the Chinese frontier. It has been ascertained that he has some 70,000 rs. with him in gold bars and coin. He is accompanied by Po Lang, a rebel chief from Mogoung.

Next cold season renewed disturbances will almost certainly occur in the northern part of Wuntho and the adjoining districts. The Government is, however, on the alert, and the Tsawbwars and their allies will get a warm reception.

Sir A. Mackenzie announced at a durbar held at Kindat that he intended to construct a series of fortified posts to connect the Upper Chindwin district with Wuntho and Mogoung.

A number of small columns will be sent out during the next cold season to work the Chin Hills and compel the submission of the hill tribes within our frontier in the Bhamo district.

The garrison at the jade mines has been provisioned.

Eight men who formed part of a gang who escaped from a police guard in Lower Burma after murdering two policemen, and who subsequently attacked another police station, have been sentenced to death.

The self-styled Shwegyobyn Prince, an Alompra pretender, who last year headed a rebellion in the Chindwin district, has been tried at a session held at Pococo, in Upper Burma, on a charge of rebellion and murder, and has been sentenced to be hanged. Several of his companions have been sentenced to transportation for life.

This man, who was formerly employed as a Government vaccinator in Lower Burma, has no claim to belong to the ex-royal family, and he was implicated in several murders. The Chief Commissioner recently referred to him as a wretched pretender, and the Burmese in accepting him as a Prince gave a strong proof of their credulity.

The Rangoon Gazette announces that efforts are being made in London to float a company to construct a railway from Mandalay through the Shan States, and that the Government has promised to grant a concession if the capital is forthcoming. The local Government has no information as to this scheme.

A Reuter telegram of Aug. 8 says:—The civil police have defeated a large gang of dacoits in the Katha District after a sharp encounter, in which three of the marauders were killed. The police were able to make nine others prisoners, and to seize the arms of the whole band. A quantity of property which the dacoits had stolen at different times was recovered. The Bazaar at Bhamo was destroyed by fire on the 5th inst.

Another telegram, through the same agency, and dated Aug. 6, says:—The Chinese traders at Bhamo are irritated at the severe restrictions to which they are subjected by the British authorities, and have petitioned Mr. Warry, of the Political Department, on their grievances. The matter will be laid before the Chief Commissioner, Sir A. Mackenzie, on his arrival here on the 18th inst. It is considered here that it would be impolitic to disregard any ill-feeling among so powerful a community as that of the Chinese traders in North Burma.

TEA CULTIVATION in Burma is making but slow progress. There were five plantations in the province at the end of last year, but the area under the tea plant was only 78 acres against 172 acres in 1889, the falling off being attributed to the want of sufficient labour for one or two of the plantations. The output of manufactured tea also dropped from 12,250 lbs. in 1889 to 5,710 lbs. in 1890.

AS A PART of the project for bringing Upper Burma into more direct communication with Assam, the road from Tammoo to the Chindwin river is to be greatly improved during the next cold weather.

CASHMERE.

A GREAT impression is said to have been created in Cashmere by Raja Amar Singh's inspection tour in the villages. The zemindars of far-off districts, who had never dreamt of a Raja condescending to hear their grievances, says an Indian paper, are coming into Srinagar in crowds to represent them. More than this, about ten days ago a great deputation of people of Skardu, consisting of more than 100 men, arrived, and again on July 10 700 households from Poonch—bringing their cattle, children, and private property with them, having all deserted their own villages—came before Raja Amar Singh at Gulmarg, and presented complaints of zulum on the part of Raja Moti Singh. With the advice of the Resident arrangements are being made to give them waste lands for cultivation in Cashmere, and it is stated that the Resident is going to institute inquiries into the cause which compelled these poor zemindars to quit their native land. This speaks badly of Raja Moti Singh's administration.

PUNJAB, N.-W. P., OUDE, &c.

WE REGRET to observe, writes the Lahore paper, that in many places in the Punjab animosity between the Hindoos and the Mahomedans appears to be on the increase. The last sign to this effect is from Gujrat, where a Hindoo banker had commenced to build a house near a Mahomedan mosque, upon which the Mahomedans objected to its being built of more than one storey. It is reported that the banker has been officially advised to give way in the matter, but the incident has, nevertheless, brought out a great deal of partisan feeling.

IT HAS BEEN decided to discontinue the petroleum boring operations at Khatun, Beloochistan, in October.

THE N. W. PROVINCES Secretariat at Naini Tal had been warned to hold itself in readiness to go to Allahabad at the shortest notice to arrange measures for coping with the famine that must inevitably occur if the rains held off another week. The outlook, it is said, was gloomy in the extreme, and was engaging the most serious attention of Sir Auckland Colvin. The telegraphic news, however, which has forestalled the mail, puts a more cheerful face on the situation.

THE REPORT of the Committee appointed to inquire into the condition of the police in the North-West Provinces and Oude is now completed, but it will be some time before the orders of the local Government are passed. It is understood that the Committee urge the abolition of selection, the institution of competitive examination, and the promotion from subordinate ranks to the highest offices of properly qualified candidates.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR of the North-West Provinces with his personal staff was to have left Naini Tal on July 19 for his plains tour. One of the principal objects of his tour is to see for himself how the different water-supply schemes that have been started are getting on, and to launch those at Cawnpore and Lucknow. At the same time Sir Auckland Colvin is no doubt anxious to take stock personally of the condition of the different parts of the province, at a time when agricultural prospects are looking so ominous.

THE STAMP REVENUE in the North-West Provinces and Oude for the past year shows a decrease of about 2 lacs on the year preceding, mainly due to a falling off in Court fees.

RAWUL PINDI and Lucknow were recently quoted as stations in which typhoid fever is very prevalent among British troops. At the beginning of July there were between fifty and sixty cases in hospital in each of these cantonments. The disease has also appeared in British regiments at Cherat, Sealkote, Chakratta, Bareilly, and Allahabad.

CRIME in the Central Provinces appears to be satisfactorily on the decrease, the total number of offences reported during last year (21,424) being considerably less than the number reported during any of the four preceding years. There was, it is true, an increase in the number of offences against public order, and (by way of compensation) an increase in sanitary prosecutions. The decrease in burglaries and petty thefts is attributed to better harvests, immunity from epidemic disease, and the generally improved condition of the people, while the slight increase in violent crimes was due entirely to special reasons arising out of purely local circumstances.

CENTRAL ASIAN NOTES.

It is notified in the Invalides Russe that Major-General Karpoff, of the Corps d'état-major, has been appointed military governor of the district of Semipalatinsk.

The Vienna correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs:—It was reported from Bokhara that Abdul Achad Khan, the Emir of Bokhara, had resolved to come to St. Petersburg in October and stay there some time, and that during his absence from his country Russian troops would be garrisoned in different parts of it to maintain public order and peace. Now, however, private information has reached Vienna to the effect that the Russian troops will occupy the three cities on the Amu Daria, Kilif, Termez, and Chosch Toge. Termez especially is a point of great importance to Russia, because it is situated only five hours' march from the fortress of Balkh.

The Times correspondent telegraphs the following items from Calcutta (Aug. 9):—

The Ameer has ordered a census to be taken throughout Afghanistan.

He has prohibited the export of wheat from Candahar, as the crops have been seriously damaged by locusts.

The Ameer is reported to have begun to levy a territorial militia from the various tribes, and to have bestowed military titles in connection with it on the local governors.

The health of the Ameer appears to have much improved, although he has lately had some return of gout.

A Lahore newspaper recently published a report that General Alikhanoff had been arrested as a spy in Afghanistan. The story seems to have had no better foundation than the fact that a man named Ali Khan, who was formerly in the Russian service, was arrested on suspicion by the Afghan officials at Girishk last May and sent to Cabul.

The Englishman states, says a telegram, that the Ameer of Afghanistan is anxious for a British Mission to visit Cabul. The journal remarks that such an expedition is at least possible.

The Ameer is said to be suffering in pains to improve the Cabul-Peshawur road via Jellalabad. On the Jellalabad-Mamuzai section, which has always been a very bad road of hard clay, six elephants are at work with road-ploughs.

Cabul was en fête on Monday, June 29, and two following days, to celebrate the marriage of the son of the Ameer's favourite queen to the daughter of an Usbeg brother-in-law of the Ameer, Colonel Syad Nazar Muhammad. The latter is the representative of the once independent ruling family of Shibargan, a province to the north of Afghan Turkestan. Sardar Muhammad Umar Khan, otherwise Shahzada Jabangir, the bridegroom of the day—he is only three years old now, and over the blushing bride's head only one summer has passed—may one day ascend the throne of the Ameer.

The conversation about Candahar which occupied the House of Commons on Tuesday evening, says the Manchester Guardian, was perhaps not very relevant to any particular policy. Mr. Maclean would like the railway continued to Candahar. That implies a new relation to the Ameer. No one objects to making the railway if the Ameer wishes the work to be done; but so long as he objects to it the railway cannot be prolonged towards Candahar without raising the most serious issues. The construction of the lines to Quetta and the Khojak Tunnel implies that the line to Candahar will be laid when it is required; but in the meantime the true policy for India is not to push communications into Afghanistan, but to complete those on the Indian side of the frontier. The policy of Lord Elphinstone and of Lord Lytton came to grief, not in Afghanistan, but in the hills between that country and the Indus. The Afghans were each time easily beaten; but the operations were strangled by the hill tribes sitting upon the communications of the Army. The business of the Indian Government at present is to gain these hill tribes; to make sure of them; to take the road and the railway through their valleys, which would mean good wages and a well-supplied market; and to enlist the pick of the tribesmen in the British border-force. The frontier cannot be held without these tribes. If they are on our side it cannot be pierced. The Indian Government knows this; and if Mr. Maclean wishes to serve the cause of Indian defence he will not urge an advance to Candahar, which probably no one in India now contemplates, but an extension of railways on the Indian side between the Bolan and the Khyber. If the Ameer could be induced to invite the locomotive to Jellalabad or Cabul, there would be very little of the Central Asian question left.

Mr. J. M. Maclean, M.P., writes to the Times:—I am surprised that no critic in the newspapers has drawn attention to the extraordinary statement made by Mr. Curzon and confirmed by Sir John Gorst—that the Ameer of Cabul remonstrated strongly with the Indian Government against the extension of the Sind-Pishin Railway to Chaman in British territory. This is one more proof that the Ameer has been forced by our policy to regard the railway as an engine of war instead of an instrument of civilisation. Had we approached him in a different spirit, he might have welcomed any improvement in the means of communication between his country and British India. But Lord Lansdowne and his colleagues are so busy trying to be statesmen and warriors that they have no time to spare for attending to anything so humble as the needs of trade. How does it happen, by the way, that confidential despatches between the Government of India and the Ameer of Cabul, which have not yet been laid upon the table of the House of Commons, have been communicated to Mr. Curzon?

Mr. Curzon replies:—My friend Mr. Maclean is quite wrong in both of the statements or suspicions contained in his letter to your columns of to-day. The Ameer of Cabul did not "remonstrate strongly with the Indian Government against the extension of the Sind-Pishin Railway to Chaman, in British territory." What he remonstrated against was the fixing of the terminus in what he believed to be Afghan territory. The necessities of gradient required the station to be placed at the distance of a few miles from the base of the Kwaja Amran range, and the Ameer, regarding the latter as the boundary, protested, not without some justification, against what he interpreted as an encroachment upon Afghan soil. No confidential despatches between the Government of India and the Ameer, or vice versa, have ever been communicated to me, and Mr. Maclean has no right to make the insinuation. My knowledge is derived from the Indian newspapers, of which I am apparently a more diligent student than Mr. Maclean. Mr. Maclean's imputations upon Lord Lansdowne and his colleagues are as undeserved as I have shown his statements about myself to be inaccurate.

Rumours are current, says the Pioneer, that the Russians have equipped an "exploration party" of 400 or 500 men to visit the Pamir, doubtless with a view to the extension of their influence in that direction. This is probably only the first sign of renewed activity on the part of Russia in Central Asia.

The Allahabad paper ventures to predict that in all probability the next few months will witness some developments of the position in Central Asia which may lead to troublesome complications. It is on the Upper Oxus and the Pamir that we must look for the next signs of Russian activity. There is a No Man's Land in that direct on which affords peculiar scope for the talent of men who accept Skobelev's dictum that the Asiatic hide is not worth the tanning unless that process leads to important results in Europe. It is difficult in India to form opinions as to the effect of this or that diplomatic coup in Europe; whether achieved by the Triple Alliance or by Russia and France in combination, but we can at least keep our eyes closely fixed upon the Russian frontier line in Central Asia, and note there the indications of danger to English interests. Nothing may come of the impertinent threat held out by the Moscow Gazette, but no great harm will be done if extra vigilance is exercised for some little time to come upon the movements of those whom Russophiles have so foolishly called "Our friendly rivals in Asia."

The Allahabad paper concludes an article on "The Policy of Preparation" as follows:—The necessity of military preparedness for the eventuality of having to fight for the existence of the British rule in India, and to fight for it at short notice, has been established as a maxim in the government of this country; and let it be remarked in conclusion that the case is emphatically not as the Times writer puts it, that in one event—that of an attempted invasion—the strong military policy would be proved high statesmanship, but that if no war comes, it will stand convicted as an erroneous calculation. The aim of frontier defences, harbour fortifications, and strong forces is just as much to deter an enemy from attacking as to defeat him when he attacks; and if the danger that now hangs over India should eventually, years or decades hence, roll away under some new distribution of pressure on the political atmosphere, the gratitude of the country will be due to the Government whose energetic measures protected it not less but even more than if the storm had actually broken on the slopes of the Hindoo Korsh.

Attempts are again being made by General Gholam Haider, Commander-in-Chief of the Jellalabad division of the Afghan Army, says the Civil and Military Gazette, to bring the rebellious Sangu Khels to terms. They are practically the only clan of the Shinwari tribe who have not yet submitted; and the General has offered, if they will come in and give sureties for good behaviour and agree to pay an annual revenue of 180 rs., that they shall be pardoned and restored to the lands they used to occupy. The Sangu Khels have, it is said, agreed to come in on these terms, if, in addition, their captive tribesmen are released and the Ameer pledges himself to treat them kindly in future. The persistence with which the Sangu Khels have hitherto held out is an admirable proof of their fortitude and independence of spirit; for while they are in a miserable condition in the hills, not daring to settle in any place for fear of the Ameer's troops, they have had the temptation of seeing the other sections of the Shinwaris who have submitted to the Ameer settled down in comparative comfort and prosperity.

Confirmation has reached the Civil and Military Gazette from another source of the victory reported to have been gained by Umra Khan of Jandol on July 1 over the Swatis and Bonerwals at Ramora. This account also attributes Umra Khan's victory to the bribery of Rahmatulla Khan, who deserted his allies. By this victory, and the generous treatment of his prisoners, Umra Khan has gained greatly in prestige.

It was expected, says the same paper, that Nur Mahommed, the refugee adventurer who escaped from Peshawar and made a descent upon Khost a year or two ago, would join the forces of Umra Khan in the fighting now going on in Bajaur. Nur Mahommed, however, who is now at Bara in Tirah, lives in wholesome dread of falling into the hands of the Ameer, and does not seem inclined to venture from the asylum which Tirah affords to outlaws like himself. He has, nevertheless, a well-armed following of about a hundred Karu Khels; and he would no doubt be heard of again if opportunity again presented itself for a venture upon the Ameer's territory.

Mahommed Rahim Khan, to whose ability was due the other victory which Umra Khan's forces had gained over the enemy, has received a special khillat for his bravery from Umra Khan. The latter, however, is wise enough, says the Civil and Military Gazette, to see that this Kilkenny-cat form of warfare between the petty clans and States in Bajaur and Swat will infallibly weaken all the combatants, so that they will fall into the hands of the first foreign Power that chooses to reach out its hand. He has, therefore, proposed to his chief rival, Safer Khan, of Nawaghi, that a truce should be made and arbitrators selected to decide what concessions should be made to establish a definite frontier between the territories of Jandol and those of Nawaghi. The Khan of Nawaghi, however, appears rather to desire than fear the imposition of the Ameer's authority in that part of the country, and has replied that the proposal comes too late. If Umra Khan had agreed to surrender Dir, as he now appears ready to do, when called upon to do so before the commencement of hostilities, it would have been different; but now Safer Khan prefers to fight it out.

Chungking has at last been really opened. A cargo consisting of thirty bales of silk and twenty bales Szechuan wax (says the China Mail) was shipped on board a junk flying the British flag, which left Chungking on May 17. The junk reached Ichang in nine days. There the goods were transhipped and reached Shanghai on June 2, a total passage of fifteen days. Other junks flying the British flag were on the way.

NOTES FROM THE FAR EAST. THE RIOTS IN CHINA.

EXPECTED CO-OPERATION OF THE POWERS.

THE Standard correspondent at Paris telegraphed last Wednesday night:—

"I understand that active negotiations have been carried on within the last few days between the Quai d'Orsay and the British Foreign Office with regard to a joint action in China, rendered necessary by the attacks on missionaries and others, so that the chances are that before long the British and French Fleets may be co-operating in restoring order in certain Chinese ports and rivers.

"The only thing that might make it unnecessary for Foreign Powers to intervene in the Celestial Empire would be the taking of prompt and energetic measures by the Chinese Government; but the customary dilatoriness and indolence of the Peking Government do not leave room for much hope of this. The situation is therefore likely soon to become serious, if not critical.

"I have also reason to believe that should France and Great Britain find it necessary to take decisive action Germany would join them."

Reuter telegraphed from Paris on Aug. 4:—M. Ribot, Minister for Foreign Affairs, this morning had an interview with the Secretary of the Chinese Legation in reference to the situation of the Catholic missions and foreign subjects in the Celestial Empire. The latest advices received here from China tend to show that the agitation prevailing in the southern provinces is of a political character. The Chinese Government declares that it has taken all the measures necessary to secure the maintenance of order, but as the efficacy of these measures is not apparent the European Powers interested are negotiating with a view to joint intervention in the matter.

The Paris correspondent of the Times telegraphs:—The Russian Minister at Peking will join the other Ministers in representations to the Chinese Government as to the security of Christians in China.

It is officially announced that a telegram has been received from her Majesty's Consul at Foochow, contradicting the report that riots are imminent in that port. He considers that Europeans there are adequately protected by the Chinese officials, and by the presence of gunboats.

The Kölnische learns that negotiations are in progress between England, Germany, and France with a view to joint steps against China in reference to the recent outrages on Europeans. In order to prevent procrastination on the part of the Chinese authorities, it is intended to adopt the suggestion of the English Ambassador in Peking and to propose that an Imperial Committee of Inquiry, consisting of the highest State officials, shall be appointed, and all the disposable Chinese warships sent to the Yang-tze-Kiang to support it. France has been strenuously endeavouring of late to recover the Catholic Protectorship over the missionaries of all nationalities in China. If Germany and Italy do not take counter steps it is possible that she will succeed in inducing the Chinese authorities to agree to the change.

A telegram from New York (Aug. 7) says:—The account published in the Standard of Chinese affairs attracts marked attention here. The Sun re-publishes it on its editorial page. The New York Herald makes it the text of its first leader. It emphasises the importance of co-operation between the French and American Ministers and vessels, and wonders whether the English abstention signifies an English understanding with Li-Hung-Chang, whereby England is to profit in the event of Li-Hung-Chang's accession to power. The Herald recalls how England profited by the discreet vigour she manifested in 1840 and 1863, when the nature of the crisis was inferior to that now prevailing. Hence it advises Europe and the United States to watch both China and England.

A Reuter telegram from New York (Aug. 10) states:—The Herald to-day publishes a telegram from Washington, according to which Mr. Soley, Assistant-Secretary of the Navy, has stated that instructions were despatched by the Alaska, steamer, which left San Francisco last Saturday, for the United States warship Marion to proceed at once from Behring Sea to China. Mr. Soley admitted, says the Herald's correspondent, that the situation in China was such as to suggest trouble, and that it was necessary to have more American vessels on the spot. The correspondent adds that he learns from other sources that instructions have also been given for the Alert to follow the Marion as soon as she can be spared from the seal-protection duty in Behring Sea, while it is not improbable that the Charleston will also be ordered to the Asiatic station. The United States naval officers are described as feeling deeply humiliated at the inadequacy of the American Pacific Squadron.

We hear from the river ports, says the North China Herald of July 3, that a good deal of surprise was felt at Hankow at H.E. Chang Chih-tung's coolness towards Admiral Richards. The Admiral notified through Mr. Chris. Gardner that he proposed to have the honour of calling on the Viceroy, and Chang Chih-tung sent back word that he should be very glad to see him, but could not return his call. At Nanking, however, Admiral Richards called on the Viceroy, H.E. Liu Kun-yi, and the call was duly returned. It is a great stain on British prestige that nothing, so far as is known, has been done about the barbarous murders at Wusueh. As a foreigner, not an Englishman, writes us: "When a Chinaman commits suicide on our ground, his people refuse to take delivery of the body before all is properly investigated. I think a British man-of-war should have come to Wusueh, and insisted on receiving the bodies from the people with great ceremony."

There is a remarkable correspondence between the recent riots in the south and the one at Tientsin many years ago, writes the Tientsin reporter of the North China Herald. Both found their origin and force in the latent anti-foreign feeling. Both were aimed in the first instance against the Romanists, and found their incentive largely in the orphanages. Previous to the Tientsin outbreak, similar rumours were in circulation here to those that were circulated at the south. Cases of kidnapping were not unknown about Tientsin, and there was reason to believe that some children had been stolen that spring. Indeed, we have been informed that this spring some such children were found on board one of the outgoing steamers, and were sent off to the proper Chinese authorities. Those rumours were not new then, they have been less frequent since that event than previous to it. It was known too that at the orphanage a few cash were given those who brought foundlings to this home. Here was all that a scheming and evil-disposed person needed to create a condition of certitude in the ordinary Chinese mind, having a groundwork of suspicion and superstition on which to operate. How similar to what has occurred in the south! Is there in all this any lesson to be learned? The action above referred to indicates a determination on the part of the Emperor to do all in his power to preserve quiet and prevent the recurrence of such sad events. There is no reason to believe that the mass of the common people have any ill will towards foreigners; there is evidence that many of them would be very sorry to have us leave. But their suspicions, their superstitions, their inability to understand the reasons that have led us to leave home and friends to come to this distant land (especially in the case of the missionaries who have "no visible means of support," and so must have some other motive back of their "good works,") and their credulity are easily wrought upon by the designing, and when they are once excited, there is no restraining or guiding them. Is it not our duty to avoid as far as possible those things that can excite suspicion? Here again the "Tientsin Massacre" gives us an object-lesson. The day previous to that event, some of the Chinese officials desired to inspect the orphanage, so as to put forth an authoritative proclamation and allay suspicion. Such inspection was denied them, and we know the result—one that might have been avoided in all probability but for this.

The correspondent of the Standard telegraphed from Shanghai on Aug. 6:—Efforts are now being made by influential persons in China and Japan with a view to the conclusion of a Treaty which should bring about a closer union for the future between the two countries, both for the purpose of facilitating commerce between them, and strengthening them against external dangers. These endeavours are reported to be looked on with favour by Chinese and Japanese officials of the highest rank, including Li-Hung-Chang and Viscount Enomoto. The Chinese Fleet which recently started for Japan has met with a very flattering reception there.

A despatch has been laid on the table of the Hong Kong Legislative Council announcing that the Secretary of State had sanctioned the appointment of a Chinese Consul in Hong Kong, the appointment to be revoked at the end of a year if found objectionable. There is a strong feeling in the colony against the appointment (says the China Mail), which is looked upon as subversive of British authority and as the establishment of an imperium in imperio; and the feeling is intensified by the neglect of the Home or Colonial Government to inform the community of the negotiations that were taking place.

A telegram from Paris (Aug. 10) states:—M. Ribot to-day received M. Pavie, French Consul at Luang Prabang, and the other members of the exploring expedition recently conducted by him on the borders of Tonquin, and, after congratulating them on the magnificent results they had obtained, expressed the hope that, after a well-earned rest, they would return and render fresh services to France and Indo-China.

The Times correspondent telegraphs from Singapore:—
"Raja Brooke of Sarawak has proclaimed his son, aged seventeen, heir-apparent under the title of Raja Muda.

"An influential meeting held in Singapore has urged the necessity of protecting the interests of British subjects in the protected Malay States by giving them the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the Straits Settlements. Support from the non-official members of the Legislative Council and from the Chamber of Commerce is expected."

THE INDIAN STAFF CORPS.

(To the Editor of THE HOMEWARD MAIL.)

SIR,—I was very glad to see a letter in your last issue on the subject of Staff Corps promotion. The arguments contained therein will appeal to all senior subalterns and captains of the Staff Corps, who have not only felt the effects of supersession by their luckier comrades of the British Army, but have experienced the evils accruing from the fall of the rupee, and increase of prices in India. I was amused to see that the Pioneer was still at its old game of throwing cold water on our aspirations for quicker promotion. If journals of the stamp of the Morning Post, Broad Arrow, and Army and Navy Gazette are agreed, as they undoubtedly are, that we have a "just grievance" which calls for a remedy, we shall I trust be able to get along in spite of the Allahabad paper. Officers who have friends in either House of Parliament cannot do better than acquaint them with particulars of the present state of affairs. At any rate, the subject being well en evidence now it is as well it should be kept so. I enclose my card, and remain, dear sir, yours truly,
"EN AVANT."

The ex-Sultan of Perak.—Lord Knutsford, Secretary of State for the Colonies, has addressed a communication to Mr. Henniker Heaton, M.P., consenting to allow the exiles Abdullah, ex-Sultan of Perak, and his companions, now in the Seychelles, to reside for the future in Singapore, subject to certain conditions. Abdullah was banished to the Seychelles in 1875 on a charge of complicity in the murder of Mr. Birch, British Resident in Perak. In the course of August the party will start for their new destination, after nearly fifteen years' residence in the Seychelles. The ex-Sultan still maintains his innocence of the crime imputed to him.

The Indian Staff Corps.—Truth says:—Several officers have written to me with reference to remarks in Truth of July 16 upon the conditions of service in the Indian Staff Corps. All confirm my statement that there is a deep and general sense of dissatisfaction in the Service. It is of little use, however, says one writer, to trust to the Indian Government being brought to a sense of its duty to its servants by any falling off in the supply of officers, since young men entering the military profession rarely trouble themselves very seriously about the prospects before them. Perhaps the account which one Staff Corps officer gives of his experience may inculcate a little more wisdom in this respect, if not among boys entering the Army, at any rate among their parents or advisers. When this officer was at Sandhurst, a notice was circulated canvassing for officers for the Indian Staff Corps, with a promise that they would be promoted to the rank of captain in twelve years from the date of their first commission. My correspondent, with others who already held their commissions as sub-lieutenants, swallowed the bait. Before the twelve years expired, however, a warrant was issued ordering that promotions to captain should reckon from the date of the lieutenant's commission, thus imposing a year or more's additional service in the lower rank upon those who had joined as sub-lieutenants. This is a conspicuous instance of those flagrant breaches of faith to which officers seem to be almost equally subject in India and England. Whether, however, a knowledge of the sort of treatment that is to be expected does or does not check the supply of officers, the fact remains that a Government has no business in the present day to deal with its men on the principle that, if they will not put up with their treatment, others can be found who will. Private employers have found out that the terms which they must concede to those who work for them can no longer be settled by mere reference to the state of the labour market. Governments will have to learn the same lesson. And it is everybody's interest that they should do so. A staff corps captain, of nineteen years' service, makes the following pertinent observation on this point:—"In treating the question as one of demand and supply, the Indian Government is as unwise as it is unjust. It is of all others a Government which depends for its very existence on the quality (not the quantity) of its officers, and when it assumes that the quality of the supply of new officers will not be affected by the present sense of injustice and neglect, it makes an error which is likely to have disastrous consequences."

A Concession to School Teachers.—The Director of Public Instruction has, the Educational Record states, secured from the Government of India and the Secretary of State an important concession in favour of teachers already in the service of the State who may desire to attend a Training College or other institution with a view to qualify for a higher or special certificate. Hitherto this could only be done at the sacrifice of service, as time spent in such training did not count for pension. Henceforth it will count, and the most serious objection to such a use of time disappears. The concession, it may be hoped, will act as an incentive to teachers to continually strive after higher professional qualifications, and to occasionally break the monotony of the teacher's ordinary life by a renewal of contact with the headquarters of pedagogic study. We believe that the correspondence which has resulted so satisfactorily originated in a proposal submitted by the Educational Inspector of the Central Division.

The new series of Literary Opinion, which Messrs. Hutchinson are issuing monthly, under able editorship, promises to be a great success. This month's number is in its second edition, the main attraction being Mr. Vernon Blackburn's article on Rudyard Kipling. One of its attractions is a series of Colonial, American, and Indian notes. The cost is 3d. per number.

The India Office has appointed three firms in place of Messrs. Allen as publishers to the Secretary of State and agents for the sale of the publications of the Indian Government: Mr. E. Arnold, Messrs. A. Constable and Co., and Messrs. Luzac and Co. The appointment in each case dates from Aug. 1.

Messrs. Archibald Constable and Co. will shortly publish in their Oriental Miscellany "An Anglo-Indian Anthology," which will gather together many fugitive verses, some well remembered and others too good to be forgotten, from old Anglo-Indian newspapers and magazines. A section will be devoted to sporting songs, introducing to the English public such famous "pig-sticking lays" as "The Boar, the mighty Boar," "Saddle, Spur, and Spear," &c., with musical accompaniments.

Admirers of everything Japanese will be glad to learn that we are to have an English edition of Mr. Percival Lowell's "Noto: An Unexplored Corner of Japan." It is the record, cast in the form of a semi-fictional narrative, of one who knows the remote regions of the Mikado's dominions as perhaps no other European does. With a special passport, and accompanied by no one save by a Japanese attendant (who was groom, cook, and jack-of-all-trades), Mr. Lowell spent a long time travelling in a jin-riki-sha through the valleys and over the mountain passes of that terra incognita, the Province of Noto. From the villages of the plains to the wild Pass of Usui, so celebrated in Japanese romance, and to the famous Shrine of Zenkoji, and thence down to the seaboard again, the daring adventurer passed without harm.

Indian Immigrants.—SIR G. CAMPBELL asked the Under-Secretary for the Colonies whether he could say whether the news from Natal published in a Reuter telegram was authentic, in so far as it stated that the Legislative Council had passed a resolution pressing to get the period of indentures of Indian immigrants extended to ten years, at the expiration of which they were to return to India, thereby subjecting Indians to compulsory labour for the whole period of their residence; and also that, after being dealt with by a Special Committee, an amended Constitution Bill had been presented by which the colonists still insisted that the Governor should only exercise his powers over the natives by advice of the Executive Council, and that the annual vote for the natives should be subject to the control of the Council.

BARON H. DE WORMS: In answer to the first part of the question, I have to say that the Secretary of State has no information beyond the Reuter telegram referred to, but as the proposal appears to have been to open a correspondence between the Colonial and Indian Governments, the latter, without whose concurrence the step cannot be taken, will be in a position to fully protect the interests of the immigrants. The papers about to be distributed will show that the present position of the Bill is as stated by the hon. member, and that the Legislative Council has been informed that her Majesty's Government adhere to their previous objections to the proposed provisions respecting the natives. (Hear, hear.)

The Indian Factory Act.—SIR G. CAMPBELL asked the Under-Secretary for India whether the final telegram to the Viceroy of India regarding the Factory Act contained in Parliamentary Paper No. 224, presented on May 5, and ending, "By decision of her Majesty's Government Bill must be passed without delay," was sent by "the Secretary of State in Council," and after the Council had had due opportunity of expressing an opinion as provided by law.

SIR J. GORST: The telegram was sent as urgent under section 26 of 21 and 22 Vict., c. 106, and subsequently submitted to Council as therein prescribed. (Hear, hear.)

MR. PROVAND initiated a discussion on Native Labour in Indian Factories and Workshops; MR. MACLEAN on the relations between India and Afghanistan, and SIR H. HAVELOCK-ALLAN brought forward the case of Colonel George Jackson; after which the Indian Budget was introduced by SIR JOHN GORST, on which followed an uninteresting conversation. Reports have appeared in the daily press.

Wednesday, Aug. 5.

SIR H. HAVELOCK-ALLAN gave notice that next session, on going into Committee of Supply upon the Army Estimates, he would move,

"That taking into consideration the practical failure and breaking down of the present system of short service and deferred pay for the supply of the military needs of the empire, and the universal opinion that the military resources of this country will not be properly developed until a more popular system of voluntary service has been devised, it is expedient that a Royal Commission shall be appointed thoroughly to consider and report on the whole subject during the session of 1892, taking for its basis the facts collected before the Select Departmental Committee under the Secretary of State for War, and presided over by Lord Wantage."

The Indian Revenue.—On the report of the East India Revenue Accounts, MR. M'LAREN asked what would be done next session with the Indian Councils Bill, and hoped that some elective representation on the Council would be provided for when the question was again brought forward.

MR. MORTON trusted that the Indian Budget would be brought forward earlier next session.

SIR J. GORST said that the Indian Councils Bill was brought in three sessions ago to make two small but not unimportant reforms which had been promised by the Viceroy. The Bill was a small one, carrying out reforms desired on every hand, but the hon. member for Crewe and his friends used it as a peg on which to hang a discussion on the whole Constitution of India and on the advisability of introducing a representative element, as to the nature of which they themselves were not agreed. The Government could not find time for the discussion of such great constitutional reforms, and if the hon. member insisted next session on pursuing the same course, the people of India would have to wait some time for the small reforms the Bill contained. It had been abandoned this year by desire of the leaders of the Opposition.

MR. ATKINSON said that if statesmen would refrain from stumping India, and persuading the people there that they were badly treated, there would be some chance of our doing the country some good. India was not ready for such institutions as those hon. gentlemen opposite suggested.

The report was then agreed to.

Correspondence has been presented to Parliament on the subject of the riots which broke out at Wuhu on May 12 last, and extended to other places. The situation is summed up in the following despatch, dated July 17, from the Marquess of Salisbury to Sir J. Walsham, British Minister at Peking:—"It appears, from a further message from the Yamen, which has been communicated to me by the Chinese Minister, on the subject of the anti-foreign riots in China, that besides the executions at Wuhu two men have been condemned to death at Wuhueh, and several Mandarins have been degraded. The Yamen are apprehensive lest the excitement might be revived and increased, rather than allayed, by further executions. According to the accounts which reach them from the spot order and peace are no longer disturbed. They are now, apparently, fully alive to the gravity of the occurrences that have taken place, and I am inclined to accept their assurances in this respect as sufficient if you are satisfied that the Chinese Government are in earnest."

LONDON: WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 12, 1891.

INDIA AT THE END OF THE SESSION.

THE so-called "Indian Budget Debate," on the last working day of the Session, was a palpable sham and is discreditable to the Government and the House of Commons. In Charles Street, possibly, it may be regarded as a very clever thing to put off the discussion of the affairs of one of the greatest Empires in the world, the responsibility for whose government good or bad rests upon the British nation, until half the members of Parliament have departed for their summer holiday and the Opposition leaders have become too weary of talking to attempt anything like an adequate criticism of the Indian Administration. Yet, it is to that criticism, duly and candidly performed by the Opposition, whatever Ministry may be in power, that we must look for the increase among the electorate of an intelligent idea—it would be vain to hope for a completely appreciative knowledge—of the manner in which India is being ruled; for the correction of wrong views on Indian questions; for the stimulating of public interest in Indian affairs; and for bringing to bear on the bureaucracy by which India is governed the healthy influence of English opinion. Unless that is done, and done honestly and well, we can have little confidence in the voluminous optimism of Indian official reports, or in the soundness of our policy and administration in that empire. Yesterday week the Opposition leaders were absent or dumb; the dull conversation which passed for debate was left to be carried on by half a score of gentlemen who, whatever their own ideas of their importance, are unable to command a second-class place on any Parliamentary field-day, still less to exert any weighty political influence. A discussion de omnibus rebus et quibusdam aliis, which begins with MR. PROVAND and ends with MR. ATKINSON—who, by the way, appropriately got the last word—is a farce; an amusing farce it may be to the India Office; a cruel wrong to the people of India; to the scrutinising and intelligent foreigner a matter of ridicule if he be a foe, and, if a friend, of wonder and regret. For, after all, when we begin to reflect upon it, the good government of our great Eastern Empire under present conditions, must in a very large degree depend on the amount of interest which is taken in it by the people of this country. It is but a shallow notion that India is better governed when its governors are left to their own devices. A proper interest cannot be awakened or kept alive unless leading statesmen on both sides will take pains to follow with diligent attention the course of administration, and, without party bias and with no other than the patriotic aim of keeping that administration up to the highest pitch of honesty and efficiency, will intelligently criticise the action of the Indian bureaucracy. At present there is no one of similar calibre to discharge that duty which was so well performed by MR. BRIGHT and MR. FAWCETT. One cannot help wishing that a man like MR. MORLEY could be diverted from the wasteful expenditure of his abilities in partisan politics to a profound study of the manner in which India is administered under the Acts which were professedly passed for its "better government," and of the vast problems of policy, finance and sociology which lie open to the investigation of any candid and critical mind.

On the subject of Indian Factory legislation brought forward by MR. PROVAND, who pressed for "further reforms," on humanitarian grounds, the course taken by the conversation in which MR. BUCHANAN, MR. S. SMITH, SIR GEORGE CAMPBELL, and MR. MACLEAN took part, may deceive the Indian manufacturers into imagining that the force of the movement for further restrictive regulations is abating. MR. BUCHANAN stood up stoutly for non-interference, as did SIR GEORGE CAMPBELL. MR. SAMUEL SMITH admitted the danger of "putting on restrictions which would hamper Indian manufactures," but he clearly showed that his sympathies went with the demand for more restriction. MR. MACLEAN has discovered that it is "inopportune" (this week) to press for further reforms; he somewhat cynically admits that he never took the question up as a philanthropist, but because the hours of labour "were unfair to the Lancashire operatives, and because they were exposed to undue competition." Altogether the attack led by MR. PROVAND does not seem to have been very vigorous, but the millowners must not suppose that they are out of the wood. A talk at the end of the Session in an almost empty House has little importance. If MR. PROVAND can get a day for a discussion early in the next Session, when all the representatives of the manufacturing and humanitarian interests are able to attend, and SIR JOHN GORST, who cleverly avoided the subject, can be forced to speak, matters may assume a different aspect.

MR. MACLEAN initiated a brief discussion on our relations to the AMEER OF AFGHANISTAN and proposed an extension of the railway to Candahar. There may be some esoteric reasons for raising a question which, it would seem to the uninitiated had better, as SIR JOHN GORST evidently thought, have been left alone. He very properly pointed out that to advance the railway one mile into Afghan territory would lead to strong remonstrance on the AMEER's part, and indeed be a breach of faith. As circumstances are, his consent to its construction is clearly not regarded by the Government as probable, and to propose it, even if it have no mischievous effect, was not politic. The remarks, however, during this discussion and in the debate on the Budget regarding the excessive military expenditure ought to be taken to heart by the Indian Government. By good luck SIR JOHN GORST was able to announce a handsome surplus, largely due to the improvement in exchange, but in a less favourable year the vast military expenditure will attract more attention, and were the Opposition not engaged in morbid political agitation on Home affairs, it would lead to an emphatic protest. The Indian Government will be wise if it takes advantage of the breathing-time thus given to it to bring its military budget within more reasonable bounds.

SIR RICHARD TEMPLE.

At a meeting of the Conservative Divisional Committee of South Worcestershire on Tuesday, LORD COVENTRY presiding, a letter was read from SIR RICHARD TEMPLE, M.P., stating that he did not intend to contest the division at the next general election. He had been ill from influenza, and did not feel equal to the strain of another election campaign. He had no other constituency in view. A resolution was passed expressing regret at the decision of SIR RICHARD.

The announcement, writes the London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, will be received with some surprise by those who know his fondness for public work and the extraordinary assiduity of his attendance at the House of Commons. It is recorded that in a recent session he was not absent from a single division. Like Sir George Campbell and two or three other distinguished Anglo-Indians, Sir Richard has been somewhat of a disappointment in the House of Commons. I remember the first occasion on which he essayed to address the House. It was on Mr. Jesse Collings's famous "three acres and a cow" motion, in the short-lived Parliament of 1885. The House—it was late at night—resented being lectured on allotments by an Anglo-Indian, and fairly shouted him down. On more congenial topics, however, particularly on India, he is heard with the greatest attention, although he is the most optimistic of ex-officials, believing that all is for the best under the best of possible Governments. His style may be described as turgid Macaulayese. Sir Richard is the most caricatured man of his time, and he has, as all the world knows, furnished material for innumerable sketches in Punch from the pencil of Mr. Harry Furniss.

Much surprise has been caused, says a provincial correspondent, by the early date fixed for the opening of the next Indian trooping season, the Euphrates sailing from Portsmouth on Sept. 2. This vessel will reach Bombay on the 28th of that month, though the regulations name the end of October as the earliest period at which troops should arrive in India. In the most luxurious P. and O. steamer to spend ten days of September in the Red Sea and Indian Ocean would be a severe ordeal, but it will be awful in a troopship into which 1,200 or 1,300 persons are packed, with scarcely any provision for comfort; and old sailors say that the innovation is unwise.

A correspondent writes to the Standard from Colombo rather more than sceptically about the sincerity of the complaints made of the Ceylon climate by Mr. Labouchere's pet protégé Arabi Pasha. It seems that if he chose to remove to Jaffra or some other place in the Northern Province he could find an air suited to his physical, if not his mental, troubles. One of the exiles, Mahmoud Fehmy Pasha, according to this correspondent, is whiling away his hours of exile by writing a history of the world in Arabic to be published in five big volumes. This, conceding that no one is obliged to read it, is a harmless occupation, and increases our respect for Mahmoud Fehmy. It appears that he regards his former leader's alleged indisposition with contempt. "You walk down to his bungalow now," he remarked to the correspondent in the course of an interview the other day, "you will find Arabi and the others all strong, just like elephants; you see passengers coming, then Arabi crosses his hands—so, and looks bad, and 'I'm so sick, what can I do!'"—and so on, mimicking the pining exile in ludicrous fashion. "The Government at home recently ordered a Board of local medical men to inquire into the health of the exiles, and before this Board Mahmoud Fehmy Pasha declared that he was all right, while the doctors could find nothing wrong with the others. Mahmoud Fehmy suggests, as a way out of the difficulty, that the Government should give Arabi the option of going to Tasmania, or of remaining where he is. If this is done, he says, it will be found that Arabi will not quit Ceylon. 'As for me,' he states frankly, 'if Cyprus were Paradise, they would have to drag me out by the heels.'" It must be admitted that Egypt is blessed above Great Britain in being thus able to transfer its intransigents to an earthly Paradise. How pleasant it would be to send out an Indian troopship laden with gentlemen whom we could well spare. Mr. Seymour Keay, Mr. Morton, Mr. Atkinson, Mr. Cunningham Grahame, and a few others would make a delightful party, especially if Mr. Labouchere would accompany them and edit Truth from Colombo.

Sir Lepel Griffin has written to the Times to deny the accuracy of a statement, which we believe first appeared in the Pioneer, that the Indian Government had practically decided to decline his Cashmere railway scheme, on the ground that the promoters asked too much, a guarantee of 4½ per cent. being one of their demands. He says that he has now received a copy of the orders of the Government of India, dated July 2. He writes:—

I am now in a position to contradict the statement that the Government of India have in any way declined the proposals made. Some points, such as a sterling guarantee, require further discussion and negotiation, but the decision is merely delayed because, as the Secretary to Government writes—

"The surveys which have been made since my letter of October

1890 was written, have proved that it will be desirable, before deciding on the general route to be taken by the railway to Cashmere, to make surveys and reconnaissances on lines other than the Panjar route, which at that time was regarded as the most promising. It is not probable that these surveys and explorations will be completed for some months, and until the Government of India is better able than at present to determine the route which the projected railway will be likely to follow, a continuation of the negotiations is not likely to have satisfactory results."

It is also necessary to correct the statement that a guarantee of 4½ per cent. was one of the demands of the promoters of the undertaking. On the contrary, the financial house which has taken up the scheme, and which is the most important in Europe, only asked a guarantee of 3½ or 3¾ per cent., with a quarter share of eventual profits, which is a very moderate demand for a line of so much difficulty, and the traffic returns of which are uncertain, and it is not likely that any better terms for such a line are procurable in the City of London.

The alternative line, which is, equally with the Panjar route, covered by the application to the Government of India, is on strategical grounds preferred by the military advisers of the Government of India, and there are many arguments in its favour. It will, however, be more expensive and slightly longer, and the Government would have to bear a larger proportion of the cost of construction than would be the case were the line most approved by the Cashmere State selected. That there is no time to be lost in commencing the railway is obvious, and the unfortunate occurrences at Manipore this year have shown how essential railway communications are to the outlying portions of the British Empire. To Cashmere their necessity becomes each day more urgent. To emphasize the importance of the undertaking, it was announced from St. Petersburg on the 23rd ult. that "the Ministry of War has under consideration a scheme for the construction of a railway from Dushak, a station on the Transcaspian Railway, to Sarakhs, on the Afghan frontier." This significant announcement has received less notice than it deserves from the English Press.

The St. James's Gazette rather pertinently hints that there is more of the company-promoter than the political officer about the latter part of this curious communication.

Referring to some criticism on the above-mentioned letter which appeared in the St. James's Gazette, Sir Lepel Griffin wrote to that paper:—

You will forgive me for observing that my views have not changed on the subject (of the "Russian Advance to India"), but that, on the contrary, I have always, in the press and in public speeches, expressed the most complete distrust of Russian promises, asserted that her intentions towards our Eastern Empire were consistently hostile, and urged Englishmen to secure India in time by all reasonable measures of defence, such as those which were planned by Lord Dufferin and Sir Donald Stewart, and which are being completed by Lord Lansdowne and Sir Frederick Roberts.

It is true that I have never been a Russophobe in the strict sense of the term, and have insisted that in all the essentials of strength England was far superior to Russia if she chose to make ready for a contest which sooner or later will be inevitable. But I have never minimised the danger to our peace of the Russian advance to India. It has now reached the frontiers of Afghanistan, which we are bound, under the most solemn engagements, to protect; and a single step forward will be, or should be, accepted as a declaration of war. The sky is fairly clear at the present time; but when we are next in difficulties with France or America we shall need to keep an eye on the Herat border.

The Morning Post, commenting on the decision of the Indian Government in relation to the convicts at Manipore, says that every Englishman who has devoted any attention to the study of the subject may well rest content with the decision at which the Viceroy has arrived. There is no feeling of vindictiveness in this country against the authors of the Manipore tragedy, but there is a stern and righteous feeling that justice must be done, and to this sentiment the judgment of the Viceroy gives expression. The Senaputty was undoubtedly the chief offender in the sad events which characterised last March. His ambition, his insatiable greed of power were, indeed, at the bottom of the whole trouble, and his brother, who had been elevated to the post of nominal ruler of the country after the expulsion of another brother, the legitimate Maharaja, was a mere puppet in his hands. . . . The Regent, on the other hand, appears to have been distinctly less criminal. His faults were those of omission rather than of commission. He made no effort to save the lives of the Englishmen who had been entrapped, but he does not seem to have had any part in their massacre. It is fitting, therefore, that his case should be differentiated from that of his more guilty colleagues, and that his life should be spared, and, upon the same principle, it is easy to understand why Angao Sena has escaped capital punishment. Taken as a whole, in fact, the decision at which Lord Lansdowne has arrived seems to fitly combine justice with mercy. The more guilty criminals are to suffer the extreme penalty of the law in order that all who are concerned may understand that England cannot condone treason or palter with treachery. Their less guilty colleagues, on the other hand, will escape capital punishment, and their fate should be a token that there is no desire on the part of the ruling power in India to entertain vindictive feelings or to take life for the mere purposes of vengeance. From every point of view the Viceroy's decision will commend itself to English feeling, and it will, we believe, meet with general approval on the part of our Indian fellow-subjects, who are fully aware that rebellion in arms cannot be allowed to escape without punishment.

The Hazara Frontier.—If tribal rumours were at all reliable, we might expect to hear to-day, says the Civil and Military Gazette, of fighting on the Black Mountain frontier, where, the rumour goes, Hashim Ali, whom our force vainly pursued in the spring, purposed to make an attack yesterday upon the new Agror Fort. Hashim Ali is credited with having collected a force of 7,000 Munja-eddins and 12,000 Kohistanis on the neighbouring hills. All these men are said to be Ghazis, and, after the orthodox worship of the I'd Mubarak yesterday, they were to fall upon the fort suddenly. This is the rumour, and may not be worth anything; but there is so much foundation for the idea, that we have been long expecting to hear that Hashim Ali had broken out in a new place. Until he is killed or caught, the Hazara frontier is not likely to have permanent peace. What a desperate reputation Hashim Ali has among his neighbours may be gathered from the story which comes just now from Kala Dhakka, near Agror, of his treatment of some mullas from Mian Gul, of Swat. Mian Gul, it will be remembered, is the diplomatic successor of the Akhund of Swat, and he used his influence as mediator between the Government of India on the one side, and the Swatis and Bonerwals on the other, to keep the peace at Baio, during the recent Black Mountain Expedition. For this service Mian Gul is believed by the tribes to have made a handsome pecuniary profit out of the Government of India, and has lost credit with the fanatical sections of the tribes. Mian Gul is always accompanied by a number of mullas and shaihs, who live upon his and others' bounty. A number of these mullas went to Hashim Ali, at Kala Dhakka, to ask for alms; but he is said to have put them all to death, accusing them and Mian Gul of having been bribed to take the part of the Government of India against him, adding that he would treat Mian Gul in the same way if he got the chance.

A Curious Question.—A well-informed correspondent writes to the Times of India:—"I hear there is some feeling of disquiet in Kattywar at a sudden and very arbitrary settlement of Government to place the railway police of the B.-G. J.-P. Railway entirely in the hands of the Superintendent of the Agency Police, thereby bringing the powers of this official to the very doors of the chiefs through whose territories this railway passes, and thus, it is feared, placing the thin end of the wedge towards rending asunder the cherished independence of these rulers. It is a pity, if true, that the plucky enterprise which induced four or five of the first-class chiefs is to be selected as the mechanical power for accomplishing any scheme by which the police of the Province is to be made one; and it will certainly take all Lord Harris's logic to substantiate in such case his utterances at Kolapore, that Government really desire that the spare capital of Native States should be employed in the construction of communications over the territory belonging to their feudatories." We shall await further information before venturing to discuss such a very important matter.

Suez Canal Traffic.—A tabular statement, compiled by Mr. R. Broadbent, of Port Said, giving the number of steamers, the net tonnage, and the traffic receipts of the Suez Canal for the last six months, is of a specially interesting character, more particularly to shipowners trading to the East. During the period ending June 30 last the number of steamers using the waterway was 2,212, of a net tonnage of 3,971,492, contributing in dues 42,847,291 frs. The aggregates given prior to Jan. 1, 1891, are annual, but the increase this year over last is at once seen when it is stated that during 1890 3,389 vessels used the Canal. Taking half of this figure as representing the first or corresponding six months of last year, we have 1,694, and this certainly is appreciably less when compared with the 2,212 of 1891. If the trade of the Canal continues during the pending half-year as it has in the prior half, the current twelve months may be set down as beating the record, for in no one year in the history of the Canal have anything like 5,000 vessels made the passage on their way to homeward and outward ports. In 1890, 3,389 steamers were in transit, the receipts amounting to 66,984,000 frs.; in 1889, 3,425 steamers, receipts 66,167,579 frs.; in 1888, 3,440 steamers, receipts 64,832,273 frs.; in 1887, 3,137 steamers, receipts 55,995,298 frs.; in 1886, 3,100 steamers, receipts 54,771,076 frs.; in 1885, 3,624 steamers, receipts 60,057,259 frs.; in 1884, 3,284 steamers, receipts 58,628,759 frs.; in 1883, 3,307 steamers, receipts 60,558,488 frs.; and 1882, 3,198 steamers, receipts 55,421,039 frs. The table gives the figures relating to steamers, tonnage, and receipts since the traffic was commenced in 1870. Weighing these figures over carefully, it is obvious that 1885 was a very successful year so far as the carrying trade to and from India, China, and Japan is concerned, for the receipts were then abnormally large. After the commercial storm there came a calm, and there ensued a large decrease in income, which again rebounded after two years of depression in 1888, since which time the volume of trade has rapidly risen until this year, so far as it has gone, the net result is unprecedented. The reason for the existing prosperity in the traffic of the Canal is not very far to seek. It is now some time since troubles in Egypt hampered our trade with that country, and the Indian harvests of late have been prolific, much of the corn which used to be imported from America being now brought from our Indian possessions. In giving the figures for the successive years since 1870, the compilers, of course, render good service. These show that in 1872-3 the traffic doubled, and that subsequently there was a big jump in the receipts. It would be well if a footnote were added to the statement that charges upon vessels passing through the Canal were increased no less than 50 per cent. in 1873.

COMMERCIAL.

CALCUTTA, July 20.

THE directors of the Bank of Bengal, at their meeting held on July 16, made no change in the rate of interest, the official minimum remaining unaltered at 3 per cent.

The Bank's statement for the week ending July 14 shows the following changes in figures:—

LIABILITIES.
Treasury Balance at Head Office	Rs. 5,23,383	Decrease
Do. at Branches	9,71,305	Increase
Other Deposits	18,51,825	Increase
Post Bills	1,15,340	Increase
ASSETS.
Bank's Investments	Rs. 13,82,832	Decrease
Loans	5,52,767	Decrease
Accounts of Credits	13,63,207	Decrease
Mercantile Bills	92,532	Decrease
Cash at Head Office	38,76,347	Increase
Do. at Branches	24,61,675	Increase

The analysis of the above return shows a decrease of 39½ lacs in the public demand, made up as follows:—By an increase of over 18½ lacs in "Other Deposits" and over 1½ lacs in "Post Bills," coupled with a decrease of over 5½ lacs in "Loans," 13½ lacs in "Accounts of Credits," and nearly 1 lac in "Mercantile Bills." The Treasury balance at head office stands reduced by nearly 5½ lacs, while at the branches it stands increased by about 9½ lacs. The final result of these changes is an increase of over 38½ lacs in the Cash at the Head Office and about 24½ lacs at the Branches, making the total 7,47,78,396 rs., equal to 69 per cent. of the liabilities of the Bank, against 64·7 per cent. of last week.

TEA.—On July 16 about 11,000 chests were sold out of rather over 12,000 offered. Fine and good quality teas remained steady at previous values. Inferior liquoring sorts were neglected, and sold at rather lower rates. Demand for Bombay still continues, but at some decline in price.

JUTE.—There has been a fair business done in old crop at 22 rs., and new crop good first marks at 25 rs. for August delivery. There are still sellers at this price for August and September. London and Dundee, however, seem disinclined to buy much. The quality of the newly-arrived jute is by no means good, and much of it is wet.

GUNNIES.—The tone of the market has been firm, but the business reported is on a small scale. The Colonies, Cape, and U.K. have done practically nothing. Burma is on for more C.'s for the season, but mills have raised their prices. Some No. 2 twills were taken for the Bombay side at last rates. Native speculators are in the market for January-June next year.

HESSIANS are quiet, little doing, and prices steady.

JOINT STOCK SHARES.—The feature of the week has been the collapse in Bengal-Baragundas, occasioned by the adverse report of Captain Williams on the company's property (an inkling of which had got abroad), and by the consequent desire of some to realise whatever could be obtained. In view of the heavy additional outlay required to make the mine a profitable one, and the failure to place the debentures recently offered, it is feared that the concern will have to go into liquidation. The managing agents report that a reconstruction of the company is imperative, and that a scheme for carrying this into effect is engaging their attention. Captain Williams's report seems to prove conclusively that the past management at the mines has been extremely faulty.

In gold shares the market generally has been dull and inanimate, and the transactions reported very few. The real business of the week has been in Jute mill scrip. There is not a single weak company amongst all the mills, and that this fact is beginning to be recognised and appreciated is proved by the shares being in request not only for speculation, but for investment they are gradually increasing in favour, and prices are steadily improving. So long as the mills continue to do as well as they are at present, nothing better could be desired, but there are some keen far-seeing intellects who incline to the opinion that reduced profits must be looked for ere long. In the current and probably for the next half-year, the mills have their profits almost assured, and it is scarcely politic to look further ahead.

There has been a transaction in Bowreahs at 50 and at 50½, and the Goosery Mills will pay a dividend on their past half-year's working. In tea, however, there has not been a single transaction reported.

BANK OF BENGAL.

Rate of Interest for Demand Loans 3 per cent.

BOMBAY, July 23.

The mills have taken a good deal of old cotton from stock, but exporters have been almost entirely out of the market; and in wheat and seeds only a small or moderate business has been passing on about the basis of previous rates. Exchange has been unsettled by the varying course of silver, and rates have fluctuated to the extent of 5-32d., closing 1-16d. lower for bank bills and 1-32d. for credits than they were. Government paper has advanced on the whole 5-16 per cent. for Fours. Freights are a shade steadier than they have been lately, but demand is still very slack. The import market is dull in presence of unfavourable weather and crop reports from some of the consuming districts, and little forward business is being attempted.

MONEY.—As was anticipated, the funds which were required for a special purpose at the end of last month have been finding their way back to the coffers of the Presidency Bank, and the monsoon slackness of trade having continued, and a considerable portion of the previous week's Government withdrawals having been replaced, the Bank's statement of affairs issued on July 20 showed the large increase of 42½ lacs in the cash balance, which thus stood at not far from 300 lacs. There had been no change worth mentioning in the position of loans since the date of the previous return; but private deposits had increased to the extent of 23½ lacs, while in bills discounted there had been the considerable decrease of about 9 lacs (which, however, was 4½ lacs less than was shown at the close of the preceding week); the diminution in trade requirements during the week covered by the statement having been represented by 32 lacs. There has been no particular change in the position of the market meantime, and the Bank's minimum rate remains at 3 per cent.

Imports.—PIECE GOODS.—Accounts regarding the progress of the S.-W. monsoon in several important districts having been very unfavourable, only a small business has been done in the leading descriptions of greys, and rates continue to have a downward tendency, while stocks are accumulating. Under these circumstances, holders are willing sellers, but they meet with few buyers. In bleached, dyed, Turkey red, and printed goods there is no change whatever to notice. For local goods the market is very dull, and rates are tending downwards, while stocks are fast increasing. The clearances of imported goods have amounted to only about 1,600 packages, and of local goods to only some 700 bales.

YARNS.—There has been no further change in the prices of imported twist, in which a small business has been done in a quiet market. The sales of local spinnings at the three ports for the fortnight ending July 20 are returned at 8,600 bales, with a downward tendency in prices in dull markets. Spinners are doing their utmost to effect sales of China makes, but they find no China buyers prepared to take up large quantities. Stocks are increasing fast, and rates are very unsteady. Beyond a few small lots, aggregating about 1,000 bales, there has been no business passing, and the market closes slack with nothing doing.

METALS.—Only a small business has been passing in copper in a quiet market; but prices are unaltered, notwithstanding the lower quotations received from the other side. Yellow metal has been taken to a moderate extent on the basis of previous rates, at which the market is steady. A moderate business has also been done in iron, and an advance of 8 as. has been established in Swedish; but hoops and nails are lower to the same extent, the tone of the market being steady.

COAL.—The market continues to be oversupplied with this mineral, and importers are still offering lots which arrive unsold. If they ceased to offer fresh arrivals and post-monsoon cargoes, there would be every chance of an improved market. Meantime a demand from one of the railway companies has sprung up, and has put some life into the market. A cargo of Powell's Duffryn Cardiff, July-August shipment, is said to have been placed at 15½ rs., and a quantity of Wilson's South Yorkshire has been sold at 12 rs. to 12½ rs. per ton.

Exports.—COTTON.—A moderate business was done in this staple on last mail day by the mills, in a steady market, on the basis of previous rates; but exporters took scarcely anything, and the week closed with a quiet feeling, little having been done for local account, and nothing whatever for export; but prices were unaltered. On July 20 there was again nothing at all doing for export, but the mills took a moderate quantity of stuff from godown, and rates were put up 1 r. to 2 rs. per candy in a steady market; and thereafter, though shippers were hardly in the market, local spinners bought rather largely, the only further change in rates having been a decline of 2 rs. per candy in Dharwars. The week's purchases by the mills aggregate about 13,000 bales, consisting principally of Oomra and Dholera varieties, Dharwars and Bengals; while exporters have taken only about 1,000 bales of Oomra descriptions, Bengals, and Compta ginned. The market closes steady, with prices 2 rs. to 3 rs. higher than last quotations.

The receipts of cotton of this season's crop during the week have been 15,000 bales, compared with 8,500 bales to hand during the previous week, and 6,700 bales in the corresponding week; and the decrease in total arrivals this season, compared with last, is now 206,900 bales.

WHEAT has been steady in tone, but with only a moderate business doing for export, and prices of all descriptions are unchanged.

SEEDS have been taken to a small extent in a market generally quiet but steady. The price of linseed advanced half an anna per cwt. in the earlier part of the week, but other kinds showed no movement.
